INDUSTRIAL JOBS AT 10 YEAR PEAK IN CHICAGO AREA

Defense Orders and War Credited.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Industrial employment in the Chicago area is now at the highest level in the last 10 years. So is the volume of factory and mill pay rolls. The number of wage earners in manufacturing plants is estimated at 540,000 and the monthly pay roll at about $64,500,000. The computations are made from data in various government reports. The Chicago area embraces the counties of Cook, Du Page, Kane, Lake, and Will in Illinois and Lake county in Indiana.

The upswing, which is reflected in the Christmas shopping and the dense crowds in the shopping districts, has been most pronounced in the last six months. Experts say it is largely due to the national defense program and to wartime demands for steel, other supplies, and instruments of war from Great Britain. How lasting or temporary it is, is another question.

Pay Rolls Outrace Jobs.

In the 9,000 industrial establishments of all sizes in the Chicago area, pay rolls have been rising faster than employment. This is held to be due to a reduction of part time employment and an increase in full time and overtime, more than to wage scale increases. Last September manufacturing employment in Illinois was 23 per cent higher than two years before, while pay rolls were 37 per cent greater in the aggregate.

Here is a table, computed from government reports, showing the trend of manufacturing employment and pay rolls in the area since 1929, peak year of the joyriding, razzle dazzle age:

	Employés [Mnthly. aver.]	Pay rolls [Mnthly. aver.]
1929	550,903	$72,500,000
1935	421,000	41,000,000
1937	539,000	61,700,000
1938	438,000	46,700,000
1939	464,000	52,300,000
Dec. 1939	509,000	59,200,000
*Dec. 1940	540,000	64,500,000

Thus, it appears, industrial employment in the area is only about 11,000 less than in 1929, when the depression started, altho pay rolls are 8 million dollars a month lower. Employment is a shade higher than in 1937, year of the "little boom," while pay rolls are noticeably higher. The total monthly pay roll is more than 5 million dollars higher now than a year ago.

War and Defense Responsible.

America's national defense program and the war in Europe are held by trade statisticians to have given greatest momentum to the upsurge. War supplies shipped to England have increased jobs in the mills and plants. Another part, undetermined in volume, is played by the increase in American exports to Latin American markets lost by Great Britain and Germany.

In the national defense program, prime contracts given by the government to industries in the Chicago area between July 1 and Nov. 30 amounted to $269,000,000. In addition contracts not made public—military or naval secrets—totaled $18,000,000, making a total of $287,000,000. These are figures tabulated from government reports by the industrial department of the Association of Commerce.

Total Near Half Billion.

Secondary contracts and the making of parts, tools, and accessories used in machines of war play an important part in the increased employment. The Association of Commerce estimates the secondary contracts at about $100,000,000. [The Illinois Manufacturers' association estimate is higher.] Then about $110,000,000 of new construction is reported. This brings the discernible result of the national defense program in the Chicago area, the statisticians say, up to about half a billion dollars.

How much of the industrial production actually is going into defense nobody knows, for many plants are selling their output to holders of prime contracts. One maker of army trucks, for example, says that his company has from 150 to 200 primary suppliers of parts and materials and, in turn, many of these have suppliers of parts.

Steel and iron, largest industry in the area, is running almost at capacity. Most of the mills are running

CITY GETS 5 NEW LUXURY TRAINS AS A YULE GIFT

3 Streamliners Put on Florida Run.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Five new streamlined trains within a week are the latest gift of the railroads to Chicago. The trains run to the south, the southwest, and the west.

The first of the new trains to leave on a regular run will be the Arizona Limited of the Rock Island-Southern Pacific railroads. It will leave the La Salle street station at 8:45 o'clock tonight on a 39 hour 40 minute schedule to Phoenix, Ariz., via Tucson. The new train will cut eight hours and 25 minutes from present schedules.

Tuesday at 9:40 a. m. the Dixie Flagler of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and five southern roads will leave from the Dearborn station on a regular run, opening 29½ hour service between Chicago and Miami, Fla., saving 10 hours. It will be followed Wednesday by the Illinois Central's City of Miami and Thursday by the Pennsylvania's South Wind. Each of these trains will leave for Miami every third day—so one will leave each day.

Eight Hours to Omaha.

The fifth of the new streamliners is the Milwaukee's Midwest Hiawatha—a daylight train which connects Chicago with Omaha, Neb.; Sioux City, Ia., and Sioux Falls, S. D. This train made a trip Wednesday on an eight hour schedule to Omaha. Leaving Chicago at 12:45 p. m., it will reach Sioux Falls just before midnight on a run that previously meant a night spent on the train.

Gov. Robert T. Jones of Arizona and Mayor Kelly will take part in the dedication of the Arizona Limited at 3:30 p. m. today in the La Salle hotel. The governor and Mrs. Jones, Miss Betsy Nehf of Phoenix, and Miss Betty Proctor of Tucson were guests of Rock Island officials yesterday at a luncheon in the Drake hotel and at the opera.

Dixie Flagler Arrives Tonight.

The Dixie Flagler is scheduled to arrive at the Dearborn station tonight after a test run with a party of southern business and political leaders from Florida and Georgia and with beauty queens from cities along the train's route. They will attend lunches, dinners, and other celebrations marking the new service. Miss Marian Johnson, a former Chicagoan who is Miss Miami for 1941, and nine Miami girl guides will arrive at the Illinois Central station at 7:15 a. m. today. They will take part Wednesday morning in the christening of the City of Miami.

These fast new trains are another victory in THE TRIBUNE's campaign for better railroad service. This paper long has maintained that the best way for the railroads to meet their highway and air competition is to offer high speed and luxurious trains. In this the paper has given the railroads the widest encouragement in its editorial and news columns.

BLACK HORSE TROOP FINDS OUTLOOK DARK; START SOUTH DELAYED

Most of the members of the Chicago Black Horse troop of the Illinois National Guard were disappointed yesterday when the war department delayed their start for Camp Livingston, La., from tomorrow to Jan. 1. But the most disappointed of all were seven officers who already had sent their families to new homes in Alexandria, La., near the camp.

The delay, attributed to storms in the southland and slow construction of buildings at Livingston, created a Christmas problem for the officers.

"We intend to ask for leave so we can be with our folks for the holiday," said Lieut. Edward Blaisdell. "If that is denied I suppose we'll have to bring them back here. It's expensive, but better than a gloomy Christmas by ourselves."

The other officers are Capts. John Kracke, Richard Strauss, Sidney Waud, and Charles Elliott and Lieuts. Frank Davidson and Kenneth Haycraft.

Dr. Stock Lifts Leaf from Tale of Pied Piper

BY MARCIA WINN.

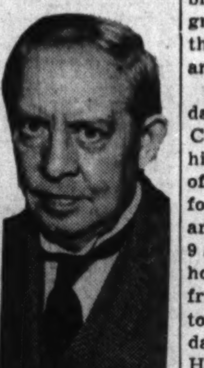
A wondrous thing took place in Orchestra hall yesterday morning, and if ever a play were written of it, as one should be, its title would be "Dr. Stock and the Children." It was so joyous, so lovely, and so gay that it should have been recorded minutely in sight, sound, and all dimensions.



Dr. Frederick Stock.

It was a glorious morning for 400 little children and Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. A white haired, bowed, elfinlike figure, with an eye that glared in simulated ferocity one moment and shone with a merry twinkle of understanding the next, he charmed 400 children as beautifully as ever did the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

Voices Rise in Childish Beauty.

At one point a chubby little girl, who could have nestled snugly into the heart of one of the orchestra's massive horns in front of her, laughed with such abandon that she tumbled off her chair. But at other points the 400 voices were raised in clear, childish beauty, in, as a music critic observed, "a concentration out of this world."

The children were there, as was Dr. Stock, as was the full orchestra, as were countless music teachers from the Chicago public schools, as was Dr. Helen Howe, director of public school music, for a rehearsal of Pierné's "Children of Bethlehem," the Christmas cantata which the children will sing with the orchestra at its Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday concerts this week. Trained under Dr. Howe's direction, they sang without music or words, without hesitation or falter.

Occasionally Dr. Stock peremptorily halted them.

His Grimaces Amuse Them.

At this the children would go into gales of laughter. "He's so cute," a black haired little girl commented out of the sagacity of her 11 years.

Again, when some one asked him how the echo [50 children singing in the recesses behind the boxes in the empty hall] sounded, he contorted his face and cried in what might have sounded like a tragic tone to any but the children, who understood.

"Ach! It's a little sour."

Again, the peals of laughter, quickly subsiding into a tremulous silence.

"Gee," said yellow haired little Bobby Paraday, who is 9 and shy and in the fourth grade of Longfellow school. "He's O. K." Lido Zari, who is 10 and luminously Italian, nodded. "He's O. K.," he agreed. "And when I first saw him I was afraid."

"How do I like the children?" Dr. Stock repeated. "You want to reverse it. How do the children like to play with us?"

ROOSEVELT ASSERTS HE WILL VETO BILL TO CURB NEW DEAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 14.—President Roosevelt will veto the Walter-Logan bill which would curb the judicial activities of New Deal agencies, he announced today. The bill was passed by the skeleton congress—which has been sitting since the election—in a surprise vote which annoyed the administration.

Back on American soil after a 12 day fishing and defense tour of the Caribbean sea, Mr. Roosevelt is on his way to the White House by way of the infantile paralysis colony he founded at Warm Springs. He will arrive at Warm Springs tomorrow at 9 a. m. [Chicago time] and spend nine hours in the community among old friends and fellow patients. He plans to arrive in Washington, D. C., Monday in time to prepare for the White House visit of Princess Juliana of Holland, an exile from Nazi invasion.

Iowa Falls, Ia., Dec. 14 (AP).—Miss Marguerite Johnson, 32 years old, a Rock Island, Ill., high school teacher, and United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, 47, [R., N. D.], were married in the English Lutheran church here today.

After the cremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Johnson of Iowa Falls.

Mrs. Nye is graduate of Iowa State college, and taught also at Jewell, Ia., and Northwood, Ia. She and the senator met in the west several years ago, when Nye and his party assisted Miss Johnson and a companion with the repair of an automobile tire.

Aircraft Union Finds Official Guilty as 'Red'

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 14 [Special].—The Aeronautical Mechanics' union [A. F. of L.], which bargains for nearly 8,000 workers in the Boeing Aircraft company plants here, tonight voted to accept a union trial board report that Don Keppler, its vice president, was guilty of communistic activity within the organization. The report, which was adopted by a vote of 429 to 344, recommended that Keppler be found guilty, expelled from the union, and fined $5,000.

Testimony before the board investigating charges that 28 officers and members of the union had engaged in communistic activities was read to the meeting. The membership, however, voted only on the guilty charge, but will pass on the expulsion and $5,000 fine recommendation Dec. 28.

Boast of Red Control Told.

The meeting was marked by boos and curses while the 538 page record of Keppler's trial was read. Witnesses testified Keppler had boasted that communists would take over entire control of the Boeing plant. They told of Keppler inviting them to communist meetings and soliciting them to join the communist party.

John Bader, president of the union, and Hugo A. Lundquist, union business agent, the latter under suspension until the trial board's report on charges of communistic activity filed against him is submitted, tried vainly to steer the membership away from the issue of communism.

All Expected to Be Fired.

In the light of the action on Keppler, who is a minor character compared to Lundquist, it is expected the board will recommend firing all the accused reds in the union. Only two of the 28 cases before the board were acted on tonight. In the other case the membership cleared Horace Harvey, a Boeing mechanic, of charges of distributing literature malicious to officers of the union.

In a statement read to the meeting before the vote, Keppler charged the plan to oust him was sponsored by the Boeing company. He declared he would not accept the verdict of the trial board.

Danish Children Will Get Vitamins; Tons of Carrots

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, reported today Danish school children will be fed 4,000 tons of carrots to replace vitamins unobtainable because of the shortage of butter, oleomargarine, and cod liver oil.

FLANDIN, ANOTHER HITLER FRIEND, GETS FOREIGN JOB

Claim Arrest Nipped Plot of Vice Premier

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 14 (AP).—Pierre Laval, who was ousted from the French government, is accused of plotting to set up a separate government with himself as head, and even to lead France into war against Britain, authoritative sources declared tonight.

Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton and other ministers, these sources said, accused Laval of scheming to set himself up as leader of an independent régime at Paris and of using his ministerial rank to build up his prestige for war on Britain.

After a spirited cabinet meeting, about a hundred picked soldiers in regular uniforms are said to have surrounded the Hotel du Parc in Vichy, where Laval had a suite. Three high officials of the surete national [police] then walked in. When they came out a few minutes later they had Laval and his chief aid, Fernand de Brinon, with them. The two were placed in an automobile and whisked out of Vichy, accompanied by a motorcycle escort.

Reported Under Guard.

Laval is said to be a prisoner in his estate, guarded by soldiers and "G. P." men—agents of the Groupe de Protection, strong-arm squads built up by Peyrouton and other French leaders who distrusted Laval.

Diplomatic sources said the incident that led to the ouster of Laval was the question of who should go to Paris to represent the Petain government when the remains of Napoleon's son, which have been returned from Germany, are interred tomorrow in the Invalides in Paris on Adolf Hitler's order.

According to these sources, Laval said Chief of State Petain should go. Petain refused, they said, and was backed up by other ministers, but that was only an incident to graver charges against Laval.

[Another Berne dispatch said informed quarters declared Laval planned to stage his alleged coup while Petain was in Paris.]

Tell Story of Split.

The stage was set for Laval's ouster yesterday afternoon. Here is the sequence of events, according to authoritative diplomatic reports:

The other ministers' insistence that Petain should not go to Paris for the ceremonies tomorrow surrounding the return of "L'Aiglon's" remains angered Laval, who made an issue of it. He stalked from a cabinet meeting accompanied by several friends, including Georges Ripert, and went to his suite in the Hotel du Parc.

Peyrouton, War Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger, and other members of the anti-Laval group continued to talk with Petain. Suddenly, during the evening, they emerged and action began.

New Guards in Action.

As tho by magic, hard boiled former mobile guardsmen and members of Jacques Doriot's extreme rightist French Popular party appeared on the streets. They bore arm bands with the letters "G. P." on them and wore leather jackets and leather motorcyclists' helmets. They were the mysterious "Groupe de Protection," which had appeared only once before—to guard Petain when he visited Marseilles.

Laval's seizure soon followed.

Nazis Assured He Will Continue to Collaborate.

Germany Approves

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—Official government comment on the selection of Pierre Etienne Flandin as foreign minister in the Vichy government was withheld tonight, but it was indicated the appointment was widely approved. German newspapers carried extensive quotations from an interview Flandin gave to the Paris newspaper Le Matin yesterday in which he was quoted as placing much of the blame for the war on former Premier Edouard Daladier. Other papers attributed to Flandin the remark that the former British and French envoys to Germany, Sir Nevile Henderson and Robert Coulondre, failed to let Poland know before the outbreak of the war about proposals by Germany for peace.

VICHY, France, Dec. 14 (AP).—The world was permitted to learn tonight that Pierre Laval, No. 2 man of the Vichy government, has been forcibly shown the door but that his policy of collaboration with Germany will be continued under Pierre Etienne Flandin, a former premier.

Henri Philippe Petain.

As the hectic events of the last 24 hours unfolded—their full story still may not be told—informed persons said the action was directed mainly against Laval's activity at home and not against the principle of German collaboration, which Chief of State Philippe Petain has endorsed.

[A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, said the French cabinet shakeup was reported to have taken place without disorders.]

Hitler Kept Informed.

An official announcement said the change had been communicated to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler before the public was told, informing him that Flandin, a pro-German rightist, was "more apt" than his predecessor in the policy of French collaboration with Germany.

The 84 year old Marshal Petain himself told the people that the change would not affect French relations with Germany.

[Pierre Etienne Flandin was a prewar exponent of understanding with Germany. He advocated refusal to honor France's mutual assistance treaty with Czecho-Slovakia and became a storm center in the chamber of deputies in October, 1938, when he received a telegram of thanks from Adolf Hitler for his attempts to avert war over the Sudeten issue.]

Petain Tells of Shift.

Marshal Petain in a short message to the people over the radio declared the decision was taken purely for "high reasons of interior policy."

"It is for high reasons of interior policy that I am resolved to take this decision," the marshal added. "It will make no difference in our relations with Germany. I remain at the helm. The national revolution continues."

The ouster stripped Laval of any right to succeed Petain as chief of state, Petain announcing annulment of the act under which it might have been possible.

Two More Appointed.

Paul Baudouin was named secretary of state for the presidency of the council and given the information services—press, radio, and cinema—which formerly were Laval's charges.

Minister of Education Georges Ripert was replaced by Jacques Chevalier.

Before the shakeup was announced, communications with the outside world had been cut on orders of Marcel Peyroutin, interior minister.

Britons See Rift Over War in Mediterranean.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—With the British victory in north Africa, the continued advance of the Greeks against the Italians in Albania and the shake-up of the French government, possible repercussions of these events on the course of the war and Europe's future are the subject of uninterrupted discussion in British official quarters and the press.

That tremendous diplomatic developments are occurring is apparent, but the details are so confusing to officials and diplomats that no one here is certain whether what is happening in Italy, France, Germany, Russia and the Balkans is good or bad news for Britain.

Nazis' Greek Stand a Puzzle.

Observers have been puzzled at the apparent German indifference to the outcome of the Greeks' advance against the Italians. As far as is known here Germany has not given Italy any assistance in the Mediterranean wars. The fact that the Greek minister was the fêted guest at a German Red Cross benefit at a Berlin hotel last week, a reception attended by the highest German military personages, adds weight to a belief that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini are a long way from seeing eye to eye in the Mediterranean.

The announcement that Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, who was regarded as pro-Italian, had been replaced in the Vichy government by Pierre Etienne Flandin, who has been regarded as pro-German, seems to indicate that Hitler is trading off Mussolini for Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, French chief of state.

Italian Demands "Exorbitant."

It was recalled by diplomats that immediately after the meeting of Hitler and Petain at which Franco-German collaboration for a new order was proclaimed, Mussolini said France would have to pay the penalty of her defeat and that Italy would not compromise her demands on France. It has been suggested that the differences between Hitler and Mussolini resulted from these demands.

The possibility that Hitler has secretly welcomed Italy's war setbacks in order to bring her to a more conciliatory frame of mind is considered by many observers here. That explanation harmonizes with the supposed willingness of the Petain government to make cabinet changes to speed French collaboration.

This picture, as seen by diplomats here, is blurred, however, by other developments. News that the Italian ambassador to Moscow gave a party for Foreign Commissar-Premier Vyacheslav Molotov and the German and Japanese ambassadors contradicts the impression that a serious rift exists in the axis.

CHARGES HITLER "PEACE COLUMN" WORKS IN BRITAIN

Bevin Says Reds Are Agents for Nazis.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A suggestion that Adolf Hitler was operating a fifth column for peace in this country thru the medium of the communist party was made by Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, when speaking at a Trades Union congress meeting in Edinburgh today.

When interrupted by a small group of men asking why Hitler's peace offers had been rejected, Bevin stopped his address and said: "I know that, preparatory to Hitler's making a peace offer, orders were issued to the communists in this country to disturb meetings."

Says It Won't Work.

Pointing to those who had interrupted him, he added: "I know very well you have been instructed to try to create the impression the working class in this country is disunited. You have started it, but I don't think it will work."

Communists, he asserted, had "been allotted the task of preparing the way for Hitler's peace offensive." His declaration evoked a storm of applause, followed by shouts of "They're Nazis! Throw them out!"

Asks Increased Production.

"If you can win the war by breaking the morale of the enemy instead of killing them, so much the better for the world," he added. He appealed for increased production in aircraft factories, shipyards, and munitions works.

223 JEWISH REFUGEES LISTED AS KILLED IN CAPSIZING OF SHIP

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 14 (AP).—The death list from the capsizing of a Jewish refugee ship on a reef in the sea of Marmora mounted to 223 today and officials said about one-half of the bodies had been recovered. Survivors of the wreck of the 100 ton wooden vessel huddled in temporary camps near the shore.

Nearly 400 passengers boarded the boat at Varna, Bulgaria, including Rumanian, Polish, Czech, and German Jews. Survivors said each paid $750 for the passage, with the guarantee that they would be landed in Palestine.

A physician who headed the expedition was among the victims.

[Censorship of American-bound oriental mail arriving first at Canadian ports has been known for some time.]

Nazis to Canvass Alsace for Books to Be Burned

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The Strassbourger Neueste Nachrichten announced today that representatives of the Nazi party will make a house to house canvass in Alsace next week for anti-German books. Alsatians are urged to contribute "superfluous volumes," especially French books, presumably to be burned.

HITLER TO SPEND CHRISTMAS EVE WITH SOLDIERS

Aids Begin Shopping for Presents He Will Give.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—This year the German army will celebrate Christmas "from the North cape to the Bay of Biscay." Adolf Hitler himself will spend Christmas eve with his soldiers, but it is not known where. Altho Hitler and his foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, are absent from Berlin, the chancellery is putting the finishing touches on its Christmas preparations.

Aids are busy buying presents which Hitler will distribute to his staff and friends. This time the list is bigger than usual because Hitler instructed his adjutant to buy presents also for all the children and women who spend Christmas eve in the air raid shelter of the chancellery. A special celebration will be staged in the shelter. The guests will congregate around seven big Christmas trees.

Hitler Poses With Children.

Like many Christmas shoppers, Hitler's aids plan to buy books, paintings, etchings, and objects made in the art and crafts studios as presents. As usual, pictures of Hitler with his autograph also will be presented to his friends.

Army chiefs plan to emulate Hitler's example and visit the troops in their quarters. Reichsmarshal Herman Wilhelm Goering will fly to several air force headquarters.

Expect Hitler Proclamation.

Nazi leaders expect Hitler will issue a Christmas or New Year's proclamation in which he will reveal plans for those Germans seriously injured during the war, and further rewards for those who have received decorations for special valor.

Hitler's deputy leader, Rudolph Hess, and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels are scheduled to address the German people on New Years' eve. In the meantime, the wives of cabinet ministers are visiting military hospitals and attending countless Christmas celebrations organized under government or party auspices.

One Towel a Year for Japs Under New Ration System

TOKIO, Dec. 14 (AP).—Japanese will have to get along on one towel a year, starting in January, under a rationing system decreed by the ministry of commerce, Tokio newspapers reported today. A ration card system already is in effect for bleached cotton and infants' underwear. Stricter rationing of gauze, absorbent cotton, and condensed and powdered milk also is imminent, the press said.

BRITISH BATTLE ON FRONTIER OF ITALIAN LIBYA

Mop Up Fascist Forces Still Left in Egypt.

Hitler to Rescue?

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The British Broadcasting corporation said today that it is "widely thought that the time has come when Herr Hitler must attempt to rescue his partner"—Premier Mussolini.

"There has been no news today," B. B. C. said in a broadcast heard here, "on the movements of Hitler and Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, who were reported yesterday to have left Berlin and who are rumored to be on their way to see Mussolini.

"It will cause no surprise, if such a meeting takes place, since it is widely thought that the time has come when Hitler must, at whatever cost, attempt to rescue his partner."

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Italian African army, broken into bits, harassed by unending air attack, and declared here to have been effectively driven from Egypt, fought "on and about" its own colonial frontier of Libya tonight in an action that had become a defense of Fascist soil.

The term "on and about" was used by the British command itself in an official communique which did not add the obvious implication that something very near to a counterinvasion was developing with the apparent purpose of trying to destroy the entire Fascist force.

It was indicated that at some points fighting already was going on within Libya. One informant said that a continuation of the British drive probably would involve an effort to try to restrict the fighting generally to the hill regions beyond the Libyan border.

Round Up Stray Fascists.

A military spokesman would not confirm rumors that Sollum, just within Egypt, and Fort Capuzzo, just within Libya, had fallen to the British.

The action in Egypt itself, as summarized by general headquarters, was simply one of "clearance"—a process of rounding up the stray Fascist units still in the country. The Italian defeat was called a "rout" by the British command.

As always, there was no definite figure as to the number of prisoners captured; an incomplete official estimate put it at 26,000, together with vast quantities of guns, tanks, arms, and equipment of all sorts.

This estimate, which the British said was conservative, placed in actual custody more than one-fourth of the Fascist army which invaded Egypt in the early autumn and now has been driven back to the point where it started—an army which at its peak strength had been estimated by the British at 80,000.

Italians Disorganized.

The troops which had escaped capture in the flight into Libya were pictured as so disorganized as to be of little present effectiveness.

British air activity continued to set a high tempo of violence for the whole operation. Continuous assaults with bomb and machine gun fire on Italian positions far within Libya—at Derna, for example, 150 miles within the frontier—were reported by the royal air force. Hard hit, said the British, were the Derna barracks, wireless station, and other military buildings, and spreading fires were left in the area.

Bardia Bombed Again.

Among the announced results elsewhere in this furious aerial campaign were these:

Bardia, the important Libyan coastal base, hit again; military stores bombed in half a dozen points, and airdromes, landing fields, and gasoline storages pounded over a wide area; retreating Italians heavily machine gunned.

During the day a communique put at 15 the number of Italian aircraft shot down in action in a 24 hour period. This was aside from whatever destruction was caused among grounded planes, and the total British plane losses were said to have been four.

No recapitulation was made, but the cumulative total as derived from successive R. A. F. announcements placed the aggregate Fascist plane losses since the beginning of the British offensive at at least 65 to 70.

NO PEACE OFFER COMING FROM US, ITALIANS ASSERT

ROME, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Italians announced to the world today thru the Rome radio that "no peace offer will ever be forthcoming from Italy," and refused to acknowledge defeat in Africa.

The high command's daily communique asserted Fascist counterattacks had "slowed up enemy pressure" in Egypt, but laid no further claim to success in the field, and authoritative commentators took the line that what was happening in the desert was a long way from any decision.

They spoke of it as an action still raging over a vast area and described the British force as enormous.

Ability to Maneuver.

It was observed that the outcome of the struggle appeared to depend on the ability of the two armies to maneuver and to keep supplied with the essentials of war.

Writing in Il Giornale D'Italia, and speaking the government's views, Virginio Gayda asserted the results of the battle could be measured only weeks and months from now.

Both Egypt and Greece, he declared, were mere episodes to Italy and her attacking power has not been exhausted.

Envision Troop Shortage.

There would come a time, perhaps months hence, he went on, when the British attack in Egypt would threaten to "impoverish" the empire of its best troops—and at that time the British Isles still would be "threatened with enemy invasion."

The high command's report on the situation in Albania was little more detailed than that on the Egyptian campaign.

It spoke of "vigorous" counterattacks by the Fascists in Albania, without stating just what had been the result, and declared that the Greeks had suffered "considerable losses."

Sees Nazi Invasion of Italy.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 14.—Indications that the Italian defeat in North Africa has reached greater proportions than at first announced prompts the Turkish press to anticipate far reaching developments.

Hussein Caid Yalchin, leading editor and publisher, today suggested that the "final collapse of Italy in Africa might lead to an invasion of Italy by Germany."

Yalchin said that a defeat in Africa might cause an upheaval in Italy sufficient to force her out of the war. As a result, he said, Germany would be obliged to put Italy under constraint.

Bruno Mussolini, Il Duce's Son, Reported Safe in Italy

ROME, Dec. 14 (AP).—An authoritative source, replying to foreign reports that Bruno Mussolini, son of Il Duce, had been shot down in an air fight over Greece or Albania, said tonight that he was safe and on duty at an air base in southern Italy.

Charges Campaign to Prepare America for War Declaration

The object of the William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies is to prepare the American public mind for a declaration of war.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, former senior brigade commander of the Illinois National Guard, made this charge yesterday. He is chairman of the newly formed Chicago chapter of the America First committee, which was organized to provide leadership for the American people who want to keep this nation out of war.

Gen. Hammond challenged Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal, to say openly, when he speaks here tomorrow night under auspices of the local William Allen White committee, whether he favors our entrance into Europe's war. Since June 10 Agar has favored an American declaration of war on Germany, Gen. Hammond charged.

"Stop Trying to Befuddle."

"Mr. Agar has a right to his opinion," Gen. Hammond's statement continued, "but it adds nothing to the sum total of public enlightenment for him to go about the country talking about measures short of war when actually he favors an immediate declaration of war.

"It is time that William Allen White and his war hawks stop trying to befuddle the people whose support they seek. I should be interested in learning whether Mr. Agar has the courage to tell the local White committee supporters he wants war now."

John T. Flynn, New York author, will address the first big rally of the America First committee next Wednesday evening in Orchestra hall. Gen. Robert E. Wood, national chairman of the committee, will preside.

The committee maintains that American democracy can be preserved only by keeping out of the European war. It advocates an impregnable defense, so that no foreign powers could hope to attack us successfully. Aid to Great Britain in the measure advocated by the White committee would weaken defense and threaten to involve America in war, the America First committee believes.

Committees to carry on America First activities along the north shore will be appointed this week, according to Mrs. Melvin Z. Bennett, in charge of the Evanston headquarters. She said the committee was meeting with a "wonderful response." Requests for literature will be filled next week, she said.

Admits Favoring War.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 14 (AP).—Herbert Agar, editor of the Courier-Journal, said tonight it was "quite correct" that he had advocated an American declaration of war since June 10 but that "it is silly to ascribe my opinions to the White committee."

Commenting on a statement in Chicago by Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, Agar said:

"I think that both Gen. Hammond and the William Allen White committee are in error in thinking we are not now at war. I think the White committee is foolish not to recognize publicly that we are at war, but I don't think they are any more foolish than Gen. Hammond in refusing to recognize that fact."

Agar said his Chicago speech is to develop proposed steps short of war. He said he does not advocate sending American troops abroad.

New Greek Attache Will Have 'Special' U. S. Mission

LISBON, Portugal, Oec. 14 (AP).—Col. E. Papvassiliou, formerly of the Greek general staff who recently arrived here from Athens, has been appointed Greek military attaché at Washington, D. C., and will leave shortly by trans-Atlantic Clipper on what he termed a "special important mission."

25 ROOM PALACE IN VERSAILLES TO BE PETAIN HOME

Refurnished as Official Residence.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9 [By Courier to Berlin] [Delayed].—The "Pavilion Hertog," where Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain will live while in Versailles, has been completely altered, redecorated and furnished. It is a two story mansion of 25 rooms on the quiet Boulevard de la Reine, about a five minute walk from the palace of Versailles. It is expected Petain will establish his official residence there before Jan. 1.

Finishing touches were being put on it yesterday. Workers were planting trees and laying sod on the small front lawn. In the garage, to the right of the entrance, are three sentry boxes.

The interior of the mansion is richly furnished with period furniture. In the entrance hall are two screens of Savonnerie tapestry, while on the walls are hung paintings by Rubens, Fragonard, Chardin, Boucher, Corot, van der Meulen, Balze, and other artists.

Decorations Dignified.

The decorative scheme is dignified, with a leaning toward the modern, and harmonizes with the furniture, which mostly is from the Louis XIV. period. The floors are covered by thick carpets.

Instead of the usual banquet hall there is a medium sized dining room facing the garden. Under a crystal chandelier there is an oval mahogany table with 18 chairs in the Adam style.

The four room suite of the marshal and his wife runs across the front of the second floor. The bedrooms are small and simply furnished. Between them is the gay little boudoir of Mme. Petain and the large study of the marshal.

The central hallway ends in a luxurious, ultramodern bathroom with indirect lighting, black marble walls, and white fixtures. The garden side of the second floor is taken up by the quarters of the marshal's physicians and personal staff, while the military staff will be lodged in the attic.

A doorway at the end of the garden leads to the Trianon Palace hotel, where the offices of the presidency have been installed. According to present plans, Petain would divide his time between Vichy and Versailles, with the government remaining in Vichy except for occasional visits by individual ministers to the occupied area.

Greeks Push On in Albania

GREEKS CRUMBLE ITALIAN DEFENSE ATOP MOUNTAINS

Admit Stiff Resistance, but Keep on Going.

ATHENS, Dec. 15, Sunday (AP).—Greek troops slogging thru heavy snowfalls have crushed sturdy Italian mountain top defenses all along the Albanian front, capturing more prisoners and armament, the Greeks declared officially early today.

Italian resistance was said to be especially stiff in the northern Pogradetz area on the route leading to Elbasan, but a government spokesman said it was not holding up the Greek advance.

Other Greek units were battling their way northward along the Adriatic coastline toward Chimara en route to Valona, and also cutting toward those ports from inland trails in the Tepeleni region, reports here said.

Seize Automatic Weapons.

The Greeks already have claimed a total of 7,250 troops captured, and the high command said additional prisoners were taken in yesterday's fighting, along with 60 automatic weapons.

"The news from the front is highly satisfactory, the spokesman said. "In some places we are making the usual advances. In others the Italians are putting up stiff resistance, but everywhere it has been crushed despite the fact that snow is very heavy in the fighting regions."

The ministry of home security said Italian planes attacked some villages but that no civilian casualties were reported.

Bombers Blast Greeks.

OCHRIDA, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 14 (AP).—Italian planes heavily bombed Greek positions in Pogradetz and on the northern sector of the Greek advance line in Albania today, causing heavy explosions which border reports said might have been exploding ammunition dumps. Reports heard in this frontier town said damage was heavy in Pogradetz.

Spain to Release Short Term Prisoners in Camps

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 14 (AP).—All prisoners in concentration camps who were sentenced to terms of six months or less have been ordered released by the government.

ARGENTINE TRADE WITH U. S. IS HURT BY LACK OF SHIPS

Cargo Piles Up; Switch of Vessels Urged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 14.—The anxiety which is felt here with regard to the shipping situation in general has been accentuated by the announcement that cargo destined for the United States is accumulating at such a pace that the vessels at present plying to American ports are unable to handle it. Shippers cannot obtain space before the beginning of next March.

This has led the American Chamber of Commerce to cable Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime commission, that the scarcity of tonnage is seriously retarding the shipment of Argentine produce which would provide much needed dollar exchange. The chamber urged a temporary switch of a number of American vessels to Argentine trade.

Fear German Triumph.

The recent British admission that the shipping situation was growing acute owing to increased U-boat activity was a hard blow to exporting interests here, as the belief had hitherto existed that the large number of Norwegian, Dutch, and other vessels incorporated in the British merchant marine was sufficient to prevent any serious depletion in available tonnage.

The feeling of nervousness gave rise to expressions of opinion regarding the progress and ultimate outcome of the European war. These expressions, coming from varied interests, were generally phrased in impartial language, but they revealed by implication the conviction that the possible triumph of Germany would not be to Argentina's advantage.

When the question of nationalization of British owned railways in Argentina was recently discussed in the Argentine congress, one deputy declared that it was a matter of immediate concern because, altho Argentina could trust Great Britain, she could not feel the same way about the ownership of railways passing into other hands.

BRITAIN BLASTS BORDEAUX BASE OF NAZI U-BOATS

Strikes Heavy Blows at Bremen and Kiel.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—A swift and destructive raid on the submarine base of the great southwest French port of Bordeaux was credited officially today to the bombers of the R. A. F. coastal command.

It was the newest British counterstroke at the U-boat menace, which is the outstanding peril in the siege of this island kingdom—one of a series of raids which authoritative sources declared are causing "grave concern" to German military leaders. Pilots' reports told of these results of the raid:

"A succession of brilliant blue flashes along the dock wall. . . . A hit on the big quayside building. . . . A great explosion near the gates of the dock followed by a dozen others along the edge of the basin. . . . The submarine base was lit up by two fires and overhung by swirling smoke."

Raid Kiel, Bremen.

On the German North sea coast the shipyards and docks of Kiel and the factories of Bremen were bombed by other British raiders, and docks and airdromes in the Netherlands were attacked.

Authoritative sources said today the R. A. F. has made 35 raids on Berlin alone and that the Hamm railway has been bombed no fewer than 85 times.

Since October, the sources also said, the Nazi submarine base at Lorient, France, has been "plastered" by bombs 30 times. They listed these additional results of R. A. F. forays:

The Dortmund-Ems canal, vital junction of the German canal system, has been attacked more than 30 times and industrial works, munitions factories and oil plants have been "destroyed" in nearly 60 raids on Cologne in the Rhineland.

Other Raids Reported.

Rotterdam also has felt the sting of the R. A. F. bombers in 30 raids, and some 20 "concentrated attacks" have been made on the Wallhaven airdrome.

Other R. A. F. flights have dropped bombs on Essen, site of the Krupp munitions plant, 36 times; on Gelsenkirchen, 40 times. The Bremen wireless base, where "Lord Haw Haw" nightly jibes at Britain, has been under attack by the R. A. F. more than 50 times.

In addition, the R. A. F. has bombed the channel ports almost nights. Bologne has had 60 raids, Dundirk 40.

Nazis Bomb Midland Town.

Several persons in a west Midlands town were killed and others injured tonight by high explosive bombs dropped by a single German raider in one of the few air attacks on the British Isles during the day and night. Censorship concealed the name of the town.

A southwesterly gale lashing Dover strait was believed responsible for the lack of German activity.

London had its usual night air raid alarm in the early evening but the "all clear" was sounded about an hour later. During the day Nazi planes were reported over Liverpool and northeast England.

British Sum Up Air Blows at Germany

As British bombers struck at two important German cities and one port in German-occupied France yesterday, authoritative sources in London told how many aerial attacks had been made in recent months on various points in territory under Adolf Hitler's control.

BRITON LIKENS PALESTINE JEWS' ROLE TO GREEKS'

Must Stand Against Hitler, He Says.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Sir Norman Angell, British author and Nobel peace prize winner, last night compared Palestine with Greece in strategic importance as the war between dictator nations and Great Britain proceeds. He spoke before a conference of United Palestine Appeal leaders which opened last night in the Palmer House. The conference will continue today.

Sir Norman pointed to the effective Greek resistance to Italian armies, and asserted that small nations or peoples may turn the whole tide of conflict and thus assure Great Britain's ultimate victory. He then asserted that the new Palestine, rebuilt and repopulated by Zionists, may become of comparable importance to the resistance of the Greeks in restraining Rome-Berlin axis aims at England's lifeline thru the Suez canal.

Nation's Position Vital.

"Even in the last war the strategic position of Palestine was vital," he asserted. "But then that country had to be conquered from the enemy. Now it is already part of the forces opposing the Nazi. It is a fortress able to provision itself, thanks almost solely to the amazing accomplishment of the hundreds of thousands of Jews who, in these last 20 years, have found refuge and sanctuary in the home of their forefathers."

The Jewish garrison in Palestine, said Sir Norman, will include an army of 100,000 Jewish soldiers. He added that thru the development of resources of the Dead sea many vital raw materials of munitions are now being supplied. In addition, Sir Norman asserted, the Jew has demonstrated in Palestine that he can succeed in agriculture.

Increased Aid Urged.

"Clearly, this effort must be maintained," he added. "Defeatism at this juncture on the part of the Jew would be a crime. The Jew will have to show that he can stand up against Hitler just as effectively as the British in Britain and the Greeks in Greece. Speaking as an Englishman, I say that our chiefest foe is yours, and that we must stand together in a common fight."

Rabbi Solomon Goldman of Temple Anshe Emet, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, who is a former president of the American Zionist organization, said the civilization built in ancient Palestine will survive the Nazi state. He appealed for increased aid for the Zionist enterprise in Palestine.

"The Fascist machine is beginning to crack," Dr. Goldman declared.

James G. McDonald, chairman of President Roosevelt's advisory committee on refugees, will be a chief speaker today. Other speakers include Dr. Nahum Goldmann, formerly of Geneva, Switzerland, and Kurt Blumenfield of Palestine.

SANTA ARRIVES ON ROLLERS.

Aberdeen, Miss., Dec. 14 (AP).—Lack of snow didn't stymie plans of the junior chamber of commerce to have Santa Claus ride into town on a sleigh. The runners were equipped with roller skates.

BRITISH INVITE NO ENEMIES TO LOTHIAN RITES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 [Special].—The state department today avoided the embarrassment of excluding the German and Italian diplomats from tomorrow's funeral services for the marquess of Lothian, the British ambassador, who died here on Thursday, by asking the British embassy to issue the invitations.

Under that arrangement all members of the Washington diplomatic corps have been invited except representatives of the two countries with which Great Britain is at war.

President Roosevelt will not return to the capital in time to attend the funeral services, which will be held at the cathedral church of SS. Peter and Paul. He has designated Stephen Early, one of his secretaries, to act as personal representative. Mrs. Roosevelt will attend.

G. O. P. BLOC ACTS TO PUT DEFENSE DRIVE INTO GEAR

Congress Will Be Prodded Over Bogging Down.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Republicans will attempt to prod congress into action in the coming week in connection with the admitted bogging down of the nation's 15 billion dollar armament program.

Rep. Hoffman [top] and Rep. Rees.

Daily sessions of the house, which with the senate has been dawdling along on a two meeting a week basis, will be forced by a minority bloc headed by Representatives Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan and Edward H. Rees of Kansas. Unanimous consent of members is necessary for the three day recesses which have been taken. Hoffman and Rees will object to any more proposals for such recesses during the remainder of the 1940 session.

Crisis Awaits President.

President Roosevelt thus will return from his Caribbean cruise on Monday afternoon to face a crisis in the defense drive. He will find an alarmed congress, a national defense commission torn by dissension with New Dealers, and industrialists quarreling over authority, labor policies, and plant expansions.

The whole picture of the defense production lag is being brought into the open as a result of the disclosures of such ranking officials as Defense Commissioner William S. Knudsen and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Knudsen said last night that things were definitely not "all well" in the production line. Scarcely 24 hours earlier Stimson had admitted that construction delays at 25 of 40 military camps would force postponements up to 10 weeks in induction of part of the National Guard.

Lack of Interest Evident.

These disclosures have thus far failed to stir the executive departments from a strange lethargy.

Chairman Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.] of the house judiciary committee pleaded in vain with the attorney general and the secretaries of war, navy, and labor for suggestions leading to a legislative solution of the problem of strikes at defense plants. None seemed interested.

Government departments, presumably wrestling with a record breaking war material spending program, show little evidences of unusual activity. Employés knock off work promptly at 4:30 p. m.

Delay Found Everywhere.

And all down the line, from plane fuselages to wooden barracks, the defense program has encountered serious delays. Warplane production has not yet reached 700 a month, less than half the monthly output estimated for this fall by former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson in speeches last year and 30 per cent under the estimate made by Knudsen this summer.

Great Britain obtained deliveries on only 287 warplanes in October and slightly more than 300 in November, far under the number the English had been led to anticipate from American plants by this time.

There is a shortage of engines for many fighters and bombers that have come off the production line. Sleek new planes have stood idly in the yards of Bell, Lockheed, and Douglas airplane plants for days at a time for lack of engines. The shortage of the high speed engines is more than 300 a month.

Parts Are Lacking.

Parts for both plane forms and plane engines have been delayed. The North American plant this week was forced to lay off 50 employés for lack of parts from sub-contractors.

Fifty-five thousand heavy and light guns, 300,000 machine guns, and millions of shells are still "on order," with few deliveries as yet to either this government or the British.

Industry is only 25 per cent tooled up for its defense production job, according to Knudsen. There have been delays in awards of contracts, arising from differences between the army and the defense commission, which has no final authority, and from differences within the commission itself over labor policy.

Army Estimate Halved.

Army officers had told congress that 1,000,000 men would be under arms by next Jan. 1. There will be only one-half that number.

While most of these delays are due to executive inefficiency, the problem of strikes on defense projects might be solved by congressional legislation. The Democratic leadership, however, presumably acting under White House instructions, has pursued a policy of inaction. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas went home recently for the holidays; Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts became speaker pro tem, and the three day recess program was adopted.

Honored for Heroism

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Wynn Jones displays honor certificate given to Rex.

Rex, a 3 year old black and white setter, whose barking roused 25 apartment dwellers during a fire at 6318 Drexel avenue early Wednesday, was awarded an honor certificate for heroism yesterday by Dr. Wesley A. Young, managing director of the Anti-Cruelty society.

The dog, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wynn Jones, bounded into the bedroom of their second floor apartment when the back stairway caught fire and barked until they were awake. The other residents then fled to the street in their night clothes.

Farmer Guilty of Slaying Woman Teacher; Gets Life

Shelbyville, Mo., Dec. 14 (AP).—A jury tonight convicted Hadley Eaton, 32 years old, a farmhand, of the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Ethel Dingle, 26, a school teacher, and fixed his punishment at life imprisonment. Mrs. Dingle, a divorcee, was slain March 8 as she and another teacher were leaving the Shelbyville school grounds. The defense contended Eaton was insane when he shot Mrs. Dingle, with whom he was in love.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED.

Mrs. Mary Hughes, 74 years old, a widow, was seriously burned last night as she stuffed papers into a stove in her home at 4460 Shields avenue. Her son-in-law, Lyle Bone, a clerk, who lives in the flat below, extinguished the flames. He was burned on the right arm.

Not for You?

I have in my possession to sell on commission twelve of the most exquisite pieces of diamond jewelry ever made. Property of one of the oldest and finest families. Rings, bracelets, brooches made by Dreicer, New York. One of the diamond bracelets sculptured in platinum is truly magnificent, made with hundreds of small gems and center jewel almost 5 carats. Can also be worn as choker necklace on great occasions. Cost over $15,000 and can be bought for less than 33 percent. How much less depends on whether the purchaser has sufficient personal culture to deserve and appreciate a masterpiece. See Matthew 7:6. Some of these treasures can be bought for about $1,000. Persons of taste and discrimination with money to invest against inflation can make the buy of a lifetime, because this jewelry would bring full market prices if there was sufficient time to contact collectors and connoisseurs. Shown only by special appointment.

DRUM TELLS HOW TO MAKE U.S. SAFE FROM AIR POWER

Reviews Peril of Coast Defenses Only.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First army, declared today that limitation of defense to the nation's shore and land frontiers would "expose our coastal cities and industries to bombardment and our people to large losses" in the event of war.

Many persons, "prompted by a desire for peace at all honorable costs," he said at a discussion meeting of the National Republican club, "conceive our sole defense mission to be to keep war out of the continental United States."

"They believe," he said, "that this can be accomplished by limiting our defense measures along our shore and land frontiers, failing to recognize the ever increasing range and power of aviation."

Defense Up to People.

Gen. Drum asserted that "in the final analysis, the decision as to what we are to defend rests with the American people and not alone with the military establishment."

Reviewing the organization of the army in the past, the military leader said that he recognized "a certain degree of accuracy" in the statement that "within the United States our army was remarkably well organized to fight any number of Indian wars."

The old, territorial pattern of army organization, he said, had been replaced by an organization plan that "contemplates the creation of a mobile ground force, divorced from territorial restrictions, trained and equipped for prompt service wherever and whenever needed."

Responsibility Increases.

"The outstanding lesson in the current warfare," he said, "is that the power of the offensive has been reestablished, and that with it, mobility has returned to the battlefield as a decisive factor."

Gen. Drum declared that "nothing could be further from the truth" than "the popular idea that the soldier has become a small cog in the great machine of warfare."

"In fact," he said, "modern mechanized warfare places upon the individual soldier the greatest responsibility any individual ever has undertaken in any war.

"Individual and small group action in the air and on the ground will establish the criterion for the success of large scale tactical combats in modern warfare."

ESOPHAGUS PUNCTURED; DIES.

Sheffield, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—William B. Bartman, 67 years old, died in St. Francis hospital last evening after a piece of meat lodged in his throat had punctured his esophagus. The widow and six sons survive.

She also displayed a 12 inch campaign button to persuade Chicagoans to contribute.

EXPECTS DRAFT LAW TO STAND A LONG TIME

Director Cites Benefits to Nation and Men.

Selective service will be continued in the United States long after 1945, in the opinion of Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois draft director, who returned yesterday from a conference of 250 selective service administrators in Washington. The date for the termination of the draft has been set by law for July 1, 1945.

Paul G. Armstrong.

Armstrong said it was the consensus of many at the meeting that the gains to the nation thru selective service—the physical and mental gains of the draftees—would increase the popularity of the draft law.

High Rating of Draftees.

The national draft officials—Director Clarence A. Dykstra, and his assistant, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey—seemed particularly pleased at the high intelligence rating of the draftees, Armstrong reported.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, who addressed the gathering, told of increased facilities for the training of colored troops, Director Armstrong reported. In the past only four divisions have been maintained for colored soldiers—two of infantry and two of cavalry. Now they may be trained for engineering, aviation, and the quartermaster branches.

4,739 Go in January.

"I reported at Washington that 828 men already had been drafted from Illinois and that 4,739 would be drafted in January," the administrator said. "Of this number 1,559 will be assigned to Fort Sheridan and 3,180 to Camp Custer in Michigan. More than 57,000 must be drafted from Illinois between Feb. 1 and June 30, 1941, to keep abreast of the national quota of 800,000 men by next July 1."

Armstrong intimated that there will be a review and reclassification of borderline draft cases as the June 30 deadline nears.

COSTS $100,000 A MONTH

The draft machinery of Illinois is costing the federal government $100,000 per month in salaries for about 960 employés, including executives, a study made with the aid of selective service workers showed yesterday.

Among the paid employés are 18 executives, most of them reserve or National Guard officers called to federal duty. There are also six federal civil service employés in the Chicago executive office.

Army men receive the pay of their grade, while civil service employés' salaries are determined by the civil service schedules.

Most of the employés are neither civil service nor army people. They are the clerks, assistant clerks, and stenographers employed by the 361 local draft boards. Each board may employ one clerk at not to exceed $150 per month, and assistant clerks or stenographers at not to exceed $100 per month.

The number of employés any board may have is determined by its number of registrants. Thus, a board of 1,099 or fewer registrants is allowed only $100 per month for office assistants. At the other end of the list is the board with 4,500 registrants or more, which is allowed $350, or enough to pay one clerk and two assistants.

A spokesman for Director Armstrong said the average number of employés per local board in the state is between 2 and 3. Hiring the office assistants and renting the board quarters marks the only patronage of the local boards, whose members serve without pay. Nearly 3,000 Illinois citizens are serving without pay for local boards.

Difficulties in making out the pay rolls have resulted in delays in employés getting their first checks. The various local boards began to function between Oct. 16 and 27, but some employés have not received any pay yet. Maj. W. A. Rodger, procurement officer of the state draft organization, said errors by local boards in making out the pay rolls caused these to be sent back several times in some cases.

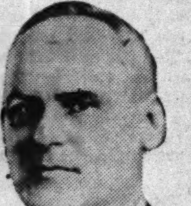
SAVE NEARLY ALL OF 140 ON BOARD TORPEDOED LINER

Canadian Official Among Passengers.

New York, Dec. 14 [Special].—Most of the persons aboard the British liner Western Prince, torpedoed early today off Ireland, were saved, a message received at the prime minister's office in Ottawa, Canada, tonight and relayed here said. No further details were given.



C. D. Howe.

The liner, loaded with a heavy cargo, including airplanes, and with British officials going home for the Christmas holidays among the 60 passengers, was sunk about 550 miles northwest of Londonderry, Ireland. The ship left New York on Dec. 6. A crew of 80 also was aboard.

Canadian Official Aboard.

Mackay Radio here picked up an S O S call that the 10,926 ton liner had been "torpedoed" at 1:02 a. m., Chicago time. Nothing further was heard after the first call, which was relayed by the Portpatrick, Scotland, station.

The vessel carried a 10,000 ton general cargo and a large quantity of mail. Four twin motored bombers were lashed to her deck. She was due at an English port tomorrow.

The 496 foot Western Prince was armed with two defensive guns and had been used in transporting hundreds of refugees here from Liverpool.

Fourth Blow to British.

When she arrived last Nov. 21 Capt. John Reed, noting that another ship had been bombed 50 miles from his, said:

"There's a lot of difference in navigating a ship now than there was in the last war. Then I was torpedoed and survived, but the danger these days is from overhead."

The Western Prince was the fourth blow to British shipping in two days. The British admiralty announced yesterday the torpedoing of the armed merchant cruiser Forfar, believed by shipping men to be the former 19,671 ton Scythia or the 16,297 ton Cameronia. The destruction by a mine of the British chartered Norwegian liner Oslofjord, 18,673 tons, was learned by New York maritime sources. The 10,250 ton British freighter Orari radioed she had been torpedoed about 750 miles west of Brest, France.

A Rome communique reported the sinking of a 12,000 ton steamer in a British convoy in the Atlantic by a submarine on Dec. 5.

Claim Freighter Sunk.

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, said today the 18,000 ton Norwegian liner Oslofjord, reported sunk while en route to Canada under the British flag, "probably" had struck a mine. DNB also declared that another 10,000 ton merchant vessel had been torpedoed and sunk 450 miles off the French coast.

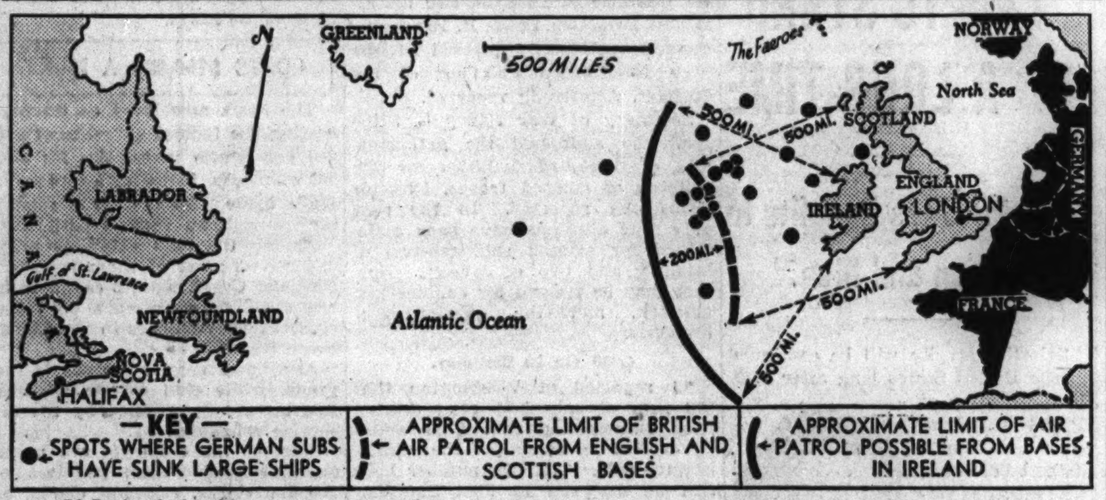
Lost Flyer Found Dead; 2 Canadian Planes Missing

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Dec. 14 (AP).—C. P. Hopton of Cabri, Saskatchewan, aircraftsman who has been missing for two days, was found dead beside his wrecked monoplane in a swamp near here today. Two planes engaged in the search for him are missing. They were piloted by P. Campbell, flight lieutenant, and L. Francis, a sergeant, Camp Borden air school instructors. They carried rations and warm clothing.

LOOT BROKER'S APARTMENT.

Burglars got into the apartment of Franklin Lyons, 50 West Schiller street, a bond broker, and escaped with 28 pieces of jewelry valued at $1,100 yesterday.

How Bases in Ireland Would Aid British Cause



If Ireland should consent to establishment of bases on its western coast from which British planes might protect westward shipping lanes, the area in which German submarines may operate with little or no aerial opposition would be considerably reduced, as shown on this map.

The British argument for Irish bases from which to convoy and protect shipping thru the dreaded "graveyard zone" where most of the recent German submarine attacks have occurred is illustrated above. The zone is roughly 500 miles west of the Irish coast, an area that at present is just beyond the range of British bombardment and coastal patrol planes which must take off from English air fields.

Given an opportunity to operate from Ireland, these planes could establish an aerial protection net that would go far toward destroying the effectiveness of German airplane and submarine teamwork, the British say. The British bombers—Lockheed Hudsons, Wellingtons or Whiteleys—have maximum ranges, with bomb loads, of 1,700 to 1,800 miles. This would allow them to operate out to 500 miles from land bases with a margin of another 700 to 800 miles for patroling.

The map's double limit lines show the areas that can be patroled now—from the British bases—and the additional area that would be covered from Irish air fields. Virtually all sinkings to date have been from within the areas that could be patroled from Ireland.

DUBLIN MAY FACE U. S. PRESSURE ON AID FOR ENGLAND

American Influence Is Sought on Bases.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland [By air mail].—Despite Ireland's determination to stay out of the war, pressure is being brought to bear in many quarters to induce the United States to add its weight to the appeals addressed to Ireland to allow Britain to use Irish ports as bases in combating the German submarine menace.

That this would be the case was anticipated some months ago by Irish leaders and Ireland's friends in America, when at the instance of Senator James E. Murray [D., Mont.], the full case for Ireland's neutrality was brought before the United States senate and ordered printed in the Congressional Record. Irish leaders here admit the ties between this country and the United States are very close and that America's influence with Ireland would be as great, if not greater, than that of any other country.

U. S. Position Held Different.

It has been said that, if the United States, also a neutral, could enter into a deal on defense bases with Britain, then Ireland could do the same. However, Irish officials say, there is no analogy between the two, for America lies safely outside the war zone, while Ireland is within easy range of belligerent bombers.

Ireland fully realizes what the result would be were it to depart in the slightest degree from its neutrality. Irish leaders declare that all the antiaircraft guns and barrages that could be erected would not save the country from deadly air raids. Thus far, the island has escaped with only a few minor incidents and it is felt that this is due to the policy of neutrality. For this reason support for that policy is growing daily.

In a recent debate in the British parliament the fate of Poland, Holland, Belgium, and Denmark was mentioned as indicating what is likely to happen to Ireland if it remained neutral. The obvious answers, according to Irishmen, is that these countries had the help of allies who seemed to be all powerful, yet that did not save them.

At War Many Years.

Recently British Prime Minister Winston Churchill said Britain was fighting the cause of Ireland and democracy generally. The inference appeared to be that Ireland was slacking and allowing others to do the job it should be doing.

However, there are several reasons, aside from the danger of attack, for Ireland's present stand, leaders here state. Within the memory of the present generation Ireland has been fighting other people's wars, as well as its own. Since 1914 it has been almost continuously fighting either for or against Britain. In the world war 60,000 Irishmen gave their lives.

The war scarcely was over when the tragic period of the Black and Tan war began, and close on the heels of this came the civil war, the last echoes of which only now are being dissipated. Then in 1932 the economic war with Britain began. This was not settled until 1938.

It is obvious that a country with such a record is in no position to embark on a war, especially a war which is in no way of her making, the Irish hold.

FIRE DESTROYS PLANT MAKING WAR MATERIAL

Hoboken, N. J., Dec. 14 (AP).—Fire early today destroyed the plant of the Condenser Service and Engineering corporation, which has been active in national defense orders. Loss was estimated by company spokesmen at from $100,000 to $1,000,000. One man was killed.

Olaf Anderson of North Bergen, a plant executive, made the $1,000,000 estimate of loss, which he said included valuable wood patterns and specially built machines being constructed to fill defense orders.

H. C. Evans, company treasurer, said the million dollar estimate was "much too high—about a tenth of that."

The company built turbines, condensers, and other equipment for steamships. The plant was a one and two story building spreading over half a city block. It employed about 300 men, but only five were on duty when the fire started.

A PROMISE MADE BY U. S. IN 1749 AGAIN RENEWED

Every Iroquois Indian Gets Calico Gift.

Tonawanda, N. Y., Dec. 14 [Special]. —The United States government today made its 146th annual payment of six yards of calico to each indian of the Iroquois confederacy, in accordance with the Treaty of Canandaigua, signed Nov. 11, 1749.

Bolts of bright printed cloth and some unprinted muslin were handed to chiefs in the cavernous Tonawanda community house set in the snow-flecked hills near Batavia.

A low chant filled the great hall, drums trumped a steady beat as Ho-Staoot, a Tonawanda Seneca, designated as caller, uttered the traditional welcome to fellow chiefs of the six nations.

Mohawks Are Absent.

"Mohawks, elder brothers," he droned, "will not be with us. They did not answer the summons in 1749."

"Oneidas," he called next. A gray haired indian in dark civilian clothes stood up. He said, "I, Chief Rockwell, speak for 200 Oneida."

Chief Frank Isaac answered for 600 Onondaga; Chief Jake Seneca for 230 Cayuga; Chief Aaron Poodry for 500 Tonawandas; Chief Cornelius Seneca for 1,600 Cattaraugus; Wilford Grouse for 900 Alleghenies [the last three are clans of the Senecas]. Chief William Chew spoke for 450 Tuscarora.

When the calico ceremony ended Dr. Arthur C. Parker, a Seneca director of the Rochester municipal museum, reminded the Iroquois that the United States has maintained faith with the Indians; that it has lived up to the letter, as well as to the spirit of the treaty of Canandaigua thru 146 years.

Faith Is Unique.

"Such faith," he said, "is unique in a world of broken promises and of enslaved peoples."

Dr. Parker called on a little man at his side, Peter Doctor Go-Noh-Da-Gieh, to invoke a prayer. Then with Dr. Parker as narrator, 60 tribesmen —men, women and children—reënacted the signing of the Canandaigua treaty in a colorful ceremony accompanied by the throb of drums and ancient Indian chants.

As the pageantry reached its climax with reënactment of the scene in which the ancient warriors finally decided to sign the pact, one by one, the chiefs put their marks on the treaty. Thereupon, a hidden Indian choir took up the melancholy chant, "O-kee-weh," the death song, and Dr. Parker closed the ceremony.

Lyman Johnston Tawon-Noys, a gaunt and aged Tonawanda clad in ancient buckskins, arose. Out of a cloth wrapper he took one of three existing copies of the original treaty, a cracked and faded parchment. He held it a moment in the light; restored it to the wrapper.

Favored Debutante

HOPE CARROLL.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—A committee of artists and photographers has picked 17 year old Hope Carroll as "the most photogenic debutante of the year." Hope was quite surprised. So was her mother, Mrs. John Mullins, who said, "We never knew she was photogenic."

Since then Hope, who is 5 feet 8, wears a size 12 dress, and likes to dance the europa—a new conga and rhumba combination in which every one is more or less for one's self on the dance floor—has had two requests from movie companies to take a film test, so she is happy about the whole thing.

Hope is the latest example of the attractive girl who suddenly finds herself chosen the most something or other and swept into the old New York glamor mill.

CRASH HEARING BRINGS OUT TWO LIKELY CAUSES

Icing and Failure of One Motor Suggested.

The public inquiry into the airliner crash here last Dec. 4 closed last evening after 48 witnesses had contributed several thousand pages of testimony, but raised only two points as possible explanations for the tragedy that brought death to 10 of 16 persons aboard the big Douglas DC-3 plane. These were:

1. The certainty that ice accumulations on the wings and hull of the 12 ton United Air Lines machine were at least contributing factors to the crash.

2. The probability that the left motor failed at a critical point in the landing glide when Capt. Phil Scott called upon both engines to boost him over 660 feet of roof tops and a city street to Chicago airport, and that this failure threw the airplane into the stall and spin from which it did not recover.

Company Official Testifies.

The second conjecture was introduced by Walter J. Addems, superintendent of flight operations for United's eastern division. Appearing as one of the last witnesses, and obviously speaking the sentiments of most of the company's first pilots—many of whom were present—Addems indicated that he could believe only some such mechanical failure could trap Scott, who was considered a superlative airman.

"The airplane stalled in the approach glide," said Addems, "but the subsequent violent dropping of the left wing as described by many eye witnesses, and the nosedown dive into the ground closely approximate the maneuvers that would follow a failure of the right engine if Scott had attempted to use both his motors."

Acknowledging that other witnesses had declared there was no spitting or backfiring of the engines, Addems continued:

"Suppose the left engine had delayed in its delivery of power when Scott opened both throttles. The wing behind the good right engine would gain speed and the air flow over the wing foil would be smoothed out. The wing would increase its lift.

Theories of Motor Failure.

"But behind the left engine that wing would be decelerated. It would lose its lift in a yawing motion to the left. This would cause the tapered Douglas wing to fall off in a violent spin."

"Can you offer any opinion as to why a motor failure might have occurred," asked G. Grant Mason, CAA board member conducting the inquiry.

"Two are possible," replied Addems. "Carburetor ice or the extremely rapid opening of the throttle might cause a momentary choking of the engine. We have injection type carburetors that are not supposed to be subject to ice but they are. They also are better at following the throttle than older types but still we find it's possible to choke them up."

He said the lag in production of power by the engine needed to be only one and one-half to two seconds to produce the stall and spin that occurred. This is true, he said, because the plane's speed was slowed down almost to landing velocity. He added that ground observers would not be able to distinguish a lag of this amount.

Several pilots of other air lines repeated statements made Thursday and Friday, that there was severe icing in clouds over Chicago airport the day of the crash. Photographs showing ice on the wreckage and statements of United officials confirmed stories that the plane was "moderately iced" even after the plunge.

New Aircraft Carrier Launched

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The $40,000,000 Hornet on the ways at Newport News, Va., yesterday for launching. The Hornet is the navy's seventh aircraft carrier.

LAUNCH AIRCRAFT CARRIER HORNET; COST 40 MILLION

Ship Designed to Handle 83 Fighting Planes.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 14 (AP).—The launching of the U. S. S. Hornet here today gave the navy a total of seven aircraft carriers, a number equal to that of Japan, and left the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company with naval defense contracts yet to be filled totaling nearly a half billion dollars.

The Hornet, designed to carry some 83 planes and capable of making about 35 knots, will cost an estimated $40,000,000, when her armament, including eight five inch antiaircraft guns and 32 antiaircraft machine guns, is installed. The contract price was $31,800,000.

Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the secretary of the navy, christened the new carrier while her husband, witnessing the first launching of a capital ship since he became a member of the cabinet, stood beside her on the rainswept platform.

One of Twelve Being Built.

The Hornet is 1 of 12 new carriers being built by the United States. Seven of the others are to be constructed here at a cost of $317,086,000. Great Britain now has six carriers and is building six others, according to Oct. 26 figures, while Japan was listed as building three. Germany has one carrier and was listed as building another; Italy has none.

The Hornet is the seventh naval vessel to bear a name that goes back in American naval history to fighting ships of colonial days. The original Hornet, built in Baltimore in 1775, was one of the first ships of the continental navy to put to sea.

Sea Going Shop Launched.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 14 (AP).—The U. S. S. Vulcan, a $13,997,000 ocean going machine shop designed to care for the mechanical needs at sea of the nation's expanding navy, was launched today at the New York Shipbuilding corporation's yards.

Mrs. James V. Forrestal, wife of the undersecretary of the navy sponsored the 9,000 ton repair ship and Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker of Washington and Philadelphia, acted as matron of honor. Because of stringent defense regulations—a battleship, 17 cruisers, and two seaplane tenders are under construction in the same yards—only naval and company officials, their friends and workmen witnessed the brief ceremony.

Details of the vessel's construction were not made public. Authorized by congress May 17, 1938, the Vulcan's keel was laid Dec. 26, 1939.

ASKS FOR COURT SPANK OF KANE COUNTY BOARD

Attorney Seeks Order to Get Fee.

A petition was filed in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva yesterday for a writ of mandamus against all 38 members of the Kane county board of commissioners. This was Attorney Maurice Lord's answer to the stormy board session of last Wednesday that ended with the commissioners yelling:

"Go ahead. Throw us in jail. See if we care. But we won't pay you that money!"

"That money" is $1,660 for which Lord, who lives in Aurora, was awarded a judgment against the county board for services as special prosecutor against former officials of the W. W. Armstrong Investment company of Aurora, which went broke in 1936.

Expects Writ to Be Issued.

The petition for the writ was made returnable Dec. 20 before Circuit Judge William J. Fulton. Lord's attorney, Gilbert Wood, said that if the writ is granted, which he says is a foregone conclusion since Judge Fulton granted the judgment, the county board will have to pay the money or be held in contempt of court.

Attorney Wood warned the commissioners at Wednesday's meeting that they could be sent to jail for refusing to pay. He quoted State's Attorney Charles Seidel and Judge Fulton that the bill was a just one, and asked for action. The commissioners then voted 19 to 18 against payment and those that voted "aye" stipulated that they did so under protest.

Case Ended in Acquittal.

When the Armstrong officials were indicted for embezzlement, the state's attorney, Charles A. O'Connor, could not prosecute them because he had been counsel for some of the defendants. Lord then was called in to try the case, which ended in 1938 with an acquittal.

Soon afterward Lord was paid $4,000, which the county board felt was ample for fighting a losing fight. The attorney sued for the extra $1,660 and won a judgment early in 1939.

If the county commissioners want legal defense in the mandamus action, they'll have to hire a special prosecutor. Seidel, the present state's attorney, is disqualified. He served as a witness for Lord in the judgment suit.

BREAKS ARM SECOND TIME.

Rochester, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Charley Fry didn't realize it was Friday the 13th when she went to a doctor's office for removal of a cast from her broken arm. On the way home she fell and broke the arm again.

JACKSON SAYS HE IS UNABLE TO ACT ON DIES RECORDS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 [Special].—Existing federal law gives the department of justice no jurisdiction over sabotage in American factories manufacturing war materials for a foreign government, Attorney General Robert Jackson informed Representative Jerry Voorhis [D., Cal.] today.

The attorney general added that the Dies committee, of which Voorhis is a member, might want to look into that phase of the legislative situation.

The issue was raised when Voorhis forwarded to the department of justice the committee's file on sabotage said to have been committeed recently in a California airplane factory which is manufacturing planes for the British government.

"Federal laws make sabotage a federal crime only when committed upon articles intended for the use of the United States in connection with the national defense," Jackson wrote.

IT'S FATHER AND SON DAY.

1,250 INDIANANS PAY TRIBUTE TO J. T. M'CUTCHEON

Society Gives Its Night to Gentle Humor.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Not all the Chicagoans who were born in Indiana and lived to be proud of it crowded into the Stevens hotel last night for the 29th annual banquet of the Indiana Society of Chicago. They couldn't. There was space for only 1,250, who paid $12.50 each to be there.

The result was one of the most elaborate nights of revelry and feasting those Hoosiers have had in the three decades they have boasted of being Hoosiers. In a society noted for its bitter lampooning, it was one of its gentlest nights, possibly because the motto of the banquet, which has modestly adopted the title of "Greatest Show on Earth," last night was a McCutcheon [ink] escutcheon, "Kindly humor, wit without venom, gentle satire."

McCutcheon Is Honor Guest.

Officially the dinner commemorated the 70th birthday of its guest of honor, John T. McCutcheon of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, dean of American cartoonists, who was born May 6, 1870, in a little dot on the face of Indiana known as South Raub.

To that little dot faces once foreign to it, but nationally and internationally known today, repaired at the dinner thru the medium of a fantastic news reel prepared by courtesy of another Hoosier who made good, Will H. Hays, Hollywood's czar. All the faces, who spoke in voices strange even to their mothers, were there to laud Mr. McCutcheon.

Here came Harold Ickes, speaking with the tonsils of Charlie McCarthy [despite the pennant borne thru the banquet earlier cautioning New Dealers not to "throw metal waste baskets, bricks, and tomatoes at the guest of honor."] Here were Roosevelt, Stalin, and Gov. Luren Dickinson of Michigan. Here were Mussolini, deriding Mr. McCutcheon because he joined a Greek fraternity while at Purdue university, and Mayor Kelly inviting the guest of honor to have the first ride on Chicago's subway when it is completed in 1960.

Tammany Farmer Celery on Menu.

Much, much later, long after the 1,250 had downed all the Tammany farmer celery and the Pulitzer prize olives, the broiled Brookfield zoo beef au Tribune Tower, and the sauce Sabayon au rum au Wabash au gosh; long after a program of buffoonery prepared by Chester W. Cleveland; long after the celebrated McCutcheon cartoon, "Injun Summer," had been reproduced in heroic size; long after all had admired the book of 43 cartoon tributes prepared by America's leading cartoonists; and long after the 1,250 Hoosiers had laughed themselves silly at one another, Mr. McCutcheon arose to make a speech. He was gentle and witty, and graceful.

"From the rumors I hear," he began, "it seems that I started traveling in the early '70s and now am skidding into the early 70's again. In these turbulent times it is quite an achievement to keep going 70 years, and some of my friends seem to want to hear some details of the trip. In the main, it has been an interesting trip."

Tells of His Early Years.

Then he told of his years in Chicago. He recalled that the hall bedroom which he and George Ade rented for $5 a week was almost in front of where he stood as he talked. He spoke of four men who played important rôles in his life—George Ade, Charles T. Atkinson, whose niece he later married; William Schmedtgen, who helped him become an artist, and Edward W. Harden, Tribune reporter, who scooped the world on the battle of Manila.

For him the end of the 19th century was linked with the Victor Lawson papers, he explained; the 20th century, since 1903, has been linked with THE TRIBUNE.

"I have been on the reception committee to greet the arrival of the telephone, the phonograph, the movie, the talkie, the radio, the automobile, the airplane, electric light, television, and X-ray, to mention only a few," he concluded.

"I have been on hand for the greatest war, greatest panic, the greatest depression and, I suppose, the greatest political landslide.

"I pass lightly over jazz, jitterbugs, painted toenails, knee length skirts, and hip-waist-lines.

"And now we don't know where we are heading."

TWO SCREEN STARS STRICKEN ILL WHILE ON TRIP TO PREMIERE

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 14 (AP).—Santa Fe swung thru a whirl of celebration today in honor of its first world première, but two film notables brought here especially for the big event will miss it.

Olivia De Havilland.

Olivia De Havilland, star of the picture "Santa Fe Trail," was stricken with a mild attack of appendicitis while en route here on the 14 car special train bringing many members of the cast. She was not in serious condition, her physician said, and was flown back to Los Angeles today.

May Robson, 76, collapsed shortly after her arrival and was taken to Albuquerque where she was reported resting in a hotel. The attending doctor said her heart had been affected by the high altitude but that she was not in serious condition. Santa Fe is approximately 2,000 feet higher above sea level than Albuquerque.

NAVY PLANNING AERIAL GUARD OF N. Y. HARBOR

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The navy is considering a plan for daily vigil ranging 75 miles out to sea by United States navy seaplanes to guard the approaches to New York harbor. If the plan is carried out, planes will begin their flights within the next few months.

Designated as the Seaplane Inshore patrol, the planes would supplement work of the coast guard and the neutrality patrol, Lieutenant Commander Don F. Smith, naval aviation commander at Floyd Bennett field, announced yesterday.

The planes would keep in touch with shore and communicate with ships by radio, he said, asking any vessels of foreign registry which may appear suspicious to tell their destination and purpose.

10 Reconditioned Subs Resume Trip to Canal

Yorktown, Va., Dec. 14 (AP).—Ten recently reconditioned United States submarines, which stopped at Yorktown for supplies, sailed this morning on their way to the Panal Canal Zone. They were accompanied by their tender, the Beaver. The subs came here from New London, Conn. Each carries four officers and about 35 men.

EVANSTON'S TAXI PROBLEM BEFORE THREE ALDERMEN

Committee to Study Rates and Regulation Today.

The three Evanston aldermen who compose the suburb's new taxicab commission will meet today to continue their fight to raise cab fares and otherwise regulate what they insist is a badly disorganized situation.

The commission will have as its first order of business consideration of a temporary injunction issued Friday which restrains Evanston officials from enforcing a new ordinance that raises fares, forbids picking up passengers at bus stands, and provides for the regulatory commission.

Attorney Leon Gross who obtained the injunction in Judge Robert C. O'Connell's Superior court, charged that the ordinance, passed Nov. 25 over Mayor Henry D. Penfield's veto, is unconstitutional. Police have arrested 100 drivers since it went into effect last Monday. The order was issued on behalf of three of the suburb's cab companies.

Bill Vetoed by Mayor.

The curious effort of the council to raise, not lower, cab fares began some weeks ago when the council voted to adopt the new ordinance with only three of the 16 councilmen dissenting. Penfield promptly vetoed the ordinance on the ground that no public hearings had been held.

The ordinance was readopted by a vote of 11 to 5, and Penfield named Aldermen Thomas Airth, Alan Ashcraft Jr., and William McStevens as the regulatory commission. Airth is chairman.

The new commission held a public hearing Thursday night which was attended by a number of drivers, cab company officials, and interested citizens. Airth said yesterday that 12 of the drivers admitted they had been cheating passengers because the old rate was so low. One passenger asserted he had paid three different sums for the same trip.

New Ordinance Sets Rates.

The new ordinance provides for a charge of 10 cents the first half mile and 5 cents for each third of a mile thereafter. The old rate was not uniform, various cabs charging 5 cents for a half mile or 5 cents for a third of a mile and 10 cents for each additional mile. Airth says the new charge for a two mile trip will be about 35 cents as compared with an average former charge of 25.

"Evanston has too many cabs for the size of the town," Airth said. "Furthermore, one company with about 15 cabs was operating along the bus routes in rush hours, carrying passengers in groups to anywhere on the bus line for less than the bus fare.

The alderman said that Oak Park and Winnetka rates were 20 cents for the first third of a mile and 10 cents for each two-thirds thereafter, while the Wilmette rate is 10 cents for the first two-thirds of a mile and 15 cents for each subsequent mile.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Blazing an air trail between New York and Puerto Rico, Pan American Airways' Yankee Clipper dropped onto the waters of Flushing bay early today after a 10 hour, 44 minute flight from San Juan. The Clipper made the experimental flight to check new equipment designed to speed up trans-Atlantic service and to chart the New York-Puerto Rico route expected to be opened in 1941. Engineers said the clipper's performance was "very satisfactory."

INDUSTRIAL JOBS AT 10 YEAR PEAK IN CHICAGO AREA

War, Defense Orders Are Credited for Upswing.

three shifts. About 65,000 men are employed in the mills. The monthly pay roll at present is estimated at about $9,530,000.

Jobs Lag Behind 1937.

Employment has not yet reached the level of 1937—the little boom year—when there were 69,800 wage earners in the mills and the average monthly payroll was $10,100,000. Recently the Chicago area mills, in South Chicago, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Gary, and other mill towns, have been making almost as much steel and pig iron as Pittsburgh.

Chicago steel men say their mission at present is to furnish supplies and to take care of customers, especially those engaged with government defense contracts. Armor plate contracts are given to the east, and the Chicago area furnishes some of the supplies. Then, the local trade reports, the Chicago area has a larger domestic market to take care of when the eastern mills are engaged with armor plate and other defense contracts.

About 15 per cent of the steel from the Chicago area is being exported. Semifinished steel has been shipped to Great Britain from Chicago mills in ingots, billets, and rolls, to be rolled in England. One plant recently sent 56,000 tons of railroad rails to Great Britain to be strewn along the tracks in England and Scotland as replacements. Another company a while ago exported 22,000 tons of rails to Brazil. Another 15 per cent is attributable to direct defense as supplies to concerns making shells, machinery, helmets, and other wartime accessories.

Steel Has Ups and Downs.

The ups and downs of employment and business based upon military and naval needs and on the war in Europe are shown in steel and iron—the "prince and pauper" industry. Last year the high point was the week of Nov. 25 when the Chicago mills were going at 93 per cent of ingot capacity. They were shipping to Britain then. Then came a falling off. The week of May 4 this year the mills were running at 59.1 per cent of capacity.

The week of June 15 they jumped to 90.6 per cent and have been above 90 per cent ever since. By the week of Nov. 23 they were operating at 99.1 per cent.

In 1939, at about the time the war started [Germany invaded Poland Sept. 1, and Great Britain and France declared war with Germany Sept. 3], the Chicago mills were running at 52.3 per cent of capacity.

SLASHED BY HOLDUP MAN.

Herbert Larson, 3043 North Keating avenue, a carpenter, was slashed across the scalp with a knife by a Negro who robbed him of $22 after a tussle near Larson's home, Albany Park police reported yesterday.

Sails for Europe

ANN DVORAK.

New York, Dec. 14 [Special].—Ann Dvorak, Hollywood movie actress, sailed for Europe today aboard the American Export liner Exeter to join her husband, Leslie Fenton, English actor and member of the British Intelligence service. Miss Dvorak plans to disembark at Lisbon and fly to England. The Exeter sailed from Jersey City.

CARILLON MUSIC WILL RING OVER LOOP THIS WEEK

State street will ring tomorrow with carillon music and Christmas carols broadcast over the State Street council's mile long broadcasting system between Congress street and Wacker drive. The music will be heard daily from noon until 1 p. m. and from 5 to 7 p. m.

Douglas Beattie, basso of the Chicago Opera company, will open the series today with "America" and "Adeste Fideles." At noon lights on street standards will flash to draw the attention of the crowds. Traffic will be stopped for one minute while "America" is sung.

The music will originate in the Voice of State Street studio on the eighth floor of the Republic building, 209 South State street. David Mayer Jr., president of the State Street council, and Mayor Kelly are expected to be in the studio for the inauguration of the loudspeaker system. Carillon music will be carried by telephone wires from the Ravenswood plant of J. C. Deagan, Inc. The carillon weighs egiht tons and consists of 32 tubular tower bells.

110 from Chicago Area Join Navy During Week

The navy recruiting station here enlisted 110 recruits from the Chicago area during the last week. Sixty-two of the men, 17 years old, enlisted to serve until their 21st birthday. Other enlistments were for six year periods. The latter were sent to Great Lakes Naval Training station.

SCOUT MOTORING SOUTH TO SURVEY WINTER RESORTS

Tribune Road Car on Way to Dixie Coast.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 14. — The Tribune road car paused on the north bank of the Ohio river here this afternoon on a survey trip south. We're in the van of an annual motor migration toward warmer climates, a traffic movement that this winter promises to break all previous records. We hope to be able in a few days to advise readers where to go, how to get there, what to do, and how much it will cost them.

The tour was started late yesterday afternoon under ideal weather conditions. The loop shopping crowds were whipped by a raw north wind and the forecast was for colder and probably snow. Skies were dark. Weather like that is a spur to a trip south.

In the early dusk, while skirting Lake Calumet in Stony Island avenue, a full moon rose over South Chicago heavy industries, its face bloodied by the smoke of national defense production. The sunset was hidden by snow clouds.

Leaving Cold Behind.

South from the Lincoln highway in U. S. 41, this moon dodged in and out of clouds, keeping pace with us while a cold landscape in the vague light slipped behind at a rate of 50 miles an hour. A new engine hummed contentedly at its breaking-in pace.

A few small flakes of snow flew thru the headlamp beams. South of Kendallville, Ind., a short flurry danced madly in the bright rays. We could hear sun dried fronds of Florida palms rustling in our ears.

But Norma, aged 12, called for an early stop. In the Inn of Turkey Run State park, amid a tall woods two miles from the traffic noises of U. S. 41, twin beds, a private shower, and two hearty breakfasts cost $5.50.

Approved Route to Florida.

With the first light this morning, we were on our way again, continuing in U. S. 41. This highway, paralleling the Indiana-Illinois line to its west, is recommended by the Chicago Motor club for Chicago to Florida travel. Nearby Illinois roads are inferior with slabs badly cracked, curves sharp, and traffic retarded in village main streets.

This morning, skies were still leadened as we soared and dipped thru gentle hills where woods were filigreed by a light snow during the night. In Evansville, the forecast in this afternoon's newspapers is still stimulating—rain or snow at about freezing temperatures. So, like other luggage laden automobiles that passed us on the road, we're hurrying on south.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

Mrs. Angeline Kielanowicz, 58 years old, died yesterday in the Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey, of burns suffered Friday when her clothing caught fire as she was tending the furnace in her home at 14448 South Marshfield avenue, Dixmoor.

WILLKIE CLUBS REORGANIZE FOR POLITICAL WAR

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Representatives of Willkie clubs from thruout the nation decided today to continue their organization under a new name and independent of political parties on a local and state basis. The 100 or more delegates authorized a committee of 12 to recommend whether a national organization should be formed.

The conference dissolved the Associated Willkie Clubs of America and urged former members to join in organizing new local clubs and state associations; to encourage the exercise of the responsibilities of good citizenship by taking part in local political affairs, whether of state, county, district, ward or precinct; to promote better understanding of political affairs and to encourage competent men and women to seek public office.

The committee includes Oren Root Jr., New York; William H. Harman, Philadelphia; Representative Robert G. Allen, Pittsburgh; John W. Hanes, New York; Russell W. Davenport, New York; James H. Douglas Jr., Chicago; Henry H. Bubb, Topeka; Howard M. Wall, Portland, Ore.; James Watkins, Detroit; Richard D. Logan, Toledo; Cloud Wampler, Chicago, and Arthur H. Bunker, New York. All were active in the Willkie campaign for the Presidency.

JARECKI BLASTS DEMAND BY CITY TO PROBE BOOKS

Cites His Savings to Back Request for Funds.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki pointed yesterday to a table showing the costs of Chicago's elections since 1922 and said it was one of the reasons why he refused to permit a city council survey commission to investigate his expenditures. The council's finance committee on Friday cut Jarecki's appropriation request for 1941 by $105,000.

Judge Jarecki cited savings totaling $3,050,573 which he has made from his appropriations since 1922. When he became county judge in 1922 and took charge of the election machinery, the election cost per voter per year was $2.05. The table showed this has been reduced to $1.06 per voter in 1940.

Reiterates 1924 Stand.

"The law, when placing the responsibility for the election commissioners' office in the County court, never contemplated that it should be at the mercy of any political factor, and that is the reason the law so explicitly defined and gave broad powers to the election commissioners and the County court," said Judge Jarecki, reiterating a stand he had taken in a previous battle with the city council in 1924.

"I do not intend to barter away nor surrender any prerogatives of my office."

Jarecki, a Democrat, was opposed for reëlection two years ago by the Kelly-Nash Democratic organization, some members of which also criticized his conduct of the election last month. That political antagonism is back of the council's action of Friday, the county judge asserted.

Probe Asked by Arvey.

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee and vice chairman of the Democratic county central committee, suggested the investigation of the election board's pay roll.

Yesterday Judge Jarecki cited numerous opinions by former corporation counsels to the effect that the council has not the right of supervision over the election board's expenses but is bound to pay any sum ordered by the County court.

"The figures in the table prepared by the election board show that we have kept election costs down and turned back money each year into the city and county treasuries," Judge Jarecki stated. "Our estimate of 1941 expenses was $850,405; the council allows us $744,755. The sum lopped off is what we estimated to be the cost of redistricting the city.

Cites Redistricting Law.

"By order of the state legislature the city council is under the necessity of redistricting the city before December, 1941. In explaining their reduction of our appropriation the aldermen said they were not going to obey that law. They'll look silly, then, asking the legislature to redistrict the state senatorial and congressional districts."

Increases and decreases in the voting population of certain areas make it mandatory for the election board to redistrict 1,000 city precincts in 1941, Judge Jarecki said. If the council would obey the law and change the ward lines in time, the election board could make its changes at the same time, he said, at a great saving.

Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, member of the election board, said each change in precinct or ward lines necessitates the transfer of thousands of registration cards from one binder to another and the use of two or more typewriting entries per name. She said she is trying to work out a plan with the city council whereby the traction referendum, if it is held in 1941, may be held in conjunction with the judicial election of next November.

Calls Council Uncoöperative.

Mrs. Reinecke said that at the same time it might be possible to fill a vacancy on the Sanitary district board and a vacancy in the city council, but that the council is not willing to coöperate. If the ward redistricting is not done in time—before next December—the election board cannot make the necessary changes to make it effective before 1945, she said.

The primary and election of 1942, the mayoralty and aldermanic elections of 1943, and the spring and fall elections of 1944 will prevent such changes, according to Mrs. Reinecke.

"We'll save a lot of money if the aldermen will let us," she added.

Election Costs and Savings

Following are figures prepared by the board of election commissioners and cited by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday in refusing to permit investigation of his expenditures. Shown are the growth of Chicago's precincts and voting population, joint appropriations of city and county for election expenses, expenditures, savings, and the cost per registered voter. The even numbered years only are shown.

1924	2,649	1,092,097	2,119,510	1,923,411	196,099	1.76
1928	3,003	1,423,894	3,043,261	2,810,516	232,745	1.97
1930	3,122	1,319,869	2,572,567	2,435,063	137,503	1.84
1932	3,180	1,566,190	2,528,924	2,293,258	235,665	1.46
1934	3,300	1,453,930	1,998,818	1,779,834	218,984	1.22
1936	3,765	1,865,236	2,744,158	2,734,117	10,041	1.46
1938	3,848	1,815,605	2,103,845	2,101,053	2,791	1.15
1940	3,848	2,025,983	2,189,480	2,142,973	46,506	1.06

In the even numbered years the elections are county-wide; in some of the odd numbered years city elections of mayor and aldermen were held, and in other years there were judicial elections in June. Jarecki was elected county judge in 1922, and the table shown above is a partial accounting of his financial stewardship. The balance of the table shows that, with special savings included, the election board saved $3,050,573 of its appropriations under the Jarecki régime.

PLANE INDUSTRY PLEDGES FULL AID TO KNUDSEN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The aircraft industry pledged "complete and sincere coöperation" today to Defense Commissioner William S. Knudsen in his efforts to get defense production on a 24 hour basis.

Col. John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, said that aircraft production under the weight of defense orders was expanding as rapidly as possible. His statement followed the declaration of Knudsen last night that the commission's "hoped for production figures of 1,000 planes a month have to be scaled down by 30 per cent to be correct."

"Knudsen can depend on the aircraft industry for complete and sincere coöperation in his efforts to get 24 hours of production out of each 24 hours at our disposal," Jouett said. "Delays and shortages outlined by him have not been of our making.

"The aircraft manufacturers in the last year added more than 100,000 shop employés and increased productive shop space from 11,900,000 square feet to 22,500,000, with approximately the same increases to come.

"Unprecedented expansion and numerous change orders and revisions of new models ordered by the government resulted in some delays."

SAILOR PLUNGES 330 FT. OFF RADIO TOWER; KILLED

Franklin E. Johnson.

Franklin Everett Johnson, 19 years old, an apprentice seaman, was killed yesterday when he leaped or fell from a platform 330 feet above the ground on the west radio tower at Great Lakes Naval Training station. Sailors are prohibited from mounting the towers. A naval board of inquiry was summoned. A witness said Johnson plunged from the second highest platform on the tower at 7:05 a. m. Johnson enlisted Oct. 23 at Louisville, Ky. He was graduated Dec. 2, with a grade of 97, from the six weeks' induction course at the training station, and, because of his outstanding record, was held over to be enrolled in the naval trades school, instead of being sent to sea. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elva Johnson, live in West Baden Springs, Ind.

ARMY EXPECTED TO IGNORE FORD ORDER PROTEST

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—A protest by Sidney Hillman, labor member of the defense commission, failed today to produce signs that the war department would withhold contracts with the Ford Motor company involving about $2,000,000.

On the contrary, predictions were forthcoming that the contracts would be signed, possibly next week, regardless of the lack of stipulations that the Ford company should comply with with all federal labor laws and a controversey stirred by disclosure of Hillman's protest.

The Ford contracts for 2,000 midget military scout cars lacks a stipulation that the company should observe the Wagner act guaranteeing the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively. Hillman protested that this latter stipulation should be included.

SHEIL TO MAKE GOOD FELLOW APPEAL TODAY

Christmas Aid for Needy Will Be Urged.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Chicago and founder of the Catholic Youth organization, will speak on W-G-N at 1:35 p. m. today on the Good Fellow work in Chicago and on similar activities being conducted thruout Chicagoland. He will urge the kind of heart to take baskets of food, toys, and candy to the needy on Christmas eve.

Two important Good Fellow meetings will be held in the audience studio of W-G-N this week. On Wednesday night 200 Boy Scout leaders will attend a half hour radio show from 7 to 7:30 o'clock, and following it they will be addressed by the executive of the Chicago Council of Boy Scouts, W. Arthur McKinney. On the following evening, from 7:30 to 8, more than 500 Good Fellow supporters will attend a radio performance of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Y. M. C. A. Leader to Speak.

Jeffrey R. Short, president of the board of managers of the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, will be heard on W-G-N at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in a discussion of the Y. M. C. A.'s part in the Good Fellow work this season.

With only one more full week left before Christmas morning there still is plenty of time to organize a Good Fellow club in your office or in your social or business organization. You can figure on about $5 to the basket.

When you have collected this money send it in to the Good Fellow bureau at 1 South Dearborn street and you'll receive in the next morning's mail information concerning deserving families in your section of the city. You can buy the baskets yourselves, or, if you wish, THE TRIBUNE will do it for you. Then on Christmas eve you are asked to distribute them after they have been taken to some designated place.

All Contributions Welcomed.

And—for those who can't do this—all contributions to the fund will be welcomed.

A typical small Good Fellow club is the Esquire theater's employés' group. Organized by Manager William Galligan and Assistant Manager Paul Hesse, the office force, ushers, and others contribute $1 each, and with their gifts three heaping baskets will be purchased.

Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, spoke on W-G-N yesterday afternoon in behalf of the Good Fellows. He urged generous financial support of the campaign.

[There are three ways to become a Good Fellow. They are explained in the Good Fellow coupon in the Metropolitan section of today's CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.]

Aid Good Fellows

FILLING STATION ATTENDANT BURNED.

HE'S ON A BLIND DATE WITH LIFE, AND IT'S GREAT!

College Teacher Finds His Eyes Unnecessary.

Jake, 7 years old, and his friend, Tim, were playing Indians on a prairie in Alberta, Canada. They had found some flint headed arrows near their parents' homesteads.

Jake rose in his hiding place to peer thru a hole in his tent just as Tim let fly an arrow.

"Tim's aim was good," says Jacobus [Jake] tenBroek, now 29, a doctor of jurisprudence and a tutorial fellow in the University of Chicago law school. The arrow struck his left eye.

Loses Sight of Both Eyes.

"Medical facilities on the Alberta prairies at that time," tenBroek recalls, "were few and far between. Physicians had to ride many miles for each visit, and by the time a doctor reached me I had lost both eyes."

TenBroek, who teaches legal research and writing to first year students in the law school, goes about the campus as easily as a person with normal vision. He detects walls and large buildings by their sound effects. Mrs. tenBroek usually accompanies him to and from the campus, but frequently he makes the trip alone. He has never had a trained dog, but does at times carry a cane.

Mrs. tenBroek reads to him each morning, and he takes notes on a Braille typewriter. He then reads the notes with his fingers, dictating articles and letters to her. Thus he keeps abreast of current events in the legal profession, is active in original research, and grades more than 40 class papers a week. His door is always open to eager students with whom he consults daily.

Parties, shows, swimming, and good arguments furnish him amusement. He is registered under the selective service act and believes "every man should offer his services to this common cause of national defense." TenBroek doesn't know what he can do, but is waiting for the army to find something for him.

He does not regard blindness as a handicap, and dislikes sympathy, however well meant. "I would be much better off," he says, "if every one would regard me as just another person."

He was awarded his degree of bachelor of arts with highest honors in 1934, a master of arts in political science a year later, a bachelor of laws in 1938, and doctorate last May.

Jacobus tenBroek has been married three years and lives a mile from the campus at 5111 University avenue.

Not without a sense of humor, he said: "Did you know I first met my wife on a blind date?"

was that between Chicago and Miami and intermediate winter resort points. It is 1,434 miles from Chicago to Miami, and in the past the fastest time—and that only during the winter season—was 31 hours 40 minutes. New Yorkers were able to speed the 1,349 miles from there to Miami in 25 hours by de luxe streamlined all coach trains or in 26¼ hours in all Pullman trains. The fastest trains between Chicago and Miami take 39 or 40 hours during most of the year.

Early this year THE TRIBUNE assigned a reporter to make a trip via the fastest Chicago-Miami train and to compare it with the fastest New York-Miami service. Railroad men en route said they believed a 26 hour Chicago-Miami service to be feasible. The reporter found business men in Miami demanding fast train service from Chicago. They believed fast service would attract more tourists from the middle west.

Many Roads Linked.

Railroad officials said they would prefer fast service, but doubted that it was feasible because it would be necessary to link many roads in the service. The Dixie Flagler, for example, will travel over six roads between Chicago and Miami.

The public supported THE TRIBUNE's effort to obtain better service between the middle west and the southern resorts, and southern newspapers joined in the drive. The three new trains are the result.

The 29½ hour schedule to the south is believed to be just a starter toward eventual faster service. All three new streamliners are de luxe all-coach trains of the type which have been so popular between New York and Miami that it is difficult to obtain seats on them. There were reports last year of ticket scalping by hotel and other employés because of the demand, altho the roads were active in stamping out this practice.

Last Word in Luxury.

The new Chicago trains all will represent the last word in train luxury. The Dixie Flagler and the South Wind were built in the Philadelphia shops of the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company, and the City of Miami was built in the Chicago plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

Each seat is reserved, and advance reservations on all three trains promise a successful season. It is impossible to obtain seats for the inaugural trips.

Deep reclining seats provide a comfortable ride for the one night the trains are on the road. There are adequate toilet facilities in all cars. Social life on the train is made enjoyable by luxurious club and observation cars.

29½ HOURS TO FLORIDA

The following story is a description of a test run of one of the three new trains to the south:

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 14 [Aboard the Dixie Flagler en route to Chicago].—It's here at last—faster train service between Chicago and Florida. Streamliner service—29½ hours between Chicago and Miami, Fla.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad's Dixie Flagler, which will inaugurate the new service in the first regular run Tuesday, arrived here tonight on a demonstration trip. It was put on display until tomorrow, when it will speed on to Chicago on the last leg of its trial journey from Miami.

Twenty-nine and a half hours! That's 10 hours under the present year 'round schedules and two hours faster than the fastest standard train makes the journey in the winter season, when the Florida service is at its best.

Train to Be Exhibited Here.

The Dixie Flagler will arrive at the Dearborn station in Chicago tomorrow and will be on exhibition Monday.

The gleaming seven car stainless steel streamliner has no sleeping cars. If you want a berth or a drawing room, stick to the standard trains.

But if you don't think you'll be roughing it to catch your naps in a modern air conditioned car, you'll like the Dixie Flagler. The reclining chairs are soft and comfortable. They really work when you press the lever.

Some of the Comforts.

Here are some of the things you'll find on the Dixie Flagler—10 cent coffee and a 60 cent dinner; a drink of water you can get without huddling in a dark corner and outguessing a naturally ill tempered water cooler and cup holder; fluorescent lighting and varied and attractive decorated reading lights which won't keep your neighbor from sleeping.

This Diesel powered train doesn't loaf, but hurries all the time and doesn't make the long stops to which Florida travelers are accustomed.

BOOKIES MISSED BY SHERIFF ARE CLOSED BY COPS

Twenty downtown handbooks of Nitti gang ownership were closed yesterday by morals division police who took up a pursuit abandoned Friday by Sheriff Thomas O'Brien's trusty deputies who had ill luck in trying to find the horse betting gents. The places weren't raided in the usual fashion and except in one instance no arrests were made.

The police activity followed orders given by Commissioner Allman to Capt. Martin McCormick of the morals division and a half dozen district police commanders. The honor of the force or of the organization or of something or other was at stake, Allman told the captains, according to reports from the city hall, and the Christmas spirit was not to be considered.

AUTOS COLLIDE HEAD ON; 2 DEAD AND 3 INJURED

Accident Near Hammond Fatal to Hunters.

Two hunters were killed and three other persons, including a young married couple from Spokane, Wash., were injured critically yesterday when two automobiles collided head on about 15 miles south of Hammond, Ind., on U. S. highway 41.

The dead were Anthony Cialkowski, 48 years old, 509 East 36th avenue, Gary, and Kazimierz Gorny, also 48, of 4692 Indianapolis avenue, East Chicago. The latter's son, Theodore, 20, who was driving the car south on the hunting trip, was taken to St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago. In the other car were Andrew Snajczuk, 25, and his wife, of Spokane. They were taken to the Methodist hospital in Gary.

High Speed Indicated.

All three injured persons were unconscious and could not be questioned, and police were unable to determine immediately how the crash occurred. They said both cars apparently were traveling at high speed.

Patrick J. Duffy, 48 years old, 4845 Patterson avenue, a streetcar motorman, was killed last night in front of 3638 North Cicero avenue when he was hit by a car driven by Einer T. Olesen, 2212 North Tripp avenue, and thrown against the side of a second car driven by Robert Carlson, 1722 North Keating avenue.

Elmer Westergreen, a retired steel worker, and his wife, Anna, of Chesterton, Ind., were killed when the New York Central's Pacemaker struck their car on the 17th avenue crossing in Chesterton. Westergreen was 55 and his wife was 44.

Edmund Tatge, 52, of Crete, in Will county, was killed at Glenwood Dyer road and Halsted street in Chicago Heights when, according to police, his car sidewiped one driven by Ray Page, 207 West 15th place. Page was injured and was taken to St. James hospital in Chicago Heights.

Accident Injuries Fatal.

Jacob Tulp, 72, of 3811 South State street, owner of a furniture store at that address, died in County hospital of injuries incurred at 38th and State streets last Monday when he was struck by a car driven by Robert McMasters, 10627 South State street.

Mrs. Mary Ann Riley, 26, of 1211 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn, died in the Berwyn hospital yesterday of injuries she suffered Nov. 21 when the car in which she was riding collided with another at 14th street and 56th avenue in Cicero.

Mrs. Mary Quillin, 45, of 5832 Stony Island avenue, died early yesterday in Passavant hospital a few hours after a car driven by her husband, Dr. L. J. Quillin, skidded in the Outer drive at Delaware place and struck a post. Dr. Quillin, a clinical associate at the Loyola university school of medicine and district surgeon for the Illinois Central railroad, is in the hospital with a possible skull fracture and shock.

Train Hits Car; One Killed.

Nicholas Walsh, 35, of 5605 South Sacramento avenue, a chief clerk for the board of education, was killed and his wife, Mary, 31, was critically injured when the automobile he was driving was struck by freight train at 67th place and Kenton avenue. Mrs. Walsh was taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

Julius Ostrowski, 65, of 3131 Throop street, a tailor, died in People's hospital of injuries suffered Nov. 4 at Pitney court and Archer avenue when he was hit by a car driven by Alexander Kucucar, 1935 South Des Plaines street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 834 persons had been killed by automobile in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 610 were killed in Chicago, where 22,708 were injured in the same period.

SLAYER SUSPECTS ARE RETURNED TO BENTON HARBOR

Joseph Tomasello, 29 years old, of 1025 Larrabee street, and Joseph Ignofo, 28, alias Neuf, of 1135 Cambridge street, arrested here Friday night, were returned yesterday by sheriff's deputies to St. Joseph, Mich., for questioning in connection with a murder there on Feb. 6, 1935. The victim, August Gagliano, a farmer of Millburg, Mich., was found lying in a fruit market in Benton Harbor with his throat cut and knife wounds in his body.

Under arrest in Benton Harbor were Tomasello's brother, Joseph, 32, and Ignofo's cousin, Joseph Neuf, 29. Officials indicated that they obtained information concerning the murder during the investigation of an arson case in which Joseph Neuf's grandmother, Mrs. Lena Neuf, 64, pleaded guilty. She set fire to farm buildings to collect insurance.

SURRENDER OF 9 IN FRAUD CASE DUE THIS WEEK

Nine persons associated with Resources Corporation International, 333 North Michigan avenue, who were indicted Friday by the federal grand jury, are expected to surrender early this week. Indictments against the nine, who include Arnold Joerns, 519 Barry avenue, president of the concern, charge mail fraud and violations of the securities and exchange act in connection with the sale of stock in a Mexican timber development. Hundreds of investors lost $7,000,000 in the deal, the government charges.

PEACE BY SPRING OR WHAT?

Gen. Robert E. Wood, speaking to the New York Board of Trade, said it was possible that a showdown on the question of America entering the war would be called for in the near future. The decision, in his judgment, would determine whether there would be a negotiated peace in the spring or a war prolonged for two or even five years longer. Gen. Wood's opinion is shared by a great many other Americans who have watched and studied the course of events.

Gen. Wood has presented the alternatives and it is no light problem which confronts this country. The questions it raises are many and serious. Can a negotiated peace be made tolerable for the peoples involved in it? Would it have the prospect of enduring for a sufficient time to permit a recovery, a return to more reasonable attitudes and the betterment of oppressed peoples?

Would it only be a brief armistice, a Peace of Amiens, only a breathing spell in which the present belligerents gathered strength for a new war? Is there no conceivable arrangement to which Nazi Germany and Great Britain could agree? Is there none which could better the condition of the peoples on the continent, relieve them from the miseries which, bad as they are, have not yet been felt as they will be if the war continues?

Some people will answer all these questions with an instant and emphatic negative. They will say "No." They will say that nothing which would be safe or tolerable could come from a negotiated peace. And yet these people may not be right. It would be inexcusable not to examine the situation more reasonably. Hitler, indeed, does talk publicly as a man who is beyond reason. His program invites despair, but he is talking not only to the world he tries to threaten but to the Germans from whom he is demanding great sacrifices. He seems to be in undisputed control, but no man's authority is invincibly entrenched. Hitler, in reality, is in the midst of live volcanoes. Hindenburg and Ludendorff, with the kaiser and the government under his thumb, were thought to command unquestioned obedience, but they didn't, and they didn't have the smothered forces of many subject peoples under their feet.

Germany can carry on the war. The question is, is it worth its while to do so? Is it worth its while to be so unreasonable that no peace could be made? Is it so sure of the sort of victory Hitler talks about? We'll not know the answer to these questions until an attempt is made at negotiation. The two belligerents cannot approach each other. Neither would make that confession of a desire to stop fighting and that is not the way overtures are made. The soundings are taken in such a way as not to commit the belligerents.

Gen. Wood suggested that Washington and the Vatican were best qualified to make the approaches. Mr. Roosevelt might seem to be disqualified by his attitude, but the American government asserts that the United States has a great stake in the conflict. The Germans are wondering how soon they will have a new enemy. This government, before it commits itself further in the direction of war, might ask Germany for a statement of its intentions, not meaning its intentions as to this hemisphere or its intentions regarding the United States. The answer to such a question could be given in advance. It would be worthless. But what sort of peace is Germany prepared to make? That's a pertinent question and it would deal with subjects to be treated across a conference table.

People who say that the war must go on should consider how it is to go on and what will happen if it does. Hitler, altho in command of the greatest army the world has ever seen, is unable to get across the channel. His raids are causing destruction on land and to shipping but not to an extent which could force a decision. On these lines of attack Germany is getting as much as it gives. The combatants may continue to pound at each other in this fashion, causing misery and suffering without gaining a military advantage or weakening the enemy to submission.

Great Britain's land forces are not sufficient to carry the fighting to Europe, even if its sea power could do what Hitler can't, which is improbable, and ferry the invading divisions across. America could not change the situation to Britain's advantage in this respect because it would be long before this country, at its greatest effort, could produce an army. Great Britain and Germany, both in their own territory and in their own operations, seem to be able to hold their own. All that results from the continued warfare is destruction without decision, demoralization of the world's already shaky economy, and the postponement of the settlement day, when all peoples will regret the onset of the forces which have brought the world to such condition.

Do these prospects make a peace effort now seem less desirable? Do they make a war fury more excusable? Do they make an attempt at negotiation seem unworthy of decent people? The reproach rather is upon elements so blinded by their sentiments and their emotions that they cannot see that the saving thing for which civilization seeks, if it is to survive, is peace and not a war to destruction.

8 MILLION UNEMPLOYED.

Business is now at the peak of all times, according to the production index of the federal reserve board of governors. By that widely used measure, output is 15 per cent greater than at the peak in 1929. And yet unemployment persists on a large scale. The American Federation of Labor has just reported that despite the increase in working forces by nearly 3 million since the first of the year, 8 million 130 thousand were unemployed in October.

Many persons have thought that if the production were lifted to the level of the last period of good times unemployment would cease to be a problem. But the 1929 level has been equaled and surpassed and still on the average one worker of seven is unable to find a job.

Displacement of labor by machinery is not the explanation of the anomaly of high output and serious unemployment. Take for example the automobile industry. Altho manufacturing efficiency has been increased in recent years, the Brookings Foundation has found that auto factories employ 25 per cent more persons than they did 13 years ago, with a 46 per cent increase in output. The replacement of outmoded plants has enabled the steel industry to turn out 17 per cent more product with 1 per cent fewer employés. Mechanization has not been an important contributor to the ranks of the unemployed. In manufacturing industries, where most of the technological changes have taken place, as many persons are now at work as at the 1929 peak.

To employ all of our working force there have to be more jobs than there were in 1929 for the reason that there are many more employable persons. In the years immediately following the world war the number of births in this country set a record. The children born then have been growing up and adding to the labor supply. There are now 6 million more employable persons between the ages of 20 and 64 than there were in 1929.

The working population has been growing in the last 10 years at the previously established rate and even a little above it, but the opportunities to work have not been similarly increasing. In every other decade besides the one from 1930-1940 output and job opportunities increased in this country. Carl Snyder, a noted economist, found the growth uniform over many decades and that it has averaged 3 per cent a year. If output had increased from 1930 to 1940 at the rate previously maintained the federal reserve board index of production would now be at 155 instead of 130 and there would be plenty of work to go around.

Jobs are created by the investment of capital either to develop new enterprises or improve old ones. Returns on investments of the kind which create regular jobs are yielded only over a long period of time. Before job-making investments can be made it must be possible to view the future with confidence. Heavy taxes, government deficits which make even higher taxes certain in the future, acts of government which increase labor and material costs, official supervision of prices, active competition by the government with business, and openly avowed unfriendliness of the head of our government toward successful enterprise have combined to stop the flow of funds into American industry, and thus have kept the number of jobs from increasing as fast as the number of job-seekers.

With 8 million out of work at a time when the federal government expenditures have been stepped up to a rate of 10 billion dollars a year, it should be clear to every one that public spending won't solve the unemployment problem.

CHILDREN'S CHORUS.

A chorus of 450 children from half a dozen of the public schools will sing at three concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week. A picture of the children rehearsing under Dr. Stock's direction was published on the back page of THE TRIBUNE the other day. It is just possible that some taxpayers, seeing the picture, may have felt that their money was being wasted on another educational frill.

Nothing could be farther from the truth, as any one who has ever heard one of these children's choruses with the orchestra can testify. The youngsters who are fortunate enough to have been chosen for the chorus can value this experience above anything else that will happen to them thruout their schooling.

They have mastered a difficult score and have the satisfaction which comes from being letter-perfect. That took not only time but the closest kind of attention. They have learned the meaning of precision and, more particularly, they have learned how precision is attained. From the start they have known that they must meet the most exacting of standards and they have discovered that it is more fun to do a job perfectly than to do it tolerably well.

Any one who has watched one of these children's choruses under Dr. Stock's direction cannot come to a different conclusion. The youngsters are radiant. There is a wholesomeness and a sincerity about their performance which are beyond praise. It enriches them and the thousands who hear them.

IL DUCE ESTABLISHES A SINECURE.

The British have a fondness for vermiform appendices of title and procedure which, if it is not always understood, is at least accepted by the rest of the world. The privy seal, for example, was abolished in 1884, but the lord keeper of the privy seal still sits in the British cabinet and, as one writer observes, his dignity has increased as his duties diminished. One would hardly expect to find such toleration of fusty traditionalism in the dictatorial efficiency that the axis powers claim. It is with mild surprise, therefore, that we note that in his recent shakeup of naval command Il Duce appointed one of his officers admiral of the fleet at sea.

WE STRIVE TO HELP.

[Los Angeles Times.]

The suggestion of the W. C. T. U. that our young lady elbow-benders be provided with official cards whereby they may satisfy the bartender that they are of legal age for booze-hoisting is meant to help prevent the sale of liquor to minors. So far, so good. Now, if the able White Ribboners wish to make a clean job of it, they should sponsor a law making the legal age, say, 35. The necessity of exhibiting a card with that age-figure on it would keep from public drinking almost any woman not actually on crutches.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could wear new shoes for a few days before putting them on.

WAR AND THE PHILIPPINES

BY VICENTE ALBANO PACIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Five years ago on Nov. 15 the Philippine commonwealth was set up in accordance with an act of the United States congress. Five years from now, on July 4, 1946, unless the law is amended, the commonwealth will be converted into an independent republic. With the 10 year commonwealth thus in midpassage, the Tribune's correspondent in Manila secured an exclusive interview from America's highest representative in the Philippines, United States High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre, a former assistant secretary of state.]

MANILA.—Francis B. Sayre, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, on the eve of the fifth anniversary of the Philippine commonwealth, discussed America's foreign policy with respect to the Philippines and the entire far eastern situation.

"The existing Philippine independence act enacted by congress in 1934," he declared, "calls for independence in 1946. Whether or not the present program of independence in 1946 will, or should be, changed must await the outcome of the wars in Europe and the far east. If Germany wins in Europe and Japan in the orient we will have to adjust our policies and our programs to a world in which might makes right; that would necessitate a foreign policy different from that to be followed if England wins and we can depend upon future international good faith and coöperation and a rule of law."

If Germany and Japan win, Sayre hinted, American control of the Philippines from across a 6,000 mile ocean might become more and more problematical even if the Filipinos desired it.

"America's policy in the far east," Sayre said, "is one of progressive development as events unfold themselves. It is a mistake to regard it as pro or anti. Certainly it is not anti-Japanese, or anti any country. It is a policy of seeking to maintain certain fundamentals.

"Among these are first, the open door policy, which calls for equality of economic opportunity to all; second, the observance by all nations of treaty obligations, and third, the effort to build a world order based upon law and coöperation. American policy in the far east is no different from American policy in every other part of the world; it is the policy of building for enduring peace."

I asked him if the ultimate American policy in the Philippines was dependent upon the ultimate American policy in the far east, and Sayre replied:

"There can be no question that the two are in a sense interdependent, and the ultimate American course in the Philippines will depend upon a number of imponderables which cannot at present be known.

"But we are proceeding on the assumption that Philippine independence will occur in 1946. We must gear our program to that goal, otherwise the Filipinos would not be ready for independence when it comes. Whether or not the present program eventually will be carried out, only congress can say. If any substantial change is to be made, surely it should be only upon the formal request of the Filipino people themselves."

Commissioner Sayre then discussed outstanding achievements of the United States in the Philippines.

The commonwealth, he said, is doubly fortified by its material and spiritual heritage from America.

"The Philippine roads," he said, "are significant not only for what they are but also for what they promise, such as the opening up of new regions and new communities and the development of new industries.

"The technological skill acquired by the Filipinos under America has made them self-reliant and conscious of their possibilities. For 40 years trained Filipinos have been stepping into the shoes of Americans, building up industrial plants, operating public utilities, developing plantations, and promoting various enterprises. Technological advance is the basis, I hope, of the material future of the Philippines."

Of the schools, the high commissioner talked with praise for the way in which the Filipinos, both as students and as school administrators, have taken to education, and with misgiving for the possible effects of future educational policies.

"The schools, which are now found in every community," he said, "are the outstanding evidence of American occupation of the islands. The Filipinos have taken hold of the program splendidly. At this juncture, to be sure, there seems to be a question as to what aspect of education shall be emphasized. Shall the emphasis be laid upon elementary or advanced education, upon technological or academic training? That is a decision the Filipinos will have to make." Mr. Sayre was asked about the national language movement in favor of Tagalog, and the query evidently hit a spot in which he has keen interest.

"I sympathize with the Filipinos' desire for a national language of their own," he said, "but I believe it will be unfortunate if Tagalog is ever to be regarded as a substitute for English. There are few available textbooks or teachable materials in Tagalog, particularly in the highest branches of learning, and a great number of the Filipinos cannot understand it."

[According to the 1940 Philippine census, of the 16,000,303 Filipinos, 4,259,549 can speak English, while only 4,068,569 can speak Tagalog. The latter figure includes all non-Tagalogs familiar with the language as spoken.]

"If the English language were to be forgotten, the Philippines would lose one of the great contributions America has given them."

Among the American contributions to the islands Sayre called the heritage of ideals the most far reaching and precious.

"America's conceptions of democracy, of individual human liberties, of peace," he said, "are based on the brotherhood of men and on the rule of law rather than of unbridled force. I hope they will prove enduring after 1946."

* * *

The high commissioner next turned to economic problems that will confront the commonwealth with approaching independence.

"American occupation of the Philippines," he explained, "has resulted in markedly raising the general standards of living thruout the islands. They are considerably higher than those of competing Asiatic countries. Ever since 1909 Philippine goods could be sold in the highly protected American market. After independence, Philippine goods can no longer be shipped into the United States without paying the high American tariff rates. Can the Filipinos sell goods in world markets competing against countries with lower standards of living?

"The United States maintained high standards of living while competing in world markets largely thru advances in technological skill. She is able to pay high wages by turning out a higher production of goods per unit of labor than her competitors. To maintain the present standards of living, the Philippines must find a way of solving this problem."

Sayre traced the history of Philippine-American trade since the act of 1909 creating virtual free trade between the United States and the Philippines. This has resulted in increasing dependence of the Philippines upon American markets. More than three-quarters of the Philippines' exports are sold in American markets, and more than half enjoy heavy trade preferences.

* * *

"Independence means grave problems," the commissioner continued, "but I do not believe that the Filipino people will be content until they attain it.

"From McKinley to Franklin D. Roosevelt, every American President has promised ultimate self-government to the Filipinos. In fulfilment of these promises, the United States should give self-government to the Filipinos just as soon as they are ready for it."

TEAMWORK IN ILLNESS.

THE healing art is progressing constantly. We all know something about the onward march of science, for every discovery of moment is heralded in the public press. But one thing has not changed, namely, the vital need for interest on the part of the profession in those who seek their help. I have often said I would prefer a practitioner who possessed sympathy, understanding, and good judgment to one who, tho highly skilled, looked upon me as just another "case." We are all individuals and each of us is endowed with sensibilities that can retard or make for recovery.

We observe a difference among trained nurses. Some have the knack instinctively of keeping the invalid comfortable, while others will carry out orders to the letter, but something seems to be lacking—a deftness that makes all the difference to the sufferer. Perhaps they have never been ill and do not sense the relief that can be accomplished by adjusting the pillows and raising or lowering the head of the bed.

Not long ago I watched an extremely efficient young woman who had been told by the physician that the patient must eat. Taking advantage of every opportunity, each mildly expressed wish, she soon had her charge on the way to good health because she was able to administer ample nourishment. She studied her patient until she knew just when to tempt him with a teaspoonful of eggnog or a bit of baked apple.

In our day we look to experts. If a bridge is to be built we employ a well trained engineer. In sickness, we consult the man who has devoted his life to relieving distress. He in turn depends upon the nurse and the hospital for a multitude of aids. But this combination is not automatic. It requires planning and a firm guiding hand.

While most of us accept this arrangement, there are some who, because of anxiety, attempt to defeat a well organized program of treatment. They suggest to the nurse that she change the physician's orders, or to the doctor that he follow a line of management with which he is completely out of sympathy. Such a situation can wreck the most favorable setup. If the medical man is honest and competent, and is giving adequate attention to the case in hand, let him and his assistants alone. He probably will be the first to request consultation should he find himself beyond his depth.

There is no such creation as a medico with too much knowledge. A student all his life, he will gain in wisdom as he grows older. Facts are easy to acquire, but it is not so simple to develop reasoning power and sagacity. As the pilot of a ship, he has hold of the wheel, knowing just when to use this or that maneuver to pull thru the rapids.

We all realize how difficult it is for worried members of the household to follow a "hands off" policy, but unless they restrain and control themselves the only fair thing is to dismiss the physician and secure another. Wisdom is required not only of the doctor but of the apprehensive ones at home who seem, in some instances, unable to let well enough alone.

Optimism is a desirable quality, but without intelligence behind it—without action—it is useless. We must realize that illness breeds discouragement and it is difficult for one who is in pain to be cheerful about it. But hope is good medicine and the one who can extend it frankly will add greatly to the recuperative powers of his charge.

DEHYDRATED.

Mrs. L. E. P. writes: A doctor once told me I was "dry." What did he mean? What is the remedy?

REPLY.

The opposite of moist. Apparently he thought your tissues needed more fluid. Include extra liquids in the diet—fruit juices, water, soups, etc.

SUCKS THUMB.

Mrs. G. writes: What is the best way to break the thumbsucking habit in a six month old baby?

REPLY.

Various types of harness have been employed—some successfully. An elbow guard is preferred.

CAN'T STOP PROGRESS.

M. H. writes: What is the possibility of stopping the progress of congenital cataract?

REPLY.

Very slight, if any. At the proper time the lens should be removed. With special glasses good vision may be restored.

AMERICA'S ROLE IN THE WAR.

Columbus, O., Dec. 9.—Your editorial, "American Aid to Britain," in this morning edition, is a thoughtful approach to a problem which every American should face.

But I wish you would write another editorial. In it I wish you would examine the possibilities for the future. In our position as a lesser member of the British empire [in fact, if not in theory] our administration is straining every sinew to aid England. The only drawbacks to our complete participation are the better judgment of English statesmen who, as yet, want only our munitions and money [shades of 1917!], and the intelligent reluctance of our people to be sold another one of England's wars.

Can England win this war? No. That is, no competent military authority will agree that England alone can defeat Mr. Hitler. If Hitler cannot cross the channel it is absurd to consider England's crossing it.

Can England win the war with American assistance? Let us look the answer squarely in the face. If by winning the war we mean to invade the European continent and drive Hitler back into Germany, then the answer is No. If Hitler cannot invade England across 22 miles of water, most certainly the United States cannot invade the continent from a base 2,000 miles away. When we landed 2 million men in France they were landed on friendly shores.

To be certain, our and my sympathies are with England and democratic government. But I do not believe that we can save our neighbor's home from flames by touching a match to our own. However, I believe that we can be of service. But first we must acknowledge that Mr. Hitler is more than a bad dream; we must realize that he is going to continue to dominate Europe. Then we must realize that if we continue our present aid to England policy there is no stopping place short of our complete and continued to the end participation.

I propose that we tell the German government that this government will enter the war on England's side unless Mr. Hitler agrees to certain terms—namely, the return of occupied France, Belgium, Holland, and Denmark, with the provision that Germany is to have returned her prewar colonies.

If Mr. Hitler accepts, then, of course, England must accept such an honorable arrangement, for without our support there soon will be no England. But if Mr. Hitler refuses we are no worse off than we now are. We really will be better off, for now we are, in all but name, England's ally, but have had nothing to do with the starting of the war and are in no position to speak a word in peace negotiations.

The administration of the United States owes the people at least one thing: If we are going to fight this war there ought to be a sincere, honest, aboveboard effort to restore peace before we commence. Then, if this fails, we should require our potential ally, England, to outline her war aims and we should outline ours. Then we will know when we have won or lost.

Don't you agree with me that we have the power to force a peace on one belligerent, and probably can persuade the other, Mr. Hitler, to accept?

Then paint the picture at the end of our financial road. You don't for a second think the people [little taxpayers] are going to groan for two generations to pay off a 100 billion dollar debt, do you? No, they will wipe it out with about two years of rip tail roaring, heart rending inflation.

Please run a series of such unbiased examinations. Maybe it isn't too late!

ITALIAN HEROES OF LIBERTY.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Patriotic Americans of Italian descent can do a number of things to combat the embarrassment and humiliation to which they are now being subjected because of their Italian background. Here are some suggestions:

1. Challenge these people to admit that they are really using Mussolini as a disguise for their own racial prejudice and remind them that there have never been greater fighters for freedom in any land than Mazzini and Garibaldi.

2. Petition congress to purchase and make a national monument of the little cottage in New York where Garibaldi found refuge for a time from the same type of tyranny with which the Italy of today is oppressed. This great liberator not only freed his own people but also won the independence of Uruguay and even won battles for his erstwhile enemies, the French, when their country was invaded by Prussia. Such action would be a significant slap at the antidemocratic Fascists. The President could also be asked to proclaim the next Fourth of July as the joint celebration of American independence and Garibaldi's birthday.

3. Fight in every possible way the influence of the Fascist controled Italian press and Italian consular officials.

4. Attend some of the meetings of the Chicago Council for American Unity, which are held at Hull House the third Sunday of each month. Here Americans of all racial, religious, and social backgrounds meet in informal discussions of ways and means to further American democracy thru the elimination of antidemocratic prejudices.

TELL IT TO CECIL SMITH.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Butch is my canary, so named because of his excessive toughness! He has the run of the sunroom, visiting his cage only for refreshments; the window box looks like Sherman's route to the sea and the prickly cactus died after a bout with Butch.

We suspect his canarial ancestors were vultures, as he likes nothing better than a nip of ear or finger; both his parents were bad eggs! However, Butch has one redeeming quality, a lovely voice: he has held one note for a minute and half; he prefers swing music and will follow the orchestras. Yes, indeed, there's never a dull moment with Butch around!

WHERE ARE THE JOBS?

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Newspaper and radio reporters tell us that there is a job boom. A writer in the Voice of the People tells us there are plenty of jobs for even unskilled workers in the Calumet area. Everywhere, except in the factories we visit, people tell us this same thing.

The thousands of us who are looking for work would indeed be grateful if all of these people would cut out the generalities and give us the exact name and street address of the places that have these alleged jobs.

Test Your Horse Sense

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts 5 points. Then look for the correct answers on page 7, part 2.

1. The country which takes its census by dividing its total salt consumption by the average amount of salt used by a typical family is Egypt China Russia Brazil.
2. Velvet is a product of Silk Cotton Wool Flax.
3. If the newspaper described an agronomy field day, would the crowd thereat be composed chiefly of Bankers Carpenters Sportsmen Farmers.
4. If the highway on which you were motoring ran thru a tree, would you be in Colorado Maine California Arizona.
5. To remove odor from a refrigerator, a housewife will employ Salt Soda Soap Starch.
6. It is claimed that many clergymen are guilty of driving people away from church because of their dry, uninteresting sermons. If they were to study the public speaking technique or formula employed by Jesus, they would ——Read their sermons from a manuscript.
   ——Employ the anecdotal method by which they link relevant stories into a chain sermon.
   ——Employ expositional sentences of a philosophical type.
   ——Develop judicial addresses which would not tread upon the psychological corns of anybody in the audience.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—the last question counts five points.]

COLLECTION OF JUDGMENT.

La Salle, Ill., Dec. 3 [Legal Friend of the People].—Would you please inform me if I have any rights or claim in the following matter: When things were going good I saved up some money. A friend was in need and I loaned him some money. Later on I secured a judgment against him.

1. Later on he mortgaged his property and the mortgagee is foreclosing the mortgage and I was served with summons.

2. Will that render my judgment lien of no value? On Oct. 31, 1938, judgment by confession secured against debtor.

3. This judgment became a lien on his real estate. June 28, 1939, he gave a trust deed to another party and this deed was recorded same day. Sept. 16, 1940, the holder of this trust deed filed foreclosure suit and served me with summons.

4. Does this foreclosure cut off my lien on the property? [Lien created by the judgment I secured.]

5. Shall I appear in court? My financial condition is very low now and I will appreciate very much any information you can give me.

F. V.

1. In general a money lender would not be satisfied to lend on property subject to a judgment lien. You do not make clear whether you failed to issue execution on your judgment so that there was no lien or whether you consented to subordination of your lien to the new mortgage lien. Otherwise the lender presumably charged exorbitant rates.

2. If your judgment lien now precedes the mortgage, then presumably it will continue to have priority. We suggest that you go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

3. The judgment lien continues one year, but if execution is issued during the first year then the lien continues seven years.

4. Your lien depends on whether execution is issued.

5. The first step is to ascertain your facts.

MIDWEST G. O. P. LEADERS TRADE CAMPAIGN VIEWS

State Chiefs Open 2 Day Discussion in City.

Republican chairmen and other party officials from 10 middle western states met for four hours in the La Salle hotel yesterday at the first of two executive conferences called by Chairman Ben L. Berve of Illinois. The second will be held today.

Berve said it is hoped the two day meeting will be the first of a series of such conferences of state chairmen leading to better understanding and closer coöperation among Republican state organizations in future campaigns.

Hopes for Coöperation.

"We don't want the national Republican organization to think that we are trying to take over control of the party," Berve said, "but we do believe that, because of the Republican strength shown in the middle west in the last election, the intiative in such a movement should come from this region.

"We want to impress upon the party chairmen of the various states the need of keeping the party machinery operating actively between elections to insure strength at the polls. We also believe that closer coöperation between the state organizations and the national body will prove fruitful."

The state chairmen were invited by Chairman Harry B. Swan of Iowa to hold their second meeting in Des Moines on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 during the national convention of Young Republicans there. Swan indicated that the chairmen of other states also will be invited to attend.

Round Table Discussion.

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to an exchange of campaign experiences, a round table discussion developing on the success or failure of various methods used in the last election. The party officers were welcomed at the luncheon, which preceded the meeting, by Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman from Illinois.

FIGHTING TWINS OF WAUKEGAN RUN FOR MAYOR

The Kilbane twins of Waukegan, inveterate political foes, obtained petitions yesterday from the city clerk to run for mayor—on different tickets—in the Feb. 25 primary. Frank, former assistant supervisor of the census and chairman of Harry Hershey's recent campaign for governor in the 10th congressional district, will file as a Democrat. His brother, Harry, will seek the Republican nomination.

Mancel Talcott, who has served two terms as mayor, announced that he will be a candidate for a third term. Harry Kilbane will oppose him in the Republican primary. Other candidates may file later on both tickets.

The Kilbanes are 35 years old and partners in a tearoom on Genesee street. Last year Harry advertised a 40 cent Thanksgiving for Republicans a week after the holiday fixed by President Roosevelt. Frank responded by giving away hot dogs free to Democrats and picketing the tearoom, urging patrons to stay away for the day.

TRUCKER KILLED BY TRAIN.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 14 (AP)—L. A. Ramey, 32 years old, of this city, was killed today when the truck he drove was struck by a Wabash freight train.

'IT MIGHT BE ME' IN '44, TRIO SINGS IN ANNUAL GRIDIRON CLUB FROLIC

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Gridiron club's dinner tonight poked fun at its own members and both political parties.

The dinner marked completion of the presidential term of Mark Foote, Washington correspondent of the Booth newspapers of Michigan. Harold Brayman of the Houston Chronicle succeeded to the presidency.

The two speeches of the evening were made by two defeated candidates, Wendell Willkie, unsuccessful Republican aspirant for the Presidency, and Henry F. Ashurst, defeated Arizona senator.

"Keep the home fires burning,
While the worm is turning;
In '44 there'll be no more
Of Franklin D.

"There's the silver lining
Thru this dark cloud shining,
In '44 our man will score,
And it might be me."

Among the guests were Governor Elect Dwight H. Green of Illinois, Senators Elect Wayland Brooks of Illinois, Raymond E. Willis of Indiana, and Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota.

GRIDIRON WIDOWS ATTEND A FROLIC AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 [Special].—"Santa Claus" stole the show at the "Gridiron Widows' party," given by Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House tonight while their husbands were attending the Gridiron club dinner. Some 400 women were fêted.

All the "cabinet wives," headed by Mrs. Cordell Hull; Senator Hattie Caraway and three "ladies of the house," Representatives Edith N. Rogers, Mary T. Norton, and Margaret C. Smith—and Columnist Dorothy Thompson, received gifts from Santa's bulging pack.

Santa was impersonated by Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes. His premature appearance was explained by the title of the skit in which he was presented by the Women's National Press club, "Tweren't the Night Before Christmas, But Santa Shopped Early This Year."

Three "Christmas Fairies" escorted Mrs. Roosevelt to Santa who thanked her for taking over so many of his official obligations, and in token of his appreciation presented her with wings and a halo, and "something" on which to keep her own Christmas gift list—a strip of paper many yards in length.

SCHIPA WILL SING AT INAUGURATION OF DWIGHT GREEN

Tito Schipa, famous lyric tenor, will sing at the inauguration of Dwight H. Green as governor of Illinois in Springfield on Jan. 13. Ferre C. Watkins, chairman of the inauguration committee, who made the announcement, said the ceremony will be broadcast over a state-wide radio hookup. Eddie Duchin's and Wayne King's dance orchestras have been engaged for the inaugural ball, Watkins reported.

GREETING SOFTENS A THIEF.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 14 [Special].—It paid Claude Kastner to advertise in a local paper: "I wish a merry Christmas to the person who stole my coat." He got it back in the next day's mail.

 CHEVROLET ***

Again Takes First Place In Motor Car Sales

FOR THE NINTH TIME IN THE LAST TEN YEARS

YOU have done it again, America! . . . You have given Chevrolet first place in motor car sales in 1940. . . . And we want to thank you again, most heartily, for your high favor!

This marks the ninth time in the last ten years that you have awarded Chevrolet—General Motors' No. 1 car—the coveted honor of being the nation's No. 1 car in popular demand.

Yes, the ninth time in the last ten years that you have purchased more Chevrolets than any other make of passenger car, regardless of type, size or price.

And you have done it most emphatically—in 1940—by awarding Chevrolet sales leadership over all other makes of passenger cars in every State in the Union!

This means you rate Chevrolet first in value. . . . This means you are placing on Chevrolet a definite responsibility to continue to give you the highest value. . . . And this means Chevrolet dealers have redoubled their efforts to repay your favor by widening and increasing Chevrolet value leadership in the new cars for '41.

And if you will examine the new Chevrolet carefully—if you will follow your Chevrolet dealer's invitation to eye it, try it, buy it on the basis of thoroughgoing personal tests—you will almost certainly agree we have succeeded.

You will find, for example, that Chevrolet for '41 is first in acceleration among all the biggest-selling low-priced cars.

You will find it is also first in power—first in hill-climbing—in this same motor car group.

You will find it's first in styling and first in driving ease and riding ease, too, for it's the only lowest-priced car with a Body by Fisher of the same design, quality and size featured on higher-priced cars—with Unitized Knee-Action—and with the Original Vacuum-Power Shift at no extra cost.

And, of course, it is this combination of fine-car features and fine-car results with low prices and low operating costs which makes Chevrolet for '41 first in value.

You, the motorists of America, have made it possible for Chevrolet to build this value-leading car. The volume leadership which you have given to Chevrolet during these past ten years has been the master key to steadily increasing value leadership. And now we invite you to take full advantage of the value you have helped to create.

We invite you who have always purchased Chevrolet motor cars, as well as you who have formerly purchased other cars in any price field, to examine the new Chevrolet for '41 and confirm its superior value to your own complete satisfaction.

Won't you please visit your nearest Chevrolet dealer and inspect General Motors' No. 1 car—and the nation's No. 1 car—today!

POLICEMAN SHOT; KILL ONE BANDIT, WOUND ANOTHER

Taxicab Robbers Run Into Trap Set by Police.

One holdup man was killed and another wounded and a policeman shot in the chest early today at 23d street and Washtenaw avenue after two police cars curbed a taxi in which the two bandits were riding. The dead bandit is believed to be the gunman who has robbed a dozen cab drivers in the last two weeks.

He was identified from cards in his pocket as Charles Tamkus, 20 years old, 4405 South Artesian avenue. The wounded bandit gave his name as Anthony S. Kavaleski, 21, of 2101 South Millard avenue. The policeman, shot in the chest, is George Haennicke, 34, of the Marquette station. He is in serious condition in St. Anthony's hospital.

On Lookout for Taxi Bandit.

Haennicke, with his partner, Frank Janousek, was stationed at 23d and Washtenaw by Capt. William Burke of the Marquette station. They, with five other teams of plain clothes men, had been ordered to watch for taxicabs carrying suspicious looking passengers. Shortly after midnight Policeman Arthur Madzinski stopped his car next to Haennicke's to say hello, then continued on his way home.

As he reached Cermak road Madzinski saw a taxi turn into Washtenaw going south. He noticed its two passengers and quickly turned and drove behind them, flashing his lights repeatedly from bright to dim to warn the two detectives. Haennicke and Janousek immediately started their car, swung to the wrong side of the street, and the cab was caught between the two police cars at an alley between 22d place and 23d.

Robber Starts Shooting.

Tamkus immediately leaped out, his gun blazing. As the three policemen came from their cars, returning his fire, he fled down the alley toward California. He tried to wrench open two gates as he ran, failed, and dropped dying midway between the two streets with one bullet in the chest and another in the left arm. Haennicke, apparently struck in Tamkus' first burst of firing, also was down.

Kavaleski, who had dropped to the floor of the cab when the shooting started, now fled down Washtenaw toward 23d. Policemen John Weston and Joseph Jarboe, cruising the vicinity, saw him and drove after him. He ducked into an alley, the police hot after him, then cut thru a passageway to 23d place, where Weston and Jarboe, now on foot, fired at him and he halted.

Wounded Bandit's Story.

Kavaleski told Lieut. Edward Collopy that he met Tamkus two weeks ago in a tavern at 23d street and Western avenue and ran into him again last night in another tavern at 23d and Oakley avenue. Tamkus said, according to Kavaleski:

"Come on out and make some easy money."

They hired the taxi at Western and Cermak, according to the driver, Nicholas Slavina, 1017 West 20th place. Slavina identified Kavaleski as the passenger who held something "cold" against his neck during the drive. Police found no gun on the latter, however.

Kavaleski told police he is a brother of Stanley Kaval, 26, of 2101 Millard avenue, a member of the "Friday night gang," which recently confessed robbing more than 250 taverns in the last two years. Kavaleski was slightly wounded by a shot which grazed his chest either in the taxicab or when fleeing.

Robber's Disguises Fail to Prevent Capture

SUITCASE BANDIT CAPTURED AFTER 3 QUICK CHANGES

Gunman Alters Garb in Speedy Raids.

Chicago avenue police arrested a quick change artist early yesterday and found he had committed three robberies in rapid succession—changing his attire out of a suitcase after each crime.

The first robbery was Thursday night in a filling station at 5247 Broadway. The bandit, who obtained $15, was blond and wore smoked glasses, a plaid jacket, a tan shirt, and a uniform cap. Police could find no one in the neighborhood who answered that description.

Friday night a blond bandit garbed in much the same attire, but wearing spectacles instead of smoked glasses, robbed a grocery at 645 North State street of $28.50. Police again were unable to find any one resembling the bandit.

Scoops Up Suitcase in Flight.

Early yesterday a bandit took $20 in a bakery at 550 North Dearborn street. George Adams, the clerk, said the gunman was blond and wore glasses, a plaid jacket, a soft felt hat, a white shirt, and a necktie. He scooped up a suitcase from the sidewalk when he fled.

A few minutes later they saw a blond man wearing glasses, a uniform cap, and a tan shirt at Clark and Erie streets. He was carrying a suitcase. They arrested him.

Changes Made in Alley.

Inside the suitcase they found an unloaded revolver and the miscellaneous collection of clothing which had been worn in the three robberies. The suspect confessed, saying he had fled to the nearest alley and changed clothes after each holdup.

He identified himself as Ronald Blackwood, 29 years old, 737 Algelt street, South Bend, Ind., and said he came to Chicago last Thursday. He told Sergt. Robert E. Ryan he had stolen the revolver in South Bend.

He changed into the attire which had been worn in each of the robberies and his three victims identified him.

FLU SWEEPING NORTHWEST AND ALSO HITS TEXAS

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14 (AP).—A mild form of influenza, which reached epidemic proportions in California, was spreading thru the Pacific northwest today and also was reported in Texas.

Bellingham, Wash., schools with an enrollment of 5,000 were closed Friday—the city's first general closure since an epidemic 20 years ago.

Absences rose to 22 per cent in Portland high schools and 12 per cent in the grades. A total of 6,571 students were ill in Oregon. Three deaths were reported yesterday, one each in Washington, Oregon, and California.

PAROLEE SPEEDS IN STOLEN AUTO; SEIZED IN CHASE

A parolee in a stolen car was caught by Chicago avenue police last night after he had driven past a red light in Clark street at Ohio street at an estimated 90 miles an hour. Police said he also had passed two street cars on the wrong side.

A squad headed by Sergt. Henry P. Gaffney curbed the car at Clark street and the river, and Sergt. Gaffney collared the driver after a chase on foot to Wacker drive. The prisoner gave his name as Mike Petzel, 27 years old, 2944 Michigan avenue. He said he was released from the Pontiac reformatory a year ago Friday after serving five and one-half years on a stolen auto charge.

He said he had stolen the car in which he was riding at Clark street and Dickens avenue.

68 POLICEMEN TO BE RETIRED IN COMING YEAR

Sixty-eight members of the police department will be retired during 1941 under the law automatically retiring members at the age of 63. Included are 2 captains, 6 lieutenants, 10 sergeants, 47 patrolmen, 2 policewomen, and 1 police operator.

The captains are Patrick Brady of the Grand Crossing station and James J. Fleming of the Gresham station. Brady will be retired on March 5 and Fleming on Sept. 8.

The lieutenants are Harry M. Costello, head of the crime prevention bureau and the police censor board; Joseph J. O'Donnell of the Cragin station, Daniel A. O'Hara of Albany Park, Joseph Pieroth of Maxwell, Thomas Geary of Grand Crossing, and William E. Bergan of Austin.

The two policewomen to be retired are Mrs. Theresa Johnson and Mrs. Mary J. Carr. The sergeants are James Donlan, Jeremiah J. Murray, James E. Hanley, Frank Nelligan, Lawrence Mangan, Drury A. Rowan, James Barrowman, Michael J. Ling, William M. Shea, and Emil J. Breitzman.

GROCERY OWNER SHOT AS DOG ROUTS ROBBERS

An attack by a police dog last night forced three colored robbers to flee without loot from a grocery at 5152 Indiana avenue after they shot and seriously wounded Louis Miller, 58 years old, the owner. Miller, who was shot in the right side of the chest, was taken to Billings Memorial hospital.

Startled by the dog's attack, a robber fired one shot that missed the dog and hit Miller. The robbers fled. Mrs. Miller witnessed the shooting.

OPERA RETURNS TO WAGNER FOR FINAL PROGRAM

Grandeur of 'The Valkyrie' Closes Season.

"THE VALKYRIE"

[Music drama in three acts. Text and music by Richard Wagner. Presented by the Chicago Opera company in the Civic Opera house Saturday evening, Dec. 14, 1940.]

THE CAST.

Wotan	Fred Destal
Fricka	Sonia Sharnova
Hunding	Emanuel List
Sieglinde	Maria Hussa
Siegmund	Lauritz Melchior
Brünnhilde	Kirsten Flagstead
Conductor	Edwin McArthur

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Wagner has been largely neglected this year, but the Chicago Opera company returned to him last night to give the closing performance of its 1940 season the proper musical and scenic grandeur.

Wotan sang his favorite farewell, the magical fire sprang up around the mountain fastness where Brünnhilde was beginning her long sleep, the orchestra wove its solemnly lovely tapestry of the motifs of "Fire" and "Brünnhilde's Sleep," and "Wotan's Farewell," and the curtains quietly closed. So ended the most stimulating six weeks in Chicago's recent operatic history.

Recast in All Save Two Parts.

This performance of "The Valkyrie" was, it is true, a repetition—but a repetition which justifies an expression of wonder at the resources of the company. For it was recast in all except two of its principal parts, and a new conductor was in the pit.

Kirsten Flagstad, doing her only Brünnhilde of the season, was in radiant form. That commanding, silver trumpet quality of her voice was responsible for some of the genuinely epic quality which the second act achieved.

Sharnova Is Applauded.

Sonia Sharnova, the new Fricka [new for this season, that is] also contributed importantly to this act. The queenly dignity of her bearing and the acid power with which she laid down the law for Wotan helped prepare the way for the burst of applause which marked the close of her scene.

Lauritz Melchior, making his second appearance of the season, gave a heroic power and resonance to Siegmund's music. Maria Hussa, the Viennese soprano who ranks as one of the most important of this season's newcomers, sang Sieglinde with authority and eloquence but with a little more edginess of voice than we are accustomed to. Edwin McArthur conducted competently.

Fred Destal and Emanuel List were the two holdovers from the performance of Dec. 2.

AFTERNOON OPERA

A large afternoon audience saw a repetition of Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna." It was brilliantly and even garishly staged, and included two of the best and most bustling crowd scenes of the season. That third act orgy was so realistic and the den of the Camorrists so vividly portrayed that one easily could have forgiven any absent minded member of the audience who had produced his pocket knife and prepared to fight his way out of the opera house.

The performance as a whole had a headlong, hot blooded character in keeping with scene and subject. However, the taste and discipline of conductor and singers alike were guarantees that the performance should never go entirely out of musical bounds.

With one exception, the cast was the same as that used in the performance of Dec. 3. Dusolina Giannini sang Maliella and did some of the most piercingly dramatic singing of her Chicago career. The Gennaro was Frederick Jagel; the Carmela, Ada Paggi. Because of George Czaplicki's illness, Carlo Morelli stepped into the rôle of Rafaele on short notice and sang it adequately, if without quite the swaggering strength it implies. Maurice Abravanel conducted.

CHRISTMAS FUND FOR HORSES NOW ACCEPTING GIFTS

The Anti-Cruelty society announced yesterday it is again receiving contributions to its Horses' Christmas fund. Money received will be used to provide a Christmas dinner of chopped apples and carrots, cracked corn, crushed oats, a pinch of salt, and a dash of bran for the 1,000 Chicago horses found in the most broken down condition. Some of the neediest cases get a warm blanket and others new shoes.

W-G-N PRESENTS 'RIO RITA', GETS AUTHOR'S PRAISE

The operetta "Rio Rita," a tale of Mexico with Texas rangers, lovely señoritas, a pompous general and a desperate bank robber, the Kinkajou, was presented last night by The Chicago Tribune Theater of the Air over station W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network. Marion Claire, Conrad Thibault and José Mojica headed the singing cast, while Betty Winkler and Bob Bailey took the speaking leads.

Midway thru the performance the author, Harry Tierney, telephoned from New York to congratulate Henry Weber, once more conducting the W-G-N Concert orchestra with the opera season at a close; Miss Claire, Thibault and Mojica, and William A. Bacher, who adapted the operetta for radio and directed the production.

Ruth Slater completed the singing cast, while others of the W-G-N Players who had speaking rôles were Marvin Mueller as Gen. Esteban, Donna Reade as Carmen, Al Halus, Bret Morrison, Don Gallagher, John Walsh, and Norman Gottschalk.

THE CITY OF MIAMI

NEW LUXURY COACH DIESEL STREAMLINER·· CHICAGO-FLORIDA

CREATED BY THE PULLMAN-STANDARD CAR MANUFACTURING CO. FOR THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL AND THE TRAVELING PUBLIC

Superb Beauty-Supreme Comfort

In the building of this superlative train the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company has found its inspiration in the tropical beauty of Florida.

The sweeping speedlines of its exterior design are carried out in the flashing orange, green and scarlet of the tropics. The blue of the sky, the blue-green of the ocean, the yellow of the fruit, the green of the foliage, the sand tones of the beaches, native woods, bamboo, sheet cork—all these have been blended into an exquisite interior that has captured the beauty of Florida's landscape.

The luxury coaches are each named for one of Florida's loveliest flowers, and each has its individual color scheme. In one, yellow, blue and coral predominate; in another green, copper and gold; in a third, tan, blue and gold; and in the fourth, blue, copper and tan. Large photomurals of Florida scenes match the color schemes of each coach and a novel system of glareless lighting contributes to their restful beauty and the comfort of the passengers.

$41.85 ROUND TRIP
CHICAGO-MIAMI
Delicious Meals—Breakfast 50¢, Luncheon 60¢, Dinner 60¢.

The unusual decoration scheme of the dining car immediately suggests its attractive name, "Palm Garden." Beige, green and rose are the basis of the color scheme, and by the use of fluorescent lighting, photomurals and gold etched mirrors, the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company has achieved one of the most distinctive dining cars ever built. Florida colors in the floor coverings, draperies and seat covers create a delightful environment in which to enjoy delicious and satisfying Illinois Central meals served at very low cost. Breakfast 50 cents; Luncheon 60 cents; Dinner 60 cents.

The "Bamboo Grove," the Tavern-Lounge-Observation Car, is the decorative high-light of the "City of Miami." It comprises a main lounge, bar section and observation room, each a triumph of the decorator's art. Here again the brilliant colors of the tropics are used with rare woods, bamboo, sheet cork, etched mirrors, photomurals and fluorescent lighting to complete a picture of Florida's charm.

Semi-secluded sections at the entrance of the car are upholstered in coral leather with yellow piping. Separated from these by bamboo grilles, the luxurious main lounge is upholstered in green, coral and gold, with burgundy carpets of bamboo design, frieze panels, cork wainscotting and zebra-wood piers.

The bar section has a natural bamboo bar and canopy against a photomural background, an artificial palm tree, fibre matting floor covering, and carved cocoanut masks. The walls are lined with flesh-toned mirrors. The back bar has an indirectly lighted mirror on which is sand-blasted a tropical fish design in full color, framed with scarlet and yellow leather. A mural route map of the territory through which the train travels is provided at the bar, showing the progress of the train and the scheduled time of the next stop. The observation room has frieze panels of a native wood from the swamps of Florida, pier panels of sheet cork, and wainscotting of imitation leather. The seat coverings are in blue, coral and gold; the draperies in blue, tan and gold; and the bamboo pattern carpet combines all of these colorings. Fluorescent lighting is again used in this room.

With this striking beauty the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company and the Illinois Central have combined many innovations for the comfort and convenience of passengers between Chicago and Miami, including these distinctive features:

Individual reading light for each coach seat—you may read while your companion sleeps. Special coach reserved for the exclusive use of women and children. Stewardess-Registered Nurse.

Deep soft reclining coach seats, adjustable to individual needs. Each seat reserved in advance—it's yours for the entire trip. Dimmed lights, no noise at night—you sleep soundly, undisturbed. Air-conditioned comfort throughout—noise and dust excluded.

Porter service. Public announcement system for news items, weather reports, station stops, etc.

Through pillow service 25 cents.

Travel on Credit—no down payment.

EXPECT COUNCIL TO UPHOLD SLASH IN UNION WAGES

15 to 1 Committee Vote Charts Path.

With 15 affirmative votes and only one dissent already recorded in the finance committee, the city council yesterday had a backlog of almost one-third of its membership to meet labor opposition to its economy measure cutting the pay of city union employés by 10 per cent.

The finance committee voted the pay slash for all union workers paid on a monthly or yearly basis at a midnight session Friday, and the 15 aldermen have indicated they will stand by it. Many of the remaining 33 councilmen privately have said they will uphold the action when the budget comes up before the whole council Friday. Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] was the only committee member who voted against the cut.

Union Fight Expected.

Meanwhile, labor delegations and business agents representing virtually all construction and mechanical unions whose members are employed by the city are expected to start registering their opposition before the committee tomorrow.

Hearings already have been set for William McFetridge, head of the flat janitors' union, and Michael J. Boyle, business agent of the electricians' union, local 134.

The salary cut is estimated to have chopped $344,000 from the city's 1941 operating budget. The budget, which now totals $54,500,000, will come up for passage Jan. 3.

The wage reduction is a step toward bringing salaries of city union workers in line with the union scale paid by private industry, according to Mayor Kelly, who sat thru the Friday session. The mayor said the cut will not bring any worker's pay below the union scale.

Truck Driver Change Cited.

A year ago the council changed the pay of truck drivers from $190 a month to the union scale of $8 a day.

During early committee work on the 1941 budget the aldermen were told this salary revision had saved the city $66,000 during the year. As a consequence, it was expected that an additional adjustment of union wages would be made for 1941. A special budget survey committee, which had made a 10 month study of city operations, recommended the salary cut in a report Friday night to the council committee.

Stuart Shepard, expert for the budget survey committee, said the original city salary schedules were agreed upon years ago, when men worked six days a week. The schedules were based on 300 working days a year at the prevailing wage schedule and with no overtime payments.

The budget committee suggested the readjustment of union salaries at the prevailing day rate and said an additional reduction might be possible thru negotiation. It justified an additional reduction on the basis of the security, vacations, pensions, sick leave, and other benefits enjoyed by city workers.

Additional Cut Opposed.

The mayor and the aldermen opposed this additional reduction on the ground it would reduce wages below the union scale.

The budget survey committee also reported that city janitors and janitresses work only 29 hours a week, compared with an average of 42 to 48 hours required of janitors in other loop buildings.

The survey committee said the 29 hour shift has been in practice for many years.

It reported that, on the basis of hours worked, a city janitor gets $1.26 an hour, compared with 59.6 cents an hour paid in other office buildings.

The finance committee recommended that steps be taken to adjust the working hours of city janitors.

SCHOOL BOARD'S FUND FROZEN BY UNPAID LEVIES

'Working Cash' Chest Nearly Empty.

(This is the last of a series of six articles discussing the financial status of Cook county's six major operating governments.)

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The Chicago board of education, after climbing from the 1933 depths of payless pay days, curtailed school functions, and shortened school years, has returned its operations virtually to a normal basis.

Salaries are being paid on time, bills are met almost as they are received, and the school year has been boosted from 36 to the regular 40 week basis.

School board finances, nevertheless, have been hit hard by the low rate of tax collections in Cook county. Other governments have faced the same difficulty. In most of their cases, unpaid bills have piled up or operations have been curtailed heavily.

Borrows from Own Fund.

The school board, however, has made up for losses of millions of dollars in uncollected tax revenues by borrowing from a fund of its own. This is its huge working cash fund of 47½ million dollars, which was created by a bond issue. Theoretically, the working cash fund was set up to finance current expenses, until tax collections from the current year should come in. Then the loan could be repaid from tax receipts and used over again.

This theory has been upset, however, by the high proportion of unpaid taxes. The school board annually appropriates 90 per cent of its tax levy and actually spends 87 per cent, while receipts from tax collections run to only 80 or 82 per cent of the levy.

The school board has made up the difference from the "revolving" working cash fund. As a result of this practice since 1930, the fund is becoming frozen and large sums of it already fail to revolve.

The law requires that the working cash fund be repaid so it will be kept available for current loans. At the end of 1940, however, loans from the fund will total approximately 45 dollars. More than 30 million dollars of these loans were made against tax levies for the years 1930 thru 1934; and tax collections for these years have come to a virtual standstill.

On Sept. 30 of this year there was only $2,342,000 cash in the fund, the rest having been borrowed against the annual tax levies in the following amounts:

Tax year.	Amount of loan.
1931	11,155,776
1932	7,736,115
1933	4,300,000
1934	7,336,860
1935	2,722,693
1936	1,682,242
1937	4,931,278
1938	4,578,408
Total	$45,323,545

Financial experts for the school board say only a small fraction of the 30 millions now frozen can be repaid to the fund from the 1930-'34 tax collections. These loans can be thawed out, they say, only by boosting future taxes to repay the loans or by cutting expenses and making surplus funds available for repayment. The accumulation of a surplus is largely prevented by the failure to collect taxes.

Board Depends on Taxes.

The board's educational, or operating fund, is almost altogether dependent on taxes for its revenue. For example, for 1941, preliminary estimates place tax revenues at $46,575,000 and other revenue at $4,635,000.

The extent to which taxes have been collected in the last 10 years in Cook county is seen in the following table, showing total taxes billed in each year and the amount and percentage of taxes collected on Nov. 30, 1940 [from the county treasurer's report]:

1931	263.8	213.1	80.8
1932	217.9	165.4	75.9
1933	178.8	133.9	74.9
1934	186.6	145.7	78.1
1935	196.3	158.7	80.9
1936	213.7	179.3	83.9
1937	210.0	169.8	80.9
1938	206.2	170.4	82.6
1939	215.9	165.4	76.6

As seen from the above table, tax receipts are less than 84 per cent for any year and as low as 75 per cent in for 1933.

CHICAGO SUBURBS KEEP UP RECORD BUILDING VOLUME

Biggest November Total in Over Ten Years.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

New building in the Chicago suburban area continued in November its record breaking increase over last year. Permits for all types of buildings were 32 per cent higher and home building was 17 per cent above November of last year.

Permits issued last month were for buildings valued at $5,585,607, compared with $4,221,998 during November, 1939. Permits for new homes numbered 435, with total costs of $3,118,217, compared with 381 homes valued at $2,657,279 during the same month last year.

For the first 11 months of this year there were permits for all types of building costing $55,070,096, compared with $36,903,781 for the corresponding period of 1939.

Home Building Gains.

Home building during the first 11 months of 1940 totaled 5,465 permits, costing $34,736,345. During the corresponding months of last year permits were issued for 3,658 homes, costing $23,925,305. This was a gain of 49 per cent in number, and 45 per cent in value.

November's total cost for buildings of all types topped the five million dollar mark for the fifth time this year. Other months with construction over $5,000,000 were April, July, August, and October.

Last month's large gains were made in the face of unusually adverse weather conditions which slowed down building and discouraged starting of new operations. November had the heaviest snowfall for that month in the history of the weather bureau. Despite these handicaps the total was the biggest of any November in more than 10 years.

Steel City Leads.

Gary, Ind., led in residential construction with permits issued totaling $1,523,281. Of this, however, $1,409,176 was for two federal housing projects.

In privately financed residential building Evanston topped all the suburbs with homes costing $176,000. Wilmette was second, with $175,450. Skokie [formerly Niles Center] was third, with $170,800. Highland Park, Hammond, and Park Ridge followed, with Gary in seventh place.

The Imperial Credit company has leased 4,000 square feet on the second floor of the two story building being erected at the northwest corner of Madison and Dearborn. The Charles L. Schrager company, building agent, said the lease is for a term of years at more than $11,000 annually, with an increase during the last five years. The space is to be air conditioned.

Marine Equipment Firm Leases Former P. O. Unit

W. L. Masters & Son, one of the largest distributors of marine equipment in the country, established in 1906, yesterday leased the former postoffice building at 210-16 West Chicago avenue, from Walter Lavezzorio for five years. After remodeling the building, the firm will occupy it about Jan. 15.

Evanston Modernization

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois is completing the remodeling of its building at 911 Church street, Evanston, from plans by Maher & McGrew of that city. The exterior has been redesigned in a simplified modern style, using Bedford stone, black granite, and white metal. The large second floor window lights a lecture room used for displaying a model kitchen and other home exhibitions. Before and after rebuilding pictures are shown.

O-G SHOE RENTS SPACE FOR FIRST OAK PARK STORE

The O-G Shoe company yesterday leased 29 by 125 feet of space at 1147 Lake street, Oak Park, and will open its first Oak Park store there about March 1. Graeme Stewart, of John Cumming Lindop's office, represented Christ Marott, owner. E. M. DeCamp, of L. J. Sheridan & Co., represented the lessee.

The Kroger Grocery and Baking company, now at 1147 Lake, will move about Feb. 1, to a new building at 626 North Harlem avenue, River Forest, south of the new River Forest Garden apartments.

The Walgreen Drug company will enlarge its store at the southeast corner of Lake and Harlem by taking some of the adjoining space on Lake street, now occupied by Kroger.

Woman Buys 6 Apartment Building on South Side

Blanche B. Newman bought the six flat building at 5232-34 Hyde Park boulevard, adjoining the East End Park hotel, from the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, as trustee of a liquidating trust, for a reported $27,000. Ralph J. Silverwood & Co. acted as broker.

City Planning Personnel to Be Unchanged

Appointment of Theodore T. McCrosky of New York City as executive director of the Chicago Plan commission, will not affect the status of the present personnel of that body, George T. Horton, chairman, said yesterday. He explained that Eugene S. Taylor will continue as general manager and Hugh E. Young as chief engineer.

Theodore T. McCrosky

Horton said the appointment of McCrosky followed a nationwide investigation of the record of 34 leading city planners. It was found that McCrosky ranked first in professional examinations in both Los Angeles and New York City.

McCrosky is a midwesterner. He was born in Tecumseh, Neb., in 1902. He got his grade school education in England and went to high school in New York City.

Since his graduation from Yale he has been a planning consultant for the Chinese government, director of planning for Yonkers, N. Y., and has held various city planning positions in New York City.

During the last two years he has been director of the master plan division in that city. Last month he was placed at the top of the civil service list for the post of city planning director for New York City.

He will take over his Chicago duties in February, directing the drawing up of a new master city plan for this city. His initial salary will be $10,000 a year.

FREDERICK C. RAUSCH IS ELECTED HEAD OF WEST SIDE REALTORS

Frederick C. Rausch of Rausch & Pfeuffer, Inc., was elected president of the West Side Real Estate board at the annual meeting in the Graemere hotel. He succeeds James J. Curtis. Mrs. W. H. Wright was elected vice president to succeed Rausch to that office. Laurence J. Laurion is second vice president, James Howie is secretary, and W. T. Sullivan, treasurer. The following were elected directors for three year terms: James J. Curtis, Joseph B. Ford, and Fred M. Thuerk, all former presidents. The board will hold a party tomorrow evening in the Lions club, 4300 West North avenue.

Builds 103d House This Year in Chicago District

J. L. Salzman of Suburban Homes, Inc., yesterday reported signing a contract for his 103d house to be erected this year in Chicago and suburbs. Only 9 of the 103 are in Chicago. The rest are in Des Plaines, Elmhurst, Evanston, Evergreen Park, Glen Ellyn, Highland Park, La Grange, Villa Park, Western Springs, and Winnetka.

RAILWAY EXCHANGE LEASE.

The Dictaphone corporation, now at 64 East Jackson, yesterday leased 10,000 square feet of space in the Railway Exchange building, thru James R. Sterling, of Ross, Browne & Fleming.

PETRILLO BARS ARMY BAND FROM PATRIOTIC HOUR

U. S. Must 'Make a Deal' with Him First.

New York, Dec. 14 [Special].—Bowing to an ultimatum from James C. Petrillo, president of the A. F. of L. American Federation of Musicians, the Mutual Broadcasting system today abandoned plans for including music by the 104th Engineers band in a program to be transmitted tomorrow afternoon from Fort Dix, N. J., as the first in a patriotic series intended to promote interest in national defense.

Petrillo announced that radio listeners would have to get along without broadcasts by army bands from army posts until he had an opportunity to go to Washington, D. C., and "make a deal" with the war department on the extent to which such broadcasts could be given.

Admit It's Good Cause.

"This is a good cause and we're all for it," Petrillo declared, "but if we allowed radio stations to put music on the air from army camps whenever they wanted to they could soon dispense with our men. We are in favor of their going on the air with programs telling about life in the army, but we want protection against the loss of jobs for professional musicians.

"I can't let them run wild. There's no telling where this thing might end. It's all right with us if they put on a couple of army bands, but I want to know how often they plan to do this thing."

Three Numbers Planned.

Capt. W. G. Cook, public relations officer of the 44th division, had asked permission to play a brief selection at the opening of the program, a full number at the middle, and a military theme at the end. Petrillo replied that he could not permit this.

Capt. Cook said bugle calls would replace the band music. He added that Petrillo had granted a request for one minute of incidental music by a regimental band on another program on Thursday.

Spokesmen for the major radio chains manifested no disposition tonight to challenge Petrillo's restrictions.

INVALID DIES OF BURNS.

Chester Pope, 82 years old, died in county hospital yesterday of burns incurred Thursday in the kitchen of his home at 2532 Congress street, as he passed thru the flames in his wheelchair.

Foe of Crooks

MARIE GROTT.

Marie Grott, superintendent of the Indiana state bureau of identification, will be one of the three principal speakers Friday at the annual convention of the Illinois State's Attorneys association at the Morrison hotel.

Miss Grott, said to be the only woman to hold such a position, is a past mistress of whorls, arches, loops-in, finger prints, mustaches, beards and scars, natural or synthetic.

Other speakers will be Albert J. Harno, president of the Illinois State Bar association and dean of the law school of the University of Illinois, and Walter L. McCoy, assistant state's attorney of Cook county.

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—The University of Illinois' budget estimates for the biennium starting next July 1, totaling $9,227,588 a year, were made public today.

In order to meet long deferred needs, it was said, the university will require $661,820 more of state funds for each of the two years. Of the total budget, $2,263,317 will come from the university's own income from federal grants, fees, etc., but this must be reappropriated by the legislature. The budget will be submitted to the trustees before going to the state finance department.

Plan Plant Improvement.

Capital improvements are proposed totaling $885,000. These include:

Reconditioning Chemistry building, $150,000.

Reconditioning Morrow hall and part of the old Agriculture building to provide for bacteriology, finishing portions of the new Agriculture building for dairy husbandry, and remodeling of Chemistry building quarters, $90,000.

Reconditioning and remodeling of Student center and Arcade building and improvements to dairy plant, mining laboratory, sewage research laboratory, and college of education, $125,000.

Paving and rewiring, $150,000.

New band building, $125,000.

New Equipment Sought.

Serious deficiencies exist in the equipment of many departments, President A. C. Willard said. The university asks for $165,800 a year for the biennium for additions and replacements of equipment. Among the items are new X-ray equipment for the Chicago colleges of the university and additional equipment for the Chicago dental clinic.

Another item is $150,615 a year for increased funds for educational programs already inaugurated. This includes curriculum in social administration and for research.

In new educational programs, for which $196,788 a year is asked, the chief items include a new division of public relations, enlargement of the radio station program, state wide testing program for high school pupils, speech clinic for persons with speech deficiencies, new department of animal pathology and hygiene, cancer research, and research in psychiatry in the college of medicine.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 14 [Special]. —The Toronto Maple Leafs scored two goals in rapid succession early in the third period to earn a 2 to 1 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks tonight in a National Hockey league game played before 10,989 spectators. Both teams left for Chicago immediately after the game to play again tomorrow night in the Stadium.

John Mariucci.

Tonight's performance was the seventh consecutive victory for the Leafs. On the last occasion when they met the Hawks in two successive encounters, the Chicago team took one of the matches—and that was the last time Toronto has been beaten. The Hawks have hopes of interrupting their rivals' winning streak by duplicating that previous even break.

First Two Periods Scoreless.

The first two periods of this evening's game were scoreless. Early in the third Earl Seibert of the Hawks was sent to the penalty box and the Leafs promptly launched a powerful offensive against their weakened adversaries. Nick Metz rammed the puck into the nets and less than a minute later Syl Apps also scored.

The Hawks fought back with repeated rushes and shortly before the finish Mush March whipped over a successful shot. Meanwhile the Leafs also had been charging furiously and Goalie Paul Goodman made several spectacular saves on thrusts by Apps and Sweeney Schriner.

Dave MacKay, rookie Blackhawk defense man, was injured in the second period when he pulled down Gordie Drillon, who was making a scoring threat at the moment. Referee King Clancy awarded a penalty shot on the play, but Pete Langelle missed it.

Hawks Miss Free Shot.

A free shot was given the Hawks when Wally Stanowski grabbed one of Bob Carse's drives while standing over Goalie Turk Broda who had fallen into the Toronto cage during one of the Chicago team's third period attacks. Seibert missed the chance.

MacKay's injury was deemed serious enough to send the Blackhawk management scurrying for a replacement. John Mariucci, former Minnesota football player who has been performing with the Providence, R. I., hockey club, was recalled by the Hawks to fill in for MacKay. Mariucci is coming from the east by plane and will be ready to take part in the game in Chicago tomorrow night.

NEBRASKA DRILLS IN THE SNOW FOR ROSE BOWL GAME

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 14 (AP).—Maj. Lawrence M. Jones got tired today waiting for the weather to clear and trotted his Nebraska football squad, opponents of Stanford in the Rose bowl, out into a light snowfall for a workout.

The field had been cleared and chalk lines were traced with blue paint for the practice session in which the scout squad gave the varsity a look at the "T" formation Stanford uses.

Jones originally had intended to get the team into the open last Thursday, but a three inch snowfall that day broke a spell of warm, clear weather during which the squad had vacationed.

Badgers Beat Irish; Butler Nips Buckeyes

Chicago's Maroons won their first basketball game of the new season last night by just managing to stay ahead of Illinois Tech. The final score was 27 to 22 on the Midway fieldhouse floor. Joe Stampf, Chicago's captain, led in scoring with six field goals and three free throws.

The Maroons held a 15 to 13 lead at the half on Tech, which is coached by Remy Meyer, who played forward for Chicago two years ago. After Ray Lagodney put Tech ahead at the start with a field goal and free toss, the Maroons found the scoring range as their fast break style clicked for the first time this season.

Half way thru the second period, as the Maroons led, 19 to 18, Stampf tipped in a basket on a rebound after Jack Fons had missed. Jack Byrne countered with a long looping basket. Bob Hixon broke down the floor alone to score for Chicago. With three minutes to play, George Wilkerson, sophomore guard, sank one, and Stampf ended the Chicago scoring with a short field goal. BADGERS BEAT IRISH, 44-43

Madison, Wis., Dec. 14 [Special].—Wisconsin's undefeated basketball team whipped Notre Dame, 44 to 43, before 9,500 tonight. The Badgers led at the half, 22 to 12.

After trailing in the second period by margins twice reaching 12 points, Notre Dame tied the score at 34 all with 8 minutes remaining. From then on it was a tough battle, the break coming when Don Timmerman, the Badgers' 6 foot 10 inch center who had replaced Gene Englund, scored two free throws to give Wisconsin a 43 to 39 lead.

John Kotz, sophomore forward, dropped another free throw to extend the margin to five points with two minutes to go, but James Engel, reserve Notre Dame guard, slipped in two baskets before the final gun.

BUCKEYES LOSE, 51-49

Columbus, O., Dec. 14 [Special].—Butler university of Indianapolis defeated Ohio State tonight in a fast and furious basketball game, 51 to 49 before 4,644.

The Hoosiers took a lead of 25 to 22 at half time after the score had been tied five times in the first period at 2, 7, 9, 11, and 22 points each. At one time in the second half Butler held a 41 to 30 lead.

With 10 minutes left, Coach Harold Olsen of Ohio State sent in a flock of second stringers with only Capt. Gil Mickelson remaining. This combination scored 13 points while Butler was making five and knotted the count at 46 to 46 with 3 minutes and 40 seconds remaining to play.

Butler Breaks Tie.

However, Jim McCray flipped one in from under the basket and then Braden made a free throw. Fred Miller, Buckeye sophomore, tossed in a foul then and a fieldgoal to end Ohio's scoring at 49. In the meantime McCray made an easy under the basket shot to go ahead, 51 to 49. The Buckeyes had one more chance

SOX, CUBS BOOK SPRING SERIES OF 16 CONTESTS

Each Team to Play 30 Exhibitions.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox and Cubs, baseball enemies of long standing, are going to be real chummy again next spring. The two Chicago clubs yesterday announced their 1941 preseason programs which, among other things, contain an unofficial city series of 16 games. As usual, the battling between the two outfits will begin in California and, after pauses at various places, finish in Wrigley field and Comiskey park.

If the two gangs of big leaguers don't return home in prime condition it will not be because there was a scarcity of work. Altogether, there are 30 exhibitions on each club's calendar, exclusive of the time scheduled to be devoted to muscle stretching in the Sox camp in Pasadena, Cal., and the Cubs' quarters on Catalina Island. Meanwhile the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Athletics, both on the Sox and Cubs' spring business, will be doing their stretching in San Bernardino and Anaheim, respectively.

Sox Start West Feb. 21.

The Sox training pattern will differ slightly from that adopted by Jim Wilson, the new Cub boss. The Sox battery men will leave Chicago aboard the streamliner City of Los Angeles Feb. 21 and will be at work on Feb. 23, the day the Cubs are scheduled to head west in a body, barring those who will be picked up en route. The Cubs reach their island base on Feb. 26. The second squad of Sox will report at camp March 1.

One reason for the few extra days of work for the Sox battery men is an early exhibition. They'll play the Pirates in San Bernardino March 9, but they then can return to training routine until March 15, when the exhibitions begin in a big way. The Cubs, after a bit better than two weeks at Catalina, open their barnstorming affairs the same day with the Athletics in Los Angeles.

Few Minor League Foes.

The Cubs are confronted by only two minor league dates, both with their Los Angeles cousins, but the Sox are scheduled for five with Coast leaguers, one in Ontario, Cal., where Los Angeles will train; two in San Diego, and a pair in Hollywood. The Sox also will see a little extra country close to the Mexican border. In company with the Pirates, they'll do a two day show in El Centro, Cal. The complete spring training schedules of the Sox and Cubs follow:

March 9—White Sox vs. Pittsburgh, in Pasadena, Cal.
March 15—White Sox at Hollywood.
March 15—Cubs vs. Athletics, in Los Angeles.
March 16—White Sox at Hollywood.

Nick Altrock Falls Out of Tree; Fractures Ankle

Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP).—Nick Altrock, 63 year old coach and funnyman of the Washington Baseball club, fell from a citrus tree today and fractured his right ankle. Altrock had climbed into a tree to pick a grapefruit.

NO. 1 WESTERN CONFERENCE STAR

Tom Harmon of Gary, Ind., the University of Michigan's half back for the last three seasons, who yesterday was declared the football player most valuable to his team in the Western conference in the 17th annual poll of a special committee by The Chicago Tribune. All Big Nine coaches were included among those who voted almost unanimously for Harmon in determining the winner of The Tribune's silver football.

Kreevich Signs 1941 Contract at Slight Cut

Mike Kreevich, who has been patroling an outfield beat for the White Sox since late in the 1935 season when he was purchased from Kansas City, signed his 1941 contract yesterday and didn't waste much time haggling.

Mike signed after a brief conference with Vice President Harry Grabiner, despite a reduction from the approximate $13,500 he received last season. That pay was based on a .323 batting average in 1939 and the cut for next season was based on the fact that he hit only .265 in 1940.

Turned Down Two Year Contract.

Kreevich was one of the last Sox to get into line last spring. The club offered a two year contract, but Kreevich held out for a one year term at a figure slightly in excess of what he was offered per season in the two year document.

James Dykes, the Sox manager, was scheduled to start for Philadelphia yesterday, but delayed his getaway until this afternoon.

The retirement of George Moriarty from the American league's umpiring staff may mean that both Ernest Stewart, recently taken on option from the American association, and Art Pasarrella, purchased from the Texas league, may be retained next season. The other American league vacancy was created by the release of Lou Kolls.

Will Help Make Picture.

Moriarty, former Tiger infielder, had umpired in the American league since 1917, except during 1927-'28 when he managed the Detroit club. He will be attached to the league's public relations office, his duties to consist of aiding in the gathering of material for the annual educational movie.

A duplicate of the above trophy, one of those awarded in the past, will be presented to Harmon in recognition of his rank as the Big Nine's most valuable player. Red Grange of Illinois won the first trophy in 1924.

Man Is Killed, Boy Wounded in Deer Hunts

Mount Jewett, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—Three hours before closing of the two week Pennsylvania deer season, Bartholomew Lombardo, 21 years old, of Clarion was shot to death today by a hunter who mistook him for game. Lombardo had bagged a deer and was filling a jug with water from a creek near Burning Well, six miles south of here, when hit.

Coroner Thomas R. Clark said the shot was fired by George Sheakley, 44 years old, of Petrolia, Pa., who was among a party standing about a campfire 300 yards away. Sheriff George Calhoun took Sheakley to the McKean county jail at Smethport for a hearing Monday.

FATHER SHOOTS SON.

Renovo, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—Emory Francis Yohe, 14 years old, of Hanover, Pa., was accidentally shot and critically wounded by his father today in a hunting mishap.

State game wardens said the father, Emory A. Yohe, shot at a deer and missed, the bullet striking the boy who was concealed beyond the animal. The father carried the boy a mile before meeting a game warden who helped him to an automobile. Physicians at the Renovo hospital said the .32 caliber bullet Pierced Emory's abdomen and shattered the hip bone.

Howard T. Crissey of the National Broadcasting company bowling team rolled a perfect game on the Gold Coast alleys last night. Crissey rolled 160 the first game, 156 the second, and 300 the third for a series of 616. His average in the Merchandise Mart league is 180.

MICHIGAN STAR WINS TRIBUNE SILVER TROPHY

Hiemenz Rates 2d in 1940 Poll.

Hall of Fame

1940—Tom Harmon, Michigan.
1939—Nile Kinnick, Iowa.
1938—Howard Weiss, Wisconsin.
1937—Corby Davis, Indiana.
1936—Vernon Huffman, Indiana.
1935—Jay Berwanger, Chicago.
1934—Pug Lund, Minnesota.
1933—Joe Laws, Iowa.
1932—Harry Newman, Michigan.
1931—Clarence Munn, Minnesota.
1930—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State.
1929—Bill Glassgow, Iowa.
1928—Chuck Bennett, Indiana.
1927—Ken Rouse, Chicago.
1926—Benny Friedman, Michigan.
1925—Tim Lowry, Northwestern.
1924—Red Grange, Illinois.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tom Harmon, Michigan's great half back, holder of the all time scoring record and the 1940 scoring record for the Western conference, and leader in total offense for the second consecutive season, has been chosen the football player most valuable to his team in the Big Nine.

Harmon, who is the third Michigan player so honored in the poll conducted annually for 17 years by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will receive a sterling silver football, actual size. He and the other eight players voted most valuable to their elevens by their teammates will receive white gold miniature footballs engraved with name, honorary caption, and university monogram in color.

These awards will be mailed shortly after the holidays to the nine most valuable players who comprise THE TRIBUNE'S honor team in the conference. The huge silver football will be presented to Harmon at a time to be selected by him and the officials of the University of Michigan. Heretofore the award customarily has been made during the intermission of a conference basketball game.

It's Almost Unanimous.

Harmon's selection as the most valuable player in the conference was not unexpected, of course. His performance this year, over and above the arithmetic of his records, matched every requirement the electors might set up for this highest gridiron award. But the unanimity of the vote was surprising. When more than half of the 21 electors had replied to the questionnaire, Harmon had received all first place votes except one. This assured his choice as most valuable player, but his vote continued to pile up.

Harmon was elected by a group of 21 which included the nine conference football coaches, nine prominent officials, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western conference, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and the writer. Each made a first and second selection, which counted two and one points, respectively. Northwestern's Paul Hiemenz, whose excellent play and iron man performance had won him the award as the Wildcats' most valuable man, was second in the conference in point totals. Hiemenz received a majority of second place votes.

George Paskvan, Wisconsin's battering full back, closely followed while scattering support went to Bob Paffrath of Minnesota; Mike Enich, Iowa tackle; Dave Rankin, Purdue end, and Dwight Gahm, Indiana university center.

Highest Award Possible.

Altho the committee of 21 makes the award for the conference, it is based on player participation. This is the foundation of the system and it enhances the prestige of the honor. Each of the nine conference players was eligible for the committee's consideration only because each had been nominated as most valuable to his team by the boys with whom he had played. No outside participation is permitted and thus it is, as Nile Kinnick of Iowa, 1939 winner said, a year ago: "This honor comes from the players. That makes it the highest award possible."

Illinois—George Bernhardt, full back.
Indiana—Dwight Gahm, center.
Iowa—Mike Enich, tackle.
Minnesota—Bob Paffrath, quarter back.
Northwestern—Paul Hiemenz, center.
Ohio State—Claude White, center.
Purdue—Dave Rankin, end.
Wisconsin—George Paskvan, full back.

It is interesting to note that five of the nine most valuable players are linesmen and that three of these are centers. In any other honor team, no matter how great or valuable the player, duplication is impossible altho occasionally a back field may be composed of four ball carriers and no blockers.

Harmon 2d in 1939.

Award of the silver football climaxes Harmon's intercollegiate gridiron career which has carried him to heights achieved only by Red

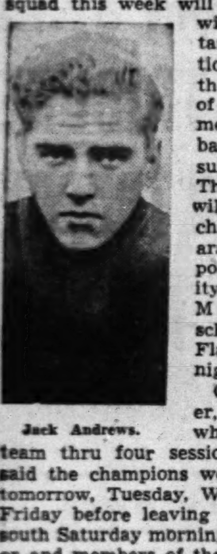
FENGER TO HOLD 4 DRILLS BEFORE TRIP TO FLORIDA

Team Is to Receive Title Award Thursday.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Fenger's championship football squad this week will be confronted with the arduous task of four practice sessions and the pleasant job of removing the mothballs from bathing suits and summer clothing. The four drills will conclude the champions' preparations for the postseason charity game against Miami High school in Miami, Fla., Christmas night.



Jack Andrews.

Charles Palmer, Fenger coach, who directed the team thru four sessions last week, said the champions would work out tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday before leaving for the sunny south Saturday morning. Coach Palmer and members of the squad Thursday afternoon will visit the city council chambers where they will receive individual medals and the team trophy for defeating Leo's Catholic league champions, 18 to 0, in Mayor Kelly's All-City game on Nov. 30.

Valentine to Remain Home.

All members of the squad, with the exception of Al Valentine, will make the trip to Miami. Valentine suffered a concussion several weeks ago and physicians have advised him to remain at home. The squad, which will travel to Florida and return to Chicago Dec. 28, follows:

ENDS—Garrett Prince, Ed Vanderploeg, John Vilet, Pete Rubinas, Don Derrico, Wally Collett.

GUARDS—Dick Barwegan, Sam Filippo, Ed Arvia, Ray Christian, Frank Satriano, Paul Van Liere, Bill Wood, Ed Dreger.

CENTERS—Kimball Howes, Ed Hutchinson, Earl Rooth.

QUARTER BACKS—Henry Stevenson, Wayne Bridge, Anton Gbur, James Sullivan.

HALF BACKS—Joe Kredens, Bruno Pocius, Al McBroom, Lee Biolchini, Albert Baffo, Glen Anderson, Jack Govier.

FULL BACKS—Ray Florek, Gene Pedersen, Art Johnson.

Coach Palmer and his assistant, Frank Knight, have had few reports on the Miami eleven, which holds the city title, but lost the southern prep championship to Boys' High of Atlanta, 13 to 0. The coaches and members of the squad, however, are confident they will add another victory to the long string, which now stands at 37 games without defeat. It will be Fenger's second postseason game in three years, the champions traveling to Waco, Tex., in 1938 after whipping Mount Carmel, 13 to 0.

Face Former Chicagoan.

Among the Miami players who anxiously await the arrival of the Chicago champions is Jack Andrews, left guard. Andrews was born in Chicago, attended St. Henry's grammar school and played freshman football at De Paul academy. He played guard for Senn High school in 1939 and last September he enrolled at Miami after his family had moved to Florida.

A group of Fenger's followers in the Roseland and Pullman districts on the far south side will accompany the team to Miami. A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education in the Public School league, and Fenger officials also will be aboard the special train.

Bradley Loses to Iowa State Quintet, 31-28

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—Iowa State of the Big Six conference spoiled the 1940-41 basketball opening of Bradley college tonight, coming from behind to snatch a 31 to 28 decision in a torrid ball game.

Trailing 11 to 18 at half time, the Cyclones piled up 11 points for a 22 to 18 lead before the Braves could hit the hoop. Then Bradley scrambled back for a 28 to 25 lead only to fade before a belated rush. Lineup:

MARQUETTE LOSES, 35-20

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 14 [Special].—After an airtight first half, a tall University of Nebraska basketball team put on the pressure in the last half tonight, to defeat Marquette, 35 to 20, before 5,000.

The Huskers led at half time, 7 to 5, and 15 to 13, with 10 minutes left. They drove hard in the final quarter, and ran up their decisive margin.

Marquette's equipment trunks were lost en route, and the Hilltoppers were attired in Nebraska freshman uniforms. Lineup:

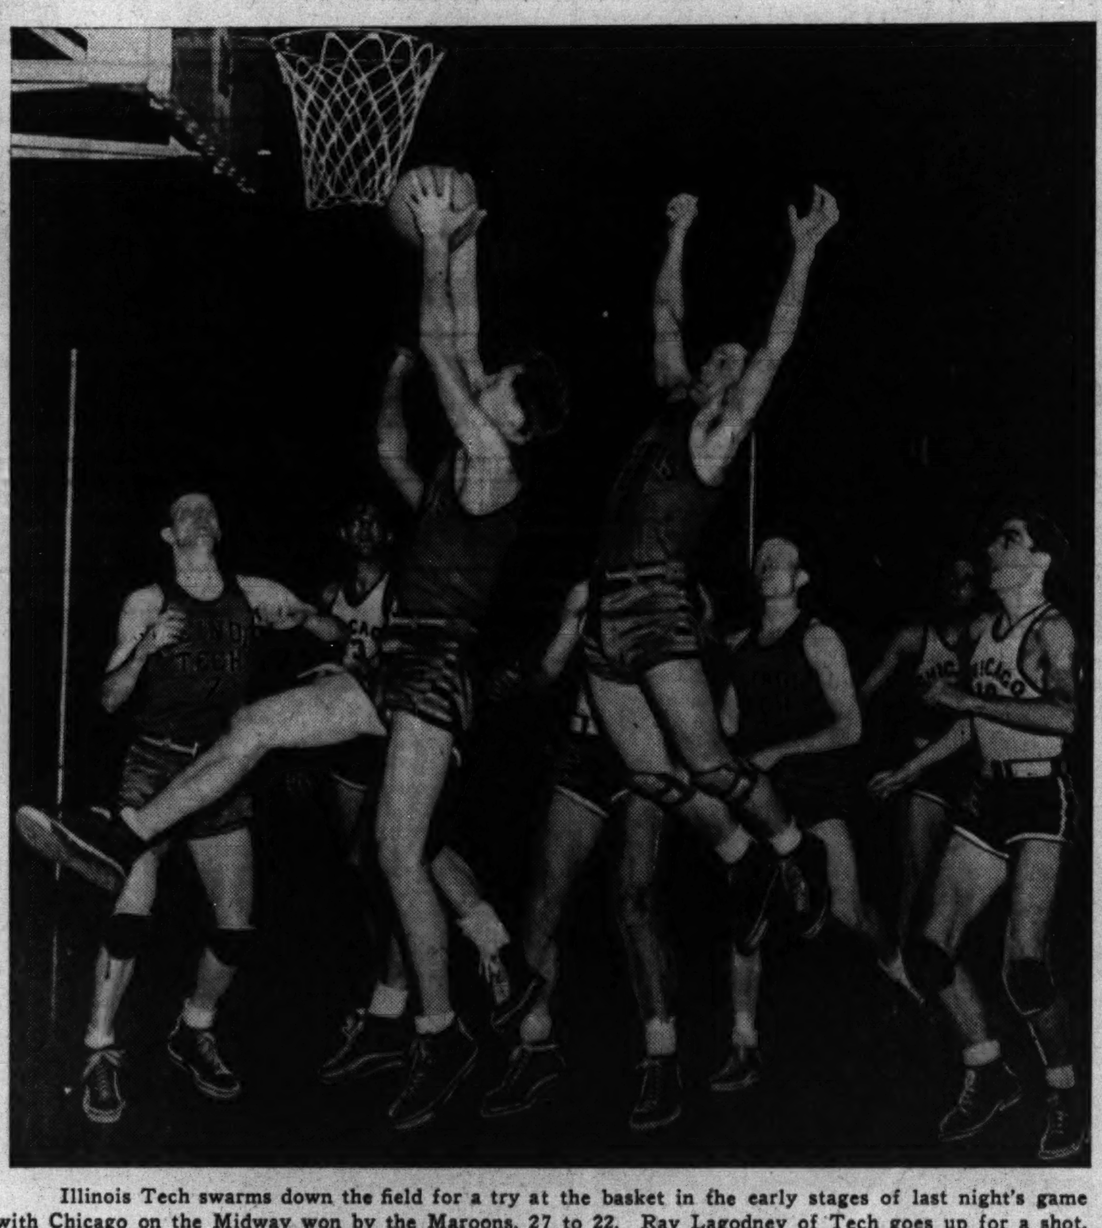
Wheaton Snaps Dundee's Little 7 Victory Streak

Dundee High school's string of 70 consecutive basketball victories in the Little 7 conference came to an end last night. Wheaton defeated the five time champions, 35 to 33, in an overtime game in Wheaton. Dundee's last conference loss was to Naperville in December of 1935.

Illinois Tech Puts on the Pressure



Illinois Tech swarms down the field for a try at the basket in the early stages of last night's game with Chicago on the Midway won by the Maroons, 27 to 22. Ray Lagodney of Tech goes up for a shot. Other Tech players are Howard Pendlebury (7), Jack Byrne (8), and Harry Sieg (9). Maroons identified are Capt. Joe Stampf (3), and Charles Wegenberg (18), with glasses. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

with half a minute to play. Electing to take the ball out of bounds after a foul by Butler, Mickelson and Miller made a desperate attempt to get the tying points but failed in an under the basket scramble.

Both teams were fast and handled the ball well but the Buckeyes had difficulty in hitting the hoops in the first half.

Miller Gets 15 Points.

Miller, playing his first season in the Big Ten, was high scorer with six baskets and three fouls for 15 points. Bob Dietz, Butler captain and forward, was runner-up with 11 points and three others, Mickelson and Bill McLain of Ohio State and Bill Hamilton of Butler, were tied with 10 points each. Lineups:

INDIANA WINS, 53-22

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 14 [Special]. — Indiana's basketball team romped over Marshall college of Huntington, W. Va., 53 to 22, tonight for its third straight victory. The triumph was Indiana's 21st in a row on its own floor and the 27th straight over non-Big Ten teams.

After Indiana's speed had carried its regulars to a 21 to 11 lead sophomores took over, but the scoring continued as 12 of the 17 Hoosiers employed poured points thru the nets.

Big Bill Menke was the chief Hoosier scorer. The Huntingburg, Ind., senior collected five baskets and a free throw for individual honors with 11 points. All were made in the first half.

Jay McCreary, Curly Armstrong, and John Logan each added six points to the Indiana barrage. Lineups:

MICHIGAN WINS, 36-16

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 14 [Special].—Michigan's basketball team put on a second half drive tonight to pull away from a stubborn Michigan Normal college quintet and score its second successive victory, 36 to 16.

The team from Ypsilanti offered unexpected resistance thruout the first half and trailed only 16 to 12 at half time, but was unable to get anywhere during the second period as the Wolverines held it to one basket and two free throws. Meantime Michigan's attack began to function and the Wolverines scored 18 points to turn the contest into a rout.

Two Score 11 Points.

Forwards Mike Sofiak and Bob Fitzgerald, the shortest and tallest men respectively on the Michigan team, were the scoring leaders as each counted 11 points. Fitzgerald made five field goals and one free throw and Sofiak scored three baskets and five penalty shots.

This two man team was the factor which set Michigan rolling in the second half. After Carl Alssen of Normal had scored on a corner shot to bring the count to 18 to 14 for the Wolverines, Sofiak and Fitzgerald took care of things to run up 11 points between them before Ed Kontrymowicz put thru Normal's next point on a free throw. By this time the Wolverines had a comfortable lead and substitutes took over.

GOPHERS BEAT IDAHO

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14 (AP).—The University of Minnesota defeated the University of Idaho, 32 to 26, tonight in a game marred by many personal fouls.

The big Idaho team found its superior height of no advantage, the smaller Gophers losing no time in going into a comfortable lead. After the score was tie, 3 to 3, Minnesota tallied eight points without a return on the part of the visitors and boasted an 18 to 10 advantage at the intermission.

Thirty-five personal fouls were called, 19 of them on Minnesota. Lineup:

WESTERN STATE QUINTET DEFEATS FRANKLIN, 49-35

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 14 [Special].—The Western State Teachers college basketball team defeated Franklin college, 49 to 35, tonight. Franklin led 15 to 10 at the end of the first period, but Western State forged ahead, 20 to 15 at the half. As the second half opened Western State held Franklin without a basket for ten minutes. Co-Captain Ballard, forward, led Western State's scoring with 14 points. Hendrix, forward, was high for the visitors with 16.

Hoppe Accepts Challenge by Jake Schaefer

Willie Hoppe of New York, world three cushion billiards champion, informed the National Billiards association yesterday that he was ready to defend his title "any time and anywhere."

Jake Schaefer of Cleveland challenged Hoppe last week to a title match to be played before the annual championship tournament which begins in Chicago Jan. 13.

"I'll meet Schaefer any time, any where and for any side bet he desires," Hoppe said. "In fact, the match can be arranged two or three days previous to the big tournament as far as I'm concerned. It's entirely up to Schaefer."

At the same time Hoppe formally agreed to compete in the 26 day title tournament which will draw a field of 16 topflight players. It was in this event a year ago that Hoppe went thru the test undefeated, winning 20 straight games.

Schaefer, runner-up to Hoppe in the last tournament, has not filed his entry yet for the 1941 meet, but 10 others have accepted invitations to compete.

The nine in addition to Hoppe are Joe Chamaco, Mexico City; Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo.; Otto Reiselt, Philadelphia; Art Thurnblad, Kenosha, Wis.; Tiff Denton, Kansas City, all former world champions; Irving Crane, Rochester, N. Y.; Art Rubin, New York, and Earl Lookabaugh and Joe Moriarity of Chicago.

Schaefer and Hall will play a special 360 point match, in six 60 point blocks, starting at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at Bensinger's, 131 South Wabash. Other blocks are scheduled for 8 p. m. Friday, 3:30 and 8 p. m. Saturday, 3:30 and 8 p. m. Sunday.

HARMON CHOSEN MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN BIG 9

Wins Tribune Trophy; Hiemenz Ranks 2d.

Grange of Illinois, in the modern era of the game. He demonstrated his ability early during interscholastic competition in Gary, Ind., and as a junior last year was voted the most valuable Michigan player. He placed second in the final voting to Iowa's Nile Kinnick who led the Hawkeyes in the fight which placed them second in the Big Ten standings. Incidentally, Michigan was the only team to whip the Hawkeyes in 1939.

Harmon's reputation is based on his competitive spirit as well as ability which has broken many records. After the debacle of the 1939 Illinois-Michigan game which was followed by severe defeat by Minnesota, Harmon sparked the attack which roared back against Ohio State, when the Buckeyes had a two touchdown lead. Michigan won that game in the last minutes, 21 to 14.

Minnesota is the only team Michigan has not beaten during Harmon's span of play. In 1938 Minnesota rallied with passes by Harold Van Every to win 7 to 6. George Faust kicked the winning point. This also was the score of the 1940 game played before a record throng in Minneapolis. Joe Mernik kicked the winning point that followed Bruce Smith's 80 yard run. Thus, the Gophers took three of the four games Michigan lost since Harmon, and his 1940 captain, Forest Evashevski, donned Wolverine uniforms.

636 Yards on Offense.

Michigan whipped California, Harvard, Pennsylvania, and Michigan State in nonconference games this year. In four Big Nine games [Chicago's place was taken by California] Harmon piled up 636 yards on total offense, 330 yards by rushing and 306 yards by passing, to lead Minnesota's Smith, who played in six games. Three touchdowns and four points after touchdowns in the 40 to 0 victory over Ohio State, last game of the year, brought Harmon's conference scoring to 40 points. This led the Big Nine. Harmon scored 117 points of Michigan's total of 196 in eight games. His passes also scored 36 points.

A great runner and hard line smasher, Harmon also was a better than average forward passer. This year he also punted and his ability to deliver in the clutch produced a conference punting average of 41½ yards for third place in this department of play.

Target of all opponents, Harmon throve on the knocks and bruises of the gridiron. This year—and here is indisputable proof of his value to his team—Tom missed only 46 minutes of play in eight games. He played 60 minutes against Pennsylvania, Minnesota, and Northwestern, and all but 38 seconds against Ohio State.

Great Three Year Record.

In three years Harmon scored 237 points, threw 16 touchdown passes, averaged 5.4 yards per attempt as he ran 2,134 yards, and he completed 101 passes out of 233 attempts for 1,399 yards.

Even without this statistical evidence, Harmon could have been praised by Fielding Yost, Michigan's coach and director for 40 years, as "the greatest back I have seen in football since Willie Heston."

Harmon's teammates concurred. They said it with votes when they chose Tommy as Michigan's most valuable player.

HE APPRECIATES HONOR

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 14 [Special].—When notified tonight that he had been declared winner of the Chicago Tribune silver trophy as the most valuable football player in the Western conference during the 1940 season, Tom Harmon said.

"This is the greatest honor a football player can receive; first, to be elected most valuable by his teammates and then to be chosen over a great bunch of guys from the other conference schools.

"Of course, I have followed the history of the Tribune trophy in the past and this is the realization of a dream. I will give it to my mother, as I have the other awards. She can best take care of them for me."

PURDUE LOSES SPROWL; VETERAN HAS OPERATION

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 14 [Special].—Purdues' Big Ten champions will be minus Forrest Sprowl, high scoring forward, in next week's games against Wabash here Tuesday night and De Paul and Loyola in Chicago on Friday and Saturday nights, respectively.

Upon advice of the team physician, the veteran, who has been bothered by a chronic tonsil infection, submitted to a tonsilectomy this morning. His condition was reported good.

Sprowl, a junior, has been the leading scorer for Purdue, accounting for 37 points in three games.

Cornell Beats Beloit, 36-32, in Conference Opener

Beloit, Wis., Dec. 14 [Special].—Beloit college lost its Midwest conference basketball opener to Cornell college, 36 to 32, tonight.

Howard, Cornell forward, led his team with five baskets to tie for scoring honors with Harman, Beloit's forward, who had four field goals and two free throws.

Nelson Finds His Putter Useful

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Byron Nelson, P. G. A. champion, holds the putter which yesterday helped him take a three stroke lead over the field in the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament. Nelson's 67 yesterday left him nine under par for 54 holes with a 201 total. Clayton Heafner is in second place at 204.

NELSON TAKES 3 STROKE LEAD IN MIAMI OPEN

Miami Springs, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP).—Byron Nelson, P. G. A. champion, took a commanding three shot lead in the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament today with a 67, his third consecutive subpar round, for a 54 hole total of 201.

One by one, most of the other golfers dropped back, while Nelson rhythmically fashioned his three under par score, tacking it onto previous rounds of 69 and 65. That made Nelson, National Open champion last year, nine below par for the distance.

Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., who finished his second round early today for a 67, managed to clip another stroke off par with a third round 69. Only a shot behind Nelson starting the third round, Heafner had a 54 hole 204.

Hogan Drops Back.

Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., dropped back of the pace setters, with a par 70 for a 206 total.

Snead finished with a 67 which contained seven birdies and four bogeys to close in on Hogan.

The competition apparently had narrowed to those five golfers. Mike Turnesa of Fairview, N. Y., scored a 68 for a 207 total, and Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., had 208 after a third round 69.

Ferrier Shoots a 76.

Jim Ferrier of Sydney, Australian Open champion, accumulated a 76 for a 214 total and found himself tied with Earl Christiansen, Miami policeman, for the amateur lead. Christiansen scored a 71 today.

Ben Loving of Springfield, Mass., slumped with a 72 for 209. At the same notch was Willie Goggin of Miami, who scored a 69.

Bruins to Open League Season on Wednesday

The Chicago Bruins, who made a right smart debut in the National Basketball league last season, aim to improve on same Wednesday night, when they open their 1940-'41 campaign against the Akron Firestones, defending league champions, in the 132d regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

The Bruins, augmented by the addition of Bill Hapac of Illinois, and Stan Szukala of De Paul, loom as one of the outstanding clubs in the league due to a scoring punch which rates tops among the league clubs.

Mike Novak and Wibs Kautz, who finished third and fifth among the circuit's individual scorers last season, and Ray Adams, star forward while playing with Oshkosh two years ago, will team up with Hapac and Szukala as the starting five.

Five Scoring Threats.

All five are scoring threats and, as Coach Frank Linskey puts it, it's hardly likely that all will be off shooting form on the same evening.

Pitted against this array will be Johnny Moir, Tommy Wukovits and Paul Du Charme of Notre Dame, Fred Beretta, captain and Purdue's Big Ten championship team of last season; Jack Jennings, 6 foot, 6 inch ace of the Washington State team, and Bob Loeven of St. Bonaventure college.

List Reserve Players.

Bruin reserves include Bill O'Brien, and George Hogan, former Loyola players; Willie Phillips, De Paul; Elmer Johnson, Northwestern, and Vince McGowan, former Leo High school star and for the last three years a member of the Hammond team which faces the Bruins here on Christmas night.

Due to the Xmas contest with Hammond, which is a Dec. 4 postponement, the Bruins will play four games in eight days, meeting the Firestones here on Wednesday; the Redskins in Sheboygan on Thursday and the Hammond Ciesars in Hammond on Sunday.

SOOSE LEARNS HAND INJURY IS NOT SERIOUS

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 14 (AP).—Billy Soose emerged from an X-ray room today and said he would be able to fulfill an engagement in Madison Square Garden in New York Jan. 3 against Tami Mumauriello.

The former Penn State college athlete injured his right hand in winning a 10 round decision over Jimmy Casino of Los Angeles last night, but an examination today by Dr. Lynn Carver disclosed no broken bones.

Soose hurt his hand when he floored Casino in the third round. Soose will not be able to box in a Christmas charity show in San Francisco next week, however.

MANDEL PONDERS COACH FOR LIONS; BILL EDWARDS? NO

Fred L. Mandel Jr., owner of the Detroit Lions football team, reached at his Highland Park, Ill., residence last night, announced he had made no decision on a successor to Coach Potsy Clark, who resigned two weeks ago to become coach and publicity director of Grand Rapids [Mich.] college.

Mandel in particular denied rumors that he had offered the job to Coach Bill Edwards of Western Reserve university in Cleveland and that he had contacted Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington.

ARKANSAS NEXT! DUCK SEASON IN ILLINOIS CLOSES

Hunters Look South; Hope the Birds Do, Too.

BY BOB BECKER.

Now that the 1940 waterfowl season in Illinois and other states of the intermediate zone is closed, hunters have to look toward the southern states for further duck and goose hunting.

The season for hunting ducks and geese in Illinois ended yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Inasmuch as quail hunting in Illinois also is done for the year, sportsmen must get below the Mason and Dixon line to hunt. Otherwise they'll join the hot stove league to discuss the peculiar and disappointing aspects of the recent duck season. Except for rabbit hunting, there isn't much doing in the game fields during the coming months. And with tularemia affecting our rabbit population not many hunters want to clean and cook the cottontails.

The Arkansas rice fields and pin-oak flats doubtless will play host to a number of Illinois hunters this month. As a rule the mallards swarm into the flooded lowlands down there to give hunters some wonderful shooting after the season has closed in the northern tier of states.

Migration Behind Schedule.

Otwell, Stuttgart, De Witt, and other towns are among the localities which can be used as bases for mallard hunting in Arkansas. However, the last report on hunting that we had from Arkansas was anything but cheerful. For some reason or other the ducks haven't been storming into that state, much to the mystification of the hunters. And nobody seems to know where the birds are or why the migration hadn't put the big flocks of mallards into the flooded rice fields.

It's quite possible that the tremendous acreage of cornfields along the Illinois river, all liberally sprinkled with grain left by the mechanical pickers, may be keeping hundreds of thousands of mallards in Illinois. Ordinarily they would have flown south into Arkansas.

Crow Chase Is On.

Altho the game bird seasons are closed in Illinois and adjacent states, sportsmen still can have some fun this winter trying to outwit the crows. This game involves the use of a blind, a mounted owl, and decoys placed about 1½ miles from a roost. Thus, the crows may be decoyed within range as they leave their roost and fly across the country.

This department now is collecting information on such roosts in northern Illinois and after the holidays sportsmen will be advised where they may go to get a few shots at these predatory birds. The winter crow population of Illinois is reported to be between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 birds. But most of the birds are in the central part of the state, where food is much more abundant than in the northern zone of counties.

60 Strong Men to Lift Today in A.A.U. Meet

More than 60 contestants, representing 33 teams, will compete this afternoon in the seventh annual Central A. A. U. novice weight lifting tournament, starting at 2:30 o'clock, in the St. Philip High school, 3141 West Jackson boulevard. Eighteen medals and a sportsmanship cup will be at stake.

Fifteen records are endangered. Clarence Deja, heavyweight of the Central Y. M. C. A., has smashed four novice marks in practice, totaling 685 pounds. Frank Kay, 181 pound title holder, will attempt to better two American and four Central A. A. U. records. He unofficially accomplished the feat last Saturday, amassing a total of 860 pounds on three Olympic lifts, five over the American mark, and only 10 less than the world record, held by John Davis of York, Pa.

Hy Bornstein of the Mid-City club, who set the world record with 110 repetitions in the sit-up event with the 50 pound dumbbell, will try to accomplish 200 today.

Teams entered in the tournament include: Northwest Weight Lifting club, defending champion; Chicago Weight Lifting club; West End Physical Culture club, sponsor of the meet; German American A. C.; Mid-City Weight Lifting club; Swedish American Gymnastic club of Rockford; Community Gym of Mount Morris, Ill.; Aurora Y. M. C. A.; Washington High school of East Chicago; fifteen branches of the Chicago Park District, and eight Y. M. C. A. teams.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's program of double header basketball games will start tomorrow evening in the Coliseum. For this initial presentation—national in scope—Georgetown university meets Loyola and U. C. L. A. faces De Paul.

While De Paul may not immediately equal last year's record performance, the squad has possibilities and several veterans around whom a new record breaking squad may develop. Loyola is expected to be stronger. Last year the Ramblers, handicapped by lack of height, played well but had an exceptionally large number of close defeats.

The U. C. L. A. team features the playing of Jackie Robinson, also a fine football player. The Los Angeles quintet is scheduled against Bradley in Peoria on Thursday evening. On the same date Michigan goes to Indianapolis to battle Butler. The Bulldogs previously will have entertained Northwestern on Wednesday night.

Pitt and Purdue Are on Tour.

The University of Pittsburgh, long one of the outstanding basketball teams in the east, and Purdue university, Western conference champion, provide additional top flight games for the week before Christmas. Each plays three games, but all the excitement is provided without these rivals meeting.

Pitt makes the more impressive sweep. The Panthers move into Madison Wednesday night to face the Badgers, advance to Illinois on Friday and conclude their invasion against Northwestern on Saturday evening. Pitt is final opponent for the N. U. before the Wildcats' annual New Year's eve clash with Notre Dame. Incidentally, the Irish are busy this week only on Friday night when they entertain Michigan's Wolverines.

After playing Wabash in Lafayette on Tuesday, the Boilermakers move into Chicago for two games, facing De Paul on Friday and Loyola's Ramblers on Saturday.

Rugged Preliminary Tests.

Time was, before the Western conference extended the basketball schedule to 20 games [of which 12 are in the conference], that Big Ten quintets were exceedingly careful to pick nonconference foes which would offer adequate preliminary practice but not threaten to overwhelm. Because of the program of doubleheaders in Chicago and New York, the increase in number of games permitted, and the new system of conference schedules, the red mark of nonconference defeat is no longer considered a scarlet letter.

Thus it is that Purdue plays De Paul and Loyola on consecutive nights when once the Boilermakers reserved the dates so that every effort could be made to insure victory. And so it is that Indiana university, winner in the National Collegiate tournament last winter, plays Stanford in San Francisco Saturday evening and then continues its holiday tour of the far west.

Big Ten Teams Active.

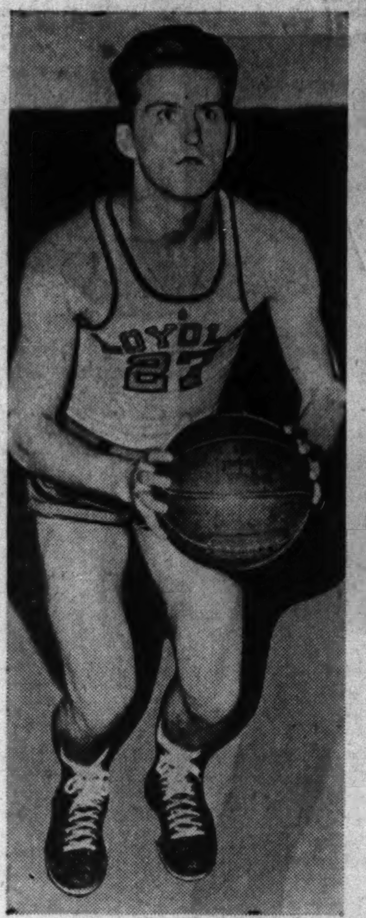
Iowa, Minnesota, and Ohio State are other Big Ten teams active this week. Tomorrow the Hawkeyes play the Iowa Teachers and on Saturday they meet Detroit in Detroit. Minnesota is Nebraska's opponent in Lincoln on the same date and Ohio State goes to East Lansing to play Michigan State.

Wisconsin's Badgers also have a Saturday date with Marquette in addition to the Pitt engagement. The Wisconsin-Marquette game, one of the oldest and keenest rivalries in basketball, will be played in Milwaukee. Tomorrow, Marquette's Hilltoppers appear against Creighton in Omaha, Neb.

Hornets Beat Muncie on Shimm's 3d Period Goal

Muncie, Ind., Dec. 14 [Special].—The Chicago Hornets amateur hockey team, Midwest champions, opened defense of their title tonight with a 2 to 1 victory over the Muncie Chiefs in a game that dedicated Muncie's new hockey arena. Boutin scored the first goal, assisted by Bjorck and Shimm, in 12 minutes of the second period. Howard's goal for the Chiefs three minutes before the end of the period tied the score. Then Shimm brought the Hornets victory with a score midway in the third period.

INTERSECTIONAL BASKETBALL COMPETITION HITS A PEAK WEEK



George Wenskus is captain of the Loyola university basketball team which opposes Georgetown university of Washington, D. C., in the Coliseum tomorrow night.

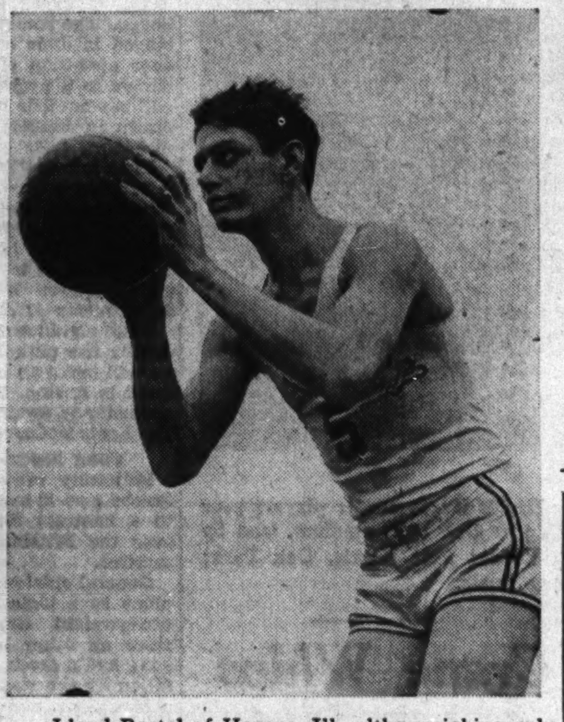
One of America's greatest all-around athletes is Jackie Robinson of the University of California at Los Angeles. He led the southern division of the Pacific Coast conference in basketball scoring last winter, won the broad jump title in the N. C. A. A. track meet, and was a star football player this fall. Robinson and the U. C. L. A. team oppose De Paul tomorrow and play Bradley in Peoria on Thursday.



Lloyd Bortel of Havana, Ill., altho weighing only 145 pounds, is the spark plug of the Bradley Tech team that faces five important home games in Peoria during the next 12 days. The Braves play U. C. L. A. Thursday, Oregon on Saturday, William and Mary on Dec. 23, Yale on Dec. 25, and Cornell university on Dec. 27. Bortel, a forward, is playing with Bradley for the third season. He's 5 feet 10 inches tall.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14 [Special].—Michigan university swimming team opened its quest for a 12th national championship under Coach Matt Mann tonight by defeating Pennsylvania, 51 to 23. Eight Niagara A. A. U. records were shattered—in all events except the dive.

Swimming in competition for the first time in his life, Johnny Patten, 19 year old sophomore free styler, won the 220 and 440 yard events in 2:19.9 and 5:14.5, respectively.

The Wolverines won all nine events and yielded second place in six, in four of which they had only one entrant. Gus Sharemet, Michigan's 100 yard free style champion, remained in Ann Arbor, Mich., after an ingrown toe-nail had been removed Thursday.

Summaries:

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Michigan [Fran Heydt, John Sharemet, Will Garvey]; Pennsylvania second. Time—3:05.2 [Niagara A. A. U. record].

DE KALB WINNER OVER NORTH PK. AND JOLIET J. C.

De Kalb, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—The De Kalb Teachers quintet encountered difficulty in its opening games of the season tonight with North Park college and Joliet Junior college but managed to win both games. De Kalb took the opener from North Park, 39 to 36, by staving off the visitors' late rally, and itself rallied for 14 points in the last 10 minutes to beat Joliet, 49 to 35.

De Kalb was paced to victory in the Joliet game by Lee Bauer who scored six baskets and a free throw, four of his shots coming during the late rally. Joliet led 34 to 31 before the Huskies spurted. Rimmke of Joliet led the scoring with 15 points.

In the opener De Kalb enjoyed a nine point lead with six minutes left, but Erichson, North Park forward, staged a one man scoring show which was short of success. Erichson scored 18 points for North Park and Gibson 12 for De Kalb.

ACE PARKER GETS OUT OF ONE GAME TO PLAY IN TWO

Richmond, Va., Dec. 14 (AP).—Clarence [Ace] Parker was informed today by Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn football Dodgers, that he had been excused from participation in the Chicago Bears-All-Stars game in Los Angeles Dec. 29, and said tonight he would play in benefit games in Norfolk tomorrow and in Richmond, Jan. 1.

The Brooklyn Dodger back field performer, selected as a member of the National league All-Stars to play the Chicago Bears, advised League President Carl Storck he would not play. Storck advised Parker he would be expelled from the league if he didn't play.

WHEATON WRESTLERS WIN.

Wheaton college opened its wrestling season last night with a 26 to 6 victory over Illinois Tech. The Division Street Y. M. C. A. of Chicago tied the Wheaton B wrestling team, 18 to 18.

37 American League Marks Broken in 1940

A saturation point apparently is being approached in big league baseball records. In 1939 a total of 64 records were registered in the American league. The season of 1939 found this figure declining to 46, whereas in 1940 the count again shortened to 37, according to official figures announced last night.

The league record for total home runs was raised to 883, along with the total of most extra bases on long hits—5,842. The New York Yankees stretched their total of years leading in home runs to 21, and made their total of years of 100 or more homers 19—16 of them consecutive. The Yankees also raised the total of home runs in 5 consecutive games to 17, and the number of homers in 9 games in a row to 22.

The all-time total of three home runs in an inning for the league was raised to 28. Also the season saw 16 players hitting 20 or more homers for a new record. The flag winning Detroit Tigers hit homers in 17 straight games, during which they totaled 26 home runs.

29 Extra Bases in One Game.

Boston had 29 extra bases on long hits on Sept. 24 for a new major league record.

Frank Crosetti of New York was for the fifth straight year the leading target of the league's pitchers, which is a new record.

Bob Feller became the first in history to pitch a no-hit game on opening day, performing the feat against the White Sox in Chicago on April 16.

43d Year for Mr. Mack.

Connie Mack of Philadelphia increased his record for most years as a manager to 43. Forty of these run consecutively with the Athletics.

Clint Brown, Chicago relief specialist, started his last game on Aug. 18, 1936, against Cleveland, and since then ran his string of consecutive games as a relief pitcher [without starting a game] to 172. Summary of records established in the American league during 1940 follow:

MAJOR LEAGUE RECORDS BROKEN.
Leading in home runs—New York, 21 years.
Hundred home runs or more—New York, 19 years.
Hundred home runs or more, 16 consecutive years—New York.
Three home runs in an inning, league—28 times.
Players hitting 20 or more home runs, league—16.
Most consecutive games one or more home runs, one club—Detroit, 17 [26 home runs].
Most home runs, one club, 5 consecutive games—New York, 17.
Most home runs, one club, 9 consecutive games—New York, 22.
Most extra bases on long hits, one club, one game—Boston, 29 on Sept. 24.
Most years as manager—Connie Mack, 40.
Consecutive games as relief pitcher—Clint Brown, 172.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RECORDS BROKEN.
Most home runs, league, season—883.
Most home runs for clubs, season—Boston, 145; St. Louis, 118.
Most extra bases on long hits, league—5,842.
Most long hits, one club, game—Boston, 14.
Most times finished in last place—Philadelphia, 11.

George Kocheran, senior forward, is among the University of Pittsburgh veterans who will play at Wisconsin on Wednesday, at Illinois on Friday, and at Northwestern on Saturday.

LEW JENKINS' BROTHER SPARS WITH CHAMPION

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Dec. 14 [Special].—Pete Jenkins, 15 year old brother of Lew Jenkins, who wants to become a boxer, too, arrived at Dr. Bier's training quarters here from Sweetwater, Tex., this afternoon in time to step one round with the lightweight champion in training for his 10 round go with Fritzie Zivic, welterweight boss, in New York's Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The 135 pound champion was in fine fettle and before breezing thru a three minute turn with Brother Pete he pounded Eddie Carroll and Chester Rico for two rounds each. Wishey Jones was on the receiving end of three lively rounds.

Jenkins later scaled 137 pounds.

Cubs' Trade for Myers Has Many Angles

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If Jim Wilson, the recently appointed Cub manager, went to bed happy the night he gave Outfielder Jim Gleeson and two others to the Cincinnati Reds for Shortstop Billy Myers, he must have developed a headache shortly after arising the next morning.

The headache should have developed over what Wilson heard and read about the swap with his former employers. Of course, there were a few persons who came right out and patted Wilson on the back for his move and a few didn't mind saying right out loud that the Cubs had been shortchanged again. But there were scores of smart baseball men who weren't quoted. They did their talking off the record and a large percentage took the view that the Reds had discovered the days of bargains haven't gone.

Maybe There IS a Reason.

Before shedding any tears over the possible fact that the Cubs didn't do very well for themselves in the swap, it might be well to figure what Wilson had in mind when he agreed to a proposition that on its face appeared onesided.

Having been a Cincinnati coach in the Reds' last two pennant winning years, Wilson undoubtedly was pretty well acquainted with all the boys on the roster. He also must have known whether or not anybody was discontented. Having watched Myers day after day, Wilson had a definite idea of Billy's actual worth. Whatever he knew must have made him believe that Myers was cheap at any price.

On the other hand why would the Reds, having won two pennants, want to break up an infield combination. Either they saw no further service in Myers or felt it would be far simpler to replace him than to find an outfielder like Gleeson. The Reds, as you recall, have tried for two years to remedy an outfield defect. They've finally succeeded.

But Look at the Averages.

The little item that leads managers to make trades, pitchers excepted, is a batting average. Well, Gleeson hit .313 last season. Myers batted only .202, a shrinkage of 79 points from the year previous. That decline could be attributed to nothing more alarming that an off season or to advancing years. But with Gleeson in the .300 class and Myers considerably farther down in the list, the Cubs should have been able to make the swap without including Shortstop Bob Mattick, still in the process of development, and some guy to be named later.

There are Cub weaknesses far more important than shortstop, but maybe the club can be forgiven for its anxiety about the latter department. Cub fans may remember the Cubs traded away a fellow named Bill Jurges. In the exchange they acquired Dick Bartell from the Giants. That proved a bloomer. So Bartell was shipped to the Tigers for Billy Rogell. Rogell didn't last out the season. There's an old saying about things—good or bad—happening in threes.

White Sox Pin Hopes on Five More Farm System Products

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago White Sox, who during Jimmy Dykes' managerial régime probably have been the shrewdest dealers in baseball flesh in the major leagues, may be clipping fat coupons once more next spring on low cost investments in player material.

This time, however, the answer may be in Billy Webb's fine handling of their budding minor league farm system rather than the sharpshooting of Dykes in the trade marts. Five new White Sox farm hands will be unveiled when the Comiskey club goes into training in Pasadena, Cal., for the 1941 season and, in the opinion of Webb, every one is a definite major league prospect with the polish of perhaps a year or two more.

The five youngsters are Pitchers Eugene Stack and Warren Martin of Saginaw, Mich., both right handers; Clyde Umstead, a southpaw hurler from Pottstown, Pa.; Chester Hajduk, a burly Chicago boy who plays first base or the outfield, and Warren Lorenz, another Chicago youngster who is a shortstop.

They're Up From Class D.

All five were in Class D circuits last season. Stack and Hajduk were with Lubbock in the West Texas-New Mexico league, Martin and Umstead were with Jonesboro in the Northeast Arkansas league and Lorenz with Wisconsin Rapids in the Wisconsin State league.

This quintet of freshmen give the White Sox eleven men out of a total of thirty-six now on their active list who were developed entirely by their own farm system.

The others are Pitchers Johnny Rigney, Orval Grove, and Jess Dobernic, Third Baseman Bob Kennedy, Second Baseman Don Kolloway, and Catcher Ken Silvestri. All six of these have been to spring camp before. In fact, Rigney, Kennedy, and Silvestri already have been paying dividends, being members of the White Sox cast for varying periods.

Kennedy Makes the Grade.

Rigney, tho never quite fulfilling his predicted rôle of the new bellcow of the pitching staff, nevertheless has turned in 41 victories since 1937. Kennedy in his first season in 1940 brought plaudits for his powerful throwing arm even from such high places as Connie Mack. And Silvestri did his bit as a pinch hitter, winning several games with timely blows that included two pinch homers.

Grove and Kolloway were farmed out to Oklahoma City last season for more experience and, after distinguishing themselves in the Texas league with work that brought even praise from the hard bitten Rogers Hornsby, are expected to make the grade this time with the mother club. In fact, Kolloway currently is tabbed to take over the second base spot. Dobernic, a fastballing right hander, might have made the majors last season if he hadn't run into an untimely attack of appendicitis. He served with Waterloo in the Three Eye league in 1940.

There will be other rookies in the White Sox Pasadena camp, such as Pitchers Jack Hallett and Walter Navie of Shreveport and Outfielders Dave Short and Thurman Tucker of Oklahoma City. But these are purchases from outside the farm system. Therefore, like a father with his own children, Webb's greater pride rests with the others.

And their records indicate that he might have occasion to pop off with an "I told you so" here and there. Webb pegs Stack and Hajduk as his best bets. Stack won 19 games for Lubbock and three more in the playoffs and averaged almost a strikeout per inning. Hajduk, whom Webb calls the finest physical specimen he ever saw in baseball, led his circuit as a run producer by scoring 136 and driving in 139 more. He played the outfield for Lubbock but will be used as a first baseman by the White Sox.

Lorenz Averages .350.

Lorenz, who was half of a twin brother second base combination at Wisconsin Rapids, led his league with a .350 average. Umstead and Martin both are considered a bit farther off than Stack and Hajduk, but Johnny Mostil, Jonesboro manager, believes there are few in the majors with a more powerful arm than the 19 year old Martin. All he lacks is control.

There still are others among the farm hands who will be heard from in future years. Out of 126 boys at the White Sox roundup camp in Jonesboro last spring, 70 were signed to contracts by their minor league clubs—Lubbock, Jonesboro, Wisconsin Rapids, and Waterloo. And the supply won't stop there. Next spring there will be another crop for the White Sox farms which Webb predicts will be just as good.

OKLA. AGGIES AND LONG ISLAND U. WIN BEFORE 18,325

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Invading schools broke even in the opening of Madison Square Garden's college basketball season tonight when the Oklahoma Aggies whipped a highly touted City college five, 32 to 24, after Long Island university turned back Oregon, 43 to 31.

A crowd of 18,325, seven more than the Garden's previous high, saw the Aggies build up a 12 point lead in the first half, 21 to 9, and then surge back in the last seven minutes after City had driven within five points.

The opening game was nip and tuck except for the first seven minutes of the last half, in which Long Island riddled Oregon's zone defense to pile up a margin of 21 to 17 at the half.

PIRATES TO PLAY RECORD TOTAL OF 37 SPRING GAMES

Slate 28 Contests with Major League Foes.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates of the National baseball league announced tonight the longest spring training schedule in the club's history. Playing in five states and 15 cities, the Pirates will run thru a 37 game schedule between March 7 and April 15. They will meet major league clubs in 28 games—16 with the Philadelphia Athletics, six with the Chicago Cubs, and six with the Chicago White Sox. The exhibition schedule:

March 7, Portland at San Bernardino; March 8, Sacramento at San Bernardino; March 9, White Sox at Pasadena; March 11, Seattle at San Bernardino; March 12, Hollywood at San Bernardino; March 13, Athletics at San Bernardino; March 14, Athletics at Anaheim; March 15 and 16, San Diego at San Diego; March 17, Los Angeles at San Bernardino; March 18, White Sox at San Bernardino; March 19, Athletics at Hollywood; March 20 and 21, Cubs at Los Angeles; March 22 and 23, Athletics at Hollywood; March 24, Los Angeles at Ontario; March 25, Cubs at Los Angeles; March 26, White Sox at Los Angeles; March 27, White Sox at Hollywood; March 28, Seattle at San Fernando; March 29 and 30, Cubs at Los Angeles; March 31, Cubs at San Bernardino.

April 1 and 2, Athletics at Hollywood; April 3 and 4, White Sox at El Centro, Cal.; April 5 and 6, Athletics at El Paso, Tex.; April 7, Athletics at Albuquerque, N. M.; April 8, Athletics at Clovis, N. M.; April 9 and 10, Athletics at Oklahoma City, Okla.; April 11, Athletics at Hutchinson, Kas.; April 12 and 13, Athletics at Wichita, Kas.

RED SOX TO PLAY 34

Boston, Mass., Dec. 14 (AP).—A spring training schedule of 34 games, 16 of them with the Cincinnati Reds, was listed today by the Boston Red Sox management. The Red Sox also will play the Giants, Cardinals, Dodgers, and Phillies of the National league, Louisville and Kansas City of the American association and the Newark, Baltimore and Rochester International league clubs.

Because the Bees have shifted their training site from Florida to Texas, the two Boston clubs will not meet until they return home on April 12.

The Red Sox will face Cincinnati for the first time in Tampa on March 7, accompany the champions to Havana, Cuba, to play a three game series starting on March 28 and then head north with them. The Red Sox exhibition schedule:

March 7, Reds at Tampa, Fla.; March 8 and 9, Giants at Miami; March 11, Cardinals at Sarasota; March 13, Reds at Sarasota; March 15, Louisville at Bradenton; March 16, Reds at Tampa; March 17, Newark at Sebring; March 18, Giants at Sarasota; March 19, Newark at Sarasota; March 21, Cardinals at St. Petersburg; March 22, Dodgers at Clearwater; March 23, Louisville at Sarasota; March 24, Baltimore at Sarasota; March 25, Kansas City at Sarasota; March 27, Phillies at Miami.

March 28, 29 and 30, Reds at Havana; March 31, Rochester at Palm Beach; April 1, Reds at Dothan, Ala.; April 2, Reds at Fort Benning, Ga.; April 3, Reds at Montgomery, Ala.; April 4, Reds at Gadsden, Ala.; April 5 and 6, Reds at Birmingham, Ala.; April 7, Reds at Owensboro, Ky.; April 8, Reds at Louisville, Ky.; April 9 and 10, Reds at Cincinnati; April 11, Baltimore at Baltimore; April 12 and 13, Bees at Boston; April 14, Holy Cross at Worcester.

A'S, PHILS CALL OFF SERIES

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—For the first time since 1903, the Athletics and the Phillies will not meet in a city baseball championship series next season.

"We haven't been drawing any too well in the games between the two clubs in recent years," said Connie Mack, Athletics' manager, "and we reached an understanding with the Phillies to drop the series for a year or so."

Mack said the A's have carded 39 spring exhibition games, including 16 with the Pittsburgh Pirates, and want to book four more. The A's will train at Anaheim, Cal. The schedule to date:

North Central Triumphs Over Concordia Five, 55-52

The North Central college quintet eked out a 55 to 52 victory over Concordia Teachers college in River Forest last night. North Central led at the half, 33 to 24. Concordia tied the score twice, and once forged into the lead in the closing minutes of play, but timely baskets by Bill Shatzer and Walt Anderson gave the Cardinal team victory. Bill Shatzer, North Central forward, was high scorer with 21 points.

Michigan, Colorado College Teams Tie in Hockey, 1-1

Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 14 (AP).—Michigan university's hockey team ended the domination of Colorado college's Tigers tonight in a defensive ice battle and earned a 1 to 1 tie after one overtime period. Colorado college defeated Michigan, 7 to 3, last night and took two games from the Wolverines a year ago.

2,500 BOWLING LEAGUES GIVEN CONTEST BLANKS

Score Sheets Also Go in Mail Today.

Secretaries of nearly 2,500 sanctioned bowling leagues in the Chicago area will have application blanks for membership in the League of Leagues in hand tomorrow. The blanks are being mailed out over the week-end from the organization's offices at 1609 Tribune Tower along with a letter explaining the setup.

Also enclosed in the mail is a sample score sheet of the type to be used—an ordinary score sheet plus a column in which secretaries will place each individual bowler's three-game score. It is from these sheets, to be mailed weekly to the league, that its staff will compute the 15 cash prize winners in each of the seven classifications in which bowlers will be placed.

It's a "Hot Night" Plan.

Thus the man—or woman—in the entire contest having the highest score in the grouping for bowlers having averages from 140 to 150 will receive the top prize, second high will receive second prize, and so on down thru 15 prizes in each bracket. Prizes will be the same in each bracket.

Bowlers are enthusiastic over the plan, terming it "Hot night insurance." They believe it has lucrative possibilities for the bowler who comes up now and then with a remarkable score—and most of them do—and can cash in only in a small way on this score in his intra-team competitive arrangements. In short, it offers almost a sure thing to the bowler with a 140 to 150 average who on one night can roll a 600 series.

Entry Deadline Jan. 20.

The deadline for receipt of applications is Jan. 20, one week before the start of the contest, but secretaries are being urged to complete their league enrollments and return the applications before then—in order to prevent a rush the last week. The League of Leagues telephone number is Whitehall 5882.

The competition, to run in 10 weekly contests, offers 1,050 prizes for weekly scores—a total of 150 in each of the seven brackets—plus a grand prize for the highest score in each bracket over the entire period. Secretaries will compete in the regular contests and for special secretaries' prizes to be awarded on the same basis as the grand prizes. Names of prize winners will appear in THE TRIBUNE.

Soccer Teams Play Today in 2 Cup Games

BY OFFSIDE.

Two third round matches in National Amateur cup competition feature the limited schedule of five soccer games in Chicago today. The Falk Corporation of Milwaukee, last Wisconsin survivor, will oppose the Swedish-Americans of Chicago in Winnemac park stadium, Foster avenue and Leavitt street, in what is regarded as the more outstanding of the cup battles. In the other, the Slovaks of the International league's major division will meet the Sam Redas, undefeated in second division competition, in Olympia stadium, 19th street and Kilpatrick avenue.

Both contests are scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

The Swedish-Americans, attempting to reach the grand finals for the first time in 16 years, have been beaten only once this season and are strengthened by the addition of Steve Larson, half back of the South Side Swedes. The only player missing from last year's championship squad is Johnny O'Boyle, out with a fractured leg bone. Dave Rarity, professional acquired from the Manhattan Brewers, is ineligible for today's match, open to amateurs only.

The Sparta Ogden Dairies, awaiting the draw for the western semifinals in the National Challenge Cup matches, will battle the South Side Swedes at 2:30 o'clock in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. In a preliminary at 12:30 the Sparta Seconds will play the S. S. Swedes' reserves. Only other game scheduled today involves the Olympias and Slovaks' reserves, at 12:30 o'clock, at 19th street and Kilpatrick avenue.

ILLINOIS VARSITY BEATS FRESHMEN 2D TIME, 36-31

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—University of Illinois varsity basketball players defeated the freshmen, 36 to 31, today for the second time this season. Hoot Evers led the varsity with six field goals and two free throws. He was followed by Bob Richmond with four field goals. Ken Menke from Dundee was the leading freshman scorer with four field goals and two free throws. Andy Phillip of Granite City was next with three field goals and a free throw.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

News of the week in women's circles naturally deals with the 298 game rolled by Sara Hannblom and 1,103 team game, including Mrs. Hannblom's 298, marked up by the Pabst Blue Ribbons in the Congress league Wednesday. Add to those totals the 2,935 submitted earlier by the Logan Square Buicks, and you have all of the nation's top scores for the year wrapped up by Congress league teams. Then draw your own conclusions about the caliber of women's—as well as men's—bowling in Chicago.

Sara Hannblom.

And, on that same subject, no one can detract from the scores rolled by the Metz Bowlrite shoes against the Pabsts Wednesday night. They lost two games to the Pabst's 2,907 series, but captured the first, 921 pins to 805, and scored 2,687 in the triple. All their bowlers, as well as the Pabsts', were on the honor roll. Their scores:

Kitty Mason, 501; Bernice Menkol, 521; Betty Latalla, 534; Elaine McLeod, 572; Betty Zeeb, 569.

An speaking of scores, a unique game was rolled by the Unique Cleaners of the Pioneer women's major. Here they are:

Scores:

Young Bowling Executive—Just 13.

It'll be news when Herb Freitag rolls less than 600 in the Gold Coast Major. He's done better than that in each of the 12 weeks this season. His average, 233, is high by 13 points . . . Bud Williams, 307 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, is probably Chicago's youngest bowling league executive. Just 13 years old, Bud is president of the Family league at Frank-Lin Bowling lanes, 505 W. Monroe street. His high game this year was 159

Bobby Hayes crashed thru with 258 and a 745 count for top in the South Shore major . . . Two brothers tournaments are coming up. There's Fred Tuerk's Peoria Star event, running from Dec. 26 to Jan. 12 at Peoria Auto Parts recreation in Peoria, entries for which close Wednesday. Then there's Peter Howley's 27th annual brothers event at Bensinger's, 29 W. Randolph center on Jan. 12, a three game handicap tourney. Schamberger brothers are defending champions in the Bensinger event. Only real brothers are eligible in both tournaments . . .

Hansen Leads in Railway League.

It's still a long time away, but entries are being taken for the Chicago District Country Clubs' fifth annual bowling tournament, to be run week-ends at Crest recreation, 6724 Stony Island avenue, March 22 to April 19. K. D. Farwell of South Shore Country club is president. Call Wentworth 5050 . . . S. M. Hansen's average of 187 gives him a 10-point margin in the C. and N. W. Railway league, but his 523 series last week wasn't helpful to him—nor to his team, Victory, which dropped a full set to Portland Rose.

Leaders and runnersup clash tomorrow night when the Budweisers meet the Furman Funerals in the Windy City circuit. The Buds' four-game margin precludes the possibility of the Furmans overhauling them, however. Other matches:

Houcek Senators vs. Nonebetter Ice Creams; Bireley's Beverages vs. Nemecek Tailors; Mineralites vs. O'Keefe Coals; Reichman Jewelers vs. J. M. Kralovec & Sons; Vogel Bros. vs. Quality Laundries; Betinis Boosters vs. Burlington Zephyrs; Blue Rock Beverages vs. Jos. L. Gills.

The North End Traveling league leaders both play at home tomorrow night, the Pepsi-Colas meeting the Jolly Jacks at Milford, and Chapin & Gore taking on De Luxe recreation at Faetz & Son, both at 7 o'clock. Other matches:

Budweisers vs. Samuelson's Kids at Samuelson's, 7 p. m.; Fox De Luxe vs. Trophy Beers at Willow, 7 p. m.; Shambergers vs. Koenig Brau at Stack & Ryan, 9 p. m.

Deadline for entries is today in Archer-35th recreation's South Side Parish handicap bowling tournament, open to teams in sanctioned church and fraternal league teams. There's competition in three events. The handicap it two-thirds with 200 as scratch. Tourney dates are Jan. 4-5 and 11-12.

The Walter C. Eden and William C. Danne Insurance teams remained in a first place deadlock in the Beverly Major by winning three games each Friday night. The Edens blanked the Ambrosia Nectars, paced by Jim Keating's 656, while the Dannes scored a triple over the Mathiesen Liquors.

Classic to Bowl at Stack & Ryan's.

John Thelen's 598 helped give Loyalty Group two close games over Youngberg-Carlson, but Charley Prucher's 674 wasn't quite enough to keep Aetna from dropping two to Pacific Nationals in the Insurance league. . . . Two highs were hit on the Merchandise Mart team in the women's division of the Mart league, Myrttle Nossem getting 215 and the team 888. Irene O'Conner of the same team hit 206. Ed Davis of N. B. C. was high in the major with 663.

The Sunday division of the Classic league bowls at Stack & Ryan's, 1133 Milwaukee avenue, at 8 o'clock tonight. The leading Monarch Beers meet the Blatz Beers, Ambrosias oppose the Pabst Blue Ribbons, Koenig Braus meet the Schlitzes, and the Michelobs are paired with the Ruppert Knickerbockers.

Competition is close in the Woodpeckers' league at the Lawrence Bowl. As the result of last week's upsets, the Bowman Dairy and Franzin Tire teams are tied for the lead with 21-15, while four other teams are tied for the next spot, a game behind.

Tom Finn hit 682 and John Kissane 640 in a series in the Congress Major in which Englewood Electrical Supply won a set from Hesser Tobacco.

After 21 Years He Gets 700 Series.

Buck Waldo of the Ducals in the Meyercord company league at Cinderella Recreation bowled the highest series of his life and the highest of the four years of the Meyercord league Wednesday. He bowled 204, 246, and 254 for a 703 total. Meyercord Decalcomania company has 10 five man teams and six five girl teams at Cinderella. Waldo has bowled for 21 years in Chicago leagues, finally achieving his dream 700 series in league competition.

The South End Traveling league race was thrown into a tie again when the Rheingold Beers swept a series from the Lewis Clothiers while the erstwhile leaders, Chicago Recreation, were taking a pair from Ace Arcade.

Crane Whips Oak Park for Soccer Title

Crane Tech, champion of the Chicago Public High School Soccer league, won the Cook county title yesterday, defeating Oak Park, Suburban league winner, 3 to 0, in Oak Park stadium. Oak Park was the defending champion, having scored a 1 to 0 victory over Lane Tech last season.

Playing on a slippery field, Crane scored twice in the opening half, Phil Greenspan netting each time on perfectly timed passing plays. Ed Bohm, diminutive Crane forward, tallied early in the second half for the final goal.

Crane's sturdy half back and full back line kept Oak Park's speedy forwards in check thruout and permitted them to take few shots at goal. Leonard Mottis, high scoring center forward of Oak Park, experienced poor shooting luck and was held scoreless for one of the few times this season. Sol and Yale Lederman, Crane's full back cousin line, starred on defense for the winners. [Lineup:

TAYLOR RIDES 2 MORE WINNERS FOR 267 TOTAL

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP).—Walter L. Taylor, Charles Town's leading jockey and runnerup in the race for the national title, won two more races today. The two victories brought his season's total to 267.

After the scheduled feature, a $1,000 handicap, has been canceled because of a muddy track and ailing horses, the fifth event, a mile and on-sixteenth race for $1,250 claimers, was the best on the card. Jean C., owned by Mrs. A. A. Gray and ridden by T. Everett, was an easy winner. She reached the finish line 10 lengths ahead of A. R. Cremen's Aster Princess. Conville, from Mrs. C. M. Feltner's stable was third, a half length in front of Taylor's mount, Dark Beau. Altho Jean C. had turned in a sparkling victory in a previous race here, she was only second choice in the betting, paying $9.80 for $2. Her time was 1:51 4-5.

FISKE TO OPPOSE DI RE TODAY FOR HANDBALL TITLE

Russell Fiske, 20 year old youngster from the 111th Street Y. M. C. A., will try to wrest the Chicago open singles handball championship from the veteran, George Di Re, in the finals of the 1941 tournament today in the Madison Athletic club, 4717 Madison street.

Fiske eliminated such veterans as Paddy Cannon, runnerup to Di Re last year and former state doubles titleholder, and Bob Kendler to reach the finals. He defeated Kendler yesterday, 21-5, 21-14. Di Re won over Ralph Sipes, Englewood "Y," in the other semi-final, 21-3, 21-3.

Sipes and Kendler will play for third place at 4 p. m. today in a preliminary to the championship match. The game will begin at 4 p. m. Both Di Re and Kendler represent the Chicago Towers club.

CONN IS EXPECTED TO FACE LOUIS IN JUNE TITLE FIGHT

Promoter Jacobs Hints Deal's About Ready.

New York, Dec. 14 [Special].—Unless present arrangements collapse, Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century A. C. is expected to announce within the next 48 hours plans for a heavyweight championship battle between Joe Louis, the title holder, and Billy Conn, Pittsburgh's holder of the world light heavyweight title, at a time and place yet to be decided.

The announcement is expected to involve the surrender by Conn of his 175 pound crown, abandonment of an announced plan for the defense of the title in Madison Square Garden, Feb. 28, and the decision by Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, to keep the Pittsburgher idle until he meets Louis.

Chicago Possible Site.

Mentioned as the site of the proposed Louis-Conn battle are New York, Chicago, Detroit, and Pittsburgh. The contest is expected to be staged in June as Louis' major outdoor operation of the year and the climax to a projected campaign that will see the title holder defending his crown in January, February, March, and April from coast to coast.

That information came today from a reliable source. Promoter Jacobs took off by plane for Boston without confirming the reports. Manager Ray said only that he is to sign a contract for Conn to fight Louis. He will be in Boston Monday night when Louis meets Al McCoy.

Also significant is the fact that Jacobs has authorized the statement he will make an important announcement in Boston. The inference is the promoter is awaiting the outcome of the Louis-McCoy bout.

Conn Foremost Contender.

Following precedent, Promoter Jacobs also is expected to sign Conn to a contract for exclusive control over the Pittsburgher's future ring services.

General opinion is that Conn stands alone as a logical candidate for the heavyweight championship chance, since all other heavyweights either have had a crack at the title or have fallen by the wayside.

Max Baer, and Tony Galento have been eliminated. Arturo Godoy, twice repulsed in his title challenge, is paired with Louis for a California battle in April. Lee Savold proved something less than adequate recently in his disappointing clash with Conn in Madison Square Garden. Abe Simon has not yet attained stature that would entitle him to consideration for a major outdoor bout against the brown bomber.

Conn May Go Into Movies.

Conn, not looked on as a Jim Corbett or even a Jack Delaney or Jimmy Slattery, nevertheless is about the fastest big fellow in ring regalia today. He has no punching strength worthy the designation, but fistic circles feel this shortcoming may be remedied or become less pronounced by next June.

Lending support to the belief that Conn would be retired from the ring until he enters against Louis is the understanding that Conn will sign to make a motion picture starting early in 1941. Manager Ray has held several conferences with motion picture representatives.

Martin Seeks Recognition in Franklin Bout

Selman Martin, Chicago heavyweight trial horse, will receive an opportunity to step into the limelight in a 10 round bout against Lem Franklin in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Martin, who has been boxing professionally for two years with a measure of success, earned the assignment by scoring an upset victory over Paul Hartnek in Omaha on Nov. 28. This is a notable achievement, especially since Hartnek conquered Franklin for the Chicagoland Golden Gloves championship three years ago.

Prior to his conquest of Hartnek, Martin, who weighs 201 pounds, lost a decision in eight rounds to Don Siegel, but only after giving Siegel's backers many anxious moments. Martin also suffered a setback at the hands of Big Ben Moroz in Marigold arena last June 24. This victory, however, was disputed.

Altho Franklin has won his last three contests by knockouts, Martin must be conceded a chance to score an upheaval because of his unorthodox style, ruggedness, and stamina. Lem's victims include Eddie Blunt, Nov. 25; Napoleon Franklin, Aug. 12, and Willie Reddish, March 14.

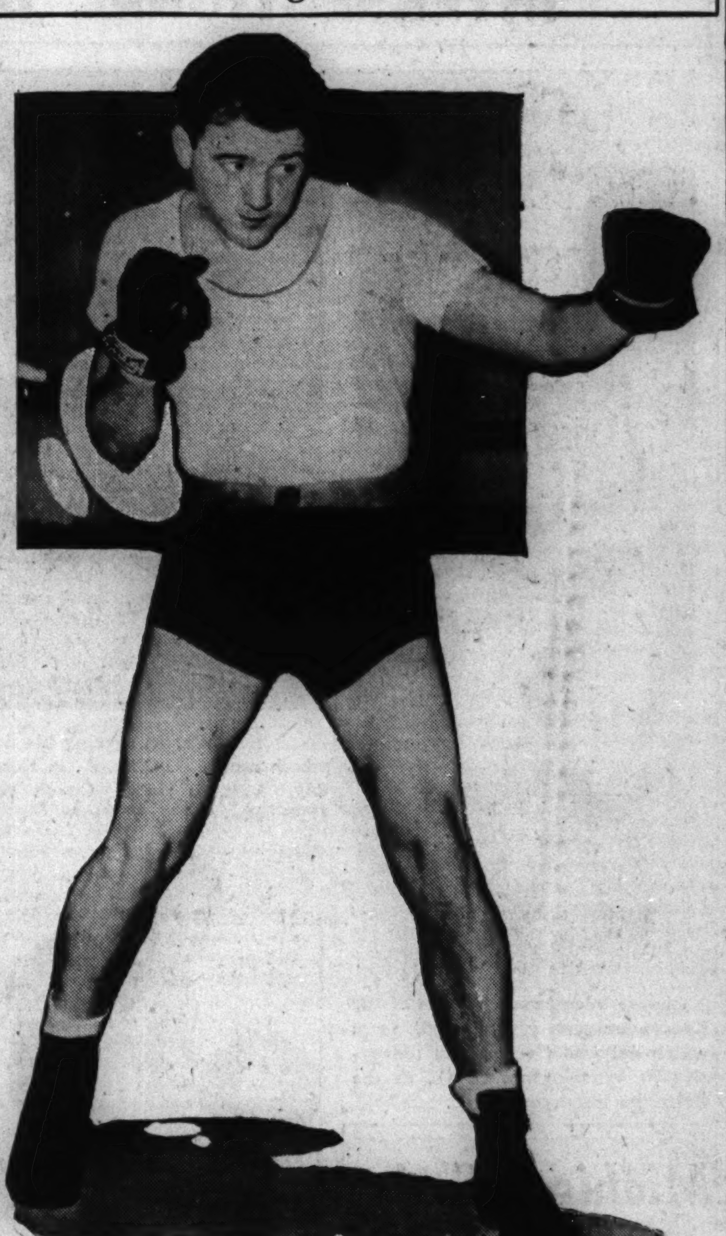
Harvey Dubs, hard hitting lightweight of Windsor, Ont., and Eu Eulien are principals in an eight round secondary feature. Matches of four rounds involve Billy Pierce, Milwaukee welterweight, and Stanley Murczek; Johnny O'Hara, Chicago middleweight, and Speedy Schaefer, and Jimmy Pierce, middleweight, also of Milwaukee, and Tony Reno. The Pierce boys are brothers. Bill has been substituted for Mike Sopko.

The Swedish and Irish Angels will be featured in two wrestling bouts in White City tomorrow, the former against Oki Shikina and the Irish Angel against Rudy Kay. Promoter Fred Kohler has closed preliminary encounters between Rufus Jones and Dizzy Davis, Gene Bowman and Pete Baltran, and Jack Moore and Adolph Goebels.

Lacrosse Association Will Hold All-Star Game in '41

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The executive committee and officers of the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse association voted today to sponsor an all-star intercollegiate game in June, 1941. This was the only important action taken during a day devoted largely to a discussion of rules in which the coaches of all the 21 member colleges participated.

How Long Can He Last?



The big question is not "Who will win tomorrow?" but "How long will Al McCoy (above) last against Joe Louis?" They meet in a 15 round bout in Boston Garden. McCoy is the ring name for Floyd Albert La Brasseur. He's 26 years old and started boxing as a flyweight. He'll weigh approximately 185 when he opposes Louis with Joe's world title at stake.

Lake Forest's Unbeaten Players to Get Charms

Gold footballs in honor of an undefeated season will be presented members of Lake Forest college's football squad at the annual banquet Tuesday evening in the Deerpath inn, Lake Forest. Clarence Diver, chairman of the board of trustees, will preside. Coach Ralph Jones and R. C. Tomlinson will speak.

LOUIS AND M'COY MEET TOMORROW IN 'TITLE' MATCH

It's the First Championship Bout for Boston.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 14 [Special].—Boston, a city in which a heavyweight championship bout never has been held before, becomes the boxing capital of the world on Monday when Joe Louis will defend his title in a 15 round engagement against Al McCoy. The National Boxing association, which heretofore has refused to give title recognition to encounters between champions and boxers not listed in the N. B. A. ratings, has changed its policy and will accept the match as for Louis' belt.

Altho McCoy, who at 182 is only seven pounds heavier than a light heavyweight, is not given much chance to dethrone the Brown Bomber, Promoter Rip Valenti predicts a capacity crowd of more than 14,000 will be in the Boston Garden when the men enter the ring.

These spectators are expected to contribute a gate in excess of $40,000 for the privilege of seeing Louis perform in Boston for the first time.

McCoy a Soft Touch.

They know McCoy will be a soft touch, but they want to see for themselves if the champ is the great fighter they have read about. Followers have little doubt Louis will knock out the challenger whenever the mood strikes him. Nevertheless, they want to be on hand for the momentous event.

Since John L. Sullivan, the Boston Strong Boy, claimed the bare knuckle championship in 1882, 15 men have held the heavyweight title, and Louis is the first one to place his belt on the block in Boston, even if the opponent is a comparative unknown.

Before he was relieved of his championship in 1892, Sullivan boxed a four round exhibition with Alf Greenfield in Boston. This and a similar showing by Jack Dempsey against Jack Thompson Oct. 7, 1922, when Dempsey held the crown, are the only other times a heavyweight title holder has performed in Boston.

McCoy on Home Grounds.

Despite the fact that he calls Waterville, N. Y., his home, McCoy has made 15 previous appearances in Boston. He lost five decisions, scored one draw, and won nine verdicts. During a seven year campaign, Al has suffered 13 setbacks, fought 3 draws, and registered 59 victories.

McCoy has failed to go the limit only once in 75 bouts, Andre Lenglet stopping him in two rounds in Montreal, Que., Nov. 25, 1937.

In Louis' last appearance he retained his title by scoring an eight round technical knockout over Arturo Godoy in Yankee stadium on June 20. It was Joe's 11th championship defense and his third of the year, two of which were against Godoy. Other victims were Johnny Paycheck, Tony Galento, Max Schmeling, Jack Roper, John Henry Lewis, Nate Mann, Tommy Farr, Bob Pastor, and Harry Thomas.

1,200 to Attend Football Fete at Notre Dame

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 14 [Special].—The Notre Dame club of St. Joseph Valley will hold its 21st annual banquet for the University of Notre Dame football team here Monday night. More than 1,200 are expected to attend.

Principal speaker of the evening will be Gene Tunney, retired undefeated heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Pat O'Malley, Lancashire humorist on the radio program, "Alec Templeton Time," will be toastmaster and master of ceremonies. Among the celebrities whom O'Malley will introduce are James Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox; Jimmy Wilson, new manager of the Chicago Cubs; Lynn Waldorf, football coach of Northwestern university; Eddie Anderson, coach of the University of Iowa; Harry Stuhldreher, coach of the University of Wisconsin.

BUSINESS RISE HITS NEW PEAK AMID WARNINGS

Defense Work Lag Arouses Concern.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

Business analysts last week tempered their optimism over the unprecedented industrial advance with expressions of serious misgivings over the course of defense production and methods of financing the armament preparations.

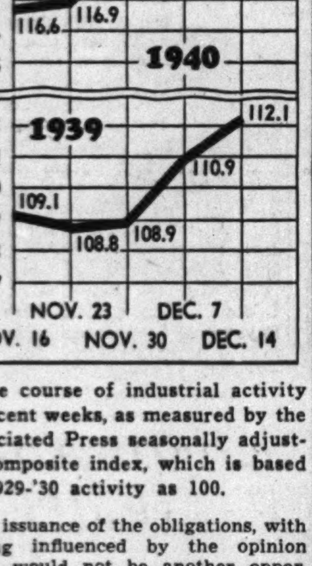
As industrial production moved to a still higher notch, sending 1929 records into the discard, William S. Knudsen, directing the production phase of the defense program, declared the output of airplanes is lagging 30 per cent behind schedule, and called for greater effort.

Criticism of the nation's methods of raising the billions necessary for defense came from bankers, senators, and others. Both questions came before two of the most important conventions of the year, the meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers in New York and the convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America in Hollywood, Fla.

Demand Aims Be Defined.

The manufacturers demanded a clear definition of the nation's defense aims and more efficiency in governmental organization for defense, meanwhile pledging utmost coöperation in arms production. The bankers, several senators, and others expressed concern over the treasury's drive to remove all tax exemptions on federal securities, initiated in the sale of a half billion dollar issue, fearing the new policy would make defense financing considerably more expensive.

In reflection of this policy, virtually all outstanding governmental security issues sold at the highest levels since issuance of the obligations, with buying influenced by the opinion there would not be another opportunity to obtain tax exempt federal issues.



The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Merchants thruout the country meanwhile counted higher sales and agreed with Washington forecasts that the volume of Christmas shopping in units will be the largest the nation has ever known. The flood of dollars pouring over retail counters was swelled by increased factory pay rolls, larger dividend payments, and additional bonuses by corporations in various fields.

Index Reaches New Peak.

Spending sentiment was influenced by estimates that national income would reach 75 billions this year, against 80 billions in 1929, and would mount still higher next year. John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury, said the 100 billion mark was in sight.

The gauge of industry provided by the Associated Press index, which is based on 1929-'30 activities as 100, reached 119.5, compared with 118.5 the week before and 112.1 a year ago, when the initial war stimulated upsurge was at its height. The index follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Automobile prod.....	113.4	114.0	105.8
Steel mill act.	128.9	130.1	122.4
Cotton mfg. act.....	*144.0	139.4	135.4
Elec. pwr. prod.....	*136.7	135.9	129.1
Residential bldg.	118.5	123.4	98.4
Total car loadings..	* 78.6	76.1	74.0
Composite index	*119.5	118.5	112.1

*New 1940 high.

Steel production remained close to the point of full capacity at a rate of 96 per cent, a 0.9 per cent decline from the preceding week being attributed to the necessity of taking some mills out of production for repairs. The government tightened its curb on steel exports, and higher prices were quoted on pig iron.

Plant Expansions Continue.

A virtually unbroken series of increases in electrical power production brought announcements of additional plans for plant expansion. Private and defense factory construction remained far above last year's levels with awards placed at $81,725,000 by Engineering News-Record, against $40,158,000 in the corresponding 1939 week.

The federal reserve board announced that November production had achieved a historic level, but, touching on a factor which is being given increasing weight in the stock market, observed that corporation profits had "declined somewhat" because increased taxes are absorbing a larger share of business earnings.

Among significant developments of the week from the municipal standpoint was the start of new Chicago efforts to facilitate slum clearance thru proposed "redevelopment" corporations. Hearings were begun on a new bill to provide private financing of such projects.

Fear Federal Dictation of Market News

An attempt by the federal government to monopolize the broadcasting of marketing information to rural areas was disclosed in Washington yesterday following conferences here between government experts and Chicago traders. Opposition to the proposal has been voiced by farm representatives.

Under the proposed plan a new office of the marketing service of the department of agriculture will be opened in Chicago about Jan. 15. A specialist in charge will gather information about agricultural markets in the city and make it available for use by the press and radio.

Plan Exclusive Broadcast.

One of the features of the proposed service will be an exclusive daily broadcast over station WLS in which prices from live stock, grain, poultry, and produce markets will be quoted. This will replace broadcasts from the live stock market now sponsored by the Chicago Live Stock exchange and the Chicago Producers Live Stock Commission association, neither of which has indicated a desire to withdraw.

Charles Rice, president of the live stock exchange, said he feared government control of marketing news might lead to poorer service to listeners, altho such a result might not necessarily follow.

David L. Swanson, president of the producers' group, a farmers' coöperative, said his board of directors has decided to disregard the government plan because broadcasts by private sponsors may be more complete and free than those offered by the government.

Will Continue Forecasts.

"For example," Swanson said, "congress forbids the government marketing service to offer any sort of market forecasts, altho this is a common practice in present news broadcasts. Farmers want and expect to hear advice which will aid them in planning their shipping.

"In offering these forecasts we supply a service the government cannot duplicate, and until we learn that farmers do not want them we shall resist any attempts to have our broadcasts canceled."

John S. Campbell, live stock, meats, and wool specialist for the government marketing service, said the department of agriculture was interested in execusive broadcasting rights only over station WLS, the station generally identified with the rural radio audience. He said sponsors might shift to other stations without interference.

CONGRESS TALKS OF JOINT GROUP ON NEW TAXES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—Confronted with the prospect of new defense appropriations and higher taxes, senate and house leaders talked over today ways of cutting down non-defense expenditures.

Considerable sentiment was evidenced for setting up a new "super committee" to coördinate spending and revenue policies.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], member of the house appropriations committee, said he was seeking the coöperation of President Roosevelt and house and senate leaders in forming a group which would obtain an over-all picture of spending needs and then would recommend what revenues should be raised.

Chairman Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], of the senate finance committee proposed a 24 member joint fiscal committee last January, but the house shelved the idea after it had been approved by the senate.

FORM COMPANY TO HELP ACQUIRE CONGRESS HOTEL

The Michigan-Congress corporation has been organized as a step in the negotiations of John J. Mack, president of the Trionne Hotel company, for acquisition of the Congress hotel from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, it was learned yesterday. A state charter shows the new corporation will be capitalized at 25,000 shares of $10 par value stock.

The RFC, government lending agency, acquired the Congress last year on default of a $900,000 loan. The Trionne company operates the Hotel Chicagoan at 63-69 West Madisomstreet. Earlier steps in the Mack-RFC negotiations were disclosed recently.

NATIONAL STEEL TO INCREASE PIG IRON AND COKE CAPACITY

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—National Steel corporation officials disclosed today that the board of directors had approved a program increasing the company's pig iron production capacity 420,000 tons a year.

Ernest T. Weir, board chairman, said the management had been instructed to make provisional estimates for construction of an additional 360,000 ton blast furnace and 64 coke ovens.

Asserting that the approved and pending expansion would be required under the national defense program, Weir said the program would include tearing down and rebuilding two blast furnaces at Detroit and Buffalo. Other changes at Weirton, W. Va., were being contemplated, he added.

He said no direct increase in steel making capacity would be undertaken, but that the added pig iron and coke facilities would help increase production at existing steel mills.

NOVEMBER RAIL REVENUES RISE ABOVE YEAR AGO

The Association of American Railroads estimated yesterday that 84 class 1 railroads had operating revenues of $305,236,870 in November, compared with $301,463,452 a year ago. The 84 carriers represent 81.9 per cent of total operating revenues of all class 1 railroads.

Freight revenues amounted to $254,954,834, compared with $252,608,125 and passenger revenues $26,300,039, against $24,931,063 in November, 1939.

TWO NEW BUSES ARE RECEIVED BY MOTOR COACH CO.

Two new single deck diesel busses, the first of 25 that will be added to the fleet of the Chicago Motor Coach company by next Saturday, arrived in Chicago yesterday after a 281 mile trip from the factory in Pontiac, Mich. They will be put into service as they arrive, bus company officials said.

The new busses have smoking compartments in the rear, are more streamlined than the old style now in operation, have more vision space for passengers, better ventilation facilities and stronger lighting systems, according to the company. Each will seat 45 passengers. The additions will bring the bus company's fleet to 500 when the deliveries are complete.

Morgenthau Says Taxable Loan Was Oversubscribed

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—Secretary Henry Morgenthau said today the treasury's offering of its first wholly taxable obligations was more than eight times oversubscribed. The offering was $500,000,000 of ¾ per cent five year treasury notes, national defense series. Subscribers were allotted 13 per cent on a straight percentage basis, but not less than $100 on any one subscription.

Pennsylvania Salt Mfg. Buys Bonneville Power

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The department of the interior today announced the sale of 2,000 kilowatts of Bonneville-Grand Coulee power to the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing company of Washington state. It will be used in a sodium chlorate plant at Portland, Ore. The purchaser will pay the government $17.50 per kilowatt per year.

Terms Britain Ahead of Axis in Oil Supplies

After more than a year of war, Great Britain still is much more favorably situated with regard to oil supply than Germany and Italy, the Bank of Nova Scotia, Toronto, Ont., stated yestertay after a world-wide survey.

Among other developments the bank reported these:

1. Canada is increasing oil production and expanding its refining capacity, lessening its dependence on imported oil, and, at the same time, boosting dominion output of aviation gasoline needed for training war pilots.

Haifa Refinery Valuable.

2. A new British refinery at Haifa, Palestine, is proving to be of great "on the spot" value, and the oil of Iraq is strategically important for warfare in the eastern Mediterranean, as well as being a source of supply for British African and far eastern possessions.

3. Europe's only sources of natural petroleum supplies are Rumania, Russia, and scattered European wells with a relatively small volume.

4. Most of Britain's oil supply routes, with the exception of the Mediterranean, remain open, altho shipments are hampered by enemy submarines.

The bank's study showed that 30 per cent of Britain's supply of oil was shipped by way of the Mediterranean sea in peacetime, and 67 per cent by way of the Atlantic from the western hemisphere. The preponderance of the western hemisphere as a source has proved a big advantage to England in the war, the bank stated.

Sources Strategically Located.

"Strategically, the distribution of oil imports was a favorable one for Britain when war came," the review said. "Britain's extensive dependence on the western hemisphere for oil products minimized the effects of any disturbance to trade thru the Mediterranean.

"At the same time, the dependence of Britain's enemies on these same sources, to the extent of 80 per cent of total imports for Germany and 61 per cent for Italy, made the blockade of the Atlantic an effective means of curtailing their supplies."

The bank said it was impossible to learn how much synthetic oil and fuel production in Germany has increased since the war began. In 1938 Germany produced 13,000,000 barrels of synthetic liquid fuels from coal, and had a domestic crude oil output of 4,300,000 barrels. These sources combined equaled 30 per cent of German consumption. Italy, lacking coal, cannot produce any large amount of synthetic oil products, the review said.

N. Y. BROKERS RENEW MOVE FOR EXTENDED STOCK TRADING PERIOD

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—A new movement to add another hour to the daily trading session of the New York Stock exchange was reported today to have been started in brokerage circles.

A poll of 150 members and partners in member firms during a recent meeting was said to have shown preponderant support for the longer trading hours in an effort to attract more business to the exchange.

Proponents have been citing the experience of the Chicago Stock exchange, arguing that market increased its business by extending the session to six hours from five.

The governors of the New York exchange recently rejected the proposal, growing largely out of the slump in trading the last two years.

MORE OFFICERS OF BIG UTILITY TO BE SHIFTED

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Trustees of the bankrupt Associated Gas and Electric company system plan a further revision in the executive personnel, it was learned today.

The changes, effective Jan. 1 and part of a long-range program formulated by Denis J. Driscoll and Dr. Willard Thorp, the trustees, will affect New York State Electric and Gas corporation, one of the system's major operating units, and Utility Management corporation, service organization for the entire system.

R. D. Jennison, president of Utility Management for several years, has resigned and may be shifted to Ithaca, N. Y., to assume presidency of New York State Electric. Jennison also is to resign as president of Metropolitan Edison company, an important Pennsylvania subsidiary.

Omrod Titus, executive vice president and general manager of New York State Electric, is scheduled to leave that position and take over the presidency of Metropolitan Edison.

COTTON EXPORTS FALL FAR BELOW TOTALS FOR 1939

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 [Special].—November exports of raw cotton from the United States totaled 145,000 bales valued at $7,665,000 compared with 195,000 bales valued at $10,474,000 in October and 584,000 bales in November, 1939, the department of commerce reported today.

In the four months from August thru November exports totaled 495,000 bales, valued at $26,707,000, compared with 2,328,000 bales valued at $123,050,000 for the corresponding four months of 1939, a decline of 78.7 per cent in quantity and 78.2 per cent in value.

Slight Dip in Steel Mill Operations Is Expected

A survey of Chicago district steel mill schedules yesterday indicated the mills would start operations tomorrow at 97.2 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 97.3 per cent at the beginning of last week. Pittsburgh mills are scheduled to start at 96 per cent, compared with 98 per cent last week, the necessity for furnace repairs causing the decline.

VAST ORDNANCE PLANT GOES TO ST. LOUIS AREA

Orders Totaling 105 Millions Involved.

Award of $105,887,790 of contracts in connection with what war department officials termed the largest single ordnance manufacturing project in the national defense program to date was announced in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

The contracts were for supervisory engineering services in construction of a small arms ammunition plant at St. Louis and for a large initial order of ammunition to be produced at the plant.

Meantime the navy department announced it had chosen the sites for four naval ordnance plants to cost a total of about $35,000,000.

Officials said the new facilities would produce guns, mounts, and armor plate, but declined specific details until land is purchased and contracts awarded.

Ready in About a Year.

The war department's plant will be built on a 134 acre site and will require 10,000 to 12,000 employés when production starts in about a year, officials said. Land purchase contracts are being negotiated and construction contracts are being drawn.

Western Cartridge company, East Alton, Ill., received an $18,600,000 contract to supervise the engineering and construction of the St. Louis plant, and to procure equipment and supervise its installation.

United States Cartridge company, Baltimore, Md., which will operate the plant on a cost plus fixed fee basis, was awarded an order for $87,279,790 of ammunition to be made at the new factory. The government will retain title to the plant. The builder will be announced later, the department said.

Locations of Plants.

The locations of the navy's new plants and the plants' costs are: Canton, O., $16,000,000; Detroit, $12,000,000; Indianapolis, $6,000,000, and Macon, Ga., $800,000.

Acting Navy Secretary James Forrestal said 2,500 persons will be employed at the Indianapolis plant when it is put into operation.

The war department announced several batches of orders for equipment and supplies. One group of orders totaled $5,021,672 and included 2,833,000 yards of khaki cotton cloth and 7,560,000 pairs of cotton shorts. Carmi-Feature Underwear, Inc., of Carmi, Ill., will make 700,000 pairs of the shorts for $194,000, and Reliance Manufacturing company, Michigan City, Ind., will make 1,000,000 pairs for $297,028.

Chicago Firms Get Orders.

Another group of war department orders included these to Chicago companies:

Illinois Tool works, machines, $7,500; shaping machines, $7,500. Charles Bruning Co., Inc., photo print machines, $1,253; Armstrong-Blum Manufacturing company, cutting machines, $3,504; Joseph N. Eisendrath company, horsehide mittens, $1,320; H. Bernstein & Co., 5,000 mackinaw coats, $8,600; Standard Oil Company of Chicago, aircraft fuel, $69,850; A. Finkl & Sons company, artillery material, $15,600; E. L. Essley Machinery company, riveting machines, $1,113; Austin-Hastings Co., Inc., hack saw machines, $13,781; Size Control company, gages, $1,181; Viking Apparel Manufacturing company, 5,000 one-piece working suits, $4,234, and Presto Gas Manufacturing company, component parts for field ranges, $51,273.

The navy department awarded National Cylinder Gas company, Chicago, an order of $6,750 for acetylene gas cylinders.

Joseph W. Frazer, president of Willys-Overland and Motors, Inc., announced the company has received an additional order amounting to $1,500,000 for 1,500 light reconnaissance cars.

Abbott Sales in Latin America Are Above 1939

Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago manufacturer of pharmaceutical and vitamin products, has sold more of its products in Central America and South America this year than in in 1939, R. M. Cain, executive vice president, reported at a meeting of sales officials.

Chemists See Big Progress as War Result

Chemically and industrially, America is destined to forge ahead more impressively as a result of this war than it did after the war of 1914-'18, the national industrial chemical conference was told at its concluding session in the Stevens hotel yesterday.

In making this prediction, Lawrence W. Bass, assistant director of the Mellon institute, Pittsburgh, Pa., asserted "the startling developments" of the chemical industry since the world war cut off America's supplies of certain dyes and other products would be further enhanced.

Field Declared Vast.

Outlining some of the "miracles" of research in capturing and utilizing by-products for industry, Bass declared:

"While great strides have been made in adapting by-products and industrial wastes to useful ends, the inherent possibilities for future developments are practically inexhaustible. Every unprocessed waste is a liability of some sort and eventually may be the subject of legislation. Legal restrictions are likely to demand drastic action which often is not the wisest or most economical solution."

Development of a line of foundry products based on skim milk solids, insulating board from cane sugar refuse, and sulphur dioxide from smelter fumes, added to the meat packing industry's widely known use of "everything but the pig's squeal," illustrates chemistry's progress, he said.

Need Management Traihing.

J. R. Bailey, industrial engineer of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., declared that with the chemical industry "reaching the period of greatest activity in the history of this country," there is increasing need for training in all phases of chemical industry management.

The experienced chemical worker is still vital in the industry notwithstanding "the wonders accomplished by automatic control instruments," said John J. Grebe of the Dow Chemical company, Dearborn, Mich. These instruments, he declared, "are not a cheap substitute for the experienced touch."

The chemical show conducted in connection with the conference attracted 32,000 attendance since its opening last Wednesday.

UTILITIES ASKED TO COMMENT ON SEC RULE PLANS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission asked the utility industry today for opinions on a proposed general revision of the SEC's rules under the public utility holding company act.

The commission sent a tentative draft of the new rules to all utilities holding companies and their subsidiaries, state utility commission officials, and others concerned with the operation of the law, and asked them to comment by Dec. 30.

The major proposed changes include the omission of any general exemption for nonutility subsidiaries of registered holding companies, along with the addition of a requirement that certain nonutility holding companies which are subsidiaries of registered holding companies conform to the uniform system of accounts prescribed by the commission, and that operating company subsidiaries, not now subject to a uniform system, conform to one of two systems.

1,226 TRAINS RUN DAILY AT MILE A MINUTE OR MORE

Travelers' demands for more and more speed have brought into service 1,226 trains operated daily in the United States and Canada on schedules of a mile a minute or faster, compared with 997 at this time last year, the annual Railroad magazine survey showed yesterday.

By including the records of transcontinental streamliners that operate only on certain days, the total is brought to 1,294 runs covering 73,165 miles, compared with 1,070 runs and 65,034 miles a year ago.

Mile a minute service has more than doubled in four years. There were 579 daily runs covering 29,301 miles in 1936. During the last year 11 runs were added to those listed at speeds of 70 miles and more per hour, bringing the total number to 96.

LET 37 MILLION WRIGHT ENGINE FACTORY ORDER

Plant Will Have 33 Acres of Space.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Wright Aeronautical corporation today awarded a construction contract for a factory and assembly plant to contain 33 acres of floor space at Lockland, O.

Albert Kahn.

Frank Messer & Sons, Cincinnati contracting firm, got the contract, described by Albert Kahn, Detroit architect who drew the plans as the largest building award ever let under one contract in the United States.

The plant will cost about $37,000,000. It is being financed partially by Reconstruction Finance corporation funds as part of the defense program.

Will Double Production.

Wright engine production, it was estimated by officials, will be doubled when the new plant is geared to its annual output of 12,000 motors. Output will consist mostly of engines ranging from 750 to 2,200 horse power.

The company has already placed orders for $20,000,000 worth of machine tools and other supplies to equip the factory.

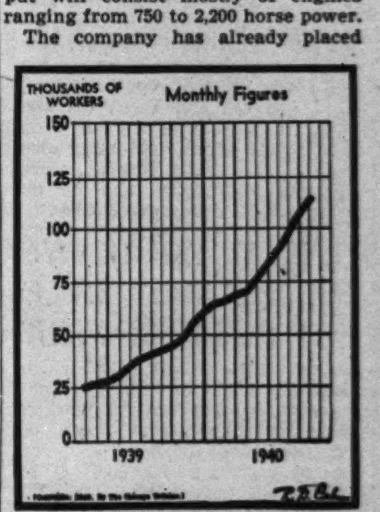

Chart shows increase in employment in aircraft factories in last two years.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 persons in the Cincinnati area are expected to be employed.

Covers 1,400,000 Square Feet.

Myron B. Gordon, Wright vice president and general manager, said construction would begin immediately and the first portion be ready for occupancy next spring. It will house a section for the manufacture of aircraft engine parts.

The factory and assembly plant will cover about 1,400,000 square feet and have overall dimensions of 1,064 feet by 1,320 feet.

The giant factory will be of modern one-story construction, with a monitor type roof of concrete tile supported by steel girders. The walls will be of modern tile facing and high intensity lighting will be installed.

Includes Office Building.

The two story office building will be of fireproof reinforced construction and will measure approximately 500 by 50 feet.

The Cincinnati firm also was awarded the contract for construction of the general offices of the plane company's Cincinnati division, which will devote its entire time to production of Wright "Cyclone" aircraft engines for the national defense program.

Several weeks ago a contract was let for building a foundry at the Lockland site, which is north of Cincinnati. Mohony-Troast company of Passaic, N. J., got that job.

STOCKS UNEVEN; MANY LEADERS SLIP SLIGHTLY

Specialties and Senior Shares Gain.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The stock market today ended with declines exceeding gains. Altho an assortment of specialties and senior issues exhibited individual strength, many leaders slipped a notch or two in the brief session.

Traders apparently found little inspiration in the war news but the fairly optimistic business situation, including actual and prospective dividends and pleasing earnings statements, brought in selective bidding. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks eased 0.1 point at 44.2, but on the week was up as much.

Sell for Tax Purposes.

Large blocks of several low quoted issues, apparently liquidated for tax adjustment purposes, lifted the two hour volume to 390,360 shares.

United States Steel lost a point and Youngstown Sheet ⅝, but Bethlehem finished with a gain of ⅛. Nickel Plate preferred pushed up at the start but was thrown for a loss when the company denied reports of plans for refinancing some bond maturities thru a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Jones & Laughlin preferred, on the other hand, advanced 3½ to 106, a new 1940 top.

Some of the Losers.

Among losers were Chrysler, United States Rubber, Sears-Roebuck, Boeing, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, North American, New York Central, and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Seaboard Airline sold in blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares, off 1-16 of a point at ⅛, a new 1940 low.

Emerging with modest improvement were American Telephone, General Motors, Kennecott, American Can, Loew's, International Telephone, United Aircraft, and Texas corporation.

Stocks just about held their own Monday, edged back Tuesday, were unchanged Wednesday, and up on the average Thursday and Friday.

WHEAT WEAKENS ON HEAVY SALE OF JULY OPTION

Liberal selling of July wheat which brokers attributed to spreading commitments to other options marked trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Closing sales were near the bottom at losses of ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel, the latter on July. Continued favorable weather and crop reports also had some effect on sentiment.

At no time did the grain markets show material strength altho December wheat was relatively firm. Corn futures were ¼ to ⅜ cent lower. Oats finished ⅛ to ½ cent lower. Rye lost ¼ to ⅜ cent. There was a letup in the liquidation in soy beans and aggressive commission house buying caused an upturn of about 2 cents at one time. The rally was lost later with the close ⅝ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

COTTON

Trading in cotton yesterday was on a small scale, with futures closing .01 to .02 cent a pound lower. The bulk of the trade was of a professional character except for scattered hedging pressure.

Consumption of cotton by American mills in November was 744,000 bales, the Census bureau estimated, compared with 770,000 bales in October and 719,000 bales in November, 1939.

Cash cotton closed unchanged to .03 cent lower, with New York, 10.37 cents; New Orleans, 9.95 cents; Galveston, 9.83 cents, and Houston at 9.79 cents a pound. Futures prices follow:

GAINS AND DIPS ABOUT EQUAL IN STAPLE TRADING

Rubber, Tin, Wool Tops Decline Last Week.

Gains just about equaled losses last week as commodity futures moved indecisively within a moderate range. Copper, lead, hides, and silk moved forward, while rubber, tin, Santos coffee, and wool tops, which earlier rose to a new 1940 high, lost ground. Cash prices were lower in some staples.

After reaching the peak price of $1.22½ a pound in December deliveries, wool tops faltered to break a series of successive yearly highs. The contract closed the week a cent lower at $1.20 and the cash price fell a like amount to $1.20½ bid. Santos coffee slumped nearly ¼ cent a pound to 6.17 cents in December.

Metal Markets Quiet.

Metal markets were quiet. Copper added 0.04 cent a pound at 10.96 cents for December and lead for delivery this month gained 0.03 cent at 5.20 cents. Tin eased 0.05 cent to 49.90 cents and lost 0.15 cent in the cash market. Other cash metals were steady.

Hides finished the week 0.35 cent a pound higher at 12.99 cents in December. The cash price was off ⅛ cent at 13 cents.

The Associated Press weighted wholesale price index of 35 cash staples, based on 1926 as 100, closed at 77.38, unchanged from last week. The Dow-Jones commodity futures index declined 0.12 to 56.35. Prices follow:

RAIL BONDS RISE TO YEAR'S PEAKS IN LARGE VOLUME

Improving Holiday Traffic Outlook a Factor.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Railroad bonds moved into the highest price levels of the year today and imparted modest strength to other sections of the listed market.

Demand for the carrier loans was inspired, brokers said, by the better outlook for the transportation industry as indicated by a contra-seasonal rise in carloadings last week and heavy bookings of holiday passenger traffic, which for some roads has already established new records.

Trade at Peak Since May.

Trading was the most active for any Saturday since May 18. Total sales at $5,738,400, par value, compared with $4,648,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press average of 10 rail bond issues rose .2 of a point to 61.3, a new 1940 high.

Prominent in the day's advance were Southern Railway 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s, Northern Pacific 4s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, Great Northern 4s, Erie 5s, American and Foreign Power 5s, and Western Union 5s.

Government Issues Dull.

French stamped 7½s rose 4½ points to 74 on sale of a single bond. Denmark 6s dropped 5¾s to 32¼. Canada 4s were up 1⅜.

TUNG OIL.

Tung oil farms have become as popular as oil royalties and silver fox farms with promoters of get-rich-quick schemes. Inquiries to the Investors' Guide in recent months indicate that these promoters have been active in small towns and rural areas, especially among elderly persons.

The usual scheme takes the form of an offer of unimproved land which allegedly is suitable for tung tree culture. The sales contract includes an agreement under which the investor leases the land back to the promoter for a small rental. The promoter promises to cultivate the land, harvest the crops, and share the profits with the investor.

These schemes capitalize on the existence of a growing domestic tung oil industry. Altho still in its infancy, the industry has received impetus from the recurring interruptions of the inflow of the oil from China, the chief source of supply.

Altho there appears to be a sound economic basis for the development of a domestic tung oil industry, investors should be cautioned that tung oil enterprises are necessarily a hazardous speculation. Venture capital from individuals or corporations in position to risk their funds has been invested in tung tree developments in the gulf coast region. The ordinary investor, however, cannot gamble on unproved ventures if he hopes to keep his savings intact.

The resumption of normal shipments of tung oil from China would retard development of the domestic industry. The development of substitutes also makes the future of the industry uncertain.

There is a 100 mile strip running from east Texas thru Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and into Florida that can be used for tung tree developments. Included in this area is much swamp land which does not have sufficient drainage, and also some sections which are not entirely free from killing frosts. It should be stressed also that a crop cannot be obtained until the third year after planting.

The problems which confront the ordinary investor who is offered land for tung tree cultivation are numerous. Without going to added expense, he cannot determine whether the land is suitable, whether it is near transportation facilities, near pressing mills, nor whether the management of his land will be in expert and honest hands.

Tung tree farms are not suitable for investment of savings by the average investor because the uncertainties of obtaining a profitable crop are great, even if the land purchased is suitable for cultivation.

PACKERS EXPECT BIG CHRISTMAS MEAT GIFT SALE

Hams, Bacon Are Done Up in Gay Packages.

Packers and retail butcher shops thruout the country are anticipating a much larger Christmas "meat gift" trade this year than ever before. Giving meat as gifts has grown in popularity in recent years and has developed into quite a large trade aside from the regular holiday demand, meat men at the stockyards said yesterday. Advance orders for cuts most appropriate for wrapping into attractive packages are already unusually large, it was said.

Priced Above Year Ago.

Prices for all meats will run higher than during the Christmas buying season of last year, and most beef cuts will cost more than two years ago. However, such cuts as hams bacon will be available at reasonable prices compared with all other meat, it was said. As a result of the immense volume of pork production recently, and the fact that export demand has practically disappeared, packers estimate that the preholiday pork supply for domestic consumption is the largest on record this year.

Markets for most classes of meat animals at the stockyards were erratic last week. Average costs in cattle and lambs were generally lower, while hog costs averaged about the same as the week before.

Steers Average Lower.

The six day steer average, at $11.85 a hundred pounds, showed a reduction of 25 cents and was lowest in five weeks. However, it was $2.75 higher than a year ago and $1.75 two years ago. Best grades of steers, yearlings, beef cows and heifers held steady, while other grades fell 25 to 40 cents. Calves closed 50 cents lower.

Altho the average price of hogs for the six days, at $6.10, was unchanged, the various classes ranged from 25 cents lower to 15 cents higher.

The week's lamb average, at $9.25, was 5 cents under the week before. Final prices for lambs were steady to 10 cents lower.

MARY CHRISTMAS IS THE NAME, AND IT'S LIVED UP TO Racine's 'Mrs. Santa' Is Spreading Cheer.

Racine, Wis., Dec. 14 [Special].—Mary Christmas is busy these days playing her holiday rôle of Mrs. Santa Claus. Seated at a desk piled high with letters in her modest Racine home, this jolly housewife and mother of five children radiates the good cheer that her name implies.

Mary Christmas.

Over and over she signs "Mary Christmas" to letters and cards. Many are from tots who hope to get her to wield a little influence with Santa. Some are from the curious and others are from collectors who want to add her autograph to a holiday card routed thru the post-office at Santa Claus, Ind.

"I have received more than 2,800 letters and cards so far this year and have written and mailed more than 3,000 myself," Mary Christmas said.

It's Just Starting.

And the annual avalanche of holiday greetings is just starting. She has some 1,500 cards in readiness, waiting for that magic signature—Mary Christmas—which will be sent out in response to letters from all sections of the United States and from war torn England, from India, Africa, Egypt, New Zealand, and other distant corners of the world.

The name has not always been a source of enjoyment to its owner. After her marriage 21 years ago to Sam Christmas, her second husband, Mary occasionally was annoyed by it. It was difficult, for instance, to convince a busy store clerk you were serious when you asked to have a holiday purchase sent to Mary Christmas.

The marriage having received some publicity, a flood of requests for autographs started rolling into the Christmas home. Some were from children asking for toys. Others were from parents asking still more. Many of the letters from needy children were referred to charitable organizations.

Many Phone Calls.

During the holiday season the Christmas' telephone rang almost continuously. The calls were mostly from children breathlessly reciting long lists of toys they wanted, or from fond parents wanting their excited or skeptic offspring to talk to Mary Christmas, "Santa Claus' wife."

In desperation, Mrs. Christmas had her phone removed and started using her middle name, Myrtle. But later she resumed her real name because of the pleasure it seemed to bring to others.

After appearing on a national radio program from New York in December, 1936, Mrs. Christmas formed her letter exchange club for shut-ins. At first she corresponded individually with the original members, but when the postman began staggering under the heavy load of her mail she conceived the idea of the shut-ins exchanging letters among themselves.

Writes with Teeth.

But even after she introduced members to each other, they continued to write to her and she tried to answer all their letters. One Michigan man, whose hands are paralyzed, writes to her with a pen held between his teeth. A life termer in Walla Walla penitentiary sends her verses on gold embossed cards.

SEVEN CHARITIES SHARE IN $460,000 MEDLOCK ESTATE

The will of John Medlock, retired member of an accounting firm who plunged to his death from his apartment at 3740 Lake Shore drive on Dec. 7, was filed yesterday in Probate court. It disposes of an estate estimated at $460,000. His widow, Mary, will receive $18,000 a year for life, and upon her death, a sister, Miss Mary Medlock, who was given $22,000 outright, will receive $7,500 a year for life. After those trusts end, the estate will be shared by the Home for Destitute Children, the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind, The Chicago Boys' Club, Inc.; the Glenwood Manual Training school, Illinois St. Andrew's Society, Chicago Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and the Chicago Heart association. Two brothers who live in Scotland were left $1,000 apiece.

Dog Bites 4 of Family; All Given Rabies Vaccine

Five members of George Zandstra's family were given antirabies vaccine yesterday after examination showed that their two dogs had suffered from rabies. Those treated are Mrs. Agnes Zandstra, her three daughters, Edna, 11 years old; Shirley, 8, and Arlene, 3, all of whom were bitten by one of the animals, and a son, Edward, 7. Zandstra, a truck farmer, lives near 187th street and Lansing road.

OBITUARIES

Miss Margaret Masterson.

Miss Margaret Masterson, a lifelong resident of Lake county, died yesterday in the Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, of pneumonia. She was 74 years old. Miss Masterson was born in Shields township and lived on the family farm until the government took it during the world war as a site for Camp Perry and Camp Dewey. Her father, Thomas, came from Ireland in 1842. He was a one-time assessor and collector for the township. Miss Masterson leaves an older brother, Edward, with whom she lived at 720 North Oakwood avenue, Lake Forest. The funeral will be at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's church, with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, Lake Forest.

Dr. Karl Georg Frank.

North Caldwell, N. J., Dec. 14 [Special].—Dr. Karl Georg Frank, electrical engineer who made many contributions as a designer and inventor in the wireless and X-ray fields, died last night. He was 68 years old. A student of Prof. Wilhelm Konrad von Roentgen, discoverer of the X-ray, he was chosen to demonstrate the first X-ray before Kaiser Wilhelm II. He also introduced the American dial telephone in Germany.

Charles J. Sullivan.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 14 [Special].—Charles J. Sullivan, 64 years old, of 1309 2d avenue, Rockford, who was employed 32 years as a machinist for the Chicago Surface Lines prior to his retirement several years ago, died yesterday at his home. The funeral will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m. in Rockford. Sullivan is survived by his widow, Elizabeth; a son, R. C. Sullivan, and a daughter, Mrs. Lucille Heaney, both of Chicago.

Joseph T. Delfosse.

Services for Joseph T. Delfosse, a prescription druggist, will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in Graceland cemetery chapel. Mr. Delfosse died Friday at the age of 38. He had been associated with the firm of Dinet & Delfosse since his graduation from the University of Wisconsin in 1924. He leaves his widow, Charlotte, and three sons.

Herman Rupp.

Services for Herman Rupp, who retired in 1927 after 35 years of service with the Chicago fire department, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 2114 Irving Park road. Mr. Rupp died Friday at the age of 78 in his home at 2005 Bradley place. He was a resident of the Lake View district for 50 years and helped fight the Iroquois theater fire. He held the rank of lieutenant at the time of his retirement. He leaves his widow, Minnie; four sons, Herman E., Louis W., John C., and Arthur H. Rupp, the latter two of whom are employés of THE TRIBUNE, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Minnie Lenke.

Stanley Hamberg.

Private funeral services for Stanley Hamberg, advertising executive and former University of Chicago football player, who was found dead Friday night, apparently of a heart attack, in his auto in the Lake Shore club parking lot, will be held tomorrow in Hilton Memorial chapel on the Chicago university campus. Mr. Hamberg was 30 years old and lived at 108 Keeney street, Evanston. He was a guard on the Chicago teams of 1930, 1931, and 1932. Surviving are his widow, Virginia, and a son, Stanley Jr.

William H. Dolan.

Services for William H. Dolan, division sales manager of the Diamond Crystal company, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Ignatius church, Loyola and Glenwood avenues. Mr. Dolan died Friday in St. Joseph's hospital at the age of 56. He lived at 1250 Columbia avenue. He leaves his widow, Bertha; three sons, John W., James R., and William H. Dolan, and a daughter, Eileen.

Dr. Hillel T. Irving.

Funeral services for Dr. Hillel T. Irving, a former Chicago physician, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 3125 Roosevelt road. Dr. Irving, who was 52 years old, died Thursday in Miami Beach, Fla. He retired from his practice here seven years ago. Surviving are his widow, a son, and two daughters.

BURIAL SERVICES ON TUESDAY FOR GEORGE T. BAKER

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 14 [Special].—Funeral services will be held here Tuesday afternoon for George T. Baker, 83 years old, former president of the Iowa state board of education. He died last night in El Paso, Tex. He resigned his board post on Oct. 4 because of ill health.

George T. Baker.

A noted engineer and a member of the board since it was founded in 1909, Baker served as president for 15 years. He devoted much of his time to activities of the building committee.

Born in Iowa county on July 9, 1857, Baker received his education in the grade and high schools of Iowa City. He attended Cornell university, where he received his degree in engineering. He came to Davenport following his graduation and served six years as engineer for the Rock Island lines. Later he accepted a position with the Santa Fe road and was a contributing factor in its expansion.

He served as mayor of Davenport from 1898 to 1900. He also served two terms in the lower house of the state legislature as representative from Scott county.

GEORGE REGAS, WILFRED LUCAS OF FILMS DEAD

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 14 (AP).—Two veteran stage and screen figures, Wilfred Lucas and George Regas, whose successful careers were boosted in their early days by Mary Pickford, died yesterday.

Lucas, 69, pioneer silent film actor, an associate of David Wark Griffith and one of Miss Pickford's first directors, succumbed late yesterday after an illness of six weeks. A native of Ontario, Canada, he entered movies in 1907 after 22 years on the stage. His lead rôle in "Acquitted" won him the outstanding player award of several film magazines in 1916. The title part in "Enoch Arden" also was his. He had been a character player since.

Regas, 50, Sparta born "heavy," was playing on the New York stage when Miss Pickford induced him to enter films in her "Love Light." His last part was in the recently released "The Mark of Zorro." He gave other outstanding character performances in "Viva Villa," "Bordertown," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," and "Rose Marie." He came to the United States in 1917 after playing Shakespeare and Isben on the stage in Greece, the Balkans, and Egypt.

GAY PARTIES USHER IN CHRISTMAS

Harbingers of Gay Christmas in North Side Communities

Albert Berg, a staff member of the Evanston bureau of recreation, has helped Santa Claus to distribute gifts to Evanston youngsters for six years. On Christmas eve this year he will visit Howell park, where the Hertzell street neighbors and the Park place neighbors will hold their Christmas festival. After the carol singing, Santa Claus will stop at the homes which have a candle shining in the window. Some of the youngsters who caught Santa Claus checking up on his route the other day are Windsor Murley and Shirley Sherrill (in front), Barbara and Bobby Tear and Betty Jean Brown (extreme right). They are on the steps of Mr. and Mrs. William Preston's home at 2222 Hertzell street. Mrs. Max W. Powell is chairman and Mrs. Joseph Bristol, vice chairman of the festival.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

A group of parents at Brands park are making toys and doll furniture as Christmas gifts for their children, under the supervision of Mrs. Lyn Swem, arts and crafts instructor. Four year old Rhoda Ann McCleary is inspecting the handiwork of her mother, Mrs. Wayne A. McCleary, 3102 North Leavitt street.

Mrs. W. G. Latky, 1615 Barry avenue, another member of the Brands park art and craft class, is putting the doll she has made into her daughter's Christmas stocking. Patsy Anne, 3½ years old, is going to have to wait until Christmas to try on her doll's new wardrobe.

SUNSHINE LURES NORTH SIDERS FOR CHRISTMAS

Trek to Southland Starts This Week.

The annual trek southward to Florida for a winter coat of tan will begin this week for hundreds of north side and suburban residents. Many will spend Christmas day on the golf links of Fort Lauderdale and on the beach of Miami.

Other winter vacationers will journey to Kansas City, Cleveland and to the North Woods. Most of the holiday vacationers will go by train, but a number will fly or drive their own cars. The Chicago Motor club reports an increase in the number of requests for road maps.

Two north side young ladies who intend to spend Christmas day gettin sun tanned at Miami are Miss Minette Neivelt and Miss Selma Springer of 661 Sheridan road. They will leave for Florida Saturday by auto and spend three weeks in Miami learning to rhumba and playing golf.

Others Miami Bound.

Their two friends, Miss Dorothy Lee, 6452 Greenview avenue, and Miss Sylvia Palter, 6347 Lakewood avenue, will entrain for Florida on the same day.

Another Miami-bound north sider is Lee Halperin, 443 Wrightwood avenue, who intends to stay there five weeks.

Miss Alice Thompson, 414 Diversey parkway, won't be going as far south, but will spend her New Year's holidays in Carbondale, Ill., visiting her mother, Mrs. Pearl Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Bernstein and their son, Lee, 5000 Marine drive, will depart for Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., Monday, Dec. 23, on the Seminole. They expect to spend 10 days golfing and resting.

Others to Florida.

W. F. Darrow, manager of Abbott Hall, Northwestern university's new men's dormitory at 710 Lake Shore drive on the Chicago campus, plans to leave Christmas day for a week of swimming at Miami beach.

Christmas and New Year's day will be spent in Miami by Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Donohue, 5555 Sheridan road. They will depart next Saturday.

Miss Myrtle Lundquist, 411 Maple street, Wilmette, is planning a holiday trip on the Seminole Saturday for Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Three weeks in New Orleans comprise the winter vacation plans of Mrs. Aline Ballard, 1343 North State street, a radio writer, and her 21 year old daughter, Nancy. They will depart Friday on the Panama Limited.

Among those making reservations for the inaugural run of the Dixie Flagler to Florida Tuesday morning on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Karlin and their two sons, Freddie, 4, and Kenneth, 8 years old. The Karlins, who reside at 435 Oakdale avenue, plan to spend a month in Hollywood, Fla.

Goes to California.

Joseph Kantor, Stevens hotel, is going to Los Angeles and San Diego by way of the streamliner City of Los Angeles. He will remain in California one month.

Miss Eleanor Radke, 5633 Kenmore avenue, is planning to spend two weeks in Florida visiting friends. She will go by plane.

Christmas will find Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Lewis, 832 Argyle street, in Hot Springs, Ark. They will leave Friday by train and will return New Year's day.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. John Maher and their two daughters, Dorothy, 3, and Margaret, 1 year old, will leave for Columbus, Ga. They will return to their Chicago home, 211 East Chestnut street, on Jan. 2.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reed, 1437 Arthur avenue, expect to leave early this week for Sarasota, Fla. They will be gone until about Jan. 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moles of Zion celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary in Florida last week where they had gone for the holidays. They are staying at Fort Lauderdale.

Fred Brown Whitney of Waukegan has gone to St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morris, also of Waukegan, are spending some time in Tampa.

In West Virginia.

Dr. and Mrs. Donavan Yost of Lake Forest will spend the Christmas holiday in West Virginia. They plan to go on to Florida for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mowers, Miss Doris Baldi, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Flaherty, all of Highwood, are vacationing in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pester of Grayslake are in Eustus, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gage of 1594 Oak street, Evanston, will leave today for California where they will spend the holidays with their son Ben of Hollywood. They are driving and plan to be away three weeks.

James Thurston, 1302 Ritchie court, is flying home to New York City by American Airlines to visit his parents, who live in Yonkers.

Miss Mary Anderson of the Drake will spend the Christmas and New Year holidays this year with Mr. and Mrs. Russel J. Matthias of New York. Miss Anderson is a friend of Tony and Renee De Marco who are in Ed Wynn's show now on Broadway. They plan to have a reunion. Mr. and Mrs. Matthias reside in the Botham in New York.

Byron O. Jones.

For 28 years Mr. Jones has been chairman of the Sunshine committee of the Rotary Club of Chicago. At Christmas time this committee buys, packs, and distributes heaping Good Fellow baskets which members deliver to 300 needy families.

As chairman, it is Mr. Jones' job to become a Good Fellow traffic manager whose duties are to route the journeys of his committee. Last year in the press of the Christmas rush Mr. Jones wasn't sure that one of his committee had been able to deliver a basket to a family in Pullman, Ill.

"I got to thinking it over," he says, "and on Christmas morning I filled a basket myself and went from my home on the north side out to Pullman. When I got there I was glad I came, for there were eight children in the house whose Christmas otherwise wouldn't have been very pleasant."

Mr. Jones, who is 68 years old, believes in being a Good Fellow all year 'round. His telephone and doorbell are always ringing.

Collects Clothing Gifts.

The basement of the Jones home is stocked with clothing which he sometimes buys, sometimes receives from his neighbors and from Rotarians who want to aid the Sunshine committee.

For the last 25 years he has averaged six visits each week to sick persons. I have traveled more than 50,000 miles in Chicago visiting sick people," he says.

Friends have often asked him to play golf or bowl with them, but Mr. Jones shakes his head.

YALE DEAN EMERITUS TO GIVE 28TH TALK AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

For his 28th appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean emeritus of Yale university divinity school, has chosen the topic "The Deeper Insight." He will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes, who will preside at the meeting, and William E. Goodman, vice president of the club, will read the scripture.

Dr. Charles R. Brown.

For 17 years Dr. Brown was pastor of First Congregational church in Oakland, Cal., and for 40 years has been delivering sermons to students of theology. But he is a preacher who talks like a layman, consequently he enjoys a large following among business men who appreciate his forthright utterances on current affairs.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE winsome young lady in the photo is one of the 15 finalists in the 1940 University of Wisconsin beauty queen contest. She is Miss Ruth Clarke, 6429 North Hoyne avenue, a senior in the school of journalism. In addition to being beautiful, Miss Clarke is a member of Kappa Delta sorority, chairman of this year's Panhellenic ball, news editor of the Daily Cardinal and a member of the campus Y. W. C. A. cabinet. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Clarke.

Ruth Clarke.

FOUR Our Towners who were students in the naval unit at Northwestern university, have been granted permanent commissions in the regular line of the navy. Three men, engineering students in the class of 1934, all of them Evanstonians, are William F. Eadie, now in Sitka, Alaska; Donald E. McKee, now at the United States naval flying corps, Pensacola, Fla., and Elliot M. West. The fourth Northwestern alumnus is William G. Logan, engineering student in the class of 1938, 1315 Gregory street, Wilmette, who was made an ensign in the regular naval flying corps.

The homecoming trek of out-of-town students will begin next week. Charlotte Mary Bostetter, 18 years old, will spend the Christmas holidays with her father, Charles F. Bostetter, at their home, 1528 Glenlake avenue. Charlotte is a freshman at the University of Kentucky where she is majoring in chemistry.

Search for 20 male voices in Lake View was started recently by Mrs. C. L. Semler, 1714 Grace street, to increase the size of the Lake View Community Council Choral club. The chorus rehearses Tuesday evenings. Amateur singers are asked to call Mrs. Semler, Wellington 3968.

Children who attend the Christmas party at Chase park, 4701 North Ashland avenue, next Saturday evening may think they're seeing double, but they'll not be. There will be two Santa Clauses there. The party will be given by the park district in coöperation with the Community Club of Sheridan park. John A. Duffield, park supervisor, heads the arrangements committee.

'MENTIONS' DUE 3 SCHOOLS IN LAWN CAMPAIGN

Three north side schools will receive honorable mention awards Tuesday afternoon when park district officials will present prizes to winners of the 1940 "Save the Lawn" campaign.

The schools to be cited on the north side for their well-kept lawns are Amundsen High school, 5110 North Damen avenue; Newberry school, 700 Willow street, and Stone school, 6329 North Leavitt street.

The prize presentation will be held at Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, winner of the first prize. Mayor Kelly has been invited to attend the ceremonies.

SANTA TO PAY VISIT TO MOTHERS' CLUBS TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Santa Claus will be host to the Loyola university and Academy Mothers' clubs at a dessert bridge at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the alumni gymnasium, 6525 Sheridan road. There will be singing of carols by the University Glee club.

The Rev. John P. Downey.
[Gordon Photo.]

Mrs. Frank J. Murnighan and Mrs. Edward H. Liphardt, club presidents, are in charge of arrangements, assisted by the Rev. William A. Finnegan, dean of the Lake Shore Arts college, and the Rev. John P. Downey, prefect of discipline at Loyola academy, club moderators. Mrs. August J. Hummert is chairman of the Christmas bake sale and Mrs. Andrew C. Sossong and Mrs. Charles Holmes will assist.

Bel-Fun Club of Phone Workers to Have Dance

Members of the Bel-Fun club, an organization of employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company will hold a dance at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street, on Friday evening. There are 95 members. Each month the club gives a party according to what the weather indicates, from a sleigh ride in February to a moonlight cruise in June. Officers are Don Daniels, president; Eileen Mathieu, recording secretary; Douglas Orwig, treasurer; Lois Miller, corresponding secretary, and Harry Carlson, sergeant at arms.

Experts Turn an Evil Eye on Historic Fount

Evanston's egg-shaped Fountain square, which has been blocking traffic in the suburb's central business district ever since residents traded their horse drawn carriages for electric runabouts, may be moved—but only about 65 feet east.

Within 30 days Evanston's aldermen are expected to pass on a plan mapped by the chamber of commerce with the help of the Chicago Motor club. This plan, one of several now being mulled over by engineers and aldermen, calls for the centering of Fountain square in the busy Davis-Sherman-Orrington intersection.

Would Aid Traffic.

The plan, which was supervised by George Barton, the motor club's traffic engineer, would eliminate all superfluous intersection area. By moving Fountain square 65 feet east traffic from opposite sides of the crossing would flow in straight channels across the intersection.

Crosswalks would be shortened and signal lights would be speeded up. Under this scheme the intersection would be studded with pedestrian safety islands. Traffic lights would be of the three-phase timed type to permit traffic from each of the three intersecting streets to move on separate signal intervals.

Cite 53 Accidents.

Traffic engineers have cited the fountain as an accident hazard. Figures show that 53 accidents, most of them turning and sideswiping mishaps, occurred in Fountain square last year. These accidents, say experts, were caused by the confusion created by drivers unable to solve quickly the puzzle of traffic lanes running in all directions.

YULE FESTIVAL SEASON ARRIVES FOR NORTH SIDE

Holiday Activities in Full Swing.

Christmas comes early to the community centers on the north side and in the suburbs. Parties begin this week-end and will continue thru Christmas eve.

Visitors to Christopher house and Olivet institute in Chicago, the Winnetka Community house and the park fieldhouses in Evanston would find a bustle of activity as members decorate their Christmas trees, hang holly and evergreens around the rooms and place wreaths tied gayly with red bows in the windows and on the doors. Others would be busy rehearsing carols, practicing the Christmas pageant or putting finishing touches on gifts.

Santa Claus will be the expected guest at all the children's gatherings. Older groups will celebrate the holidays with teas and dances. In Winnetka the Friendship club of young women will be entertained at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon by the Catholic Ladies' Sodality of Sacred Heart. Mrs. John Fisher, president of the sodality, will be in charge. The circle will hold its own Christmas party on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Stanley Nelson will lead the carols.

Lions Party in Winnetka.

The Winnetka Lions will give their annual Christmas party for their families and friends tomorrow evening. B. G. Eberle, chairman, will be assisted by Raymond W. Rapp, Jerry Worrel, Albin Carlen, Dick Murray, Ed Thoni, George Sewell, and Roger Taylor.

Members of the Italian Woman's club have invited their families and friends to join in the games and carols at their party at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. A local talent program will be the feature of the North Shore British American society's party at 8 o'clock Saturday night. The society has met in the Winnetka Community house for more than 20 years.

Kindergarten children in Miss Marjorie Mitchell's group will present a Nativity play for their parents at 6:30 o'clock Friday, followed by a Christmas party. Patty Brill will protray Mary and Bobby Lietzaw will be Joseph. Others in the cast are Eleanor Davie, Sally Sherman, Susan McCready, Louise Sterling, Virginia Adams, and Charle Belle Morre as angels; Billy Pope, Billy Adler, and David Tittle as the Three Wise Men; Jack Creden, Bobby Reed, and Loretta Hirsh as shepherds, and Peter Teich, Sherry Smith, Liladee Seward, and Merrill Krautz as the sheep.

At Christopher House.

Lighted trees around Christopher Neighborhood house, 2507 Greenview avenue, and logs blazing in the fireplace create a Chritmasy atmosphere in which the children and young people are preparing for the Christmas festival program on Friday evening and the Nativity program on Monday evening, Dec. 23. Music will be provided by the Melody and Rhythm bands for "Santa's Worshop" program. The junior chorus and the citizenship classes will sing carols in the Christmas processional, and the young people's chorus will sing for the Nativity tableaux.

Children's afternoon parties in the house will be sponsored by the Guild of the Evanston First Presbyterian church on Wednesday. The Albany Park Presbyterian Ladies' guild Thursday; Lake View High School Girl Reserves, Friday, and the Times newspaper, Monday, Dec. 23. The primary department of the Lake View Presbyterian church will give a party for Christopher house children Saturday afternoon in the church, Addison street and Broadway.

More than 2,000 Evanston youngsters will attend Christmas parties in the park fieldhouses. Santa Claus will distribute Christmas stockings filled with candy and gifts and park directors will plan games and lead the carol singing. C. T. Byrnes, superintendent of the bureau of recreation, is directing the arrangements.

Schedule of Parties.

Parties will be held in Mason park and Foster park on Friday evening with Ragnor Carlson and Leona Waite in charge at Mason and Harold Jefferson at Foster. Bent park children will gather at Willard school on the same evening where William Clarke will be in charge of the party. Boltwood and Chandler parks will hold parties on Tuesday afternoon, Dce. 24. Joseph English and Cecilia Hills will make plans for the 600 youngsters at Boltwood and Albert Berg will be in charge at Chandler.

The Shut-Ins will give their Christmas party on Friday afternoon, Dec. 27, in the North Shore hotel, with C. E. Palmer and Mrs. Gertrude Londrigan, sponsors of the club, as chairmen. More than 250 shut-ins are expected to attend. Evanston groups coöperating in sponsoring the event are the Woman's club, Zonta club, the Catholic Woman's club, Kiwanis, American Legion auxiliary, Lions, the Elks, and the D. A. R. Junior Page group.

The bureau of recreation is coöperating with the Ridgeville Park district which is planning its first Christmas party in the new community house for next Saturday after-

TIRED OF BEING A WITNESS.

I live on Armitage avenue. We moved here a year ago because we could not afford to pay the rent that was asked where we were. On our street there are no stop and go lights and there are so many accidents that I don't see why the city cannot afford to give us some sort of stop and go lights. I have seen so many accidents that it about makes me sick to think of it.

People just keep going across the Larrabee car line or perhaps slow up a bit when they get there and then bang, another car coming on Larrabee runs into them. Then one driver or the other has gotten the worst of it and so there are police and then ambulances. I have had so many people who wanted me to be a witness in their suits that follow these crashes that I got pretty tired of it.

Another thing, we have a large number of saloons around here, which makes stop and go lights more necessary, as some of the drivers don't drive as straight as they ought to.

My husband and I had a car when we moved here, but decided it was too dangerous to keep it. MRS. M. M.

WHY ISN'T WALK CLEANED?

A few years ago there was a city law requiring property owners to remove or have removed the snow and ice from their sidewalks. On the south side of Cornelia avenue from 535 almost to Broadway the ice stays on the sidewalks all winter long and at times it is dangerous to walk on that side of the street. Across the street on the north side it is nicely cleaned off. Can't something be done about this? MRS. J. N. S.

CIVIC CLUB ASKS SPEED SIGNS.

The Lincoln Square Woman's Civic club recommends speed limit signs on Lincoln avenue from Foster to Lawrence avenues to protect the lives of our school children and pedestrians. There are three schools and two churches in this district. The motorists have no respect for the people of this district, many cars traveling at the rate of from 60 to 70 miles an hour.

It is time this was corrected.

E. LOUISE KIESGEN, President.

ANY ONE SEEN MICKEY? HE'S A. W. O. L. FROM DISABLED MASTER

Mickey, a 2 year old Pekinese, is gone. He disappeared from his back yard at 808 Washington street, Evanston, a week ago yesterday and his master, Stanley W. Dickey, is as unhappy as Mickey probably is—wherever he may be. Mickey was the constant and only daytime companion of Mr. Dickey, a disabled world war veteran who has been confined to his home for 16 years.

Mickey.

Mr. Dickey got Mickey when he was 6 weeks old and raised him on a bottle. Since Mickey has been pampered all his life, he refuses to walk down stairs, altho he will walk up the back steps at home. He's afraid of the dark, too.

Mickey is the third dog companion Mr. Dickey has had. Another Pekinese, Mitzi, lived for 13 years and now Mickey has taken her place. "I wouldn't grieve so much," said Mr. Dickey, "if Mickey had died, for at least I'd know where he was.

MARK 50TH YEAR OF EASTERN STAR IN RAVENSWOOD

Chapter 190 Inducts New Official Staff.

Ravenswood chapter, No. 190, Order of the Eastern Star, is observing it's 50th anniversary this season. The chapter was organized by a score of women who held meetings in their homes. Later they met for 35 years in the Masonic temple at Montrose and Hermitage avenues and for the last 15 years the membership of 500 has gathered in the new temple at Paulina street and Wilson avenue.

A Christmas party will be held at the next meeting, Wednesday evening. Mrs. Marian G. Lien, worthy matron, announced that final plans would be made for the Christmas donation to the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, the Frances Juvenile home and the Child Haven.

New Leaders Installed.

Officers who will be in charge of activities for the anniversary year were installed at the last meeting by Mrs. Minnie M. Caperton, worthy grand matron of Illinois. In addition to Mrs. Lien, they are Dr. Frederick P. Haavind, worthy patron, who is holding this office for the third time; Mrs. Estelle Bjurstrom, associate matron; Gustaf Bjurstrom, associate patron; Mrs. Elsie Gwynn, secretary, and Mrs. Louise Sampson, treasurer.

Others are Mrs. Emma Macon, conductress; Mrs. Effie Muhler, associate conductress; Mrs. Florence Cure, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Packman, marshal; Mrs. Lydia Mackenzie, organist; Mrs. Marie Miller, Adah; Mrs. Vera Cornell, Ruth; Miss Helen Furnner, Esther; Mrs. Ruth Popp, Martha; Mrs. Dorothy Flower, Electa; Miss Bette Macon, warder; Mrs. Charlotte Read, sentinel, and Carl Linn, color bearer.

Two Early Members.

Two of the old timers who can best relate the history of the chapter to the younger members are Mrs. Lottie Newell, one of the organizers who served as secretary for 25 years, and Mrs. Mae Stensley. Chester Cleveland also has been associated with the chapter for many years.

Fountain May Be Moved

How Evanston's Fountain square area will look if the suburb's chamber of commerce plan for its moving is approved by the council. The plan, which was mapped in co-operation with the Chicago Motor club, would move the fountain 65 feet east from its present location (shown by dotted lines). Traffic under this plan would be channelized and a three phase system of signal lights would be installed to speed up the traffic movement.

11 NORTH SIDERS TO GET DEGREES AT U. OF CHICAGO

Eleven north side students of the University of Chicago will be among 220 candidates for degrees at the 202d convocation to be held Tuesday afternoon in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, who won the Nobel prize in physics in 1923, will deliver the convocation address. Dr. Millikan, now a faculty member of the California Institute of Technology, was given the Nobel award for research work done as a faculty member of the University of Chicago in the isolation of electrons. He will take for his convocation subject the university's motto, "Let Knowledge Grow, Let Life Be Enriched."

North siders who will receive degrees as masters of arts, science or philosophy include James Leamon Carlton, 1449 Foster avenue; E. Ruth Kellogg, 533 Diversey parkway; Minnie Emmons Boylan Kintner, 1639 Ridge avenue, Evanston; Berenice Beverly Lapin, 4300 Marine drive, and Jeanne Ruth Lepine, 5040 Kenmore avenue.

Bachelors of arts, science or philosophy include Theodore P. Howe, 809 Seward street, Evanston; Albert Linch, 4908 Sheridan road; Morton Sumner Postelnek, 1625 Farwell avenue, and Henry Maurice Wallbrunn, 1225 Norwood avenue.

Two north siders who will become doctors of philosophy are William Baptist Hardy, 2600 Lake View avenue, and Richard Douglas Kleene, 2211 Burling street.

Auxiliary to Meet.

North Shore B'nai B'rith auxiliary will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Temple Mizpah. After the business session conducted by Mrs. Solomon A. Blumenthal, president, members will play cards.

Evanston 'Y' to Stage 6th Annual Snow Carnival

The sixth annual Torch club's snow carnival will be staged by the Evanston Y. M. C. A. Friday evening at the Woman's Club of Evanston. The program will be interwoven with a military motif. Booths with games of the Army, Navy, and War college will be set up around the dance floor. Robert Jones and Tom Harker are general managers of the event.

Sacred Heart Household Group Plans Card Party

Sacred Heart Household Order of Martha will hold a Christmas card party at the Sovereign hotel Thursday afternoon. Mrs. John Devereaux is chairman, assisted by Mrs. L. G. Montieth, Mrs. J. L. Moffett, Mrs. T. F. O'Brien, and Mrs. Edward Smith.

NORTH END CLUB WOMEN TO GIVE PLAY TOMORROW

Present 'Opera Matinee' for Membership.

Weeks of practice on acting technique will be climaxed with the presentation of Alice Gerstenberg's play, "Opera Matinée," by the drama department of the North End Woman's club at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The author will be a special guest. To complement the dramatic program arranged by Mrs. Rudolph Reiners, chairman, the music department will present the Lake View Musical society chorus, directed by Miss Helen Leefelt.

Ray Binder, WPA adult education instructor, has coached the cast composed of Mrs. E. J. Riley, Mrs. A. E. Ries, Mrs. R. L. Sibold, Mrs. H. H. Tatro, Mrs. Harry Task, Mrs. F. W. Sadler, Mrs. M. L. Schmitz, Mrs. A. E. Cook, Mrs. M. H. Baruch, Mrs. M. K. Jorjorian, Mrs. G. A. Wetter, Mrs. J. S. Long, Mrs. John Bach, and Mrs. E. B. Douglass.

Brownson Circle.

Members' children and their friends will be guests at the annual Christmas party at 3 o'clock tomorrow. Miss Catherine Hurley, program chairman, and Mrs. J. P. Noonan, social chairman, are in charge of arrangements. Burr Tillstrom's puppets will dramatize "St. George and the Dragon" and Laura Jane Clark, 10 year old soprano, will sing.

At 1 o'clock Mrs. Louis J. Ronder will review "Christmas Eve at St. Roch" by M. E. Davis and Mrs. Eduard P. Nesbit will discuss Christmas books.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Mary Conen will sketch "The Christmas Window" in rhyme against a musical background provided by Mrs. Margaret Cashman, a member, at the 2 o'clock club meeting Tuesday. Clara Gartner will be the vocal soloist and the club chorus will sing carols, under the direction of Mrs. Samuel Ross. Mrs. Fred A. Siemon, social relations chairman, will collect donations for the Christmas baskets which will be distributed to the needy.

Ravenswood Woman's Club.

The a cappella choir of St. Luke's Evangelical church, composed of 50 boys and girls 9 to 13 years old, will present a Christmas program for the club at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow. Paul M. Wukasch will direct. "Timely Topics" will be given by department chairmen. Mrs. B. A. Weeks, president, will preside and Mrs. F. P. Gerbing and her social committee will serve refreshments.

Indian Boundary Mothers.

Members of the Indian Boundary Mothers' club will bring gifts for a Christmas grab bag to the bridge luncheon at 1 o'clock tomorrow in the fieldhouse, 2500 Lunt avenue. Mrs. Otto Maas, luncheon chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. H. S. Cawley, Mrs. Esther Hessel, Mrs. Louis Huch, Mrs. J. W. King, Mrs. John Kummings, and Mrs. S. B. Paul.

North Shore Woman's Club.

Children of senior and junior members will be entertained at the Christmas party Thursday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Enlisted as Santa's helpers, the youngsters will bring toys for the "Closet of Happiness" at the Cook County hospital. Mrs. Harry B. Bibb, philanthropy chairman, is completing plans for parties at the Frances Juvenile home and the Sexton school during the holidays.

Rogers Park Neighborhood Club.

Miss Caroline Barr will present "The Second Shepherds Play" at the club meeting Friday and a musical program will be offered by Christine Klauss, pianist; Gail Way, tenor, and Bert Way, baritone. Mrs. R. H. Hale will be in charge of the morning session.

Lake Shore Woman's Club.

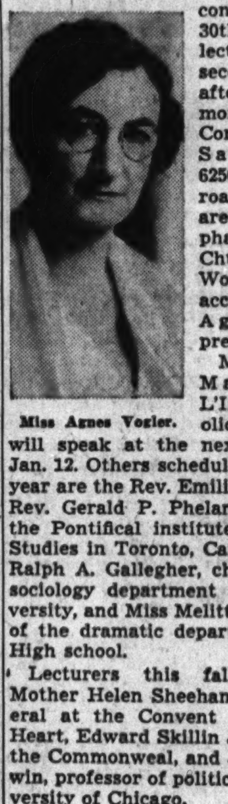
Members will attend a business meeting and luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday.

Neighborhood Juniors.

The Juniors will give a pot luck dinner for the Christmas party tomorrow evening in the new country home of Mrs. Kenneth Fleming, 7744 Thorndale avenue. Santa Claus will distribute grab bag gifts. Miss Mary Jensen, membership chairman, has announced the following new members: Miss Ann Parker, Miss Pauline Otte, Miss Ruth Hammer, Miss Ellen Hammer, Miss Dorothy Conybear, Miss Shirley Oehlsen, Miss Eunice Whittaker, Miss Dorothy Kaufmann, and Miss Jeanne Kaufmann.

M. JACQUES MARITAIN WILL BE LECTURER FOR DUCHESNE CLUB

The Duchesne club, one of the first Catholic study clubs in Chicago, is conducting its 30th season of lectures on the second Sunday afternoon of each month in the Convent of the Sacred Heart, 6250 Sheridan road. Speakers are considering phases of "The Church in the World Today," according to Miss Agnes Vogler, president.



Miss Agnes Vogler.

M. Jacques Maritain of L'Institut Catholique de Paris will speak at the next meeting on Jan. 12. Others scheduled for the new year are the Rev. Emilian Skonka, the Rev. Gerald P. Phelan, president of the Pontifical institute for Medieval Studies in Toronto, Canada; the Rev. Ralph A. Gallegher, chairman of the sociology department at Loyola university, and Miss Melitta Skillen, head of the dramatic department at Senn High school.

Lecturers this fall have been Mother Helen Sheehan, mistress general at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Edward Skillin Jr., co-editor of the Commonweal, and Jerome G. Kerwin, professor of political science, University of Chicago.

HORSEMEN OF SIX STATES REQUEST RIDING BOOKLET

Requests for the new Tribune booklet on elementary riding instruction, entitled "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride," have been received from at least six middle western states, those in charge of its sale announced last week.

At the Tribune Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower, where the booklet is on sale for 25 cents [27 cents by mail] it was said that mail orders have come from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, and Missouri.

The booklet is a collection of articles describing a course of instruction taken by the author, a member of the Tribune staff. The articles first appeared in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE.

IT'S CHRISTMAS TODAY FOR THE MUSICAL ARTS

Club Also Is to Have a Study Period.

A study period conducted by Mrs. LaVerne Fontain McKenna will precede the annual Christmas program at 4 o'clock today at the meeting of the Chicago Musical Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Charles Pardee, president, will preside.

At the 3 o'clock study period Mrs. McKenna will discuss "The Story of Musical Instruments," by H. W. Schwartz; "The Recipe for a Symphony," and "The Aristocrats of the Orchestra." A general discussion will follow.

Van Dyke's "Story of the Other Wise Man" will be featured on the program. The cast includes Frances Weege, narrator; Virginia Krum, soprano; Eugene Askin, tenor; Martha Probst, violinist, and Dora Alanen and Florence Martin, pianists. Miss Krum, a 17 year old student at Schurz High school, will give a recital in the Alice Terrell studio in the Fine Arts building Friday afternoon. She is soloist for the Cecilian choir at school and a member of the Buena Memorial church choir.

Club guests will include Mrs. Royden J. Keith, state president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and Mrs. Frank Whitmore, district president of the Music clubs.

People's Church Woman's Club.

Tomorrow's Christmas program will open at 11 o'clock with a class in world affairs. The group will consider "The Other Americas: How Can We Coöperate with Them?" The afternoon program will feature Esther Perez del Rey, Spanish lecturer, who will dramatize the story of the Magi in a "Spanish Christmas," and Reynold Leiva, boy violinist, who will present a program, accompanied by Augusta Leiva at the piano. Members will sing carols and hold a social hour around the Christmas tree.

Marshall Field Apartments.

Frances Tobias, supervisor of the 85 toy lending centers in Chicago, will describe her work and show samples of the toys used, at the Christmas luncheon of the Woman's club at 1 o'clock tomorrow. Mrs. S. N. Whiting will report on plans for the annual rummage sale in January. Her daughter, Mrs. F. W. Goodhouse, welfare chairman, will discuss plans for the annual Christmas party for the children at Olivet institute.

Ravenswood Hospital Auxiliary.

Members of the Woman's auxiliary will assemble at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday for a sewing meeting. Luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. W. W. Lill, president, will preside.

Your Nickels and Dimes Go Farther... Your Clothes Last Longer in this Big Family Wash
Here's just the wash to remember for ECONOMY, SAFETY, and ultraperfect Family Washing excellence. See how BIG it is... it takes about 5 of your washers jammed full, and for such a low price! And, don't forget... you'll get every single piece of your Flat Work IRONED... and correctly Folded, too! And, SHIRTS, starched and FINISHED your way to the "queen's" order for only a nickel.
ECONOMICAL? You bet... take a peek at the LOW PRICE! It's 'way LESS than your every week 15 or 20 home washing necessities... and 'way less than a laundress.
Still more to the point! Your washables will last longer, and look better, too! Reason?... our creamy, gentle suds contain no fabric-wearing alkalis (necessary in most home soaps for suds in hard city water)... because we use only RAIN-SOFT water... and NO harmful bleaches or chemicals.
Try this BIG BUNDLE of Family Washing and ironing beauty this week... and you'll like it. That money-back GUARANTEE says you can't lose.

DR. W. H. BARNES TO GIVE ANNUAL MUSIC PROGRAM

Appears Before U. Guild Tomorrow.

In keeping with his annual custom Dr. William H. Barnes, organist of the Evanston First Baptist church, will present his program of Christmas music for the University guild at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall. As an added feature the Northwestern a capella choir will sing ancient and modern carols, under the direction of George Howerton.

Besides being an organist Dr. Barnes is a lecturer on church music for the Northwestern music school and a nationally known organ architect. He is the author of "The Contemporary American Organ" and "The Odyssey of An Organ Enthusiast and His Wife." Mrs. James J. Judson, guild president, and other officers will receive members and guests at a reception and tea in the woman's lounge after the program.

Mrs. Samuel P. Whiteside, reception chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. J. E. Blunt, Mrs. C. B. Carter, Mrs. H. R. Kendall, and Mrs. William M. Riach. The tea committee includes Mrs. W. D. Beck, Mrs. George N. Beecher, Mrs. Edwin G. Booz, Mrs. E. P. Brown, Mrs. Charles Burlingame, Mrs. Harold Clark, Mrs. Ernest Davies, Mrs. Frederick Fagg, Mrs. Glen Grawols, Mrs. Leon Green, Mrs. G. R. Gregg, Mrs. Carl Harriss, Mrs. Edwin F. Hill, Mrs. Austin Lindstrom, Mrs. J. R. Merriman, Mrs. Clifton Merry, Mrs. W. H. Miles, Mrs. Leonard Penny, Mrs. Stuart Campbell, and Mrs. Sidney Weller.

Kentucky Society.

Members of the society in Evanston and on the north shore will meet at 2:15 o'clock Friday in the home of Mrs. Hal Crumpton Bangs, 1336 North State street. Mrs. Beverly Howe, president, and Mrs. Hobart Hutchinson will be assistant hostesses. After a business session Mrs. C. Warner Williams of Chicago will speak on "What Art Means to America" and Miss Mildred Graham of Kenilworth, pianist, will play selections from Schumann and Brahms and a modernist group. The society was organized in 1921 by Mrs. William Allen Pusey in order to raise funds for educational work in the mountains of eastern Kentucky.

Holiday at Home

Miss Marilyn Haberkorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haberkorn of Wilmette, will return home for the holidays from Ladywood school in Indianapolis. She will appear in the play, "What Men Live By," a feature of the Christmas program at Ladywood this evening and also is in charge of the annual candlelight recessional and Christmas party given by the Ladywood Athletic association to be held Thursday evening.

Evanston Young Women.

Mrs. O. R. Whitaker, social chairman, has announced that admission to the Christmas ball Saturday evening will be a gift for the Christmas barrel which will be given to the Community chest. Mrs. John Hubbard is designing the invitations, assisted by Mrs. W. Leland Foster, Mrs. Marcus Aurelius, and Mrs. Edward Koza. Mrs. Richard Beck is planning to decorate the ballroom with reindeer and sleigh and Christmas trees.

Evanston Woman's Club.

Mrs. Phillip Mathisen, dramatic reader who has directed religious pageantry in the Chicago area for 12 years, will offer "The Wayfarer's Candle" at the 2 o'clock meeting Tuesday. The music accompaniment will be provided by Dorris Briggs, harpist. Tea will be served by Mrs. Floyd Thompson and her committee, assisted by Mrs. Carroll Jones and Mrs. W. V. Little. Mrs. Alma De Vries Schaub, Mrs. W. N. Cromwell, and Mrs. W. T. Hall will pour.

At 10:30 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Lorraine Blair will give the first of three lectures on finance. Her topic will be "Investments."

Members interested in citizenship projects are invited to attend the Christmas tea Friday afternoon in the Emerson Street Y. M. C. A. Members of the Inter-Racial council, directors of the North Shore Community home, and pastors of colored churches will be guests.

D. A. R.

Fort Dearborn chapter will hold its annual Christmas open house tomorrow afternoon in the Woman's club house. Mrs. Harold E. Hayward, first vice regent and program chairman, will present Miss Alice Phillips of Chicago, soprano soloist at the Rogers Park Congregational church. Miss Phillips will sing Christmas songs and present "A Sketch of the Life and Songs of Stephen Foster." Her accompanist, Miss Hila Russell, will play three numbers.

Mrs. Grover C. Wilson, social chairman, will be in charge of the tea. Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue and Mrs. Warren S. Williams, past regents, will preside at tea tables arranged by Mrs. C. B. Schneible. Serving will be Mrs. W. A. Catanach, Mrs. E. E. Eckenbeck, Mrs. Irving Faber, Mrs. Roy W. Fletcher, Mrs. James Flinn, Mrs. Percival Hathaway, Mrs. C. M. Joice, Mrs. Samuel Lang, Mrs. Leon F. Montague, Mrs. J. J. Morris, Mrs. Wendell Perry, Miss Catherine Reeling, Mrs. James F. Spoerri, and Mrs. Leslie J. Youngren.

Wilmette Woman's Club.

The club's philanthropy food shower will be held Wednesday. For the morning program Mrs. Edward Scheidenhelm, north regional chairman and member of the state board of the Garden Club of Illinois, will talk on the care of evergreens. During the noon hour the home and education department will introduce Theodore V. Hinske, who will give an illustrated talk on "The Quest of Oriental Rugs."

The afternoon program is a gift from the Junior auxiliary. Mrs. Dean Lake Traxler, Junior program chairman, will introduce Willa Dryden, lyric soprano, and her accompanist, Charles Lurvey.

Highland Park Woman's Club.

At the Christmas party Tuesday afternoon the Boys' choir of Trinity Episcopal church, directed by Ralph Anschuetz, will sing Christmas songs and lead the audience in singing carols. The home and education department will show slides giving the history of the club from the time members met in a donated cottage to the present days when they meet in their own large clubhouse. Miss Sarah Jane Murfey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. R. Murfey of Highland Park, will give a dramatic reading.

YULE FESTIVAL SEASON ARRIVES FOR NORTH SIDE

Parties, Carols to Usher In Holiday Period.

Carolers in Park.

The Hartzell Street neighbors and the Park Place neighbors are co-sponsors of a Christmas eve festival to be held in Howell park, Walnut and Stewart avenues and Hartzell street. Just before 7 o'clock two neighborhood groups will assemble on opposite sides of the park and walk to the park singing carols. A. A. Gillette will be master of ceremonies for the program around the park Christmas tree. After the program Santa Claus will go to the neighborhood homes which have a candle in the window and deliver the family Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Max W. Powell of the Hartzell street group is general chairman assisted by officers of both groups, including Mrs. Carl Hubbard, president; Mrs. Joseph Bristol, vice president; Mrs. A. G. Jennings, secretary; Mrs. William Hook, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles W. Markham, program chairman of the Park Place neighbors; Mrs. Claude M. McJohnson, president; Mrs. Richard M. Sherrill, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Frank C. Rowley, program chairman of the Hartzell Street club.

One of the most interesting parties at Olivet institute, 1441 Cleveland avenue, will be given by the Golden Age club on Friday afternoon. Children in the institute will present the program for this group of 35 to 40 men and women over 65 years old. Mrs. Gertrude Crampton is director of the club activities.

Other Parties Listed.

The music classes will hold a party Tuesday evening, the citizenship classes will celebrate on Wednesday and Thursday nights and all adults will be invited to a New Year's eve watch night party, according to Miss Geraldine Bremmer, coördinator of Christmas events.

Girl Scout troop, No. 24, Miss Claire Sinpig, leader, will present a play on Thursday evening and the other troop, No. 87, of which Mrs. Dorothy Rasdale is leader, will give a banquet Monday evening, Dec. 23. The 13 and 14 year olds will give their own dance at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, and on Saturday children will have parties.

Mrs. Eleanor P. Eells, institute director, is in charge of arrangements for children's trips to the loop to visit department store toylands.

Pennies Buy Tree.

Highland Park will have a community Christmas tree. Every child in the village is contributing a penny to buy it and it will be planted on park property on the corner beside the library. The tree will be the center of a carol singing program at 6 o'clock next Sunday evening after the white gift services in the churches.

Mrs. Theodore Osborn, newly elected chairman of the Highland Park Coördinating council, suggested the Christmas tree plan and organizations and individuals are coöperating. Other council board members are Mrs. James Stannard Baker, secretary treasurer, Mrs. Carroll Binder, Milton W. Stein, Harry Alston, John Guthrie, Miss Elizabeth Bredin, Harry Hansen, Mrs. Mary Helmond, Dean Lugenbill, and George Scheuchenpflug.

Mrs. Arthur Byfield, leader of the Presbyterian choir, is in charge of the carol singing program, assisted by Mrs. Edgar E. Jenkins, Highland Park Choral club; Mrs. E. J. Keller, Bethany choir; Mrs. Allen Dicus, and Mrs. Longford Selsk, Girl Scouts; Mrs. John M. Manning, and Mrs. George Hinn, Highland Park Music club; Clifton E. Spear, Boy Scouts; Ralph F. Anschuetz, Trinity choir; Miss Gloria Linari, Girls Glee club of the Highland Park High school; Miss Lorraine Huncke, the Carollers of Immaculate Conception church.

In Variety Program

Miss Ruthe Baskin, 434 Roscoe street, will appear this evening in the last of a series of week-end dramatic variety programs given by the Mummers Theater workshop in the Mummers Playhouse, 431 South Wabash avenue.

Christmas Spirit at W-G-N

W-G-N WISHING WELL FULFILLS DREAMS OF FANS

Thruout the ages people have been making wishes, relying on such props as wishbones, new moons, white horses, and even the stars to make their dreams come true. Of late some 2,000 persons each week have been making known their special desires to the W-G-N Wishing Well program conducted by Mary Paxton.

Many have had their wishes come true and have now abandoned the other vehicles that are believed to help. The loop store sponsoring Miss Paxton's program each week receives an astonishing array of personal heart's desires.

Miss Paxton satisfies only those wishes which can be granted by dipping into the stocks of the store. Mink coats, sewing machines, draperies, mirrors, pajamas, and an evening dress "suitable for the Hawaiian Islands" are typical of the gifts sought by Chicagolanders every week.

"Some one wrote in the other morning," said Miss Paxton, "and asked for a week's profits of the store." She passed that one up. She had to turn down a request, too, for a chicken farm.

One woman in her letter stated that it had been so long since she received a personal gift that she was beginning to wonder whether she was a person of a house. She wished for an "amusing" hat. She received an astonishing chapeau in black, adorned with red poppies.

Wishes are asked to tell about their desires in a letter to Miss Paxton. They are also invited to describe these items adequately. Miss Paxton reads all the letters and decides which wish shall be granted.

The Wishing Well is aired at 8:45 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9 a. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

CLAUDE RAINS TO PLAY SCROOGE ON W-G-N THURSDAY

Character Actor Guest on Chicago Hour.

Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actors, will play the rôle of Scrooge in the special adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," to be heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program.

Claude Rains.

Rains will make a special trip from his farm in Cheyney, in the Brandywine district of Pennsylvania, to appear on the program. A star cast of Chicago radio actors, under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, will support Rains.

Such character rôles as the crafty King John in "Robin Hood," the cruel Louis Napoleon in "Juarez," the wistful father in "Four Daughters," and the high handed Spanish ambassador in "Sea Hawk" have won Rains great acclaim with moviegoers. His latest film, not yet released, is Warner Brothers production, "Four Mothers."

Rains was born in England just a half-century ago. He made his debut on the London stage in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the age of 11.

After a session of world travel, Rains came to the New York stage, where he came to the attention of Hollywood. His first film feature rôle was in "The Invisible Man." Between pictures, he hurries back to his rolling and peaceful farmland, where he enjoys his simple designation as Farmer Rains.

Good Fellows

The low down on what Good Fellow children would like to receive is given by Santa to Griff Williams, Don Pedro (rear), and Art Kassel who are out to do their share in the annual Tribune drive. Don Pedro is regularly heard at 10:15 a. m. and the orchestras of Williams and Kassel each evening from the Stevens and Bismarck hotels, all over W-G-N.

THE HAM YOU CUT WITH A FORK

For delicious mellow ham flavor and a tenderness that makes it literally melt in the mouth, no ham of modern times compares with Wilson's Tender Made HAM. It is preferred by thousands whenever some occasion demands the finest of the fine.

Yet Wilson's genuine Tender Made HAM is not extravagant. That's because it does not melt away in the oven. Due to Wilson's Secret Process this costly waste is ended. Therefore, a smaller Tender Made HAM will serve just as many people, at practically the same cost, as an ordinary ham.

WHY NOT A YULE GIFT THIS YEAR FOR BATHROOM?

Fixtures and Accessories Improve Living.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

However one feels on problems national and international, on politics and philosophy, ethics, and religion, there's unanimity of agreement on the fact that when we say "Merry Christmas" to some room in our house and give it an enduring present or two, we've succeeded at the same time in giving our own spirits quite a lift.

We're not breathing a word against holiday wreaths and candles all beribboned, and the dash and go of blown glass balls at the window and real jingling bells at the door. They are all jolly ways of shouting Merry Christmas to those who pass our homes, and to those who come inside. But if on the spur of some inspired moment we add something else besides, an enduring gift for the house from the whole household, perhaps, we've seen to it that our Christmas will remain with us long after the calendar date has passed.

Bathroom Now Up to Date.

Last January Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clark, 412 Greenwood, Evanston, modernized their bathroom. It was in no need of drastic change, since the fixtures were sound, the decorations good, the fittings and accessories in fit shape to continue functioning for family comfort for some time to come. But in the light of what's new in bathroom planning and finishing the existing room seemed dated and in need of modernization.

This was done; beautifully done, with careful attention paid to the hundred and one details which go to make up a properly renovated bath.

Now it's fresh and festive and sparkling for the holidays, tho the work was done some time ago.

Problems encountered in each bathroom differ, but certain fundamental improvements are usually in order.

Brown and Yellow Floor.

In this instance new fixtures for old were installed. A built-in tub with overhead shower, new closet, a new lavatory with mirrored medicine cabinet over it, and an intriguing recess in the wall for toilet accessories. The radiator disappeared from under the window and a fine rubber flooring, in rich brown tones with yellow stripes was laid. The wainscot is a marbleized pattern, an attractive lemon yellow, with the upper walls papered. This paper has a silver background and white morning glories flecked with yellow are a part of its pattern. The bathroom fixtures are chrome.

One may not be ready to celebrate the holidays with plans or a check for an entire new bath or kitchen, but there are smaller ways of giving these rooms a merry yuletide remembrance.

Tank Shelf Cover.

Bathroom scales were never so good looking, with magnifying lens, perhaps, if some family member is short sighted; or a chrome finished closet tank shelf cover with nice safeguard rail, for extra shelf space and protection against bottles that sometimes tumble off the back of a closet tank; or new lavatory faucets in case the old ones are losing their finish and acquiring the dripping habit. For the kitchen a modern single swinging faucet would be a pleasant gift.

Of course a new sink would be a grand present, but so would a shower in the basement for the children. It need not cost much. Rough nickel plated showers will take a lot of tough usage from youthful basement athletes.

Plan Card Party.

Siena Mothers' club will give a luncheon and card party at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Better Homemaking institute, 111 West Jackson boulevard. Mrs. John Koutnick and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons are chairmen.

MUNDELEIN GLEE CLUB WILL SING BUCK'S CANTATA

Dudley Buck's cantata, "The Coming of the King," will be a feature of the annual Christmas program, "Under the Stars," to be presented by Mundelein college students at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the college theater.

The Glee club, directed by Prof. Otto Singenberger, will sing the cantata. Soloists will include Maude Shuflitowski, Betty Lou Deppen, Mildred Martinez, Geraldine Koppa, Patricia Herbert, Marion Jacobs, Shirley Hopper, and Rita Callaghan. Before the cantata the Glee club will offer carols, closing with a "Gate of Heaven" tableau in which Alice Guest will be the Madonna and Mary Jane Bresnehan, Frances Kane, and Bette Winte will be angels.

Rosalie Wiora and Angela Voller will play organ selections and the college orchestra, under the baton of Joseph J. Grill, will present the Gloria from the "Twelfth Mass," by Mozart, and "A Yuletide Fantasy," by Erne Rapee.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL TO OFFER FOUR LECTURES

Plans for four Sunday afternoon lectures in January as part of an annual study of trends and events were announced last week by the Evanston School of Foreign Affairs. The series will begin Sunday afternoon Jan. 5 and will be held in the First Methodist church of Evanston. Mrs. Eugene S. Lawler, 627 Library place in the suburb, is general chairman of the 1941 session. Members of the program committee include Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, Dr. Kenneth Colegrove, Miss Valborg Sinkler, Dr. T. W. Merriam, and B. G. Mattson Jr.

NEW SYMPHONY OF 55 MEMBERS TO MEET TUESDAY

Rogers Park's embryo symphony orchestra, which is to be organized officially Tuesday evening, has jumped from 35 to 55 players as a result of a story in last Sunday's Metropolitan section.

The orchestra now being formed by four Rogers Park music devotees had a nucleus of 35 musicians. After the story appeared H. Arnold Cohen, 6810 Sheridan road, received calls from 20 musical residents who volunteered to play in the orchestra.

Members will hold their first meeting Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the Rogers Park Baptist church, 1900 Greenleaf avenue, which they have rented as a rehearsal hall.

Plans are to be made for weekly rehearsals and officers will be elected. The orchestra is to be conducted by Sam Raphling, 1336 Estes avenue, young composer and concert pianist. In addition to Mr. Cohen, other founders include Curt Dreifuss, 2419 Fargo avenue; A. J. Strohm, 2124 Chase avenue, and Edward Zeisler, 4335 Kenmore avenue.

Parents May Attend Party If with Their Children

The usual sign, "Children admitted if accompanied by adults," is to be rewritten Saturday morning at the 49th ward's annual Christmas party at the Granada theater. The new version will read: "Adults admitted only if accompanied by children." The party is the sixth annual one sponsored by Ald. Frank Keenan.

NEW F-M CALL LETTERS TO GIVE POSITION ON DIAL

Locations of Stations Also to Be Indicated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Letters and figures are to be combined in the call letters for the new frequency modulation [F-M] stations under a system announced last week by the federal communications commission. These call letters will be so united to tell listeners the position of the F-M station on the tuning dial; whether it is east or west of the Mississippi river, and in many instances the city, or general area where it is located.

F-M broadcasting is the new system which reduces static to a minimum and results in high fidelity reception. W-G-N, Inc. was granted a permit to begin construction of an F-M station last week. The new station was tentatively assigned to operate with a frequency [wave length] of 45.9 megacycles [45,900 kilocycles].

Not Ready for 4 Months.

Construction of the new station, which will supplement the services of W-G-N, will be started at once on the 29th floor of Tribune Tower. It will not be ready for use for at least four months, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer has announced. Antennae will be mounted on the flagpole atop Tribune Tower. The topmost antenna arms will be placed 15 feet beneath the American flag.

In accordance with international agreements the prefixes "W" and "K" will be used to start F-M call letters, just as they have for years on standard broadcasting stations. "K" will indicate stations west of the Mississippi; "W", stations east.

Numerals in Call Letters.

The second and third characters of each F-M call will be numerals, the FCC has announced. These numerals will be the last two numbers of the assigned frequency [in megacycles]. These two numerals will indicate the position on the dial. After these two numerals will appear another letter, or letters, which will indicate in some abbreviated form the city or area in which a station is located, or which may be arbitrarily assigned.

The calls of Chicago F-M stations, are to end in "C." No other city will have "C" alone as an ending. Others will have an additional letter or letters after "C" to identify them.

Similarly, Boston calls will end in "B," New York calls in "NY" and District of Columbia calls in "DC."

Consider Special Requests.

All F-M allocations are being made between 42 and 50 megacycles. Assigned frequencies are not on even megacycles but on the odd tenths. For example, a station might be assigned to 46.3 meg; all the F-M frequencies are in the forties, thus "4" is valueless in locating a station. A station assigned to 46.3 meg. would have the last two numerals "63" appearing in its call.

Thus if the new W-G-N, Inc., F-M station were finally to be assigned the frequency of 45.9 megacycles, the figures "59," which would determine its dial position, would appear in its call letters. And its call, under the plan as announced last week, would become W59C.

The FCC has announced to broadcasters, however, that it will consider requests for special letter terminations for the new F-M calls.

Ossy Renardy Soloist on Radio City Music Hall

Ossy Renardy, violinist, will be featured in Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor when he is guest soloist on the Radio City Music Hall on the Air program at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL-NBC. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in Schubert's Overture to "Rosamunde" and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

'ROSE MARIE' ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT SATURDAY

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Rudolf Friml's operetta, "Rose Marie" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N-Mutual. Marion Claire and Robert Weede, outstanding personalities of radio and opera, will take the leading singing rôles. Miss Claire is featured in the leading feminine rôle in all these operettas.

Mr. Weede made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1937 and has been featured with the Chicago Opera. "Rose Marie," a romantic story of the Canadian Rockies, was first presented in 1924. It has been a perennial favorite since then.

It includes several songs of haunting loveliness, "Rose Marie, I Love You" and the "Indian Love Call" among them. William A. Bacher will produce "Rose Marie" and Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Familiar Music to Feature W-G-N Program.

Songs by Marion Claire and a violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski will be the musical highlights of the opening broadcast of the Chicagoland concert hour to be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Light classical and familiar music will be presented on this new program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the concert hour. In so doing Col. McCormick will be renewing a custom he established last summer on the Sunday Symphonic hour. Henry Weber, who concluded his season's work yesterday as general director of the Chicago Opera company, will conduct the W-G-N orchestra.

The Chicagoland Concert hour replaces the Monday evening opera broadcasts which have been a musical highlight of the W-G-N schedule for the last five weeks.

Miss Claire's Songs.

Miss Claire, who sings the leading parts in W-G-N's Saturday night Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, will sing Musette's Waltz from "La Boheme," by Giacomo Puccini, for the first of her solos.

She also will sing Adams' "O Holy Night" and selections from Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow Waltz." The augmented chorus will join Miss Claire in the Adams and Lehar numbers.

Orchestra's Selections.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra will open the program with a presentation of the "Gypsy Baron" overture by Johann Strauss, and also will play Manuel DeFalla's Dance Espagnole No. 1, and "Dances from Coppelia," by Delibes.

Chicagoland Concert programs will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary will be written by Cecil Smith of the Tribune music and drama department.

Bonnie Baker, Tucker to Present Hidden Stars

Hidden Stars, a new program featuring Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker's orchestra with guests chosen from among radio entertainers who have attained popularity in their own regions thru performances on local stations, will make its debut, at 4:30 p. m. today over WENR-NBC. The guests will be selected by listener votes in the various localities.

Sherlock Holmes Works for the Honor of Empire

The honor of an innocent man and the prestige of the British empire is saved by Sherlock Holmes, master detective, in the dramatization of "The Naval Treaty" from 9:30 to 10 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N. Basil Rathbone will play the part of Sherlock Holmes.

THORNTON TWP. HIGH TO BE SALUTED NEXT BY FUTURE CITIZENS

The achievements of Thornton Township High school at Harvey will be told at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon when the school is honored on the fifth presentation of the Chicago Tribune's program Citizens of Tomorrow over W-G-N.

Six hundred students, led by their principal, William E. McVey, will be special guests in W-G-N's main audience studio for the broadcast. Mr. McVey will speak briefly. Philip Maxwell plays the rôle of the principal and is also master of ceremonies of the program.

The Thornton chorus, directed by Irene Olson, will sing three numbers, the school song and two Christmas carols. This program will be suspended during the Christmas vacation and the first broadcast of the new year will be on Tuesday, Jan. 7, with the Hyde Park High school of the Chicago public school system as the guest of honor.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 16.

It is poinsettia time and home gardeners will attempt to carry the plants over winter, but it is much better to discard the old plants. They must be allowed to rest during winter, after flowering, and started into growth in the spring. They require a condition that is free from sudden changes or the foliage will drop. The plants can be cut back, potted, and plunged to the rim after late May, kept watered, fed, and shifted until fall. They are removed early to the house and given all the light possible.

Tuesday, Dec. 17.

On mild days when the ground can be worked, fall trenching can be undertaken. Instead of spading the ground in the usual way throw out a furrow one spading across the plot. Then go over the same spading again, thoroly breaking the lower soil, but leaving it where it was. Throw the next strip of top soil on this and pulverize the strip of soil beneath it. A layer of manure spread over the surface before starting operations will add additional food to the soil.

Wednesday, Dec. 18.

Garden friends will appreciate gifts they can use in gardening operations; tools of all kinds, bulbous plants, wearing apparel, books, etc. A subscription to a garden magazine will be appreciated, a bag of plant food, or anything that can be used to excite additional garden interest.

Not all bulbs are available at this date, but the amaryllis, yellow and white callas, and some narcissi may be obtained. Flowering pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, begonias, and plants of special value for their foliage may be obtained.

Thursday, Dec. 19.

Cover pansies and English daisies with straw or leaves and keep the cover in place with a few branches or boards. The long popular geranium is said to be losing popularity but there is no more pleasing plant that can be grown in the window.

Keep in comparatively small pots and in a window that has full sun.

Friday, Dec. 20.

It is not too late to mulch the strawberry bed. Cover with straw or draw strawy manure up to and around the plants, if they are planted in hills; if in densely matted rows, use straw. It will not pack too heavily and injure the plants.

Saturday, Dec. 21.

Keep pans of water on the radiator or attach a humidifier to it to increase humidity in the room. Beneficial to both plants and human beings. On cold nights, place newspapers against the window where plants are standing to keep out cold drafts. Apply a bit of plant food to plants in bud or while flowering.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

FROZEN TERROR IS CONQUERED BY PETER QUILL

A fantastic tale of a town in which the temperature inexplicably drops to 80 degrees below zero, disrupting communications, finally cutting the limited area off from the world will be told on the "Peter Quill" drama for today. This episode titled "The Frozen Terror" will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Informed of the town's plight, Peter Quill, wizard of the scientific laboratories, flies over the area with Gail Carson and Capt. Roger Dorn to investigate. As a preliminary measure Quill scatters coal dust on the frozen ground which absorbs warmth from the sun, relieving the intense cold.

What is apparently a meteorological phenomenon turns out to be an "isothermic devitalizer," a mysterious freezing device, which has run amuck. Quill, Gail, and Capt. Dorn bring "The Frozen Terror" and its inventor under control in an action-packed climax.

GAYETY REIGNS IN SETTLEMENTS

N. WEST SIDERS TRAVELING FAR TO BASK IN SUN

Turn to Southland for Vacations.

Even if Santa Claus wore plain clothes and didn't have anything to do with Christmas he would still be famous—as the forerunner of the annual southward migration about this time of year.

For every year, soon after Santa slings his sack over his shoulder and sets off southward from his office at the north pole, thousands of other people start doing the same, some just for a week or so, others for two or three months.

In their bags are bathing suits, light clothes, and sunburn ointments, and they carry tennis rackets or golf clubs or fishing equipment.

But there is also a rugged minority who thrive in ice and snow and instead of going south they pack up their skis, snow shoes, and woolen clothes, and leave for the north woods.

Travels by Auto.

Among the many northwest siders who are following Santa's example is Lou Crafton, 5354 North Kimball avenue, who is driving to Miami Beach, Fla., for a month's vacation. Crafton would not pin himself down to any one sport he was going to partake in, but said he was going to do "everything."

Mrs. William Epstein, 4919 North St. Louis avenue, and her daughter, Doris, are leaving this week for their first trip to Florida, where they will stay in Miami Beach. It will not be long before they return, however, for Miss Epstein is a senior at Von Steuben High school, which opens again on Jan. 6.

Mrs. Alma Wagner, 4156 Belle Plaine avenue, will, like Mrs. Epstein, be on the inaugural run of the new train, the Flagler. It is also her first trip to Florida, and she will stay at a hotel in St. Petersburg.

Plans Long Motor Trip.

A three month motor trip, stretching from Florida to California, is on the docket for Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. New of 3428 Wrightwood avenue, beginning this week. For the last 20 or so of his 65 years Mr. New has taken a motor trip and has covered about every place possible. The frequent stops the couple will make will be primarily for the purpose of fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Viegerske, 3622 North Leavitt street, will fly to New York City for his vacation from his work as an engineer with an electric company. They will visit Mrs. Viegerske's sister there.

Max Pausch finds no trouble in combining business and pleasure on his trips, for his business is country clubs. He is manager of the Bryn Mawr Country club and will leave with his wife and Frank Ridder, chef at the club, for a motor trip to Los Angeles and other points on the west coast. They will go by way of El Paso, making a study of country clubs along the route.

Likes Cold Best.

Among the rugged minority is Dr. Julius I. Steinfeld, psychiatrist in charge of the Forest sanitarium in Des Plaines, who will pursue a custom of several years by spending the holidays skiing near Ironwood, Mich., returning home shortly after New Year's day. Before coming here from Germany five years ago Dr. Steinfeld took his annual ski outing in Switzerland. With him will be Dr. Valentin Sobotka, 6745 Chappel avenue, and the latter's son, Stephen.

State Representative and Mrs. Elroy C. Sandquist and their three daughters are planning to motor to Annapolis, Md., where they will visit Elroy Jr., in his first year at the United States Naval academy, who, due to the speeding up of training, will have no Christmas leave. The Sandquists live at 4239 North Whipple street.

Miss Beatrice Shassere, superintendent of the Belmont hospital, will spend the vacation with her mother, Mrs. Fred Mills, in Robinson, Ill., in the southern part of the state.

Miss Annamae Sweiger, a teacher at Von Steuben High school, will visit relatives in Iowa.

FOREMAN SCHOOL STUDENTS ARE TO OFFER CHORALOG

The drama and music departments of Foreman High school will coöperate at the Christmas assembly Friday in presenting a choralog in three episodes: The Annunciation, The Vision of the Shepherds, and The Visit of the Magi.

Carl Kwast will read the story as the choir of 50 voices, directed by Miss Myrtle Nelson, sings. A soprano soloist, Miss Rae Seary, will portray the part of Mary, and at the completion of each episode the girls' chorus will sing carols during the presentation of tableaux by the drama department, headed by Mrs. Rose A. Weiss.

Chapter of Purple Heart to Meet Tuesday Evening

The Ray Workman chapter of the Military Order of the Purple Heart will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. This will be the first meeting under the guidance of the new commander, Harry Richards.

Christmas Dilemma for the Younger Generation

"What else do we want for Christmas" That is the problem which confronts Nancy and Barbara Peterson, who are 4 and 5 years old respectively. They have to think pretty quick, however, because Santa Claus is right there waiting for their letters, and it looks as tho he was getting a little impatient. The chances are that Barbara has a doll and a buggy down on her list. Nancy has told her mother that she wanted a vacuum cleaner. "In order to deserve it, I'm going to clean the house with it, after I get it," she said. Nancy and Barbara are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Peterson, 5227 West Hutchinson avenue, and Barbara is in the first grade at the Portage Park elementary school.

Santa Breaks Leg but Still Makes Merry

But altho he will not be shopping around Park Ridge as usual, 77 year old Joseph Nast is not taking time off, by a long shot. His room in St. Francis hospital in Evanston is humming with activity. He plays Santa to the children at the hospital—altho they have to come to see him—and he persuades nurses to dance for him while he plays the harmonica and taps time on the foot of his bed with his good foot.

Some say Santy broke his leg trying to negotiate a chimney on an icy day in practice for the Christmas season, but he claims he fell on his front steps after a short stroll. This is the first season in 16 years that he will not be on duty in Park Ridge.

Kids Send Flowers.

His room at the hospital is well supplied with baskets of flowers. One of them is from "The Kids of Park Ridge," and says, "Dear Santa: We're all pulling for your speedy recovery."

Gilder, picture framer, tap dancer, actor, and clown by trade, Joe Nast first took the part of Santa Claus when he was a boy on the near north side. The jolly spirit he still displays won him affection in the hearts of neighborhood children, and his fame spread farther and farther.

"When I moved to Park Ridge 16 years ago they put me to work again," he said. "In those days it was a one-Santa-Claus town, and I got to know everybody in it.

"Now it is impossible for me to get to all the homes where they want me, especially on Christmas eve and the nights immediately before it. Everybody wants Santa Claus then."

Has Nine Children.

Joe Nast has nine living children, but much to his disappointment none of them is following in his footsteps as Santa Claus. He has 20 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren. His wife died several years ago.

"You can't be a Santy in the same place for 16 years and have it remain just a Christmas season job," he said. "Now the kids recognize me all year around. They come to me as soon as one Christmas is over and want to get at the top of the list for the next one. I have to carry a pencil and paper all the time."

Proudly displayed pinned to his pajamas is a shiny Park Ridge police badge which was given to him eight years ago. "They didn't want me to be arrested for speeding during the weeks just before Christmas," he said laughing.

Everybody else in the room was laughing, too. They don't stop laughing for long when Joe Nast is around.

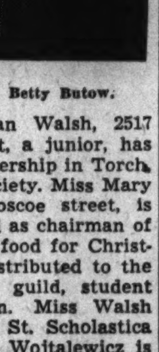
Bel-Fun Club of Phone Workers to Have Dance

Members of the Bel-Fun club, an organization of employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company will hold a dance at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street, on Friday evening. There are 95 members. Each month the club gives a party according to what the weather indicates, from a sleigh ride in February to a moonlight cruise in June. Officers are Don Daniels, president; Eileen Mathieu, recording secretary; Douglas Orwig, treasurer; Lois Miller, corresponding secretary, and Harry Carlson, sergeant at arms.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

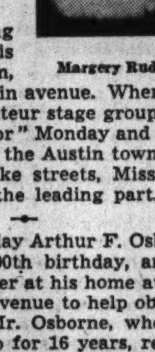
ALTHO only a first year student at William Woods college in Fulton, Mo., Miss Betty Butow has been selected as a member of the cast of "Family Portrait." The play will be presented by college players as a feature of the pre-holiday season. After her appearance in this drama, Miss Butow will return home on next Saturday to pass the Christmas holidays with her mother, Mrs. J. J. Sommers, 614 North Rockwell street.



Betty Butow.

Two northwest side students are distinguishing themselves at Rosary college in River Forest. Marian Walsh, 2517 North Bernard street, a junior, has been elected to membership in Torch, the activity honor society. Miss Mary Wojtalewicz, 4029 Roscoe street, is the sophomore named as chairman of the annual drive for food for Christmas baskets to be distributed to the poor by the college guild, student religious organization. Miss Walsh was graduated from St. Scholastica academy, while Miss Wojtalewicz is an alumna of Alvernia High school.

MARGERY RUDOY, of 2145 Humboldt boulevard, will be one of the players in the cast of "First Lady" when that comedy is presented by the Menorah society of Northwestern university this evening at the Chicago Woman's club theater, 72 East 11th street. This is Miss Rudoy's first appearance in a Northwestern dramatic presentation. She plays the part of Emmy, a southern lady, in this Kaufman and Dayton satire of Washington society.



Margery Rudoy.

Another rising dramatic star is Mildred Graham, 429 North Hamlin avenue. When The Headliners, amateur stage group, present "Stage Door" Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Austin town hall, Central and Lake streets, Miss Graham will play the leading part.

Today is the day Arthur F. Osborne celebrates his 90th birthday, and 50 guests will gather at his home at 4232 North Kildare avenue to help observe the occasion. Mr. Osborne, who has lived in Chicago for 16 years, resides with his son, Clifford, and four grandchildren, Clifford, Dorothy, Betty, and Richard. He was born in Connecticut, carried on a men's furnishing business in Connecticut and New York, and homesteaded in Montana, before he came to Chicago to live.

Svithiod Play to Recall 60 Years of Order

The Independent Order of Svithiod will celebrate its 60th anniversary at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Logan Square Masonic temple. Presentation of a farce entitled "In Old Chicago" will recall the days of the organization's founding in 1880.

There will be "Floradora" and "Gibson Girl" sextets, a "Barber Shop Quartet," a "Hungry Five Band," and a "Silk Hat Harry" trio. There will be a Lillian Russell, George M. Cohan, Weber and Fields, and Diamond Jim Brady, and there will be handle bar mustaches, Beau Brummels, Dapper Dans, and checked vests.

Planning Celebration.

The committee on arrangements for the celebration is headed by John Bergstrom. Stella Johnson is secretary, and Gustaf Olsson, treasurer.

Is Directing Farce.

VOICES TO RING IN SONG PRAISE THRU THE WEEK

Churches to Offer Special Services.

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands."

As tho in answer to the Scriptural commandment, caroling voices will be raised in praise, in northwest side churches this Christmas season.

"O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth."

Every northwest side church is having special observances thruout the week. And in every service, music will play a predominant part; carols and cantatas will be used to tell the Christmas story.

Tonight, following evening services, the congregations of eight Humboldt Park churches will assemble at the Salvation Army's Kedzie avenue corps, 1634 North Kedzie avenue, for a "singspiration" of Christmas music.

Carols, in community-sing fashion, will make up the major part of the program.

Churches Taking Part.

Besides the Salvation Army corps, the churches participating will be the Kedzie Methodist, the Salem Free Evangelical, the Fairfield Baptist, the Temple Baptist, the Bethany Presbyterian, the Humboldt Park Assembly of God, and the Humboldt Park Tabernacle. The "singspiration" idea was originated in November, 1937, by the Rev. Edward Evansen of the Kedzie Methodist church, and since that time the congregations have been meeting together every six weeks at the several participating churches.

Nearly 100 voices will participate in the annual Christmas pageant to be presented at Christ English Lutheran church, Long avenue and Lemoyne street, starting at 7:30 o'clock on both this Sunday and next Sunday evenings.

In colorful settings and authentic costumes, choristers will enact the Christmas story, to the accompaniment of organ, piano and violin. Robert Jackson will conduct the choir, while Miss Bertha Hansen is the dramatic director.

In Irving Park.

The Christmas program at the Irving Park Lutheran church at Belle Plaine and Harding avenues will begin at 7:45 o'clock this evening with a presentation of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by the Drama guild of the church.

The play will be given in the church auditorium, under the direction of Margot Tschirley. John P. Muldoon will play the rôle of Scrooge, around whom the story is written. The church school Christmas party will be held next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. On the following Sunday the combined voices of the church will be heard in a Christmas evensong service.

A choir of 45 voices will sing "The Incarnation," by Nevin, at 11 o'clock on Christmas eve at Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Richmond street and McLean avenue. Reinhold Arkebauer is the director. A special children's service will be held at 7 o'clock the same evening.

Two Music Programs.

Two musical programs are planned at the Nebo Lutheran church, 5800 Dakin street. At 11:30 o'clock on Christmas eve, the male chorus will present a musical service under the direction of Dan Becker. On Christmas day at 4:30 in the morning, a Julotta, or Swedish service, will be held. The senior choir will sing the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's

Will Dedicate Guard Armory Friday Night

Dedication of the Illinois National Guard's $1,300,000 armory at North and Kedzie avenues will take place Friday evening. Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, has been asked to give the dedicatory address, and other speeches will be made by Gov. John Stelle, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, chairman of the Illinois armory board, and Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, adjutant general.

The armory, which is at the northwest corner of Humboldt park, has been under construction for two years, and of the cost $571,909 was provided by the Public Works administration and the rest by bond issues by the armory board and the state of Illinois.

Troops Soon to Leave.

The spacious building will only be occupied for about six weeks after the dedication, for in February the regiments stationed there will leave for field training. It houses the 108th medical regiment, commanded by Col. James McKinley; the 108th quartermaster regiment, commanded by Col. Richard Smykal, and the 33d division special troops, commanded by Maj. Herbert Carnright.

The regiments, totaling 1,100 men, will be reviewed at the dedication, which is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock. At 9:30 o'clock there will be an open house, to which the public is invited.

The building contains 3,280,000 cubic feet and is built of reinforced concrete faced with limestone. In the center of the building, reaching the entire three floors, is the drill hall and auditorium, measuring 187x127 feet, with balconies seating 1,800 persons. A stage at the east end has all modern equipment, and may be used, when not needed for military purposes, by neighborhood civic and patriotic organizations.

In Other Sections.

The rest of the first floor includes the men's lockers, storerooms, enlisted men's clubroom, and main kitchen. The second floor includes the administrative offices, gymnasium, and one officers' clubroom, and on the third floor there are two officers' clubrooms and signaling and classrooms. There are no quarters in the armory for men.

In the basement there is a large garage, boiler rooms, heating and ventilating plants, transformer vaults, rifle range, machine shops, and storage rooms.

C. Herrick Hammond and S. Milton Eichberg were the architects.

The signaling room has just been provided with a new transmitter for communication with armories at Rockford, Pontiac, and Sycamore. As a military station—WXPB—it is only on duty Monday nights, but at other times it operates on the amateur band, under the direction of Lieut. Charles G. Paxton.

After the regiments leave the building will be manned only by a skeleton civilian maintenance staff.

HORSEMEN OF SIX STATES REQUEST RIDING BOOKLET

Requests for the new Tribune let on elementary riding instruction, entitled "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride," have been received from at least six middle western states, those in charge of its sale announced last week.

At the Tribune Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower, where the booklet is on sale for 25 cents [27 cents by mail] it was said that mail orders have come from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, and Missouri.

GIFTS, PARTIES BRING JOY TO YOUNG AND OLD

Barren Lives Tinted with Yule Glow.

The spirit of Christmas is already as tangible as the feel of Santa's red coat sleeve in busy settlement houses thruout the northwest side. It reaches out with the brightness and cheer of the Yule log fire, bringing into its circle of warmth the bewildered alien, the earnest, puzzled American-in-the-making, the lost, uncared-for child—all those to whom Christmas can be a time of greatest misery, a period when loneliness and neglect in a world of delight for all others, makes life seem unbearable.

In the settlement houses these foreign born and needy citizens find in Christmas a glowing joy to be remembered with gratitude thru all the coming year. Hundreds of unselfish friends and social workers thruout this district are laboring ceaselessly to make it so.

Help Each Other.

Perhaps the greatest joy, however, comes not in the things which are done for settlement house members, but in the ways which they find to do things for themselves and each other. The chance to make a simple little gift, the adventure of taking part in a play or program, the fellowship of a dish of ice cream with one's neighbors—these fill many hearts with gladness.

That is why behind every Christmas program presented at a settlement house is a story of coöperation on the part of many willing persons whose work is not apparent in the finished performance. They have made the pretty costumes, helped build the settings, wrapped gifts, done all the countless little things, unseen and so important.

They don't count it work. They count it a privilege to be able to participate in some way in the Christmas activities. Thru these, they share the Christmas spirit.

Thousands to Witness.

At Northwestern University settlement, 1400 Augusta boulevard, between 2,000 and 3,000 persons will witness the beloved, traditional play "The Forest of Christmas and the Christmas Angel." Ten performances will be given before groups of 200 each, parents and children brought in by the various social agencies working in that neighborhood. Then the play is put on before the settlement's own departments.

The last performance is the gayest of all, for this audience is composed of the parents of the 60 children participating in the program.

Christmas was officially ushered in at Onward House, 600 North Leavitt avenue, last Tuesday with the ceremony of the "Hanging of the Greens." Room by room, the house council dedicated the building to the Christmas spirit. At the close of the ceremony, a program of international Christmas customs was presented by all-age groups.

Will Sing Around Tree.

Every evening at 7 o'clock from now until Christmas, carolers will sing around the tree on the roof of Onward House. Parties, arranged by members of the girls' committee and sponsored by them and other groups, will be attended by boys and girls and adults of the house.

The climax of the Christmas season comes with the "White Gift" vesper service next Sunday afternoon when the mothers group will present the Nativity scenes, and the members of the Sunday school will dramatize the play "Why the Chimes Rang."

As the closing scene of the play, everyone present will bring forward his birthday gift. These will supplement the Christmas baskets that are distributed among the needy in the neighborhood.

All to Take Part.

From the youngest to the oldest, every club and class member at Chicago Commons settlement, 955 West Grand avenue, will participate in at least one Christmas celebration during the coming 10 days. The season will be initiated this afternoon with the senior girls' tea, a tradition of candles and firelight. Evelyn D'Amico will give a reading, Josephine Marino will play an accordion solo, and Grace La Rocca will sing.

Another Christmas tradition is the play presented annually for 15 years by the Commons Mothers' club, the oldest group at the settlement. Tonight at 8 o'clock they will give "The Saint," by A. Beatrice Knowles. The mothers also will have a series of parties during the week.

The youngest members of the settlement will have their party at 10 o'clock on Thursday, when the nursery and kindergarten children present carols and a playlet for their mothers. Each mother will receive a little gift her child has made for her. The following morning will present a decided contrast when 30 members of the Old Age assistance group have their party. The oldest members, 80 year old Peter Nicholas, is expected to act as Santa Claus.

Other Parties Planned.

Numerous other Christmas parties for the various club groups will completely fill the rest of the week. All will be climaxed on Dec. 23 when the adult members join to present a program at 7:30 o'clock. In addition to Nativity pictures and to Christmas

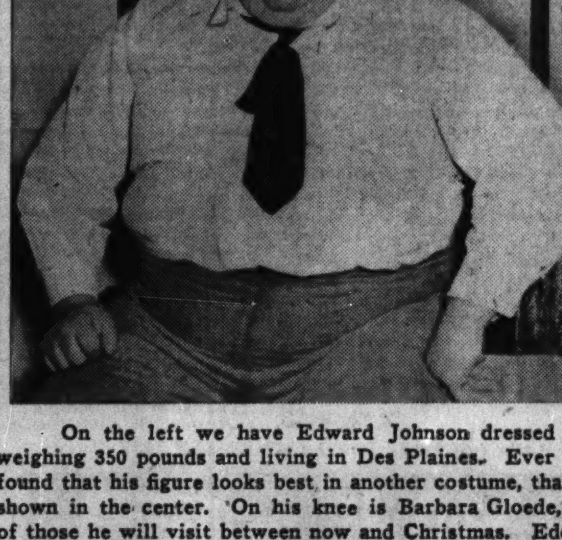
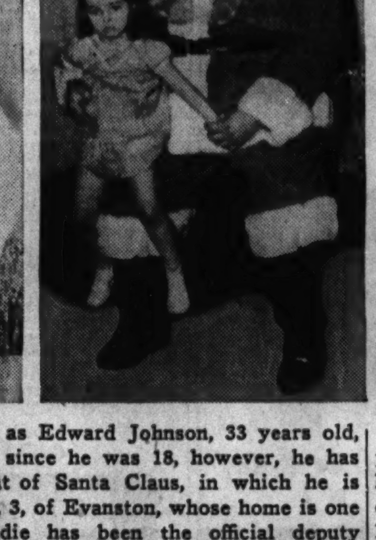
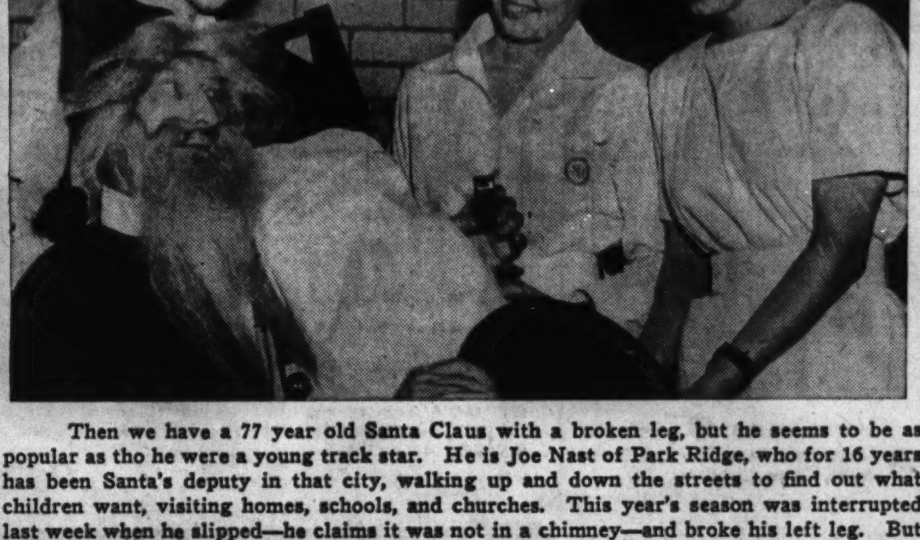
Des Plaines Santa Carries On While Park Ridge's Takes Life Easy







On the left we have Edward Johnson dressed as Edward Johnson, 33 years old, weighing 350 pounds and living in Des Plaines. Ever since he was 18, however, he has found that his figure looks best in another costume, that of Santa Claus, in which he is shown in the center. On his knee is Barbara Gloede, 3, of Evanston, whose home is one of those he will visit between now and Christmas. Eddie has been the official deputy Santa in Des Plaines for 10 years, and most enjoys his calls at schools. For the next nine days he will have four or five calls a night scheduled to various homes. "I don't usually come down the chimney," he admitted, "but I've held people on my knee of every age between one and 83." [Great Lakes Photos.]

Then we have a 77 year old Santa Claus with a broken leg, but he seems to be as popular as tho he were a young track star. He is Joe Nast of Park Ridge, who for 16 years has been Santa's deputy in that city, walking up and down the streets to find out what children want, visiting homes, schools, and churches. This year's season was interrupted last week when he slipped—he claims it was not in a chimney—and broke his left leg. But Nurses Mary Conway, Francine Gardiner, and Anida Blough obviously expect him to be back in business again next year, for they are giving him a box of candy and have been listening to him play the harmonica. REFRIGERATOR CARS.

I see in your paper that there is quite a bit of fuss about the bus lines.

Well, as long as our aldermen are so busy investigating, they might as well find out why most of the street cars have no heat. I wonder if any of them ever ride on the Irving Park road street cars, especially on cars No. 1652, 1660, and [illegible]? They are all practically frigidaires. I have to ride on them to and from work every day, from Lincoln avenue to the end of the line. It is terribly cold and drafty and I catch one cold after another.

We pay 7 cents to ride in street cars and catch a deathly cold and then pay doctor's bills. Let's see if we can't get some heat on these cars. When I ask motormen why the cars are not heated, they tell me that they cannot do anything about it and that the car heaters are supposed to be automatically adjusted.

DISGUSTED.

LUNCHROOM NEEDED.

The parents of children attending the Young school on the northwest side of Chicago are asking a proper place for our children to eat their lunches. It seems very little to ask.

At the present time the school has provided a room seating possibly 45 children. There are 50 to 60 children eating in this room supervised by mothers of these various children. All of the children eating there live from five to nine long blocks from school and it is impossible for them to go to their homes in the allotted 45 minutes for lunch.

We are asking for a cafeteria-lunchroom. The board of education should do something about this situation.

A NORTHWEST SIDE MOTHER.

WANTS SNOW REMOVED.

In Detroit there is a law which requires sidewalks to be cleared right after a storm. In Chicago one just does as one feels. But Detroit goes one better. The city sets some unemployed to work and adds a charge to the tax bill. From the hard job it is to walk on these icy sidewalks, we ought to do something to get Chicago's often snow covered sidewalks cleaned.

RAE LEVIN.

I. C. C. TO RESUME HEARINGS ON NEW LARAMIE SUBWAY

Motor Club Is Backing Rail Underpass.

West Area council of the Chicago Motor club met recently to endorse plans for a subway for vehicular traffic on Laramie avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad immediately south of Grand avenue. A committee of council members headed by Peter Verschuur and including Albert Keeney, William P. Schilke, and John Schrik appeared before the Illinois Commerce commission in support of the separation. Another hearing will take place on Wednesday.

The city department of public works prepared plans for the subway. It is estimated that the cost of $382,000 would include the construction of the six lane underpass and the necessary pavement to connect the project with the streets on both sides of the railroad right-of-way.

Would Extend Bus Lines.

One of the factors in support of the subway is the extension of Laramie avenue bus lines which now stop at North avenue. Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, said, "motor fuel tax money can be spent in no better way than to open new streets for arterial traffic. This underpass will eliminate the last barrier in a street that extends from the northwest side thru the town of Cicero. It will create a great north-south route.

The Central avenue bridge celebration committee reported that the fête has been scheduled for May 14. Another committee has planned a meeting to discuss the traffic problems on north Austin avenue. An underpass was built for this street a year ago. Since then discussions have been held on whether Austin should be made a thru street or boulevard, should be widened and repaved and what type of protection should be installed for traffic at the pricipal cross streets.

Still Seek Superhighway.

Meanwhile the Northwest Area council devoted its meeting primarily to promising continued support for the Avondale superhighway, altho, as it was reported by Frank Tomczak, chairman of a special committee working on the superhighway, county authorities seem to have abandoned the project because of financial difficulties. He cited a two hour conference he had had with Maj. George Quinlan, superintendent of county highways, on Dec. 5.

He reported that altho the Avondale route had the unanimous support of the 50 community organizations represented in the council, the county was turning its attention to the construction of super roads in the territory outside of the city.

"We were shown plans of what the county was going to do in the area outside of the city," he said. "A super road on Higgins between the city limits and Wolf road was one of the main examples."

Urge Parking Ban.

Mr. Tomczak's committee was instructed to continue conferring with public officials and to investigate other means of financing the project. Others on the committee are Edward F. Boyle, Bernard Molay, F. T. Rounds, and Harry Weimer.

The Northwest council also urged a complete ban on parking on Foster avenue between Kedzie and Central Park avenues—on the south side between 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning, and on the north side between 4:30 and 7 o'clock in the evening. A petition regarding this was sent to Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th].

Bring Joy to Audiences

From their little house in the midst of the Forest of Christmas, these children gaze hopefully into the gathering darkness, hoping to see the Christmas angel. Soon they will embark upon a quest into the woods, and their finding of the angel will bring joy to every audience gathered in the Northwestern settlement house, 1400 Augusta boulevard, where this play is an annual feature. These youngsters are part of a cast of 60 which will perform before approximately 3,000 persons in a series of programs given thruout the coming week at the settlement. From left to right, they are Pearl Cook, Bernadine West, Stanley Konieczny, and Florence Kopola. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

UNITS OF B'NAI B'RITH JOIN IN MEMBER DRIVE

Look for Big Conclave Here in Spring.

In preparation for the international B'nai B'rith conference, to be held here next spring, the Chicago council is taking part in a membership drive, which aims to increase the membership by 7,500, or about 30 per cent. The international conferences are held every three years, and this will be the first time in 40 years that Chicago has been host to one.

At a meeting at the Hamilton hotel Tuesday, Jerome J. Friedman, president of the Chicago council, will stress the importance of adding new names to the roster. The meeting will be attended by the heads of the 15 lodges in the Chicago council.

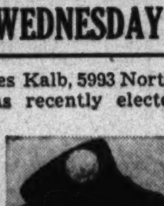
Northwest side residents and the lodges they head are as follows: William J. Ruttenberg, 2057 West Pierce street, Abram L. Sachar lodge; Harry G. Hershenson, Park Ridge, Adolf Kraus lodge; Henry H. Marks, 4942 North Francisco avenue, Albany Park lodge; Rudolph M. Callsoff, 4817 North Christiana avenue, Haym Solomon lodge; Milton H. Nelson, 3572 West Lyndale avenue, Garfield park lodge; and Benjamin M. Becker, 5813 North St. Louis avenue, Logan Square lodge.

Palestine Folk dancing will be directed by a Zionist youth group this afternoon at a meeting of the Albany Park youth division of the American Jewish Congress. The meeting will begin at 3 o'clock at River park fieldhouse, 5100 North Francisco avenue. Community singing will also be part of the program, and will be led by Miss Shirley Rosenfeld.

Dr. Jacob Singer, rabbi of Temple Mizpah, will address the Men's Club of Temple Beth Israel at its meeting at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. His subject will be, "Jewish Wit and Humor." The meeting has been arranged by Hyman Graber, chairman, and Nathan Adler, co-chairman.

NORTHWEST CHORAL SOCIETY WILL SING CAROLS WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Daniel James Kalb, 5993 Northwest highway, was recently elected president of the Northwest Choral society which meets at 8 o'clock every Monday evening in the Jefferson Park fieldhouse. Other new officers are Mrs. Mary Ellen Helgert, vice president; Miss La Verne Paulson, secretary; Mrs. Lena Karr, corresponding secretary, and Miss Marian Erickson, treasurer.



Mrs. D. J. Kalb.

On Wednesday the chorus will sing a half hour program of Christmas carols in Jefferson park. Special amplifiers will carry the voices from the fieldhouse to the outdoor audience.

A special membership drive is being conducted by the chorus for alto, tenor and baritone voices, in preparation for the annual spring concert. The group is under the direction of Clarence L. Richter.

Schurz Athena Will Hear Lecture on Health Today

Dr. Fred T. Bertsche will address the Schurz Athena society, graduates of the public speaking classes of Schurz evening high school, on "The Magic of Health" at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Lions building, 4308 West North avenue.

VOICES TO RING IN SONG PRAISE THRU THE WEEK

Churches Will Offer Special Services.

"Messiah," with Ethel Reid Lundberg directing.

Harry S. Walsh will direct a choir of 40 voices in Clokey's cantata, "When the Christ Child Came," at 5 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Irving Park Methodist church, 3801 North Keeler avenue. Soloists will include Miss Lois Wallner, soprano; Miss Evelyn Ames, contralto; Robert W. Kessler, tenor, and George Smith, baritone.

Three choirs will join in Christmas songs at a candlelight service at 4:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, at Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Wilson and North Spaulding avenues. Gerhardt Bergstrasser is director and organist.

Special Yule Programs.

The next two Sundays will be devoted to special Christmas programs at the Albany Park Methodist church, Albany and Wilson avenues. At 4:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, the church school program will be given. It will be divided into four sections: The tiny tots story of Christmas will be directed by Mrs. Robert Schirmer, superintendent of the beginners' department; Christmas carols and a playlet, "When Christ Was Born," directed by Miss Marian Peterson of the primary department; Christmas carols by the junior department, directed by John Jauch, and dramatic scenes from Dickens' "Christmas Carol," under the direction of Don Smith of the young peoples' department.

The annual Christmas choir program on the following Sunday, Dec. 29 at the same time, will feature carols from all nations. "Fantasia," a motet writte by Vaughan-Williams, will be interpreted, with Arthur Ranous in the baritone rôle.

Next Sunday will bring a musical evening to the First Gethsemane Lutheran church at Oakdale and Lamon avenues. Starting at 8:15 o'clock, the combined church choirs will present a program under the direction of Mrs. Martha Lundberg. Claude Carlson, national high school champion viola player, will be heard.

First Lutheran Oratorio.

The combined choirs of the First Lutheran church, 3500 Fullerton avenue, will present Handel's "The Messiah" at 8 o'clock this evening at the church. Edgar A. Lundberg will direct the performance, while Ann Gordon, Mabel Vogt, Marcia Sandahl, Max E. Wilson, and Harry Swanson will act as soloists.

A 4 o'clock service at the First Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran church, Paulina and Le Moyne streets, tonight is sponsored by the Siona Singing society and the Euphonic Junior choir of the church. A special feature of this service will be famous Christmas hymns and carols, including "The Children's Prayer" by Max Reger, sung by a group of school children, and "Noels of Many Nations" by the senior choir.

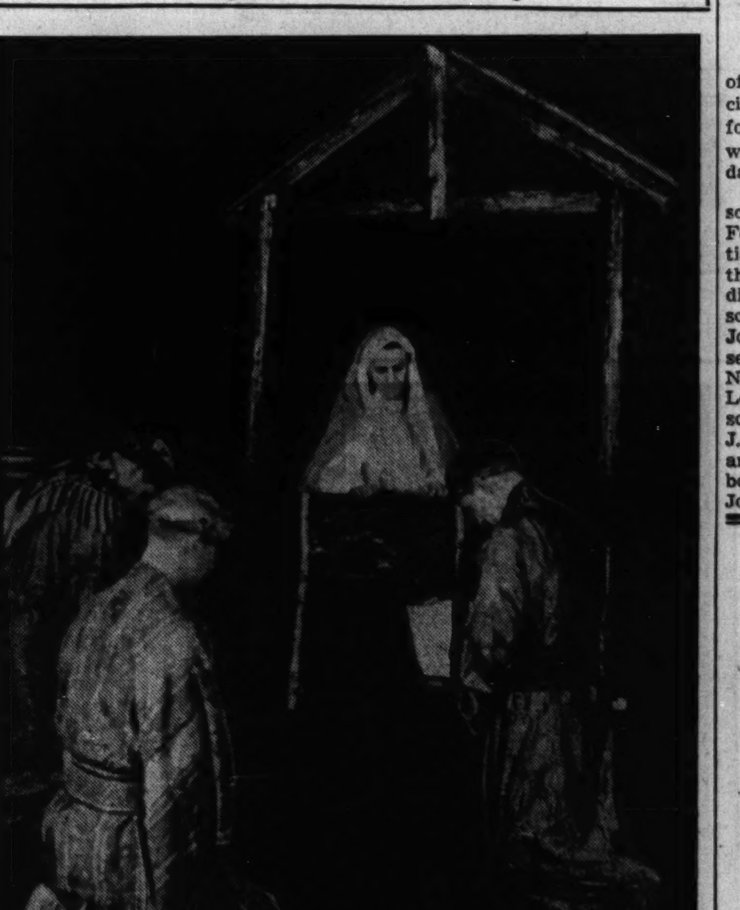
The senior and chapel choirs of St. Luke's Lutheran church of Park Ridge will present a Christmas candle light service at 7:30 o'clock this evening. George E. Luntz is director of the senior choir, and Charlotte A. Le Doux directs the chapel group. The high school sextette will also participate in the service. Featured on the program will be the singing of a new Christmas cantata, "The Son of the Highest," by Fairchild.

Mount Olive Services.

Special services at the Mount Olive Evangelical Lutheran church, Tripp avenue and Byron street, will begin at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon with a candle light service featuring Christmas music by the senior, girls,' and children's choirs. A Christmas eve children's service at 7 o'clock, and midnight service starting at 11:30 are other special programs.

Two northwest siders will be soloists when the Lutheran Oratorio society presents Handel's "The Messiah" at Thorne hall on the downtown campus of Northwestern university, Chicago avenue and the Outer drive, at 8 o'clock Tuesday. Gertrude Gressens, 6211 Grace street, will sing the contralto parts, while Ethel Reid Lundberg, 5545 Giddings street, is the soprano soloist.

Story of the Nativity



Three Wise Men kneel in reverence, as Mary watches over the Babe in a rustic crib in this scene from the musical pageant, "The Story of Christmas," which will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight and next Sunday evening at Christ English Lutheran church, Long and Lemoyne avenues. One hundred voices of the junior and senior choirs, under the direction of Robert Jackson, will present the annual drama. Miss Gertrude Schaefer plays the part of Mary, while the Magi, from left to right, are Leroy Parish, Robert Brach, and James Childs.

GAYETY REIGNS IN SETTLEMENTS FOR ALL AGES

Gifts, Music Give Joy to Thousands.

songs sung in Italian and English by the audience, there will be depicted the celebration of Christmas in Italy, Greece, Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, Poland, and Bulgaria. It will be concluded with a presentation of "American Christmas 1940."

Neighborliness will mark the Christmas scene at Erie Neighborhood house, 1347 West Erie street, next Sunday when nearby families bring in their gifts for others. On Christmas eve the young people go up and down the streets singing Christmas carols.

Numerous parties and celebrations will occupy the days between now and Christmas at the settlement. Most of them will be in the house, but on Thursday 15 boys will be guests of the Men's club at the Park Ridge Community church for a turkey dinner. Other groups of children will be entertained by various city clubs. The day before Christmas Erie will return the favor with a party for all children under the care of the Juvenile court.

At Emerson House.

Among the Christmas parties planned at the Emerson house, 645 Wood street, one of the brightest is the annual dinner of the Rhoda Woman's club, oldest club at the settlement. The members will cook and serve the meal, which will be held Wednesday noon. At 3:30 o'clock the same day a party will be given for Emerson house children, with a varied program of entertainment.

Among the Thursday parties will be a joint program given at 8 o'clock by members of the intermediate, senior, and adult groups under the sponsorship of the house council. On Friday the children of the nursery school are giving a party for their mothers. Glee club groups will go caroling thru the neighborhood on the night of Dec. 23.

Mothers as Guests.

A luncheon and Christmas party for the mothers' group is one of the important Christmas observances at Leyden Fellowship house, 3428 North Oketo avenue. The meeting will start at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow.

On Thursday evening children from the religious education classes will present a Christmas play for their mothers and fathers. Sixty youngsters will participate under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Cuthrell. A feature on Saturday is the craft classes' annual children's sale of toys.

Children of the Margaret Etter Crèche nursery at 2116 West Chicago avenue will have their annual party on Friday. Board members will be hostesses to the 90 little guests. The party will begin with a Christmas dinner at 1 o'clock, followed by a costume program by the children and gifts of filled Christmas stockings from Santa Claus. Parents also will be invited to witness the program.

Avondale Methodist Choir to Sing Cantata Thursday

At 8 o'clock Thursday evening the Avondale Methodist Choir will sing a cantata entitled "On Wings of Angel Song," a recent composition by Ira B. Wilson. The junior choir also will take part in the program.

SCHURZ SCHOOL TO GET PRIZE IN LAWN CONTEST

Carl Schurz High school, winner of first place in the park district's city-wide "Save the Lawn" contest for the most beautiful school lawn, will be awarded a silver plaque Tuesday afternoon.

Twenty other public and parochial schools were also among the winners. Four of them, given honorable mention, are on the northwest side. With the names of their engineer-custodian and principal, they are: Palmer school, 5031 North Kenneth avenue, Joseph Feniger, Frederick O. Musehl; Taft High school, 5625 North Natoma avenue, Theodore F. Fogh, Leo A. Hoefer; Von Steuben High school, 5045 North Kimball avenue, J. P. Fleming, Miss Varian M. PARENTS TO SEE CHILDREN ENACT SANTA STORIES

Plays Will Be Offered at P.-T. Meetings.

This is the week, just prior to school vacation, when children with dancing eyes and dramatic airs will enact Christmas stories and Santa Claus scenes for their parents, in Parent-Teacher meetings thruout the northwest district. Plays and programs staged by the pupils are to be featured at most of the meetings.

"Toy Shop" is the title of the playlet to be presented by children of the Prussing school at 1:15 o'clock on Tuesday, in the assembly hall. The Wednesday evening meeting, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will be known as the Prussing Parent-Teacher Family night. Sam Campbell, author and lecturer, will present a colored movie travelogue, "Camera Gold of the Rockies."

Palmer—The annual parents' night will be held at 7:45 o'clock Thursday evening in the school assembly, opening with a welcome address by Principal F. O. Mussehl, and a response by Mrs. John Strong, president. Pupils will present a play, "Christmas for All," and the boys and girls' glee clubs will sing Christmas carols. A grab bag follows the program.

Onahan—Dr. George L. Scherger, pastor of St. Paul's church, will speak on "Hopefulness" at the 8 o'clock meeting Thursday. School children will present a pageant, "There Was One Who Gave a Lamb."

Murphy—Eighth grade pupils will present a Christmas pageant in honor of Fathers' night at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Miss Ruth Schwochow will direct and Mrs. Florence Van Wazer will accompany the young singers in their colorful choir robes.

Moos—The girls' and boys' glee club, and second graders of the school will entertain with a Christmas program at 1:15 o'clock on Thursday in the school auditorium. Tomorrow the association will attend a soup demonstration and movies at the Salvation Army hall, 1700 North California avenue.

Mayfair—A program of Christmas carols by school children will bring the season's greetings to Mayfair at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. Alexander Balog of the Mayfair Bible church will speak on "The Spiritual Right of the Child."

Cleveland—Meeting at 1:30 o'clock on Tuesday in the assembly hall will feature a Christmas program by the children, and community singing of carols.

Beaubien—This association will hold its first open house and parent night at 7:30 o'clock on Tuesday, with Miss Madge Phipps, principal, giving the welcoming address. Highlight of the evening will be "A Music Club's Christmas—a Cantata" by pupils of the eighth grade, under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Risk.

Bateman—The Christmas meeting will be held at 1:15 o'clock on Tuesday under the general theme of music appreciation. The Northwest Council Mothers' chorus will present a Christmas cantata under the direction of Mrs. H. E. Moeller. There will be several dance numbers by Mrs. Ruth Gallagher's pupils. A grab bag will be featured.

Avondale—Fourth grade children will present a Christmas play under the direction of Miss E. R. Draheim, in a meeting beginning at 1 o'clock Thursday. Mrs. Myron T. Harshaw will speak on the parents' part in developing the child's reading interests.

Sabin—The Mothers' club will meet Tuesday at 10 o'clock for a Christmas program at the school.

Schurz—A variety of events will occupy the meeting at 1:30 o'clock in the school social room. Christmas carols by students, under the direction of Miss Eleanor Schweitzer, will be featured. Mrs. J. R. Chesser, state board member of visual education, will give a short talk and demonstration on music and art in connection with visual education. A food demonstration and movie, and a bake sale will conclude the meeting.

Taft—The meeting at 1:30 o'clock on Monday in the school auditorium will see the Taft Proscenium players present a play portraying the Christmas spirit, and climaxed by the Taft Girls' chorus, singing carols.

Stowe—Mrs. Lydia Hoffman, homemaking chairman, announces a home bake sale and hobby show by members at 1:15 o'clock on Tuesday in the school basement.

Roosevelt—At 1:30 o'clock on Tuesday, Mrs. S. J. Robbins, association treasurer, will review the prize book, "The Family" for members and their friends. A Christmas party will follow.

Locke—A bake sale will be held at the meeting tomorrow, with proceeds to be given to the student aid donations. There will also be a program by the school children.

Kelvyn — Funston school is the honored school this month, at the meeting at 1:45 o'clock on Tuesday in the school civics room. A teachers' tea, display of hobbies, and music by students will add interest to the program.

Hitch—The North West Mothers' chorus will present a Christmas story, "Bethlehem," at the meeting on Thursday starting at 1:15 o'clock.

Hibbard—Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, executive director of the Association for Family Living will talk on "Understanding Your Children and Mine" at the meeting at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow in the school auditorium. On Thursday, members and friends will meet at 12:30 at Kedzie and Lawrence avenues, to tour a soup company plant.

Haugan—"Guiding Our Children in Art" will be the subject of Miss E. W. Robertson, art director of the Chicago public schools, at the meeting at 1 o'clock on Thursday in the school auditorium. Kindergarteners and first and second graders will present a Christmas play. Mrs. M. I. Conner, adult education chairman, announces that a sewing class is being formed at the school beginning Tuesday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock, under the supervision of Miss Maude Nelson.

Garvey—Miss Ruth Straight of the home economics department of Taft High school will address the homemaking class at 1 o'clock Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank Koster, 5248 New England avenue. At the regular assembly on Wednesday, Miss Ethel Sherlock, district supervisor of music from the board of education, will speak on "Health Thru Music." This talk will be followed by a Christmas program.

Edgebrook — Illustrated Christmas carols will be one of the features of Thursday's meeting, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Dr. Bertha Shafer, social hygiene chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be the speaker of the day.

Ebinger—Mrs. Ruth H. Harshaw, director of the radio program, "Battle of Books" for the board of education, will give a review of children's books at the meeting starting at 1:15 o'clock on Wednesday in the school auditorium.

Aiding School Music Festival

Here are four Roosevelt High school students who will be largely responsible for the success of the school's gala music festival Friday evening. They are Elsa Reck, Raymond Holmes, and Marilyn Palmer, standing, and Alvin Behnke, seated. John P. Hamilton, head of the music department, and Miss Helen Johnson, director of the girls' chorus, are also active in preparing plans for the event. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ONCE TROUPERS, NOW BUSINESS MEN, THEY ENTERTAIN PATIENTS

The Triangle Social club of the northwest side is spending a busy Yule season spreading cheer to patients in public and government hospitals. The club has already given performances at the North Chicago Veterans' hospital and the Municipal Tuberculosis hospital.

Lieut. Joseph Murrin.

Under auspices of the Daughters of Isabella the club will give its minstrel show Wednesday for the patients at the Chicago State hospital. The same show will be given on Dec. 27 at Hines hospital.

The club is composed of fifty members, many of them old time troupers, now businessmen in Chicago, who at their own expense provide enjoyment for the unfortunate. Edward Bilson is president. The club has two father and son acts, Henry and Fred Kemper and Jack and Paul Fierce, who perform with the old time clappers.

Among the minstrel performers are Police Lieut. Joseph J. Murrin of the Shakespeare avenue station, Jack O'Malley, an old trouper, Peter Stermer, interlocutor, Art Bielan, Leo Ives, Bill Kilbiner and the musical director, C. W. Karbach and the producer, George Vanderohe.

Park District Outing Club to Hike Along Des Plaines

The Park District Outing club will conduct a seven mile hike today along the Des Plaines river, starting in Des Plaines. It will be led by Frank Stegenga, assisted by Guides Elizabeth Fox and Elizabeth Sauer. A motor coach conveying the hikers will leave Milwaukee and Lawrence avenues at 9:55 o'clock this morning. The hike will be thru the forest preserves known as Che-chu-pin-qua Woods.

NORWOOD PARK JUNIORS ARE TO ENTERTAIN GIRLS

Christmas Party Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Twenty-five girls from the Park Ridge School for Girls will be guests of the Norwood Park Junior Women's club tomorrow night at a Christmas party in the Norwood park fieldhouse.

A grab bag will provide presents and fun for every one, while musical entertainment, games, and refreshments will complete the program. The clubrooms will be decorated with Christmas greens and candles. Hostesses for the evening will be Jane Wolf Strum, Betty Taft, and Jeanne Sisson.

Wicker Park Women.

A Christmas play by Myron Schultz will enliven the members' Christmas party at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at 2350 North Kedzie boulevard. There will be music and a grab bag. Mrs. Fred Elderkin, social chairman, is in charge.

Welles Park Woman's Club.

The music department will meet at the home of Mrs. E. M. Barta, 2430 Gunnerson street, at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. A. D. Vogel will talk on the origin of Christmas music. After luncheon at 12:30, the drama, art, and literature department will meet. Mrs. F. D. Williams will present creative writings, and Mrs. Vogel will talk on Christmas customs in other lands.

Portage Park Woman's Club.

The social department will be entertained at a Christmas party Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. K. George, 6956 North Alcott avenue. A dessert luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock, after which there will be cards and a grab bag. Members of the literary, music, and art departments will meet at 1 o'clock Friday in the women's community bungalow, Hamlin and Byron streets, for a dessert luncheon and a Christmas program.

Mayfair Woman's Club.

Mrs. Stephen Dexter will be luncheon hostess to the literature study group Monday afternoon at her home, 5441 Lynch avenue. Mrs. Walter T. Mac Innes will review "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Kelvyn Park Civic.

"Music and Art" will be the theme Wednesday when the Kelvyn Park Woman's Civic club meets in Kelyvn park fieldhouse at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. Fred Fox will read "The Bird's Christmas Carol," assisted by the music group, Mrs. E. R. Wuerttemberger and Mrs. J. K. Kelley, 7th district chairmen, will be guests.

Irving Park Catholics.

A Christmas party and grab bag will be features of the Irving Park Catholic Young Woman's club meeting, which will start at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the home of the Misses Gertrude and Mary Flynn, 2726 North Francisco avenue. Final plans will be made for the club's Christmas philanthropic projects.

Hermosa Junior Women.

The annual Christmas party for needy children will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in Hermosa park fieldhouse, Kiubourne and Belden avenues. The children have been invited thru the William Penn Nixon School Children's Aid. Games and community singing will entertain the youngsters, and Santa Claus will present each with a gift.

Mt. Prospect Woman's Club.

An unusual criticism, "The Trouble with Christmas Presents," will be dramatically given at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening by the Mask and Wig Players of the Congregational church of Des Plaines. The club meeting will be held in the south church. Mrs. C. L. McCoy will entertain with Christmas music on the organ.

Belmont Woman's Club.

Mrs. Eric R. Seabloom, 5424 Melrose street, is to entertain the club at a Christmas party Wednesday noon. Each member will bring a grab bag gift. Mrs. John A. Cervelli, 1652 Merrimac avenue, is co-hostess.

Hermosa Woman's Club.

Christmas party has been scheduled for 1:30 o'clock Friday at the Hermosa park fieldhouse. Members will bring gifts for the Park Ridge School for Girls.

Norwegian Woman's Club.

The annual Christmas meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock on Wednesday at the clubhouse, 2512 North Kimball avenue. Mrs. Cecilie Guner will be the speaker. Norwegian Christmas goodies will be served.

Evening Auxiliary.

The evening auxiliary of the Irving Park Woman's club will hold its annual Christmas party in the Woman's Community building, Hamlin avenue and Byron street, on Tuesday. Miss Gola MacDonald will be in charge.

Altrui Club.

The December meeting of the board will be at the home of Mrs. Harry Croker, 5703 Leland avenue, at 8 o'clock Thursday.

Three Little Carolers

Angelina Mancinelli, Mary Hernandez, and Rose Mary Sylvester are the three little carolers, each 9 years old, who are singing their way thru the busy Christmas week at Chicago Commons settlement house at 955 West Grand avenue. Their lilting voices, along with those of many other young songsters, will bring the Christmas songs of all nations to the numerous programs which start today and will continue all week at the Commons. In fact, according to Miss Lea Taylor, head resident, every weekday will be crammed "as full of happy times and jollity as the best stuffed Christmas stocking is of toys and goodies." UKRAINIAN AID SOCIETY TO GIVE DRAMA TONIGHT

A classic drama in Ukrainian, entitled "Violin Melodies of Fall," will be given by the Ukrainian Woman's Aid society this evening at 7:30 o'clock, at St. Nicholas church hall, Oakley boulevard and Rice street. Proceeds of the play will be devoted to the upkeep of the St. Nicholas Parochial school, built about three years ago.

Mrs. Peter Kulpak has one of the leading rôles in the drama. Other principals in the cast include Mrs. Thomas J. Kostiw, Miss Olga Kolesnyk, Simon Domanczuk, Donald Kohut, John Paslowski, and Michael Yendrzejowsky.

The Ukrainian Woman's Aid society is now entering its 20th year of charitable work in the community.

Wedded 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Sutton, 4831 Belle Plaine avenue, are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary today at a dinner given in their honor. Children, families, and many friends will be present. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton, who are 86 and 88 years of age respectively, were married in Pekin, Ill., on Dec. 16, 1880. They moved to Chicago in 1898, and have resided here since that time. They have four children, eight grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Veterans Seeking Cigaret Fund for Soldier Patients

The 9th division, Cook County council, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, is sponsoring a drive to raise funds for cigarets to be distributed Christmas day among veterans in the hospitals in the Chicago area. Samuel Sgaller, 2634 North Fairfield avenue, announces that those wishing to donate cigarets or funds for their purchase may contact him or aid by attending a dance to be held Thursday night at the 131st armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue.

PARK THEATERS HAVE CHRISTMAS AS STAGE THEME

Puppeteers Will Present Show at Wicker.

Park district theatrical groups have devoted all their activities for the next 10 days to Christmas subjects. Some northwest side parks have prepared plays or puppet shows which will be given this week, while others will perform next week.

"Santa the Third and Little Owl" is the title of the puppet show which will be given by the arts and crafts groups at Wicker park, Schiller street and Damen avenue, at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Miss Cathryn Troy, park district drama instructor, has prepared the program.

Gym Classes in Show.

Girls of the gymnasium classes at Holstein park, 2200 North Oakley avenue, will give a Christmas show at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, which will be marked by individual performances of Indian, Spanish, South American, Hawaiian, and comedy dances, and harmonica solos by Mickey Shatz, Lillian Chebo, Anna Lezowski, and Lorraine Tepper.

"I've Got a Pain in My Sawdust" is the title of a one act comedy which will be presented by the youngest girls' group.

The Riis park junior dramatic club, composed of boys and girls 4 to 14 years old, will offer three one act plays at the fieldhouse, 6100 Fullerton avenue, at 8 o'clock Friday evening. "Christmas Card" and "Santa the Third" are plays, and "When Toys Came to Life," the third one they will give, is an operetta.

Leading parts in the three performances will be taken by Rosalie Vernon, Patsy and Rita Dwyer, Jean La Griff, Helen Palorin, Dolores Pavlis, and Joan Friede.

Others Taking Part.

Others in the casts are Dolores Brenny, Nancy Maddalone, Sherwood Brehn, Dorothy Marine, Alice Helen Talagay, June Phelan, Loris Mapes, Carol Short, Russel Schultz, Rodney Mapes, Imelda Cecchin, Grace Nicholson, Sorretta Nicholson, Peter John Heck, Gloria Burns, Helen Smicolzy, Marion and Novarty Tavetian, Evelyn French, Joan Branda, Gloria and Carolyn Eagan, Jerry and Buddy Dugall, Junior Bozan, Dolores Szadorski, Jean, Alice, and Phyllis Strucz, Alice and Dennis Duffy, Joan Burke, Josephine Liwicki, and Nettie Corso.

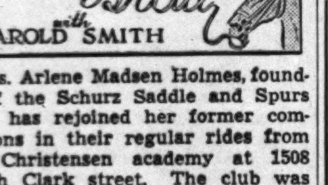
Christmas parties will be given at Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue, tomorrow evening and Wednesday and Friday afternoons. Christmas games and community singing will make up the programs, which are being arranged by Miss Lorraine Hoss, physical instructor.

There will be parties at Kilbourn park, 3501 North Kilbourn avenue, Eugene Field park, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue, and Edison park, 6755 Northwest Highway, Friday evening. Santa Claus will pay a visit to each, and at the latter the park district movie, "The Garden in the City," will be shown.

Norwood Park Fête.

Nine Norwood Park organizations are coöperating for a mammoth Christmas party at the park fieldhouse, 5801 North Natoma avenue, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening. Plans are being made by Herbert Wordell, park supervisor.

The groups, with their presidents, are Norwood Park Woman's club, Mrs. Herbert Trieger; Junior Woman's club, Eleanor M. Osborne; Boy Scouts, George Simmons; chamber of commerce, Howard Hewson; Lions, Dr. Lambert Mammoser; Kiwanis, John Root; Northwest Symphonic orchestra, conducted by John Andersen; Taft High school senior girl's club; and Norwood Park Artcraft club.



Mrs. Arlene Madsen Holmes, founder of the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club, has rejoined her former companions in their regular rides from the Christensen academy at 1508 North Clark street. The club was started by young men and women attending night classes at the Carl Schurz High school, and is one of the most active of its kind in the Chicago area.

George Nelson, 4829 Addison street, a Fairview rider severely injured several weeks ago, has announced he will soon return to the trails in company with his riding mate, Jack Barnard, 4829 Cicero avenue.

William [Bud] Runzel, 5148 North Kostner avenue, has just purchased another horse, as usual stabling at the Cumberland academy on East River road in Norwood Park. This mount is a golden chestnut stallion, 3 years old, called Brilliant Ellsworth.

Fifteen of the 34 members of the new Bit and Bridle Riding club turned out for a breakfast ride last Sunday from the Bit and Bridle stables at Dee and Talcott roads in Park Ridge, and made plans for a similar ride Christmas day, no matter what the weather. Al Haseman of Palatine is president of the club and Miss Billie S. Moore of 6049 Ridge avenue is secretary.

Watch Over Holy Babe

Guardian angels watch over the Holy Babe, lying in a manger, while Mary and Joseph ponder on the miracle. Sadora Sarlas and Charles Nagel, playing the humble parents, and Mary Ketchek and Audrey Kroc, the angels, show rapt concentration. They are pupils in the Jean Baptiste Beaubien school at 5025 North Laramie street, and will participate in the program, "A Music Club's Christmas," a cantata, to be given at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night before the open house and parent night meeting of the Beaubien Parent-Teacher association.

ITASCA MAY GET BUS SERVICE IN ROUTE EXTENSION

I.C.C. Examiner Plans to Study Case.

With the completion of hearings last week on the application of the Leyden Motor Coach company, of Franklin Park, to extend its service to Bensenville, two new developments were seen. The case was taken under advisement by Morris Nathanson, Illinois Commerce commission examiner.

First, a further extension of the service to Itasca might be ordered on the basis of a petition by representatives of that town and Wooddale.

Second, the proposed route connecting these suburbs with the Grand-Harlem shopping district might be diverted south on River road thru Franklin Park and thence east on Belmont.

Point Out Need.

The petition asking extension of the service to Itasca and Wooddale was filed by Ray Franzen, a resident of the former place, and officers of both towns. They pointed out that there was no adequate means for persons from these villages to get to the city except by steam trains or to connect with other lines which would take them there. Attorney David Axelrod, representing the Leyden company, said it would have no objection to this extension.

The River road detour was brought up for two reasons. In the first place, two residents of Franklin Park testified that this change in the originally proposed route would serve 150 families living on River road in that suburb. These two were John B. Kroll, former mayor of Franklin Park, and Mrs. Edna Stewart.

In the second place the detour would prevent conflict with the service of the Highway Bus lines, which has also applied for a franchise on Irving Park road from Schiller Park in to Neenah avenue. This application has been taken under advisement pending hearings on the Leyden petition.

The Original Route.

The route originally proposed by the Leyden Motor Coach company started at Third avenue and York street in Bensenville, went north to Irving Park road, and east thru Schiller Park to Pacific avenue, where it would connect with a feeder bus line. The River road route would turn south in Schiller Park one mile, then east on Belmont avenue, probably to Harlem avenue, where it would go south to Grand avenue.

The problem first arose on April 18 when the village trustees of Bensenville asked the Leyden company to install the service. To protect its own service, the Highway Bus lines then applied for a franchise on Irving Park road, where for eight years they had run a charter service to Eden cemetery in Schiller Park.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 16.

It is poinsettia time and home gardeners will attempt to carry the plants over winter, but it is much better to discard the old plants. They must be allowed to rest during winter, after flowering, and started into growth in the spring. They require a condition that is free from sudden changes or the foliage will drop. The plants can be cut back, potted, and plunged to the rim after late May, kept watered, fed, and shifted until fall. They are removed early to the house and given all the light possible.

Tuesday, Dec. 17.

On mild days when the ground can be worked, fall trenching can be undertaken. Instead of spading the ground in the usual way throw out a furrow one spading across the plot. Then go over the same spading again, thoroly breaking the lower soil, but leaving it where it was. Throw the next strip of top soil on this and pulverize the strip of soil beneath it. A layer of manure spread over the surface before starting operations will add additional food to the soil.

Wednesday, Dec. 18.

Garden friends will appreciate gifts they can use in gardening operations; tools of all kinds, bulbous plants, wearing apparel, books, etc.

Not all bulbs are available at this date, but the amaryllis, yellow and white callas, and some narcissi may be obtained. Flowering pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, begonias, and plants of special value for their foliage may be obtained.

Thursday, Dec. 19.

Cover pansies and English daisies with straw or leaves and keep the cover in place with a few branches or boards. The long popular geranium is said to be losing popularity but there is no more pleasing plant that can be grown in the window.

Keep in comparatively small pots and in a window that has full sun.

Friday, Dec. 20.

It is not too late to mulch the strawberry bed. Cover with straw or draw strawy manure up to and around the plants, if they are planted in hills; if in densely matted rows, use straw. It will not pack too heavily and injure the plants.

Saturday, Dec. 21.

Keep pans of water on the radiator or attach a humidifier to it to increase humidity in the room. Beneficial to both plants and human beings. On cold nights, place newspapers against the window where plants are standing to keep out cold drafts. Apply a bit of plant food to plants in bud or while flowering.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

WHY NOT A YULE GIFT THIS YEAR FOR BATHROOM?

Fixtures and Accessories Improve Living.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

However one feels on problems national and international, on politics and philosophy, ethics, and religion, there's unanimity of agreement on the fact that when we say "Merry Christmas" to some room in our house and give it an enduring present or two, we've succeeded at the same time in giving our own spirits quite a lift.

We're not breathing a word against holiday wreaths and candles all beribboned, and the dash and go of blown glass balls at the window and real jingling bells at the door. They are all jolly ways of shouting Merry Christmas to those who pass our homes, and to those who come inside. But if on the spur of some inspired moment we add something else besides, an enduring gift for the house from the whole household, perhaps, we've seen to it that our Christmas will remain with us long after the calendar date has passed.

Bathrooms sparkle the holiday spirit and there are gifts galore to give them.

Bathroom Now Up to Date.

Last January Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clark, 412 Greenwood, Evanston, modernized their bathroom. It was in no need of drastic change, since the fixtures were sound, the decorations good, the fittings and accessories in fit shape to continue functioning for family comfort for some time to come. But in the light of what's new in bathroom planning and finishing the existing room seemed dated and in need of modernization.

This was done; beautifully done, with careful attention paid to the hundred and one details which go to make up a properly renovated bath.

Now it's fresh and festive and sparkling for the holidays, tho the work was done some time ago.

Problems encountered in each bathroom differ, but certain fundamental improvements are usually in order.

Brown and Yellow Floor.

In this instance new fixtures for old were installed. A built-in tub with overhead shower, new closet, a new lavatory with mirrored medicine cabinet over it, and an intriguing recess in the wall for toilet accessories. The radiator disappeared from under the window and a fine rubber flooring, in rich brown tones with yellow stripes was laid. The wainscot is a marbleized pattern, an attractive lemon yellow, with the upper walls papered. This paper has a silver background and white morning glories flecked with yellow are a part of its pattern. The bathroom fixtures are chrome.

One may not be ready to celebrate the holidays with plans or a check for an entire new bath or kitchen, but there are smaller ways of giving these rooms a merry yuletide remembrance.

Tank Shelf Cover.

Bathroom scales were never so good looking, with magnifying lens, perhaps, if some family member is short sighted; or a chrome finished closet tank shelf cover with nice safeguard rail, for extra shelf space and protection against bottles that sometimes tumble off the back of a closet tank; or new lavatory faucets in case the old ones are losing their finish and acquiring the dripping habit. For the kitchen a modern single swinging faucet would be a pleasant gift.

Of course a new sink would be a grand present, but so would a shower in the basement for the children. It need not cost much. Rough nickel plated showers will take a lot of tough usage from youthful basement athletes.

Plan Card Party.

Siena Mothers' club will give a luncheon and card party at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Better Homemaking institute, 111 West Jackson boulevard. Mrs. John Koutnick and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons are chairmen.

MUNDELEIN GLEE CLUB WILL SING BUCK'S CANTATA

Dudley Buck's cantata, "The Coming of the King," will be a feature of the annual Christmas program, "Under the Stars," to be presented by Mundelein college students at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the college theater.

The Glee club, directed by Prof. Otto Singenberger, will sing the cantata. Soloists will include Maude Shuflitowski, Betty Lou Deppen, Mildred Martinez, Geraldine Koppa, Patricia Herbert, Marion Jacobs, Shirley Hopper, and Rita Callaghan. Before the cantata the Glee club will offer carols, closing with a "Gate of Heaven" tableau in which Alice Guest will be the Madonna and Mary Jane Bresnehan, Frances Kane, and Bette Winte will be angels.

Rosalie Wiora and Angela Voller will play organ selections and the college orchestra, under the baton of Joseph J. Grill, will present the Gloria from the "Twelfth Mass," by Mozart, and "A Yuletide Fantasy," by Erne Rapee.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL TO OFFER FOUR LECTURES

Plans for four Sunday afternoon lectures in January as part of an annual study of trends and events were announced last week by the Evanston School of Foreign Affairs. The series will begin Sunday afternoon Jan. 5 and will be held in the First Methodist church of Evanston. Mrs. Eugene S. Lawler, 627 Library place in the suburb, is general chairman of the 1941 session. Members of the program committee include Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, Dr. Kenneth Colegrove, Miss Valborg Sinkler, Dr. T. W. Merriam, and B. G. Mattson Jr.

NEW SYMPHONY OF 55 MEMBERS TO MEET TUESDAY

Rogers Park's embryo symphony orchestra, which is to be organized officially Tuesday evening, has jumped from 35 to 55 players as a result of a story in last Sunday's Metropolitan section.

The orchestra now being formed by four Rogers Park music devotees had a nucleus of 35 musicians. After the story appeared H. Arnold Cohen, 6810 Sheridan road, received calls from 20 musical residents who volunteered to play in the orchestra.

Members will hold their first meeting Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the Rogers Park Baptist church, 1900 Greenleaf avenue, which they have rented as a rehearsal hall.

Plans are to be made for weekly rehearsals and officers will be elected. The orchestra is to be conducted by Sam Raphling, 1336 Estes avenue, young composer and concert pianist. In addition to Mr. Cohen, other founders include Curt Dreifuss, 2419 Fargo avenue; A. J. Strohm, 2124 Chase avenue, and Edward Zeisler, 4335 Kenmore avenue.

Parents May Attend Party If with Their Children

The usual sign, "Children admitted if accompanied by adults," is to be rewritten Saturday morning at the 49th ward's annual Christmas party at the Granada theater. The new version will read: "Adults admitted only if accompanied by children." The party is the sixth annual one sponsored by Ald. Frank Keenan.

NEW F-M CALL LETTERS TO GIVE POSITION ON DIAL

Locations of Stations Also to Be Indicated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Letters and figures are to be combined in the call letters for the new frequency modulation [F-M] stations under a system announced last week by the federal communications commission. These call letters will be so united to tell listeners the position of the F-M station on the tuning dial; whether it is east or west of the Mississippi river, and in many instances the city, or general area where it is located.

F-M broadcasting is the new system which reduces static to a minimum and results in high fidelity reception. W-G-N, Inc. was granted a permit to begin construction of an F-M station last week. The new station was tentatively assigned to operate with a frequency [wave length] of 45.9 megacycles [45,900 kilocycles].

Not Ready for 4 Months.

Construction of the new station, which will supplement the services of W-G-N, will be started at once on the 29th floor of Tribune Tower. It will not be ready for use for at least four months, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer has announced. Antennae will be mounted on the flagpole atop Tribune Tower. The topmost antenna arms will be placed 15 feet beneath the American flag.

In accordance with international agreements the prefixes "W" and "K" will be used to start F-M call letters, just as they have for years on standard broadcasting stations. "K" will indicate stations west of the Mississippi; "W", stations east.

Numerals in Call Letters.

The second and third characters of each F-M call will be numerals, the FCC has announced. These numerals will be the last two numbers of the assigned frequency [in megacycles]. These two numerals will indicate the position on the dial. After these two numerals will appear another letter, or letters, which will indicate in some abbreviated form the city or area in which a station is located, or which may be arbitrarily assigned.

The calls of Chicago F-M stations, are to end in "C." No other city will have "C" alone as an ending. Others will have an additional letter or letters after "C" to identify them.

Similarly, Boston calls will end in "B," New York calls in "NY" and District of Columbia calls in "DC."

Consider Special Requests.

All F-M allocations are being made between 42 and 50 megacycles. Assigned frequencies are not on even megacycles but on the odd tenths. For example, a station might be assigned to 46.3 meg; all the F-M frequencies are in the forties, thus "4" is valueless in locating a station. A station assigned to 46.3 meg. would have the last two numerals "63" appearing in its call.

Thus if the new W-G-N, Inc., F-M station were finally to be assigned the frequency of 45.9 megacycles, the figures "59," which would determine its dial position, would appear in its call letters. And its call, under the plan as announced last week, would become W59C.

The FCC has announced to broadcasters, however, that it will consider requests for special letter terminations for the new F-M calls.

Pageant of Art.

"The Age of Pericles," the third of a series of programs surveying art in the days of the Hellenic civilization, will be the Pageant of Art presentation at 3:30 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC.

CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Familiar Music to Feature W-G-N Program.

Songs by Marion Claire and a violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski will be the musical highlights of the opening broadcast of the Chicagoland concert hour to be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Light classical and familiar music will be presented on this new program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the concert hour. In so doing Col. McCormick will be renewing a custom he established last summer on the Sunday Symphonic hour. Henry Weber, who concluded his season's work yesterday as general director of the Chicago Opera company, will conduct the W-G-N orchestra.

The Chicagoland Concert hour replaces the Monday evening opera broadcasts which have been a musical highlight of the W-G-N schedule for the last five weeks.

Miss Claire's Songs.

Miss Claire, who sings the leading parts in W-G-N's Saturday night Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, will sing Musette's Waltz from "La Boheme," by Giacomo Puccini, for the first of her solos.

She also will sing Adams' "O Holy Night" and selections from Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow Waltz." The augmented chorus will join Miss Claire in the Adams and Lehar numbers.

Orchestra's Selections.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra will open the program with a presentation of the "Gypsy Baron" overture by Johann Strauss, and also will play Manuel DeFalla's Dance Espagnole No. 1, and "Dances from Coppelia," by Delibes.

Chicagoland Concert programs will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary will be written by Cecil Smith of the Tribune music and drama department.

Each Newscast Is 16 Hours of Hard Work for Carter

Each minute that Boake Carter is on the air in his thrice-weekly newscast is the result of more than an hour's off-the-air work by the commentator. Carter discoverd this recently when he checked on his preparation time and found he was putting in 16 hours for each of his 15 minute news broadcasts. Carter is heard on W-G-N and Mutual at 7:30 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays.

Raymond Gram Swing to Take 3 Week Vacation

Raymond Gram Swing will leave his Mutual microphone after the broadcast of Dec. 23 for his first vacation since the chaotic crisis days of July, 1939. He will be away for three weeks. Four pinch-hitters will fill in for Swing during his absence. Paul Schubert, naval expert; Cy Caldwell, aviation authority, and Maj. Leonard Nason, military strategist, and another man, yet to be selected.

Msgr. Sheen to Discuss Spirit That Makes War

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, associate professor of the philosphy of religion at the Catholic University of America, speaking on the general subject of "Guilt," will begin his 11th annual series of addresses on the Catholic Hour at 5:00 p. m. today over WMAQ. The subject of Msgr. Sheen's first talk will be "The Spirit That Makes War."

Good Fellows

The low down on what Good Fellow children would like to receive is given by Santa to Griff Williams, Don Pedro (rear), and Art Kassel who are out to do their share in the annual Tribune drive. Don Pedro is regularly heard at 10:15 a. m. and the orchestras of Williams and Kassel each evening from the Stevens and Bismarck hotels, all over W-G-N.

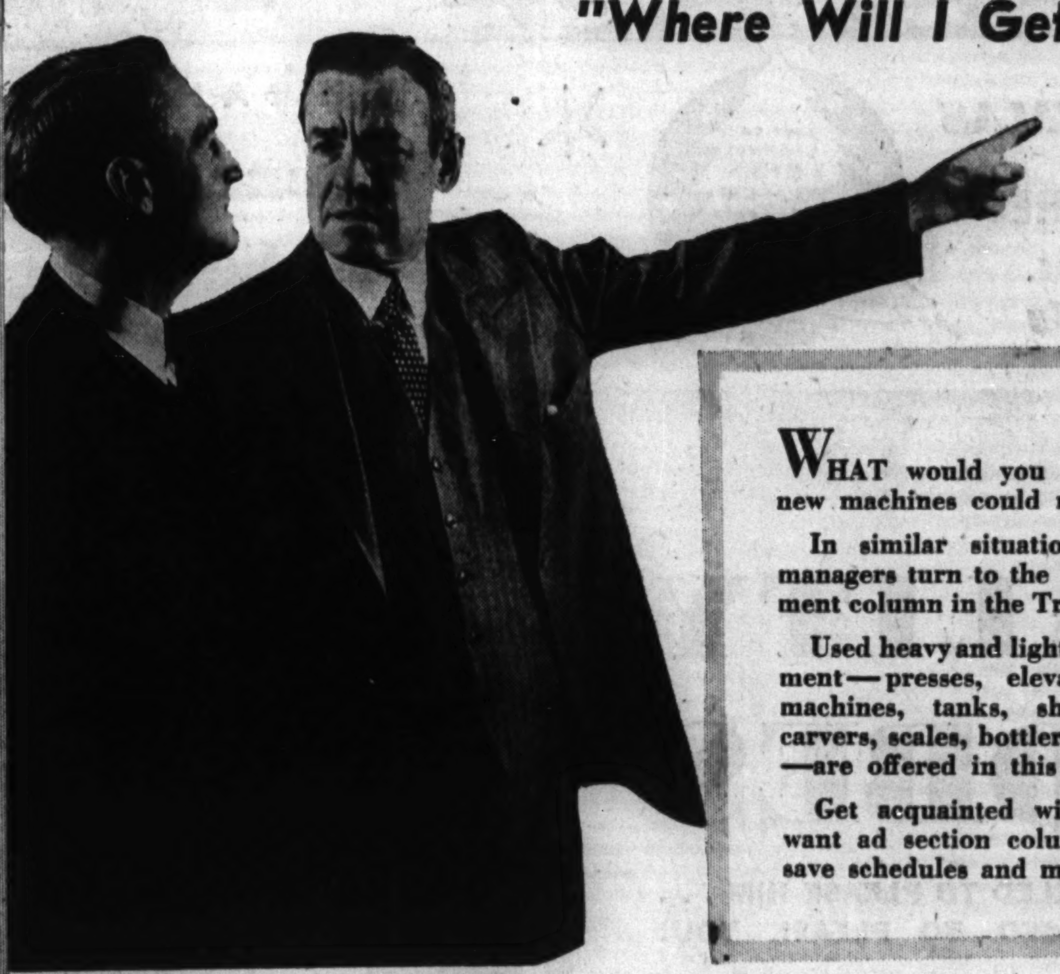
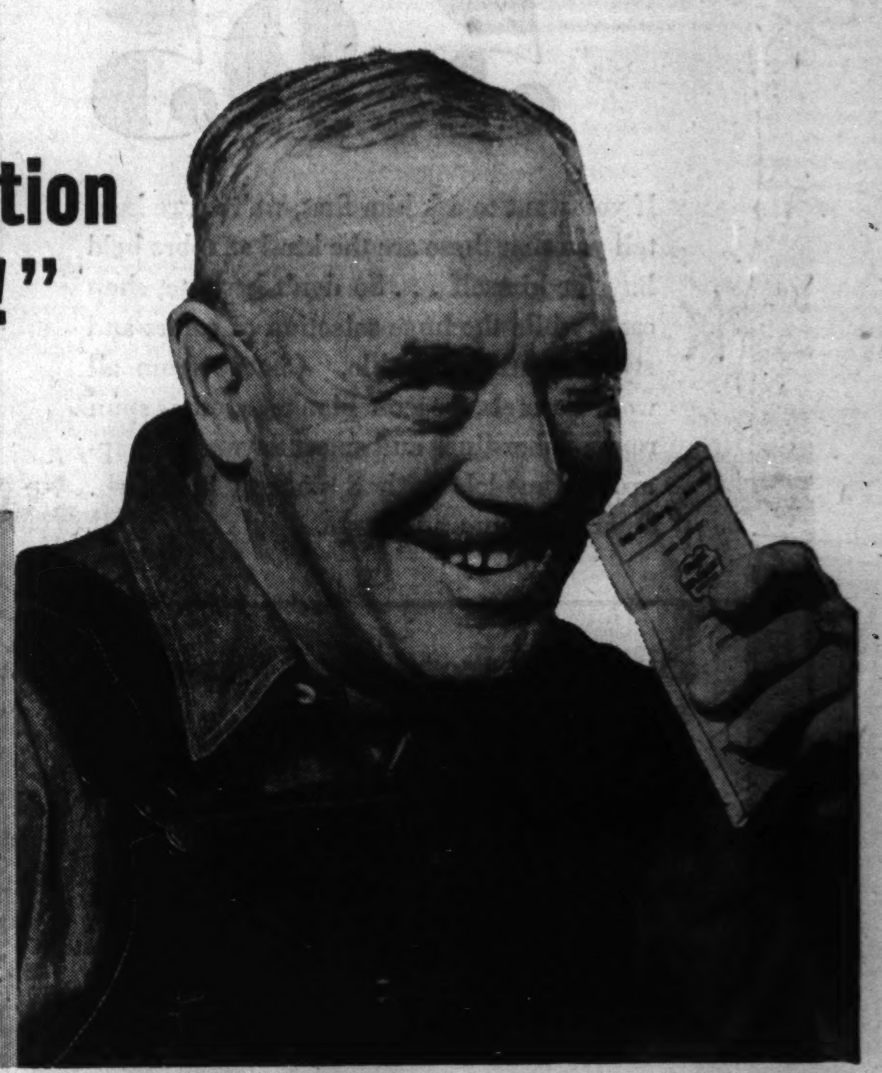
"PUT MORE MACHINES INTO PRODUCTION?"
"Where Will I Get Them?"



WHAT would you do if you knew that new machines could not be delivered?
In similar situations other production managers turn to the Machinery and Equipment column in the Tribune want ad section.
Used heavy and light machinery and equipment—presses, elevators, welders, screw machines, tanks, shears, drills, spindle carvers, scales, bottlers, packaging machines—are offered in this column.
Get acquainted with the offers in this want ad section column. It can help you save schedules and money!
"Another promotion—and a raise!"



THE easiest way to climb out of a rut is to learn how to do something which commands more pay. Today there are many fields in which a man can get ahead and make good wages.
Aviation mechanics, welding, tool making, die setting, and sheet metal work are only a few of them. For offers of schools which teach subjects that can help you, see the Trade Schools, and Instruction columns in the Tribune want ad section.
"I've bought a business of my own"

ARE you looking for the right opportunity which will start you on the road to independence in a business of your own? To make sure you overlook no worthwhile opportunities, it will pay you to follow the offers of businesses for sale in the Tribune want ad section.
Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

CLAUDE RAINS TO PLAY SCROOGE ON W-G-N THURSDAY

Character Actor Guest on Chicago Hour.

Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actors, will play the rôle of Scrooge in the special adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," to be heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program.

Claude Rains.

Rains will make a special trip from his farm in Cheyney, in the Brandywine district of Pennsylvania, to appear on the program. A star cast of Chicago radio actors, under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, will support Rains.

Such character rôles as the crafty King John in "Robin Hood," the cruel Louis Napoleon in "Juarez," the wistful father in "Four Daughters," and the high handed Spanish ambassador in "Sea Hawk" have won Rains great acclaim with moviegoers. His latest film, not yet released, is Warner Brothers production, "Four Mothers."

Rains was born in England just a half-century ago. He made his debut on the London stage in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the age of 11.

After a session of world travel, Rains came to the New York stage, where he came to the attention of Hollywood. His first film feature rôle was in "The Invisible Man." Between pictures, he hurries back to his rolling and peaceful farmland, where he enjoys his simple designation as Farmer Rains.

Another English stage notable will be starred on In Chicago Tonight on the program following Rains' appearance. On Dec. 26, Anna Neagle, titian-haired Briton, will be heard in an adaptation of her latest movie, "No, No Nanette."

Christmas Spirit at W-G-N

Bidu Sayao Is Soloist on Sunday Evening Hour

Bidu Sayao, Metropolitan Opera coloratura soprano, and Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Toronto Philharmonic orchestra, join the Sunday Evening Hour in its presentation at 8 tonight over WBBM-CBS. Miss Sayao will sing "Vola Farfarletta" by Miguel Sandoval, well known pianist who is her accompanist. This composition is based on No. 9 in G flat or the so-called "Butterfly" Etude of Chopin.

THORNTON TWP. HIGH TO BE SALUTED NEXT BY FUTURE CITIZENS

The achievements of Thornton Township High school at Harvey will be told at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon when the school is honored on the fifth presentation of the Chicago Tribune's program Citizens of Tomorrow over W-G-N.

Six hundred students, led by their principal, William E. McVey, will be special guests in W-G-N's main audience studio for the broadcast. Mr. McVey will speak briefly. Philip Maxwell plays the rôle of the principal and is also master of ceremonies of the program.

The Thornton chorus, directed by Irene Olson, will sing three numbers, the school song and two Christmas carols. This program will be suspended during the Christmas vacation and the first broadcast of the new year will be on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

W-G-N WISHING WELL FULFILLS DREAMS OF FANS

2,000 Tell Their Wishes Every Week.

Thruout the ages people have been making wishes, relying on such props as wishbones, new moons, white horses, and even the stars to make their dreams come true. Of late some 2,000 persons each week have been making known their special desires to the W-G-N Wishing Well program conducted by Mary Paxton.

Many have had their wishes come true and have now abandoned the other vehicles that are believed to help. The loop store sponsoring Miss Paxton's program each week receives an astonishing array of personal heart's desires.

Seeks Week's Profits.

Miss Paxton satisfies only those wishes which can be granted by dipping into the stocks of the store. Mink coats, sewing machines, draperies, mirrors, pajamas, and an evening dress "suitable for the Hawaiian Islands" are typical of the gifts sought by Chicagolanders every week.

"Some one wrote in the other morning," said Miss Paxton, "and asked for a week's profits of the store." She passed that one up. She had to turn down a request, too, for a chicken farm.

One woman in her letter stated that it had been so long since she received a personal gift that she was beginning to wonder whether she was a person of a house. She wished for an "amusing" hat. She received an astonishing chapeau in black, adorned with red poppies.

Tell Wishes in Letters.

Wishes are asked to tell about their desires in a letter to Miss Paxton. They are also invited to describe these items adequately. Miss Paxton reads all the letters and decides which wish shall be granted.

The Wishing Well is aired at 8:45 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9 a. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

'ROSE MARIE' ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT SATURDAY

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Rudolf Friml's operetta, "Rose Marie" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N-Mutual. Marion Claire and Robert Weede, outstanding personalities of radio and opera, will take the leading singing rôles. Miss Claire is featured in the leading feminine rôle in all these operettas.

Mr. Weede made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1937 and has been featured with the Chicago Opera. "Rose Marie," a romantic story of the Canadian Rockies, was first presented in 1924. It has been a perennial favorite since then.

It includes several songs of haunting loveliness, "Rose Marie, I Love You" and the "Indian Love Call" among them. William A. Bacher will produce "Rose Marie" and Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

WHOLE FAMILY OF MUSICIANS ON STEEL SHOW

A whole family of headliners, ranging in age from 10 to 20 years, will join the Musical Steelmakers in their broadcast from the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling, W. Va., from 4 to 4:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The musical Garretson family will play their self-taught, self-coached "San Antonio Rose" on the employé-family broadcast. Performers will be 10 year old Billy with his mandolin; Margie, aged 12, cello; Joseph, 15, banjo; Madeline, 16, guitar; Raymond Jr., 18, violin, and Paul, 20, guitar. Raymond Garretson, father of the musical youngsters, is an employé of the Wheeling Steel's Steubenville works.

On the regular portion of the show, Dorothy Ann Crowe and the Singing Millmen will be spotlighted in a presentation of "A Kiss in the Dark." Ardenne White will sing "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen."

The Most Precious Children in the World (yours of course!)
...don't they deserve a cough syrup specially formulated for them?
"YES" IS THE ANSWER of thousands of discriminating parents. And that's why Foley's Honey & Tar is an overwhelming favorite among cough syrups. For Foley's—quick-acting, triple-acting—is formulated to meet the exacting requirements of a child suffering from a cough due to a cold. For that reason—
FOLEY'S IS DELICIOUS—your child will not have to be coaxed or bribed to take it.
FOLEY'S IS QUICK TO RELIEVE—speedily soothes and eases your child's raw throat . . . gets those coughing spells under control . . . hastens loosening of the cough.
FOLEY'S DOES NOT UPSET DIGESTION—can be given as often as needed. Contains no chloroform, codeine, ipecac.
FOLEY'S COUGH SYRUP Ideal for Children
Those qualities (flavor, speed of action, freedom from narcotics) make Foley's Honey & Tar the ideal cough syrup for your child. Check your youngster's cough before it gets worse. Check it with Foley's Honey & Tar Cough Syrup. At your druggist.

CHRISTMAS IN AIR IN WEST AREAS

SUNNIER CLIMES LURE RESIDENTS OF CHICAGOLAND

West Siders Tell of Vacation Plans.

The Christmas holidays are chosen as a time for travel by many residents of the west side and west suburban area. Trips by train, by air, and by automobile are being taken in every direction, with family reunions, in some instances, waiting at the journey's end.

Florida and California, offering a contrast to ice and snow of the traditional Christmas scene, have lured their share of travelers. Quick trips to New York and back are planned by a quota of holiday travelers obliged to return to their desks after the week-end. Prolonged winter visits are included in the schedules of Chicagoland folks permitted to extend the vacation period.

Off for California.

Louis Reda, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reda, 601 Circle avenue, Forest Park, recently left with his grandfather, Thomas Stark of Chicago, for a three month vacation in Los Angeles, Cal. They will stop off at San Francisco en route. Louis was graduated from Proviso High school last June.

Enoch C. Dyrness of Wheaton, vice president in charge of academic administration for Wheaton college, accompanied by Mrs. Dyrness, is spending his vacation on a southern tour that will end Dec. 28. The Dyrness' are visiting Miami, Fla., and other points.

J. S. Renne, 501 North Central avenue, will make a quick trip this Christmas when he flys to Omaha to have dinner with his parents. He is planning on having Christmas dinner there and then returning immediately via United Airlines. This will be his first flight.

Going to Florida.

Elmer P. Grismer, 735 Columbian avenue, Oak Park, and his wife and children plan to spend the holidays at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knaphurst, 834 Monroe avenue, River Forest, and their daughter, Dorothy, are also among the Chicagolanders who will spend Christmas and New Year's in Fort Lauderdale.

Miami Beach, Fla., is where Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walker Lewis of 614 Fair Oaks avenue in Oak Park are expected to spend the holidays. They will be gone for several weeks.

William H. Davies, 1126 Erie street, Oak Park, and his wife will be in Orlando, Fla., for the holidays. They have given up their Oak Park apartment and do not plan to return to the village until next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn S. Snow of 1313 Lathrop avenue, River Forest, expect to return home in time for Christmas dinner after spending several weeks in Sarasota, Fla.

Miss Hattie Degenhardt of Glen Ellyn recently sailed from Los Angeles for a six weeks' vacation in the Hawaiian Islands.

Holiday in Peru.

Miss Marjorie Russell and niece, Miss Helen Healey of Elgin recently left for a two month vacation and visit with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickison at Callao, Peru. Mrs. Dickison is the former Miss Barbara Healey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. McGill, Miss Jessie V. Payne, Arthur L. Torrey, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Gronberg, all of Elgin, are in St. Petersburg, Fla. Elginites elsewhere in Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Adams, Coral Gables; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Dorman, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hurtig, Winter Park; Mr. and Mrs. David A. Hyde, Delray Beach; Mr. and Mrs. August R. Petersen, Fred E. Short, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Oslock.

Elgin folks on the west coast this winter include Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Stiles, Santa Monica; Mr. and Mrs. W. Raymond Battin, Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharp of Elburn have motored to Los Angeles, Cal., to spend the winter.

Mrs. Minna Brady Lee of Elgin is vacationing in Fort Benning, Ga.

Home in Massachusetts.

Miss Ella Fay, director of occupational therapy of the, Cook County School for nursing, is flying by American Airlines for her home in Dedham, Mass., for over Christmas. Miss Fay will be back in Chicago just before New Year's.

Mrs. Lloyd J. Roth of New York City, who is in dramatic work under her maiden name of Mary Jane Morrow, will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Morrow, 137 North Ridgeland avenue, for the Christmas season.

Mrs. Edith Oliphant of Oak Park will spend the winter in Florida visiting friends on the gulf. She will also visit friends in Miami before she returns in the spring.

Flying to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Viegerske will leave Christmas eve over T. W. A. for a visit with Mrs. Viegerske's sister in New York City. Mr. Viegerske is an engineer with the Western Electric company. The Viegerskes have flown before, but this will be their first trip to New York by air.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Knight of Oak Park will leave on Dec. 28 for St. Petersburg, Fla., where they will stay until May. They will go by train.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Verderbar

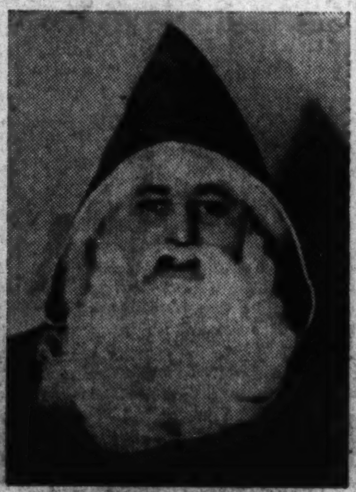
Santa Claus Has Many Guises in West Suburban Area

With a store Santa Claus all to herself, 3 year old Nancy Houghtaling, is agreed with other boys and girls that Christmas is the best time in all the year. Tho it's an old story to Santa, he has contrived, as you see, to turn out something new in his toy workshop. Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Houghtaling, 2204 Austin avenue, Oak Park. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

That no boy or girl in Forest Park may be forgotten on Christmas morning, the Kiwanis club sends forth three Santa Clauses to make the rounds with bags of toys. The trio depended upon for the last three years, as Santa Clauses and as business men, are, left to right, Fred Steers, Harry Weideman and George Warren. [TRIBUNE Photo.]



Glen Ellyn's veteran Santa Claus is Richard Wagner, who not only visits with youngsters on the streets of the village at Christmas time, but frequently lends added zest to their Yuletide parties by attending in costume.

[Moore Photo.]

A. William Strandquist is the Santa Claus chairman for the village of Brookfield Business Men's association. He will have one, possibly two, helpers this season.

[Hassel Photos.]

Gustaf A. Lindberg, interested in bringing happiness to children thru his job as superintendent of the Oak Park park district, has been chosen official Santa Claus for the village by the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce.

For his 28th appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean emeritus of Yale university divinity school, has chosen the topic "The Deeper Insight." He will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes, who will preside at the meeting, and William E. Goodman, vice president of the club, will read the scripture.

Dr. Charles R. Brown.

For 17 years Dr. Brown was pastor of First Congregational church in Oakland, Cal., and for 40 years has been delivering sermons to students of theology. But he is a preacher who talks like a layman, consequently he enjoys a large following among business men who appreciate his forthright utterances on current affairs.

150 IN MAYWOOD CHORUS TO SING 'THE MESSIAH'

One hundred and fifty members of the Maywood Festival chorus will take part tonight in the fifteenth annual presentation of Handel's "The Messiah" in the auditorium of Proviso Township High school. R. Lee Osburn will direct.

Soloists will be Miss Virginia Strause, soprano; Miss Evelyn Ames, contralto; Roy Glahn, tenor, and Robert Speaker, bass. Miss Ruth McNeil will be guest organist. Burton Lawrence will be at the piano. Mr. Osburn plans to use the "Amen" chorus again this year. Until last year the annual performance closed with the "Hallelujah" chorus.

The chorus is sponsored by the Maywood Recreation board.

Garfield Park B'nai B'rith Will Celebrate Chanukah

The Jewish Chanukah, which falls on the same date this year as Christmas, will be celebrated in advance by the Garfield Park lodge of B'nai B'rith at an open meeting Wednesday evening in the community hall of the Washington Boulevard temple, Washington boulevard and Karlov avenue. There will be dancing and impersonations, and the B'nai B'rith players will give a sketch entitled, "I Mean It."

Santas Flock to Suburbs on Annual Visits

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

There's Santa Claus!

Even the tiniest youngsters in every community recognize with glee the symbol of Christmas embodied in the mysterious visitor who wears a flowing white beard and a fur trimmed red suit.

Once upon a time Santa may have covered his entire territory by himself when Christmas came around, but when he began missing some of the boys and girls, community leaders decided to help out the jolly old fellow.

Some of Santa's helpers may be found in the toy departments of neighborhood stores. Some of them appear on the streets during the holiday season and visit with youngsters who pass by. Some go forth in the early hours of the morning before households are awake.

Is Official Santa.

Jovial Gustaf A. Lindberg, superintendent of the Oak Park park district, has been chosen the official Santa Claus for the village by the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce. In taking the rôle, Mr. Lindberg has arrived in the village by reindeer, in the fire chief's car, by streamlined train, and by airplane.

A. William Strandquist is Santa Claus chairman for the village of Brookfield Business Mens' association, and starting the Saturday before Christmas he plans to have one, possibly two, Saint Nicks moving about among the shoppers in the three sections of the suburb.

Mr. Strandquist, long a resident of Brookfield, is engaged in the shoe business. His father, A. T. Strandquist, has been in the same business in Brookfield and Congress Park for 30 years.

Mr. Strandquist has arranged for a Santa Claus costume that should leave no doubt in the minds of youngsters that the merriest time in all the year has arrived.

Veteran in Business.

Richard Wagner is the veteran Santa Claus in Glen Ellyn, where community Christmas activities are in charge of the chamber of commerce. During the two weeks leading up to the holiday, Mr. Wagner, a descendent of a pioneer family, not only takes the rôle of Santa Claus in going about the business district visiting with the youngsters of the village, but frequently lends added zest by attending their Christmas parties in costume.

For helpers in Forest Park, Santa Claus has the entire membership of the Kiwanis club. The club sees that no corner of the village is neglected on Christmas morning.

Three Santa Clauses are required in the suburb, and the same men have started on their rounds on Christmas morning for the last three years. They are Fred Steers of the Commonwealth Edison company, Harry Weideman of the International Harvester company, and George Warren, grocer. Emil Roehlke is their chairman.

These Are Helpers.

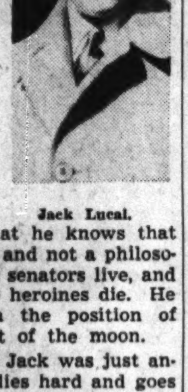
Members of the truck committee are Art Weidemann, chairman; Carl Mohr, E. A. Parichy, and Edward Trage. Dr. William Buch and the Rev. Ray Wilhelmi will pen the spiritual message. Public relations are in charge of Claude A. Walker and the Father Wilhelmi.

Other committee chairmen are Charles Meseke, toy purchases; Ray Warnecke, toy distribution; W. S. Dimmett, obtaining of names, and Floyd Sissen, investigation.

Hard to Stump Jack; He's the Ace Quiz Kid

If some one comes up to Jack Lucal and asks him, "Please, will you tell me how to get from Chicago to Timbuctoo?" he can answer right off. Jack, who lives in Oak Park, is 14 years old, has straight brown hair and wears tortoise shell glasses, is the champion child question answerer of the middle west.



Jack Lucal.

He has been answering questions on the radio for 14 consecutive weeks. He has revealed to his audience that he knows that cumulus is a cloud and not a philosopher, where all the senators live, and in what operas the heroines die. He can conjecture on the position of stars and the light of the moon.

Until September, Jack was just another boy who studies hard and goes to Emerson school in Oak Park. His dad is Alanson Lucal, who is in the automobile business in Oak Park. His mother has fixed a bedroom-library suite for his very own in their home at 328 South Grove avenue.

Champion Quiz Kid.

Today Jack is a champion quiz kid. He has been answering questions on the Quiz Kid radio program heard at 7 o'clock Wednesday evenings. When Jack read in the paper about

In an effort to recapture the spirit of their schooldays members of the class of 1937 at Riverside-Brookfield High school will hold their first reunion with a semiformal dinner-dance Dec. 30 in the Edgewater Beach hotel. On the arrangements committee are Miss Arlene Kodidek, Ray Bartik, Miss Ruth Hlinka, George Walder, Miss Adelaide Benes, Richard Paus, Miss Libbie Bousa, Wellington Schiller, Miss Dorothy Klein, Eddie Hendrich, and Miss Elsie Jablonski.

TONIGHT at the Pilsen Sokol auditorium at 1814 South Ashland avenue, Gloria Strmic who recently returned from a concert tour of central Europe will give a vocal concert. Miss Strmic, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strmic, 2307 Wentworth avenue, studied at the American Conservatory of Music. She will wear her native Croatian costume and will sing in three languages. When Miss Strmic was on her concert tour she sang in the home town of her mother with the Split Opera company. It was from Split, Dalmatia in Yugo-Slavia that Mrs. Strmic immigrated before her daughter was born.

Gloria Strmic.

Michael Esposito, 2835 Walnut avenue, is a member of the committee in charge of arrangements for the Christmas formal of Alpha Lambda fraternity of Loyola university Friday evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. David DeLano, 1100 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park is also a committee member.

NOEL HOWARD BiKAU was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. BiKau last Sunday in the Presbyterian hospital. He weighed in at 7 pounds and 3 ounces. Mrs. BiKau is a teacher of piano.

George McGurn, River Forest, and Miss Jean O'Connor, River Forest are assisting with arrangements for the Mexican fiesta which will be this afternoon's meeting of the Chicago Catholic University club in the Midland hotel. Mexican young people in native costume will present the program.

The cantata, Bach's "Magnificat," will be sung by the choir of the First Congregational church in Oak Park at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the First Church of the Brethren, 3560 West Congress street.

NEW 'Y' OUTPOST WILL SERVE 300 WEST SIDE BOYS

Boys in the neighborhood of California avenue and Van Buren street are going to get a Christmas present. A recreation center for boys' neighborhood teams and clubs will open tomorrow at 2856 West Van Buren street, where boys can come in off the streets to play table tennis, games, and have boxing matches, meetings and movies. They can learn arts, crafts, citizenship, and get health information.

The outpost, organized as a service of the Sears Roebuck department of the Y. M. C. A., has a large assembly room, two clubrooms, and a kitchen. George Coon, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, will be director.

It is expected that the center will serve 30 organized clubs or about 300 boys. The clubs now organized, named the Gliders, Con-Sacs, Congress Aces, Forges, Pandas, and Rockets will be the first to make use of the new clubhouse. These clubs are captained by Peter Kissamis, Robert Becker, Joe Coco, Sam Zakoian, Bill Mauldin, and Gus Sabatino.

In addition to serving boys 8 to 18, the center has invited parents to meet and start plans. There will be no membership fees and the outpost is operated entirely as a free service to the community.

Clubs will be organized with a captain, president or boy leader. An older brother or relative of one of the boys is enlisted by the club to be its counselor or coach. Some clubs are able to procure adult leaders who serve as sponsors.

WEEK OF MUSIC BY ALL FAITHS TO MARK YULE

Pageants Also Will Be Presented.

Thruout the west suburbs there is Christmas in the air. Never before have communities put forth such effort to provide an atmosphere in keeping with the merry season. Again Christmas music has an important part in the program, and in a number of suburbs entertainment that includes Christmas oratories, cantatas, and carol singing will start today.

Tonight the Immanuel Lutheran church choir, Elmhurst, under the direction of William F. Bertram, will present the cantata "The Hope of the World" in the church auditorium. The program will open with Mr. Bertram playing the "Joy to the World," fantasy by Handel, and will be followed by the hymn, "Joy to the World," sung by the congregation.

Will Sing Solo.

The Rev. John Mau, assistant pastor of the church, will have charge of the altar service. Arthur Hoppendstedt will sing a solo, "The Holy Child," by Martin.

An instrumental ensemble composed of Emma Milas, Fred Geyer, Howard Kleeman, violinists; Virginia Mahler, flutist; Wilbur Kruse, pianist, and Mr. Bertram, organist, will play "Christmas Fantasy," by Reibold.

During the offertory Mr. Bertram will play "Christmas Lullaby," by Grieg. The children's chorus will sing "All My Heart This Night Rejoices" and "In Dulci Jubilo."

Downers Grove Concert.

The 11th annual Christmas concert sponsored by the Downers Grove High school Parent-Teacher association will be presented Thursday night in the school auditorium, and will be given a repeat performance at the school assembly on Friday. William Pohlmann is director of vocal music at the school. Clarence J. Shoemaker is director of the band, and Miss Elsie Adams is director of the string ensemble. All three groups will take part in the concert.

Numbers to be given by the entire group include "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," by Bach, and "Born Today," by Sweelink. The band will play "Christmas Fantasy," the prayer from "Hansel and Gretel," and music from Wagner's "Lohengrin." Christmas decorations will be in charge of the school art department under the direction of Miss Margaret Gilmore.

For the fifth time, Handel's "Messiah" will be presented tonight at 7:45 o'clock in the Downers Grove Methodist church. Nucleus for the chorus of 120 voices will be provided by the Methodist church choir directed by William G. Pohlmann, and the Peace Lutheran church choir of Chicago, directed by Edna Barnes Pohlmann.

Soloists will be Edna Barnes Pohlmann, soprano; Marie Lehmann, contralto; Frank Spensley, tenor, and Robert Busch, bass. Miss Marian Lower will be organist and Donald Drew pianist.

Music in Maywood.

Three hundred boys and girls will take part in the annual Yule program of songs and tableaux to be held this afternoon by district 89 in the auditorium of the Emerson school, Maywood. The program will start at 3 o'clock.

Miss Ann Trimingham, supervisor of music, will direct the choir. The tableaux and decorations have been in charge of Mrs. Henrietta Austin, supervisor of art. The boy choir, balcony choruses, and a verse speaking choir will take part in the telling of the Christmas story. The public is invited.

"Dust of the Road," a play with a Christmas setting, will be presented Friday afternoon in Monroe hall at Wheaton Community High school. Those in charge are John Keys, director of speech, and Miss Margaret Dirks, director of music.

Members of the cast being coached by Miss Neunette Herran, a senior, are Phyllis Hadley, Ward Carlson, Kenneth Bichl, and George Roberts. There will be Christmas music by the school chorus.

Glen Ellyn Program.

Christmas carols will be heard during the Christmas season in Glen Ellyn due to the activity of J. R. Stewart, chairman for the Chamber of Commerce. Inez Hubbard Hicks is chairman of the music committee. Recorded music will be broadcast in the business district each day between 5 and 7 p. m., and community singing will be featured at the Nativity Scene in the city park on six evenings during the holidays.

In Lombard, where a tree has been decorated with Christmas lights and placed in the center of the business district, a Lions club kids' party and amateur contest will be held Saturday morning at the Du Page theater, with Lynn Brandt, radio announcer, as master of ceremonies. The Rev. R. W. Lambert is chairman of the amateur contest, and Ed Von Heine is general chairman of the morning program committee.

"Nativity" in Hinsdale.

"The Nativity," Christmas pageant, will be presented Wednesday morning at the Hinsdale High school, and a repeat performance will be given at night for the public. More than

VOICE FROM THE CRUSH.

How many long years will the Chicago transit wrangle go on? Must we wait until our shoulders are rubbed raw and then calloused from leaning and being leaned upon as we jostle and jiggle on our crowded street cars, L's, and buses? Some of the recent newspaper stories point out that some of our transportation facilities are operating at annual losses. Whose? Granted that it takes a lot of money to operate an elevated system, for instance, it must also bring in plenty of money when passengers ride trains packed from platform to platform with squeezed in humanity. I live in a section of the southwest side that might as well be a desert island so far as transportation is concerned. Yet I'm supposed to be a Chicago booster. How can I be a very proud and loyal Chicagoan when my view of the town is a series of peeks out from my standing place from conveyances to and from work? B. K.

CROWDED STREET CARS.

After reading a few articles in your newspaper concerning the service of the Chicago Motor Coach company, I feel it a duty to report that for eight consecutive years I took the bus to and from work daily and at no time did I find it necessary to complain. However, I was transferred to a new office last month. Now I use the 26th street car. The other night I waited from 4:55 to 5:35 o'clock for a westbound car. Three cars passed us up and when I finally got the privilege of hanging on the back platform of a car my coat and hat were ruined. Why doesn't your paper have some of its representatives take a few street car rides and then write a few blazing articles? Maybe we working people of Chicago might get some good service that way.

MISS B. J. C.

WANTS SNOW REMOVED.

In Detroit there is a law which requires sidewalks to be cleared right after a storm. In Chicago one just does as one feels. But Detroit goes one better. The city sets some unemployed to work and adds a charge to the tax bill. From the hard job it is to walk on these icy sidewalks, we ought to do something to get Chicago's often snow covered sidewalks cleaned. RAE LEVIN.

ST. PHILIP HIGH DRAMATIC CLUB TO GIVE FARCE

St. Philip High school Dramatic club will present a three act farce, "Breezy Money," on Tuesday and Wednesday in the St. Philip auditorium, 320 South Albany avenue. The Rev. Eugene Hoffman is faculty adviser of the club. The play will be given for grammar school students on Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

Chairmen of committees are Carl De Baise, publicity; John Dickinson, property; Leonard Lemar, ushers; John Lord, program, and James Hurley, tickets.

MUSIC HERALDS GAY CHRISTMAS THRU WEST SIDE

Sacred Concerts Planned by Church Choirs.

It is just a little more than a week before Christmas and all thru the neighborhoods churches and schools are heralding the holiday. Music and drama will repeat the story of the most celebrated birthday the world has ever known.

A Christmas song service will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Immanuel Lutheran church, Ashland boulevard and Roosevelt road. Christmas compositions by Lutheran song writers such as Michael Praetorius, Johann Eccard and Johann Crueger will be featured by the choirs and the organist, Paul A. Lassanske. The children's choir will sing three and four part a cappella selections. The Immanuel Male choir which will participate in the song service has been in existence for more than 70 years.

Cantata on Wednesday.

The Hedyphonia chorus of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Harvard and East avenue, Oak Park, will present the Christmas cantata, "The Christ Child" by Rhys-Herbert at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening as a special feature in the third and final of a series of midweek Advent services. The chorus will be directed by A. C. Wissmueller. Soloists participating will be Miss Lucille Barker, soprano; Miss Elfrida Miller, contralto; William Ladwig, tenor, and A. S. Petrowsky, baritone. C. H. Meier will preside at the organ console. The Rev. Ernest T. Lams, president of the Northern Illinois district of the Missouri synod, is pastor of Christ church.

The Austin Choral club will present its 10th annual performance of Handel's "The Messiah" in the east auditorium of the Austin High school. The chorus of 125 voices will include at least 10 members who sang in the club's first performance. They are William Van Us, William Wood, Mrs. H. B. Stewart, Miss Dorothy Nagel, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Helm, W. H. Hawkins, Phillip Lindquist, Miss Evelyn Lindquist, Mrs. Lydia Ballestro, and Mrs. R. A. Younghusband.

Symphony To Play.

Soloists for the performance are Margaret Heywood Wood, soprano; Esther Curtis Ament, contralto; Frederick Wood, tenor, and William Vennard, bass. The Austin Symphony orchestra will accompany the singers and will be directed by Paul Vernon.

Boys and girls of the Washington Irving school in Oak Park will present Dickens' "Christmas Carol" tomorrow and Tuesday in the Children's theater, Lake street and Forest avenue.

Scrooge, the grasping old sinner who said, "Christmas—humbug!" will be portrayed by Raymond Edwards. Old Marley will be played by Marjorie Timlin and Bob Cratchit will be interpreted by Wallace Schauer. The little Cratchits will be John Davis Smith, Verna Sandberg, Geraldine Dennis, Donald Lesh, Jerome Belza, and Doris Butterbaugh.

Will Enact Dickens' Story

the program last August he applied for an appearance.

He had to write a 250 word essay on why he thought he should appear, and his school had to recommend him. In order to stay on the program Jack had to be among the first three high score holders each Wednesday.

Jack's sister is Janet, 10 years old, who, he says, "is awful smart." Janet isn't a quiz kid because Mrs. Lucal says one in the family is enough for the time being.

Firm in Opinions.

The champ question answerer not only has facts at his fingertips, but he has opinions which he sticks to thru any bombardment. The Lucals were a house divided at election time and on their feelings toward Japan.

On the radio program Jack gives out only fact. Opinions are confined to his living room at home, where, Mrs. Lucal says: "Jack can always talk and express himself. We ask him only to respect the opinions of others. He must listen to the other side of the question and then he can think for himself."

On the radio program Jack has to stick to fact. His grandmother cuts "Horse Sense," the question box column, out of THE TRIBUNE every day and saves it for him. He has a question book on his desk and a huge map serves as informative decoration for the wall of his sitting room.

CHARITY GIFTS TO ADORN TREE AS WOMEN MEET

Oak Park Group Also Is to Have Music.

There will be a Christmas tree at the holiday luncheon of the 19th Century Woman's club of Oak Park tomorrow. It will look like any other tree, with tinsel and daubles. But tied to the branches will be gifts of money, toys, and clothing, each marked by a club member for one of the many charities supported or sponsored by the club.

Christmas will also be brought to the club's program by the Oak Park and River High school chorus with a series of songs. The Rev. J. W. G. Ward will read Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Mrs. Harry Todd will be toastmistress at the luncheon. Mrs. J. E. Earll, daughter of a founder, will welcome the new members and Mrs. Carl Winters will respond for the incoming group. Harold M. Little will direct the Christmas music.

In the morning at 11 o'clock the art department will present a program on growing plants indoors. A talk will be given by Amelia Durand, who will stress holiday greenery.

19th Century Associates.

A Christmas party will be held for children of members of the Associates of the 19th Century Woman's club at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in the clubhouse. Santa Claus will come with a bag of gifts and George New will present a puppet program on a revolving stage. Alice Brux Turnbull is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Austin Woman's Club.

Mrs. Millard Gilmore, chairman of the department of music of the Austin Woman's club, will present the club chorus, directed by Mrs. Thirza Mosher Parmenter, in a program entitled "Around the World with Christmas Song" at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Austin Masonic temple. Howard Cannon will discuss "Books for Christmas."

Villa Park Women.

Members of the Villa Park Woman's club will hold their annual Christmas party Tuesday afternoon in the Village hall. Holiday dessert will be served at tables decorated by Mrs. Robert Tarr and Mrs. Elmer Wank. Caroline Barr will give a reading of "The Second Shepherds."

Berwyn Woman's Club.

"The Meaning of Christmas" will be told by Mrs. James Nerad, chairman of the American home department, at a meeting Tuesday afternoon by the Berwyn Woman's Civic club. Christmas carols will be sung by the club chorus. Christmas cheer bags for the men at Oak Forest infirmary will be filled at this meeting.

Tuesday Club.

The Christmas party of the Tuesday club will be held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. S. Mogensons, 5436 Ferdinand street. An art program will be presented by Dr. Ida B. Putnam, art chairman, who will present Mrs. Maude Merritt, chairman of the Municipal Art league of Chicago, who will speak. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. I. L. Winter, Mrs. Wesley Kirk, and Mrs. Walter Little.

Elmhurst Woman's Club.

The community service department of the Elmhurst Woman's club is cooperating in the beautification project sponsored by the Elmhurst Trade and Civic association. Plans include the planting of trees and shrubs along the railroad right of way thru the center of the main business district. Cash donations, totaling $50 were received from club members. Twenty members donated trees and shrubs and 75 contributed to the project thru other sources. With the money collected 350 shrubs have been purchased and this completes the planting as planned for the present.

Cicero Woman's Club.

Santa Claus will appear at the annual Christmas party of the Cicero Woman's club at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Clyde park community house. Mrs. J. C. Biemeck is chairman. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Nick Thomma, hostess chairman.

La Grange Woman's Club.

Mrs. Maurice G. Morrison will lecture on the near east at a meeting of the La Grange Woman's club at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Naperville Woman's Club.

The fine arts department of the Naperville Woman's club will hear a play review of Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night" presented by Walter M. Hoel at a meeting Wednesday afternoon. A choir from the Naperville High school will sing Christmas carols directed by Prof. Arthur Hill.

Co-Educational Club.

Miss Pearl I. Field, librarian of the Legler branch of the public library, will review Julia C. Altrocchi's book, "Wolves Against the Moon" at a meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon of the West Side Co-Educational club. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Henry R. PHI KAPPA PSI JOINS RANKS OF GOOD FELLOWS

Alumni Plan to Buy Fifty Baskets of Food.

Among the Good Fellows who are flocking to the call for coöperation in the Tribune Good Fellow campaign are the Chicago alumni of Phi Kappa Psi. On Thursday noon they will sponsor the Fraternity Good Fellow luncheon in the Red room of the La Salle hotel. A fund is being raised by the group that will purchase approximately 50 baskets of food for distribution to unfortunate families.

Chairman is Harold A. Mott, who will head a committee including Chester Taylor Sr., John C. Christie, Edward A. Twerdahl Jr., and Ellsworth Enoch. Distribution of the baskets will take place on Christmas eve from the two chapters located on the campuses of the University of Chicago and Northwestern university.

Campaign headquarters of the Good Fellow drive have been receiving letters and contributions from many persons who have subscribed to Plan No. 2. This is the plan whereby only money is sent.

Will Buy 100 Baskets.

A check for $500 given to the Good Fellow campaign by the executives and employés of the Chicago Motor club will be used to buy baskets for 100 families in the city. THE TRIBUNE will purchase the baskets and they will be distributed thru the nine branch offices of the Motor club.

On Monday before Christmas members of the club will pick up the baskets and deliver them. Distribution in the loop will be made from the main office at 66 East Water street. Heading the office there are Howard Hayes, Martin Koch, and H. J. Richer.

West Side Contributors.

The west side branch office of the Motor club is at 4645 Washington boulevard. In charge of the office are Beryl H. Childs, D. T. Amols, A. B. Dow, M. H. Kleinman, and Joseph Garvey.

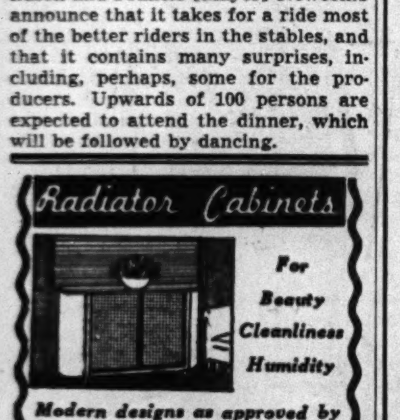
Horse feathers [or reasonably accurate facsimiles] adorn the invitations sent out last week for the world premier of the new color movie produced at the Stalford stables in Lyons township. The picture is entitled "Horse Feathers, or You Needn't Be Nuts to Own a Horse but It Certainly Helps a Lot." Its producers, Art [Metro] Anderson, Dr. Spencer [Goldwyn] Magnuson and Francis [Mayer] Newcomb announce that it takes for a ride most of the better riders in the stables, and that it contains many surprises, including, perhaps, some for the producers. Upwards of 100 persons are expected to attend the dinner, which will be followed by dancing.



Aids Guild Benefit Ball

Miss Sidney Stratton is a committee member for the first benefit ball of Circle 20 of the junior organization of the Suburban Protestant guild. The dance will be held from 9 to 1 o'clock in the 19th Century Woman's club of Oak Park. The guild members will wear white skirts and sweaters with red corsages to add to the white and red color scheme for the party. The proceeds of the dance will go towards the scholarship being offered by the guild to an Oak Park High school girl.

KEEP-OFF-GRASS BOYS NOW ARE GOOD FELLOWS

Save Pennies and Will Buy Food Basket.

Because a soft spoken, silver-haired lady invited some boys in for lunch instead of yelling at them from the window, there is a block of Good Fellows on South Oakley boulevard. They have saved pennies since summer and will spend the much-counted contents of their treasury to buy a Good Fellow basket for some needy family on the west side.

Mrs. George Rehm.

Mrs. George J. Rehm, 425 South Oakley boulevard, is the silver haired lady. She and her high ceilinged home remain of the golden era of the boulevard. That was when Oakley, Ashland, and West Harrison were the streets of wealth and grass grew in the parkways and gardeners took care of it.

No Chance for Grass.

Time passed and the old houses were divided and rented to several families. Additional boys became Mrs. Rehm's neighbors, and for 15 years no grass grew on South Oakley boulevard. Each spring the Park district has grass seed sown. It never had a chance under the tramping feet of boys at play.

Mrs. Rehm was sorrowful. She pondered the fate of the lawns that used to be. Three years ago she invited 11 of the boys into her home, gave them hot dogs, cake and candy. They sang songs and organized an Off the Grass club.

Last summer grass grew on Oakley boulevard. The boys were lawn police. Everyone competed to win the prize offered by Mrs. Rehm for the best lawn in the parkways in front of the house. Several weeks ago Anthony Grasso, club president, was given first prize, a dollar.

Start Saving Pennies.

The boys started saving pennies for a purpose. They voted what the purpose would be and decided on buying baseball caps for themselves. When Mrs. Rehm came home from a western vacation in September she brought them the baseball caps as a souvenir of North Dakota, along with souvenir pocket combs from Minneapolis.

The club then voted to do something for somebody else. Treasurer Jimmy Brown, 10 years old, again carefully counted out the money, a total of $1.35 and both Dr. Rehm and Mrs. Rehm said they would match it.

The boys are joining Plan one of the Good Fellow campaign sponsored by the Tribune Charities, Inc. They will be what is called "the basket Good Fellow."

The boys have been planning the Christmas cheer for three months. When they have delivered their Christmas offering, the savings of a half year, they will be given a Christmas party at the Rehm home.

WHY NOT A YULE GIFT THIS YEAR FOR BATHROOM?

Fixtures and Accessories Improve Living.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

However one feels on problems national and international, on politics and philosophy, ethics, and religion, there's unanimity of agreement on the fact that when we say "Merry Christmas" to some room in our house and give it an enduring present or two, we've succeeded at the same time in giving our own spirits quite a lift.

We're not breathing a word against holiday wreaths and candles all beribboned, and the dash and go of blown glass balls at the window and real jingling bells at the door. They are all jolly ways of shouting Merry Christmas to those who pass our homes, and to those who come inside. But if on the spur of some inspired moment we add something else besides, an enduring gift for the house from the whole household, perhaps, we've seen to it that our Christmas will remain with us long after the calendar date has passed.

Bathrooms sparkle the holiday spirit and there are gifts galore to give them.

Bathroom Now Up to Date.

Last January Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clark, 412 Greenwood, Evanston, modernized their bathroom. It was in no need of drastic change, since the fixtures were sound, the decorations good, the fittings and accessories in fit shape to continue functioning for family comfort for some time to come. But in the light of what's new in bathroom planning and finishing the existing room seemed dated and in need of modernization.

This was done; beautifully done, with careful attention paid to the hundred and one details which go to make up a properly renovated bath.

Now it's fresh and festive and sparkling for the holidays, tho the work was done some time ago.

Problems encountered in each bathroom differ, but certain fundamental improvements are usually in order.

Brown and Yellow Floor.

In this instance new fixtures for old were installed. A built-in tub with overhead shower, new closet, a new lavatory with mirrored medicine cabinet over it, and an intriguing recess in the wall for toilet accessories. The radiator disappeared from under the window and a fine rubber flooring, in rich brown tones with yellow stripes was laid. The wainscot is a marbleized pattern, an attractive lemon yellow, with the upper walls papered. This paper has a silver background and white morning glories flecked with yellow are a part of its pattern. The bathroom fixtures are chrome.

One may not be ready to celebrate the holidays with plans or a check for an entire new bath or kitchen, but there are smaller ways of giving these rooms a merry yuletide remembrance.

Tank Shelf Cover.

Bathroom scales were never so good looking, with magnifying lens, perhaps, if some family member is short sighted; or a chrome finished closet tank shelf cover with nice safeguard rail, for extra shelf space and protection against bottles that sometimes tumble off the back of a closet tank; or new lavatory faucets in case the old ones are losing their finish and acquiring the dripping habit. For the kitchen a modern single swinging faucet would be a pleasant gift.

Of course a new sink would be a grand present, but so would a shower in the basement for the children. It need not cost much. Rough nickel plated showers will take a lot of tough usage from youthful basement athletes.

Plan Card Party.

Siena Mothers' club will give a luncheon and card party at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Better Homemaking institute, 111 West Jackson boulevard. Mrs. John Koutnick and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons are chairmen.

MUNDELEIN GLEE CLUB WILL SING BUCK'S CANTATA

Dudley Buck's cantata, "The Coming of the King," will be a feature of the annual Christmas program, "Under the Stars," to be presented by Mundelein college students at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the college theater.

The Glee club, directed by Prof. Otto Singenberger, will sing the cantata. Soloists will include Maude Shufiitowski, Betty Lou Deppen, Mildred Martinez, Geraldine Koppa, Patricia Herbert, Marion Jacobs, Shirley Hopper, and Rita Callaghan. Before the cantata the Glee club will offer carols, closing with a "Gate of Heaven" tableau in which Alice Guest will be the Madonna and Mary Jane Bresnehan, Frances Kane, and Bette Winte will be angels.

Rosalie Wiora and Angela Voller will play organ selections and the college orchestra, under the baton of Joseph J. Grill, will present the Gloria from the "Twelfth Mass," by Mozart, and "A Yuletide Fantasy," by Erne Rapee.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL TO OFFER FOUR LECTURES

Plans for four Sunday afternoon lectures in January as part of an annual study of trends and events were announced last week by the Evanston School of Foreign Affairs. The series will begin Sunday afternoon Jan. 5 and will be held in the First Methodist church of Evanston. Mrs. Eugene S. Lawler, 627 Library place in the suburb, is general chairman of the 1941 session. Members of the program committee include Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, Dr. Kenneth Colegrove, Miss Valborg Sinkler, Dr. T. W. Merriam, and B. G. Mattson Jr.

NEW SYMPHONY OF 55 MEMBERS TO MEET TUESDAY

Rogers Park's embryo symphony orchestra, which is to be organized officially Tuesday evening, has jumped from 35 to 55 players as a result of a story in last Sunday's Metropolitan section.

The orchestra now being formed by four Rogers Park music devotees had a nucleus of 35 musicians. After the story appeared H. Arnold Cohen, 6810 Sheridan road, received calls from 20 musical residents who volunteered to play in the orchestra.

Members will hold their first meeting Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the Rogers Park Baptist church, 1900 Greenleaf avenue, which they have rented as a rehearsal hall.

Plans are to be made for weekly rehearsals and officers will be elected. The orchestra is to be conducted by Sam Raphling, 1336 Estes avenue, young composer and concert pianist. In addition to Mr. Cohen, other founders include Curt Dreifuss, 2419 Fargo avenue; A. J. Strohm, 2124 Chase avenue, and Edward Zeisler, 4335 Kenmore avenue.

Parents May Attend Party If with Their Children

The usual sign, "Children admitted if accompanied by adults," is to be rewritten Saturday morning at the 49th ward's annual Christmas party at the Granada theater. The new version will read: "Adults admitted only if accompanied by children." The party is the sixth annual one sponsored by Ald. Frank Keenan.

NEW F-M CALL LETTERS TO GIVE POSITION ON DIAL

Locations of Stations Also to Be Indicated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Letters and figures are to be combined in the call letters for the new frequency modulation [F-M] stations under a system announced last week by the federal communications commission. These call letters will be so united to tell listeners the position of the F-M station on the tuning dial; whether it is east or west of the Mississippi river, and in many instances the city, or general area where it is located.

F-M broadcasting is the new system which reduces static to a minimum and results in high fidelity reception. W-G-N, Inc. was granted a permit to begin construction of an F-M station last week. The new station was tentatively assigned to operate with a frequency [wave length] of 45.9 megacycles [45,900 kilocycles].

Not Ready for 4 Months.

Construction of the new station, which will supplement the services of W-G-N, will be started at once on the 29th floor of Tribune Tower. It will not be ready for use for at least four months, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer has announced. Antennae will be mounted on the flagpole atop Tribune Tower. The topmost antenna arms will be placed 15 feet beneath the American flag.

In accordance with international agreements the prefixes "W" and "K" will be used to start F-M call letters, just as they have for years on standard broadcasting stations. "K" will indicate stations west of the Mississippi; "W", stations east.

Numerals in Call Letters.

The second and third characters of each F-M call will be numerals, the FCC has announced. These numerals will be the last two numbers of the assigned frequency [in megacycles]. These two numerals will indicate the position on the dial. After these two numerals will appear another letter, or letters, which will indicate in some abbreviated form the city or area in which a station is located, or which may be arbitrarily assigned.

The calls of Chicago F-M stations, are to end in "C." No other city will have "C" alone as an ending. Others will have an additional letter or letters after "C" to identify them.

Similarly, Boston calls will end in "B," New York calls in "NY" and District of Columbia calls in "DC."

Consider Special Requests.

All F-M allocations are being made between 42 and 50 megacycles. Assigned frequencies are not on even megacycles but on the odd tenths. For example, a station might be assigned to 46.3 meg; all the F-M frequencies are in the forties, thus "4" is valueless in locating a station. A station assigned to 46.3 meg. would have the last two numerals "63" appearing in its call.

Thus if the new W-G-N, Inc., F-M station were finally to be assigned the frequency of 45.9 megacycles, the figures "59," which would determine its dial position, would appear in its call letters. And its call, under the plan as announced last week, would become W59C.

The FCC has announced to broadcasters, however, that it will consider requests for special letter terminations for the new F-M calls.

'Mexico, Good Neighbor,' Topic of Review Stand

G. Donald Hudson, geographer and trade expert, and Irving Pflaum will discuss "Mexico, Good Neighbor" on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Dr. Hudson is professor of geology and geography at Northwestern university and is an authority on Latin America. Pflaum is a newspaper man.

Rev. Perry Stackhouse on Chicagoland Church Hour

The Rev. Perry J. Stackhouse will lead his First Baptist church congregation in an hour's services to be heard from 9 to 10 a. m. today over W-G-N. The driector of the Chicagoland Church hour broadcasts, which are a regular Sunday morning public service feature of W-G-N, is Dr. John Evans, religion editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Good Fellows

The low down on what Good Fellow children would like to receive is given by Santa to Griff Williams, Don Pedro (rear), and Art Kassel who are out to do their share in the annual Tribune drive. Don Pedro is regularly heard at 10:15 a. m. and the orchestras of Williams and Kassell each evening from the Stevens and Bismarck hotels, all over W-G-N.

Becker to Tell How to Buy Dog for Christmas

Predicting a doggy Christmas, with more new puppies going into American homes than ever before, Bob Becker will devote his Chat About Dogs today to the problem of what kind of pooch to buy for a gift. The sportsman and dog authority will be heard from 1:45 to 2 p. m. over W-G-N. Becker will set forth valuable do's and don'ts for the prospective dog owner. Where to buy, what size dog, and a discussion of the characteristics of the various breeds will be advice included in Becker's comment.

Chorus of 50 Voices on Northerners Concert

Traditional Christmas carols sung by a mixed chorus of 50 voices will be featured on the Northerners program from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N. "Deck the Hall," "With a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella," and "The First Noel," will be presented by the chorus which has been assembled from the employés of the Northern Trust company by Harry S. Walsh. For the finale the chorus and the studio audience will sing "Adeste Fideles."

CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Familiar Music to Feature W-G-N Program.

Songs by Marion Claire and a violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski will be the musical highlights of the opening broadcast of the Chicagoland concert hour to be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Light classical and familiar music will be presented on this new program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the concert hour. In so doing Col. McCormick will be renewing a custom he established last summer on the Sunday Symphonic hour. Henry Weber, who concluded his season's work yesterday as general director of the Chicago Opera company, will conduct the W-G-N orchestra.

The Chicagoland Concert hour replaces the Monday evening opera broadcasts which have been a musical highlight of the W-G-N schedule for the last five weeks.

Miss Claire's Songs.

Miss Claire, who sings the leading parts in W-G-N's Saturday night Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, will sing Musette's Waltz from "La Boheme," by Giacomo Puccini, for the first of her solos.

She also will sing Adams' "O Holy Night" and selections from Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow Waltz." The augmented chorus will join Miss Claire in the Adams and Lehar numbers.

Orchestra's Selections.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra will open the program with a presentation of the "Gypsy Baron" overture by Johann Strauss, and also will play Manuel DeFalla's Dance Espagnole No. 1, and "Dances from Coppelia," by Delibes.

Chicagoland Concert programs will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary will be written by Cecil Smith of the Tribune music and drama department.

FROZEN TERROR IS CONQUERED BY PETER QUILL

A fantastic tale of a town in which the temperature inexplicably drops to 80 degrees below zero, disrupting communications, finally cutting the limited area off from the world will be told on the "Peter Quill" drama for today. This episode titled "The Frozen Terror" will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Informed of the town's plight, Peter Quill, wizard of the scientific laboratories, flies over the area with Gall Carson and Capt. Roger Dorn to investigate. As a preliminary measure Quill scatters coal dust on the frozen ground which absorbs warmth from the sun, relieving the intense cold.

What is apparently a meteorological phenomenon turns out to be an "isothermic devitalizer," a mysterious freezing device, which has run amuck. Quill, Gail, and Capt. Dorn bring "The Frozen Terror" and its inventor under control in an action-packed climax.

MISS WITWER, BAGGIORE BACK ON MELODY HOUR

Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will return to the Pageant of Melody at 8:30 to 9 p. m. Wednesday over W-G-N.

For the past several weeks, guest stars from the Chicago Opera company have been featured on the program. Miss Witwer and Baggiore, likewise, have been busy with rôles in Chicago Opera performances.

Miss Witwer will mark her return to the program with a solo presentation of the "Jewel Song" from Gounod's "Faust." Baggiore will sing "Lontenanza," by Moleti, for his solo.

Orchestral numbers on the program, which is under the direction of Henry Weber, include "La Gazza Ladra," by Rossini; "The Swan," by Palmgren; and "March of the Tin Soldiers," by Pierne.

W-G-N WISHING WELL FULFILLS DREAMS OF FANS

2,000 Tell Their Wishes Every Week.

Thruout the ages people have been making wishes, relying on such props as wishbones, new moons, white horses, and even the stars to make their dreams come true. Of late some 2,000 persons each week have been making known their special desires to the W-G-N Wishing Well program conducted by Mary Paxton.

Many have had their wishes come true and have now abandoned the other vehicles that are believed to help. The loop store sponsoring Miss Paxton's program each week receives an astonishing array of personal heart's desires.

Seeks Week's Profits.

Miss Paxton satisfies only those wishes which can be granted by dipping into the stocks of the store. Mink coats, sewing machines, draperies, mirrors, pajamas, and an evening dress "suitable for the Hawaiian Islands" are typical of the gifts sought by Chicagolanders every week.

"Some one wrote in the other morning," said Miss Paxton, "and asked for a week's profits of the store." She passed that one up. She had to turn down a request, too, for a chicken farm.

One woman in her letter stated that it had been so long since she received a personal gift that she was beginning to wonder whether she was a person of a house. She wished for an "amusing" hat. She received an astonishing chapeau in black, adorned with red poppies.

Tell Wishes in Letters.

Wishes are asked to tell about their desires in a letter to Miss Paxton. They are also invited to describe these items adequately. Miss Paxton reads all the letters and decides which wish shall be granted.

The Wishing Well is aired at 8:45 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9 a. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

'ROSE MARIE' ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT SATURDAY

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Rudolf Friml's operetta, "Rose Marie" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N-Mutual. Marion Claire and Robert Weede, outstanding personalities of radio and opera, will take the leading singing rôles. Miss Claire is featured in the leading feminine rôle in all these operettas.

Mr. Weede made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1937 and has been featured with the Chicago Opera. "Rose Marie," a romantic story of the Canadian Rockies, was first presented in 1924. It has been a perennial favorite since then.

It includes several songs of haunting loveliness, "Rose Marie, I Love You" and the "Indian Love Call" among them. William A. Bacher will produce "Rose Marie" and Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

"Mommy I've quit coughing —already"

INCREDIBLY QUICK RELIEF from coughs due to colds—that's what the first-time users of Foley's Honey & Tar invariably report! And they always say Foley's is so delicious that it's a pleasure to take. Your children will love its flavor.

Unless you've tried triple-acting Foley's, you may be astounded, too! At the speed with which it starts soothing your throat. At the speed with which it curbs those coughing spells. And the speed with which your cough loosens up. This speed comes from its famous triple-acting formula, the result of 65 years making better and better cough syrups.

Foley's contains no narcotics. Ideal for children as well as adults. Does not upset the digestion. Of course you're going to check that cough before it gets worse. But check it with speedy Foley's Honey & Tar—the quick-acting, triple-acting cough syrup. See for yourself how quick, efficient, delightful triple-acting Foley's really is. At your druggist or

CAROLS TO LEND YULETIDE AIR TO P.-T. A. MEETINGS

Student Singers Will Give Special Programs.

Christmas carols, tinsel trimming, and toys for young guests will be the theme for parent-teacher meetings thru the west area this week. At the Tilton unit at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon shadow pictures will be shown while the children sing carols under the direction of Mrs. C. De Moss, music instructor.

Mrs. E. F. Kuhlmann, homemaking chairman, will be in charge of the annual bake sale. Mrs. Otto Kiel, refreshment chairman, will be in charge of the social hour. Mrs. Arthur Ohlerich is president of the unit and Miss Rena C. Flanagan is principal of the school.

The parent-teacher association of McKinley High school will hold a Christmas party on Tuesday in the school assembly hall.

The Crane Singers, directed by Lewys Thomas, will sing Christmas carols at a meeting of Crane Technical High school P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium. There will also be a discussion on "How Will I Teach My Child to Become a Good Citizen?"

Carols will be sung by Mason school pupils at a meeting of the Mason P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium. Mrs. J. W. Heylmun, state chairman of music and art, will speak on "Enrichment of Life Thru Music."

A meeting of the William Penn P.-T. A. will be held at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school assembly. Mrs. Mabel Simpson of the citizens school committee will be guest speaker. Health certificates will be awarded to children by the summer roundup chairman, Mrs. Kate Nachenberg.

The Mothers' Civic council of Calhoun school will hold a meeting at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium. Mrs. Elsie Mackenzie, president, will be in charge. The meeting will begin with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Mrs. Elva Perrin and Mrs. Elizabeth Tufo will read reports. The principal, Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald, will speak on "School News." After the meeting the Calhoun students will give a Christmas program.

Corkery P.-T. A. will meet at 1:15 o'clock Thursday in the school assembly. A motion picture, "Hamilton Goes to Town," will be shown and Miss Anne Henel will speak. The Corkery chorus will sing, directed by Mrs. Alice Ellenfeldt.

Home in South

[Karmen-Winger Photo.]

Mrs. Charles Albert Cannon Jr. has moved into her new home in Concord, N. C., after a wedding trip to South America. Mrs. Cannon is the former Miss Mildred Shreve White, 721 Erie street, Oak Park, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Douglass White. The bride was graduated from Duke university in June and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and of Alpha Phi sorority. Mr. Cannon is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. The senior Charles Cannons reside in Concord.

Christmas Spirit at W-G-N

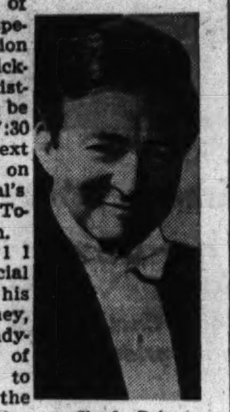
CLAUDE RAINS TO PLAY SCROOGE ON W-G-N THURSDAY

Offer Dickens' 'Carol' on Chicago Hour.

Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actors, will play the rôle of Scrooge in the special adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," to be heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program.



Claude Rains.

Rains will make a special trip from his farm in Cheyney, in the Brandywine district of Pennsylvania, to appear on the program. A star cast of Chicago radio actors, under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, will support Rains.

Such character rôles as the crafty King John in "Robin Hood," the cruel Louis Napoleon in "Juarez," the wistful father in "Four Daughters," and the high handed Spanish ambassador in "Sea Hawk" have won Rains great acclaim with moviegoers. His latest film, not yet released, is Warner Brothers production, "Four Mothers."

Rains was born in England just a half-century ago. He made his debut on the London stage in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the age of 11.

After a session of world travel, Rains came to the New York stage, where he came to the attention of Hollywood. His first film feature rôle was in "The Invisible Man." Between pictures, he hurries back to his rolling and peaceful farmland, where he enjoys his simple designation as Farmer Rains.

Morton Band to Present Concert in Cicero Sunday

The Morton Concert band, directed by Louis M. Blaha, will present a concert at 3:15 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at Morton High school, Cicero. The Morton Band Parents' association is sponsor. Soloists will be Anthony Makas, pianist, and Alice Trojan, saxophonist.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 16.

It is poinsettia time and home gardeners will attempt to carry the plants over winter, but it is much better to discard the old plants. They must be allowed to rest during winter, after flowering, and started into growth in the spring. They require a condition that is free from sudden changes or the foliage will drop. The plants can be cut back, potted, and plunged to the rim after late May.

Tuesday, Dec. 17.

On mild days when the ground can be worked, fall trenching can be undertaken. Instead of spading the ground in the usual way throw out a furrow one spading across the plot. Then go over the same spading again, thoroly breaking the lower soil, but leaving it where it was. Throw the next strip of top soil on this and pulverize the strip of soil beneath it. A layer of manure spread over the surface before starting operations will add additional food to the soil.

Wednesday, Dec. 18.

Garden friends will appreciate gifts they can use in gardening operations; tools of all kinds, bulbous plants, wearing apparel, books, etc.

Not all bulbs are available at this date, but the amaryllis, yellow and white callas, and some narcissi may be obtained. Flowering pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, begonias, and plants of special value for their foliage may be obtained.

Thursday, Dec. 19.

Cover pansies and English daisies with straw or leaves and keep the cover in place with a few branches or boards. The long popular geranium is said to be losing popularity but there is no more pleasing plant that can be grown in the window.

Keep in comparatively small pots and in a window that has full sun.

Friday, Dec. 20.

It is not too late to mulch the strawberry bed. Cover with straw or draw strawy manure up to and around the plants, if they are planted in hills; if in densely matted rows, use straw. It will not pack too heavily and injure the plants.

Saturday, Dec. 21.

Keep pans of water on the radiator or attach a humidifier to it to increase humidity in the room. Beneficial to both plants and human beings. On cold nights, place newspapers against the window where plants are standing to keep out cold drafts. Apply a bit of plant food to plants in bud or while flowering.

WEEK OF MUSIC TO MARK YULE IN WEST TOWNS

Cantatas, Carols Are to Start Today.

200 pupils, robed in black and white and carrying lighted tapers, will take part in the processional. Miss Betty Hill of the high school faculty will be the reader.

Main parts in the pageant will be taken by Bert Lindsley, Barbara Fry, Betty McGuire, Juanita Hosman, Robert Young, William Harris, Marc Beem, and James Thorson.

Music will be provided by the school a cappella choir and orchestra.

Candlelight Service.

The music department of Riverside-Brookfield High school will present its fifth annual candlelight service Tuesday night in the school auditorium. Miss Alice Brainerd will direct the regular chorus, the a cappella choir, the mixed chorus, the girls' glee club, and the freshmen girls' chorus, as well as the full chorus of 115 singers. The choruses will wear burgundy colored robes.

Following the carol prelude by the high school orchestra under the direction of Louis Newmark, the robed singers will move thru the dimly lighted corridors bearing white candles that have been lighted by costumed pages. "O Come All Ye Faithful" has been chosen for the processional. The stage will be decorated with tall candles, evergreen and holly.

Miss Mary Houston of the English department has written the narrative, and during the evening an original composition, "The Annunciation," by Dolores Smith, a senior, will be sung.

The program will include three selections from Handel's "Messiah," with Barbara Puetz, contralto, Gertrude Tache, soprano, and Robert Novak, tenor, as soloists.

THORNTON TWP. HIGH TO BE SALUTED NEXT BY FUTURE CITIZENS

The achievements of Thornton Township High school at Harvey will be told at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon when the school is honored on the fifth presentation of the Chicago Tribune's program Citizens of Tomorrow over W-G-N.

Six hundred students, led by their principal, William E. McVey, will be special guests in W-G-N's main audience studio for the broadcast. Mr. McVey will speak briefly. Philip Maxwell plays the rôle of the principal and is also master of ceremonies of the program.

The Thornton chorus, directed by Irene Olson, will sing three numbers, the school song and two Christmas carols. This program will be suspended during the Christmas vacation and the first broadcast of the new year will be on Tuesday, Jan. 7, with the Hyde Park High school of the Chicago public school system as the guest of honor.

FOUR WEST SIDE SCHOOLS TO GET LAWN AWARDS

Five west area schools will receive awards Tuesday as winners in the sixth annual "Save the Lawn" campaign, a city-wide beautification plan of the park district. The ceremony will be held in the auditorium of Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, winner of first prize.

Certificates of honorable mention will go to the west side schools. They are May school, 512 South LaVergne avenue, Thomas P. Dowling, engineer-custodian, and Josephine Offenlock, principal; Lovett school, 6333 Bloomingdale avenue, Villas K. Assens, engineer-custodian; Miss Helen Cox, principal; Locke school, 2800 Newcastle avenue, M. E. Shannon, engineer-custodian, and James A. Weber, principal; Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas boulevard, Thomas McNamara, engineer-custodian, and Dorph Brown, principal; St. Lucy's school, Lake street and Mayfield, the Rev. Timothy Rowan, director.

Paul Schulz, president of the Municipal Art league, is general chairman of the citizens committe coöperating with the park district.

SOUTH SIDERS PLAN VACATIONS BASKING IN SUN

Planes, Trains, Autos Will Take Them.

Winter vacations are the newest luxury for America's workingmen. This week, when the annual holiday migration south, west, and north begins in earnest, the ranks of train riders, airplane passengers, and automobile drivers will be swelled by hundreds of small business men, clerks, policemen, salesmen, mechanics, and others.

On the south side and in the suburbs, some report that they are heading for the bright southland or the glamorous west coast to swim, fish, or merely loaf, while others are looking forward to the stimulation afforded by the ski slides and the pine forests of the northland. They are counting on a short vacation, but a memorable one.

Headed for Florida.

A group of Flossmoor residents are planning their Christmas vacation season in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Peasley and their children, Nancy, John, and Susan, left yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Baty and their family also started south yesterday. The Baty children are Jack, David, and Mary. The Charles P. Thompsons and their daughter, Miss Mary Lee, will leave for Fort Lauderdale on Saturday. All of the families are making the trip by automobile.

Miss Geneve Crabbe of Beverly Hills is planning to fly to Omaha, Neb., for her college roommate's wedding. She will spend the holidays there as the guest of sorority sisters.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Talbot of Joliet and their sons, Douglas and Richard, have gone to Fort Lauderdale, where they have taken a house.

The Henry J. Swayers and the Arthur Montzheimers, also of Joliet, have chosen the southwest for their Christmas. Both families will be in Tucson, Ariz., for the holidays, and both plan to go on to Los Angeles for the winter.

Two Families Going.

The families of two real estate men, Victor S. Peters, 6927 Constance avenue, and his brother, Charles Peters, 6810 Euclid acenue, are spending their Christmas vacations on a long tour thru the south, with stops in Tennessee, Florida, and in Havana, Cuba. Elaine, Joyce, and Victor Jr., children of Victor Peters, departed by Illinois Central train on Friday, and are to be joined in Miami by the older couples, who plan to leave by automobile tomorrow. All the vacationers will return Jan. 6.

W. H. Carpenter, 7427 South Shore drive, will fly to Washington on Christmas eve to visit his parents for four days. He will go by American Airlines. Mr. Carpenter is employed with the United States Civil service.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Cole, 5100 Cornell avenue, leave today by automobile for Miami. Mr. Cole, who is in the advertising business, will make a business stop on his way to Florida. They expect to be back the first week in January.

Will Attend Wedding.

John Patton, 12323 Princeton avenue, will go to Detroit by American Airlines over the holiday week to attend the wedding of his cousin, Miss Carol Motherwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Honeck and son, Edward, 79th street and Wolf road, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry, who reside on Joliet road near the Lyonsville church, are in Farr, Tex. During their stay in the Rio Grande valley they will visit Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cook, who formerly owned and farmed the land now the site of the Indian Head golf course.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Pincus, 7829 Wood street, are leaving at the end of this month for a trip thru the southwest and south. They will visit Hot Springs, Mexico City, Corpus Christi, and New Orleans, among other points of interest.

Will Visit Family.

Miss Esther Dubbert of 6510 Kimbark avenue will leave the day before Christmas by American Airlines for her home in St. Louis to spend several days with her family.

George Thurman, 11115 Edbrooke avenue, will leave Christmas morning by American Airlines for Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Thurman plans to spend several weeks on a ranch, and will return to Chicago about Jan. 15.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Portis of the south side will leave Thursday with their son, Richard, for Tucson, Ariz., to visit another son, Ralph, who is a freshman at the University of Arizona. The Portises plan to go on to the cost before returning to Chicago. They will travel by train.

M. P. Friedman, who will be married today to Miss Marie Johnson, will take his bride to Miami Beach, Fla. They will be there during the holidays, and will return about Jan. 15. They will live in the Hyde Park district.

Vacation in Florida.

Mrs. Colette Dister will leave Saturday with her small son, Joseph, for Jacksonville, Fla., and on to Miami. Plans for their return are indefinite. But they expect to be away during the holidays. Mrs. Dister lives at 8123 Elizabeth avenue.

Dr. Valentine Sobotka, 6745 Chappel avenue, and his son, Stephen, plan to Young Wizard with Figures Prefers Sports

Dick Williams of East Chicago, who will be 11 years old on Dec. 28, looks and acts like an average boy. He has curly blond hair, loves to play football, basketball, and baseball, and gets up early on Sunday mornings to read the comic strips. Yet Dick is a remarkable boy in many ways. For examples:

1. In the sixth grade of the Harrison elementary school he occupies a special desk where currently he is being taught geometry while the rest of the class is struggling with percentage. This is a concession to Dick's precocious talent for mathematics.

2. Each morning, when the rest of the class is studying its reading lesson, Dick is permitted to go home and prepare for his frequent piano recitals. Dick, who now reads adult books, started reading when he was 3 years old and always has been about five years ahead of his age in reading.

Precocious in Spelling.

3. In school spelling bees Dick vies only with class champions, or with classes that have been studying sets of words all week, since he has never misspelled a word in class. So perfect is his sense of phonetics that he often spells correctly words he has never previously seen nor heard.

4. His hobby is geography and he has a comprehensive knowledge of cities, countries, and bodies of water thruout the world that is rarely equaled by adults. His favorite book is the world atlas.

Altogether, however, Dick scarcely adds up to the conventional prodigy because of his attitude. He would rather boot a football after school than study and is prouder of the four pound bass he caught in Canada last summer than the complex arithmetical puzzles he solves on the "Quiz Kids" radio program.

"We're very happy that Dick has found it natural to act like an ordinary boy, even tho he learns much easier than most children," says Mrs. Dave Williams, his mother. "After all, there's more to living than just learning a lot. We don't feel that he's any different than his older brother, Glen—they both forget to wash behind their ears occasionally."

Reads Menus at 3.

Dick was 3 years old when his parents noticed that he was quick to learn. He played with blocks which bore pictures of animals and their names under them. Soon he could understand the word 'horse' and others when he saw them in the newspaper, and shortly after he astonished waiters by reading restaurant menus.

When Dick entered kindergarten at 5 years old, he could read as well as sixth graders. He entertained his tiny classmates by reading stories to them.

From then on he outstripped other boys and girls his age in nearly everything. Teachers were amazed at the rapidity with which he worked problems in arithmetic and his uncanny accuracy in spelling. He skipped fourth grade but after that his parents decided to keep him in the grade with children his own age, altho teachers say that he is advanced enough now for second or third year high school.

Learns to Type.

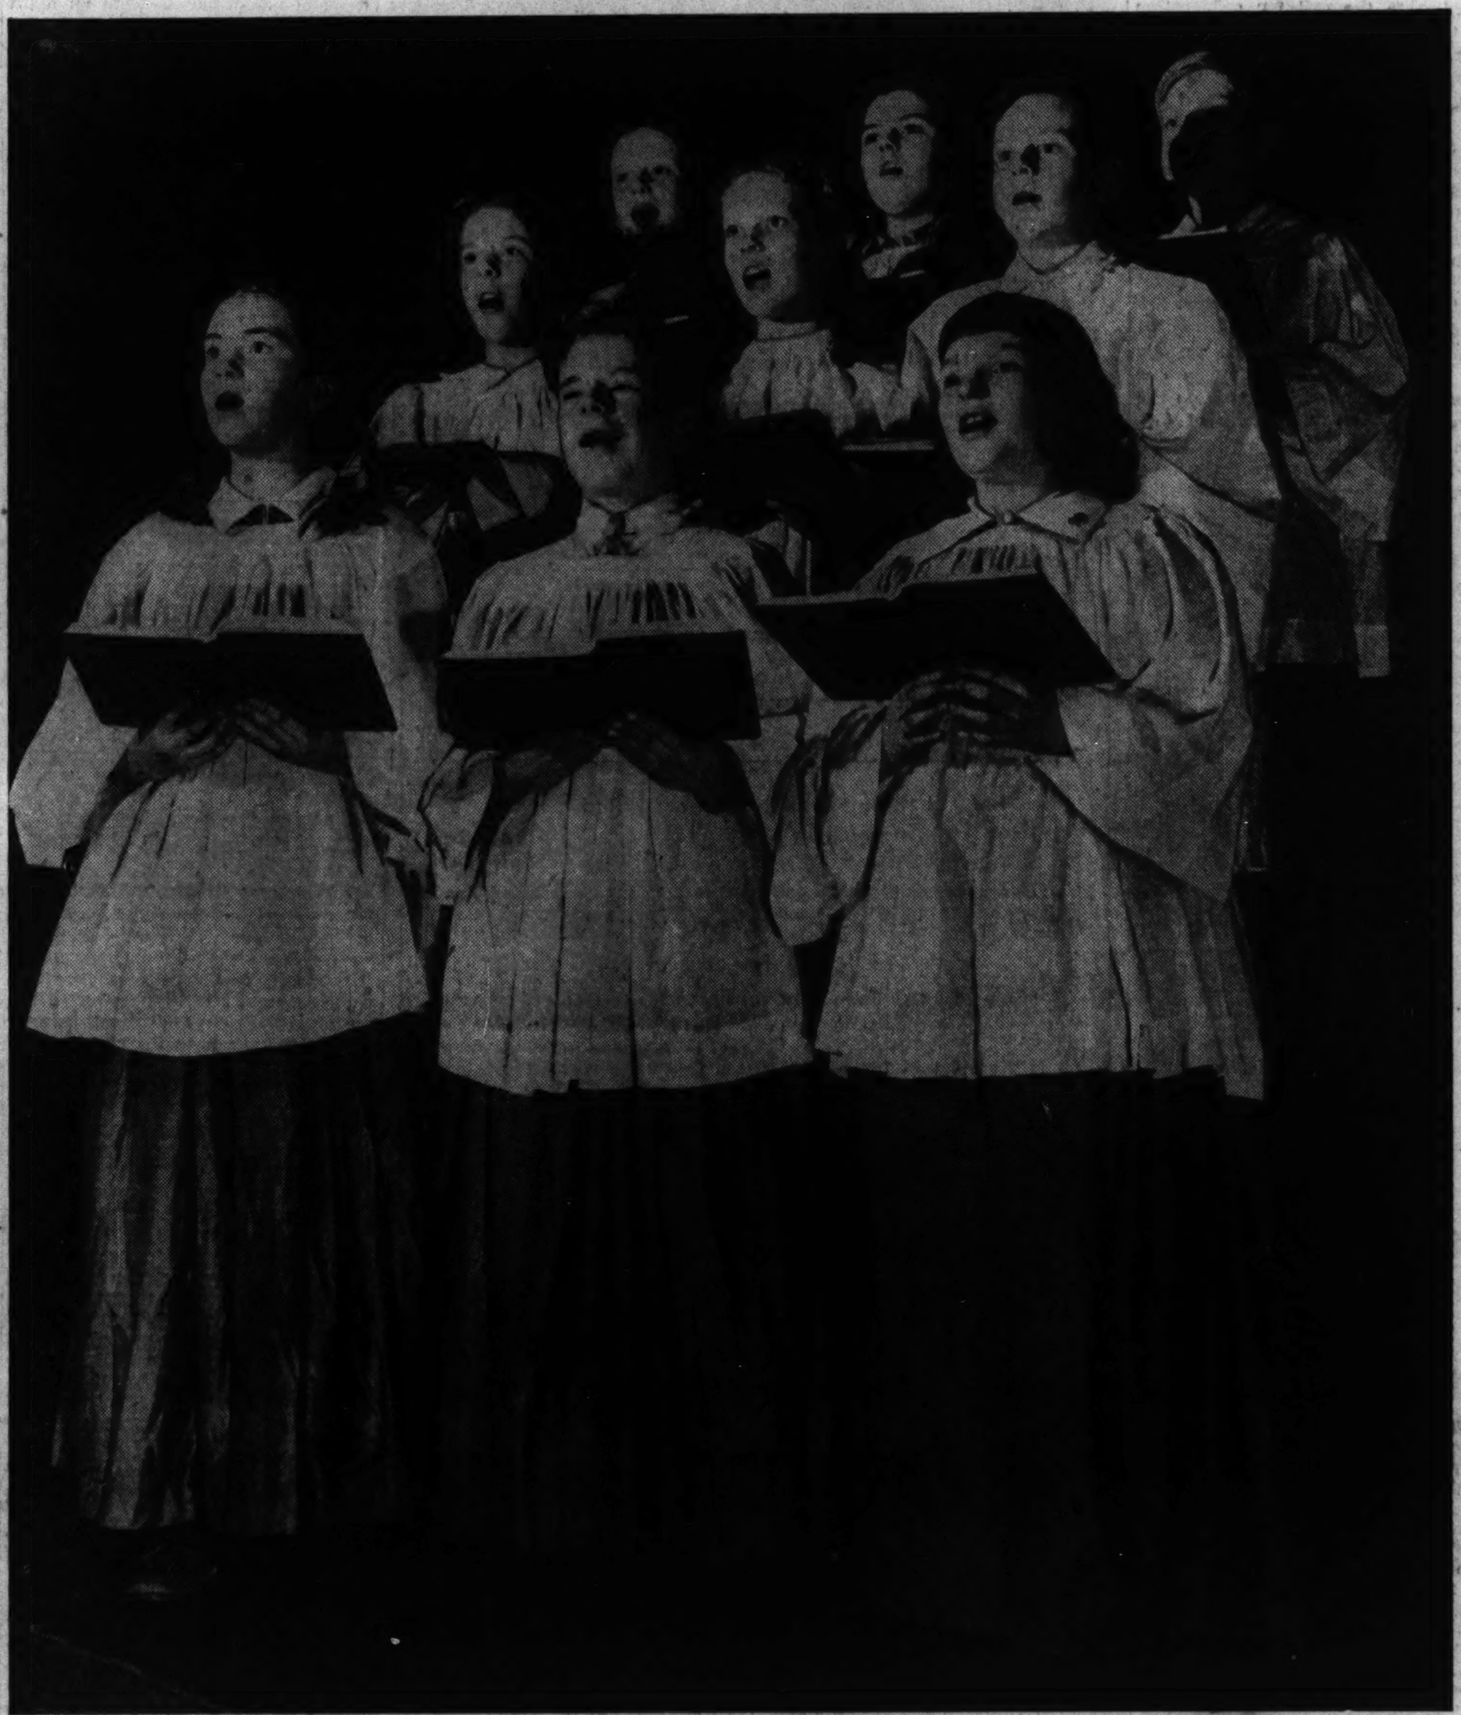
Besides replacing orthodox sixth grade classes with geometry and piano playing, Dick is studying French and has learned to type at the rate of 40 words a minute. In addition to geography, his hobbies are collecting stamps and Lincoln pennies, keeping close tab on the current wars, and playing chess, monopoly, and most outdoor sports. His ear is highly regarded by his music teacher, and he has given several piano concerts in and about Hammond, tho he mildly dislikes practicing.

Three times a day Dick dons a white Sam Browne belt and acts as school patrol boy. His father is a combustion engineer.

High School Choir to Sing in Hospital on Wednesday

Chicago Christian High school choir will furnish the music for the meeting of the woman's auxiliary of the Woodlawn hospital Wednesday afternoon at the hospital. Carols will be sung thruout the building.

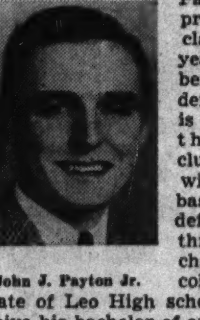
Their Voices Will Spread Yule Cheer



No group on the south side will contribute more to spreading the Christmas spirit than the junior choir of the United Church of Hyde Park. The sweet, high pitched voices of these children will be heard at the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, the Firneau house, the Howell house, and the Crippled Children's home of the University of Chicago. The group also will sing carols for the 55th Street Business Men's association in front of the Flamingo hotel on Christmas day. Among the 35 members of the choir are (left to right, first row) Martha Cole, Ronald Larber, and Sanda Lou Cross; (second row) Jeanine Larmoth, Mary Ann Ash, and Richard O'Neil; (third row) Eleanor Rapp, Mary Ann Petty, and Howard McMackin. Mrs. Harry Kulle, 5700 Kimbark avenue, is director. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

OUR TOWN — Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know

JOHN PAYTON JR., son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Payton, 7835 East End avenue, has been chosen editor in chief of the year book at Loras college in Dubuque, Ia. Last year he was editor in chief of the student newspaper. An honor student, young Payton was vice president of his class in his junior year and a member of the student senate. He is a member of the Monogram club, a letter winner in varsity basketball, and defending free throw basketball champion of the college. A graduate of Leo High school, he will receive his bachelor of arts degree next June. His father is a Chicago police detective.



John J. Payton Jr.

THE Hyde Park High school magazine has selected "Nothing but the Truth," by Byron Rice, as the winning story of its annual contest. Byron, a 4-B student, recently was presented with the first place award of $10. Stories by Shirley Levin and Phryne Sevdalis placed second and third, respectively. Second, third, fourth, and fifth places were awarded with free subscriptions to the magazine.

Four hundred children at the William McKinley school in East Chicago will participate in the annual Christmas play to be given before their parents Thursday evening in the auditorium. The play will be the drama of the Nativity. Naomi Tudor will play Mary and Wayne Marlowe is cast as Joseph. Miss Lillian Christopher is music director, Miss Agnes Winters is drama director, and Dewey T. Brush created the stage effects.

EDWARD MILLER, 8321 South Calumet avenue, vice president of Pi Alpha Lambda fraternity at Loyola university, is chairman of arrangements for the fraternity's annual formal dance Friday evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. George Scully, 7749 South Emerald avenue, and Robert Blake, 4642 South Ellis avenue, also are on the committee of arrangements.

Edward Miller.

Chicago South Side Zonta club will meet at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening in the Lindquist café, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard.

AT THE end of this month Miss Pearl Goldsby, librarian of the Bessemer Park library, will retire after 32 years of active service. She came to Bessemer for the first time 25 years ago. Since that time she has been changed to other libraries a few times but says that her first love is Bessemer. Her retirement comes just as the new South Chicago library, for which she campaigned for many years, is nearing completion.

Mary Jane Kyle, senior drama student of Rosary, is chairman of the entertainment committee for the annual Christmas party which will be held at the college on Thursday evening on the eve of holiday vacation. The party is one of the oldest traditions on the campus. Miss Kyle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kyle of Whiting, Ind.

Santa's Beard Puts Elmer in Full Disguise

BY PAUL HEALY.

Who is Santa Claus?

In a Hammond store Santa is a former structural ironworker who sits on a throne and nods and smiles enthusiastically at passing children. This is a rather streamlined Santa, chiefly because his throne is directly under the store radiators and he refuses to be padded.

Nevertheless, the boots, the red coat and pants, and the beard, which begins on his upper lip, form a disguise which even a Dick Tracy character might envy. No one so far, at least, has looked him in the eye and recognized Elmer Collins of Hammond. In fact, he has smugly watched several friends who have known him for over 15 years pass him by after looking at him as Santa, not Elmer.

Some Shy, Some Bold.

"I really enjoy the work because I like kids," says Santa, in between shaking small hands and bending an ear to whispering little folks. "Some are very shy, others are bold. When I say hello, some of them run right up and yell back 'hi!,' while the others twist and squirm in their mothers' arms until they're induced to approach me. Once they've shaken hands, tho, we're good friends. My favorites are the little Negro children—I love the way they roll their eyes when they talk to me."

Santa reports that children in general are reasonable this year in their requests for presents. Most of them ask for only two things and nearly all of them choose from the traditional toys, like sleds, electric trains, cowboy suits, scooters, dolls, and doll buggies. Few have unusual demands, he says, tho one tiny girl wanted a shot gun and a little boy asker for a baby sister.

After Dec. 25 Santa will return to his accustomed rôle as a husband and a father of a grown son and daughter. This is his debut as the modern St. Nicholas. Until recent years he was employed as a structural ironworker, which required that he balance himself precariously high overhead. Now, in middle life, because "I can't climb like I could," he works for the Hammond park board in the summer.

How He Found Job.

Mr. Collins found his Santa Claus job thru the Hammond branch of the Indiana State Employment service. Like many other applicants, he was interrogated by Miss Janet Weiss, senior interviewer who is in charge of hiring Santa Clauses.

"There aren't many qualifcations," explained Miss Weiss. "The stores usually specify that they be tall and have a way with children. Oddly enough, men who want to be Santa Clauses are comparatively hard to find. Many are embarrassed at the prospect."

Because of his genial personality, Mr. Collins proved to be one of the most effective Santa Clauses the Service placed, she said.

HORSEMEN OF SIX STATES REQUEST RIDING BOOKLET

Requests for the new Tribune bookbooklet on elementary riding instruction, entitled "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride," have been received from at least six middle western states, those in charge of its sale announced last week.

At the Tribune Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower, where the booklet is on sale for 25 cents [27 cents by mail] it was said that mail orders have come from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, and Missouri.

The booklet is a collection of articles describing a course of instruction taken by the author, a member of the Tribune staff. These articles first appeared in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE.

Betsy Ross School Theater Will Give Christmas Play

Betsy Ross School Children's theater will present a three act Christmas play, "The Rescue of St. Nick," before the school on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Members of the theater are in the fifth and sixth grades. The school is at 6059 Wabash avenue.

SUBURBAN HIGH INSTILLS PRIDE IN ACHIEVEMENT

Students to Join in Rally Tuesday.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

A school where learning is regarded as pleasant business, where students work hard and like it—that is Thornton Township High school out in Harvey. The spirit of Thornton, as it has developed under William E. McVey's 21 years as superintendent is one of seeking the joy and satisfaction of doing a thing well, whether the project is building an automobile or reading a book. There is an atmosphere of ease and application at Thornton. Students acquire a way of life along with lessons in rhetoric.

William E. McVey. [Root Photo.]

This will be exemplified at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when the cheers of 600 Thornton students will go out on the airways from W-G-N, audience studio, where Thornton is the guest school on the weekly Citizens of Tomorrow program. Miss Irene Olson, choral director and a school alumna, will lead the chorus in several numbers.

Principal to Talk.

Mr. McVey will give a short talk and there will be news of Chicagoland schools discussed by Jerry and Jimmie, youthful members of the cast. Philip Maxwell, who portrays every school's principal, will conduct the weekly Tribune news quiz and name three news high school students to the program's roll of honor.

Thornton High school has grown with the community it serves, not only in attendance but in the courses it offers. Its 1940 school population, drawn from nine towns within its own district and five others beyond these limits, comprises 3,200 students. Of these, 200 are enrolled in junior college classes. Regular students come from Harvey, Phoenix, Dolton, Homewood, Hazelcrest, Thornton, South Holland, Berger, and part of Lansing. The tuition students are from Flossmoor, Oak Forest, Tinley Park, Markham, and Midlothian.

Activity without turmoil, 3,200 high school and junior college students passing from class to class without crowding—this is Thornton. A visitor to the classes is impressed by the quiet teacher-student coöperation. There is respect without awe. Its shops train boys to enter the industries of the area. Its secretarial and stenographic courses send girls each year into the business world via office work. Behind this connection between training and jobs in the smoothly operating guidance program, instituted in 1925.

Remedial Reading Course.

In 1927 it answered the community need for an institution to continue study beyond high school grades with the junior college. While remedial reading courses are gaining favor now in many high schools, Thornton's records show five years of this procedure. Reading rate records have been kept for 10 years.

Perhaps much of the assurance and faith Thornton students manifest is traceable to the guidance plan. This begins in the eighth grade when Mr. McVey visits the township classes, housed in 21 buildings in the township's 10 school districts that will make up the next high school freshman class. Next comes the guidance director who administers tests for purposes of classification, diagnosis, and curriculum advice. Then the principal of the incoming freshman class visits the schools and, finally, the students themselves come to the high school the week before classes start. They are initiated into the plant, so they aren't strangers when they arrive for work. When classes start, they meet their homeroom teachers. Their class principal and their homeroom teachers stay with them thruout their four years.

Help Youths to Learn.

Class principals, homeroom teachers, and the director of guidance cooperate to untangle adjustment problems. Specialists who assist with the work include the school physician, school nurse, remedial gymnasium instructor, club advisers, placement adviser, and school librarian. The adolescent is safer in school than loafing on the street, Thornton teachers believe, and do all they can to help him to stay.

The township high school was organized Sept. 6, 1898, with an enrollment of 96. It supplanted the Harvey High school which was set up in 1892, two years after the city was founded by Turlington W. Harvey. The Harvey High school classes were in the basement of the Methodist church. An interesting item in the city history is that for many years no deeds to property were issued without a clause divesting purchaser of his rights if the premises were used for saloon purposes. This the high school has a puritanical ancestry in its locale.

The township high school has had but three superintendents in its 42 years' history. J. E. Cable was the

How Thornton High School Students Keep Abreast of Modern Learning

Tea time in Thornton Township High school home economics department means that teachers are guests and students practice serving. Miss Dorothy Salzman, left, and Miss Esther Boyer, both of the home economics staff, take sugar, cream, and cakes from Carmelita Jacobson and Joan Morrissey, right. Thornton has a school-wide communication system, and Doris Alverson and Jane Edith Herthel take a turn at the control board. Pottery projects are popular in the art department, which boasts a kiln. Janet Ingwersen is completing a fat pot in time for Christmas. Thornton's sunny library is a popular meeting spot. Ruby Cashion and Gloria Rogers, left and center, are serving as librarians in the picture at the far right, and Jim McPherrin is a happy patron. [TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

SUBURBANITE COMES TO TOWN.

From time to time I have noted letters suggesting that suburbanites who make their living in Chicago should move into the city and try to build it up. They should try to give to it rather than to criticize it and then take from it. Well, I used to be a suburbanite, and now I've come to town. And what do I get for it?

First, I exchange a seat and plenty of leg room on a suburban train for the privilege of standing, crowding, pushing, shoving, swinging, and swaying on your buses, "L's," and street cars. It takes me just as long to get to work as it did when I lived 20 miles farther away.

I used to rent a garage for $3 a month. Now the family car stands out in the street. I've a nice apartment but it costs more than its counterpart in the country. I thought I'd like to enjoy city opportunities I'd heard about. A trip to the theater in the evening now, however, means standing all the way home on the "L" or driving and paying parking fees. No more after-show express service. Well, I'm here in town and I'm willing to do my share, but when I read letters suggesting that suburbanites support the city I feel like suggesting that here's one who supports this town by the busload. Some mornings I get to work thinking that I've been leaned on by the entire city of Chicago. JOSEPHINA.

DEFENDS PARKING.

I would like to tell "Hyde Parker" that he is fortunate in being able to afford the luxury of a garage and is able to rent one within a reasonable distance of his home. There are, however, a host of law abiding motorists who, for one reason or another, park their cars over night on the streets. Has it ever occurred to you that for some of us owning a car is not a luxury but a necessary evil, for business purposes.

Also there are some neighborhoods with a scarcity of garages where keeping one's car in a garage means a walk of half a mile or so. One of the advantages of having a car is being able to get out at one's door on a cold or rainy night.

As long as a motorist obeys the law, i. e., does not park by a fire plug, in an alley, or block a cross-walk, it ought to be all right with you for him to park on the street if he desires. W. A. H.

WHY NO TRAFFIC LIGHTS?

Our community has been somewhat unfortunate in attaining stop and go lights in cross-sections where there is a need for them much more than in any other community in Chicago. The alderman has recommended to the council and the council has passed an order that stop and go lights be placed in these intersections. But to this day nothing has been done.

The following are the cross-sections we are recommending for stop and go lights: 85th street and Burley avenue, 83d street and Exchange avenue, and 83d street on Baker and Houston avenue.

NEEDY FAMILIES TO BENEFIT BY JUNIOR PARTIES

Two junior woman's clubs of the Second District of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs will hold Christmas parties for the benefit of needy families in the community this week. The Windsor Park group will hold its party Wednesday and the Chesterfield Junior club will meet on Thursday.

The former organization's members will bring gifts of food and toys to the home of Miss Rose Thomason, 7639 Luella avenue. Instead of the usual grab bag, the girls will hang presents on a Christmas tree which they will decorate. Members also will help the Frances Juvenile Home enjoy a happy holiday season. Miss Doris Hess, 7633 Luella avenue, chairman of the committee in charge of Christmas philanthropy and Miss Thomason, Miss Ruth Hafford, 7641 Luella avenue, and Miss Shirley Ozmente, 7427 Colfax avenue, are her assistants.

"Joy to the World" will be the title of the Chesterfield Junior meeting Thursday evening at the home of Miss Lillian Dyksma, 8240 Clyde avenue. The session is intended to round up a variety of useful presents which will be given to poor families in the district, together with baskets of food.

The regular meeting of the Woodshore Juniors will take place at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the home of Miss Grace Salisbury, 5528 Kenwood avenue, program chairman. A guest speaker has been scheduled for a talk on narcotics. Following the meeting a scrapbook contest will be judged.

The first ways and means project of the newly formed club will be held at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Spring Allen, 6506 University avenue, president of the club, Friday evening. Miss Kathryn Ninemires, social chairman, has charge of arrangements.

U. OF C. DEPICTS MAN'S PROGRESS THRU CENTURIES

South Side Halls Hold 25 Exhibits.

Fifty years of scientific and educational achievement—from an eight million dollar atom smasher in action to rare first editions of Bible translations—are on display at the University of Chicago for the benefit of the public.

Prepared in connection with the university's 50th anniversary celebration, the progress of man is depicted in 25 exhibits now completed on the Quadrangles and open for free inspection. The anniversary theme emphasizes "New Frontiers in Education and Research."

Inspection of the cyclotron, or atom smasher, may be made by arrangement in advance. Individuals or club groups should contact the university information office, 5750 Ellis avenue.

Bible Translations.

Five hundred years of Bible translations are shown in an exhibit at Swift hall, which is open on weekdays from 11 o'clock until noon and from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Swift hall also contains copies of catacomb frescoes, mosaics, illuminations, ivories, and ikons illustrating early Christian and Byzantine art. The university has set up a free guide service for individuals or club groups. Other exhibits are as follows:

1. A six inch refractor telescope thru which visitors may look at the stars on clear nights. The telescope is one of two in the observatory atop Ryerson physical laboratory and is available from 7 until 9 o'clock Wednesday evenings. University astronomers will explain the instrument for visitors.

Women's "Make-up" Old.

2. Jewelry and women's "make-up" as it was used thousands of years ago are on view in the Oriental Institute, 1155 East 58th street. Displays showing results of archaeological research will be changed monthly, and are open from 1 to 5 o'clock weekdays, 10 to 5 o'clock Saturdays, and 11 to 5 o'clock Sundays.

3. A series of exhibits in the art department galleries demonstrating aspects of modern art arranged by the Renaissance society and the department of art. They are open daily except Sunday from 9 o'clock until noon and from 2 until 5 o'clock.

4. An opportunity to hear famous poets of past and present read their works on phonograph records in Wieboldt hall. The readings may be heard on alternate Friday afternoons. In addition, more than 2,000 volumes collected by the late Harriet Monroe, founder and editor of Poetry magazine, together with her correspondence with leading poets of the time, are on exhibition daily from 1 until 5 o'clock and on Saturdays from 1 until 9 o'clock.

Reduces Library Space.

5. A revolutionary method of duplicating perishable printed matter, reproducing copy and reducing a library to a few cubic feet, in an exhibit of microphotography in the first floor corridor of Harper library, 1116 East 59th street. This is open daily except Sunday from 8 o'clock in the morning to 9 o'clock in the evening.

6. Apparatus for detecting and correcting bad habits in reading, the result of 25 years of laboratory research in reading habits, available for showing by arrangement.

7. Modern military maps in Rosenwald hall. The University's collection of 110,000 map sheets is the largest owned by any American educational institution. Daily except Sunday they are on display all day.

8. One of the country's outstanding Lincoln collections, including original portraits, manuscripts, and photographs in Harper library.

Meet the Prof

Meet "Professor" Dick Williams of East Chicago, a child pundit who has made several appearances on the "Quiz Kids" radio program. Dick, who is 10 years old, has a mind for mathematics, geography, spelling, reading, and music.

Mercy Forum Today.

The Rev. James A. Magner of Washington, D. C., will present "Mexico Today" as the third lecture in the Mercy Federation forum series this afternoon in the auditorium at 81st street and Prairie avenue.

INDIAN WELFARE GROUP TO HOLD YULETIDE PARTY

Federation Women Are to Meet This Evening.

The annual Christmas party of the Indian welfare department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs will take place at 5:30 o'clock this evening at federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. Otis A. Rosboro, 7241 Princeton avenue, 2d district chairman of Indian welfare, will be one of the hostesses. Guests will be department delegates, members of the federation board, and Santa Claus.

The department's scholarship fund provides training for four nurses at a time. Indian girls are chosen for their scholastic rating and interest in serving their people.

The second in the series of four programs on the study of the "Culture of Latin America" sponsored by the literature and library service department under the direction of Mrs. George W. Davison, 8824 South Wabash avenue, will be given at 1:30 o'clock Friday at federation headquarters.

Chesterfield Womans' Club.

The annual Christmas party will be held Tuesday in the Tuley Park fieldhouse. Highlights of the party will be a program entitled "Magic Strings" by Miss Esther Cheatle, member of the Puppeteers of America. Among the characters will be Jumbo, the elephant; Dancing Sambo, the rubber man; Judy, the "world's smallest whiz on roller skates," and Cherry, the "bum with the bang-up surprise."

Mrs. Ernest J. Sweeney, 415 East 91st street, chairman of the public welfare department, is in charge. She has asked all members to bring a glass of jelly, a toy, and a silver offering for the public welfare cheer bag. The jelly will be sent to the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children and other gifts will go to the Burnside settlement.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Harry V. Carlson, Mrs. Lawrence J. Dailey, Mrs. John Schwass, Mrs. Howard Saager, Mrs. Elwood Hayes, Mrs. Ralph Hedges, Mrs. August Ulrich, and Mrs. Bernard J. Allard.

Hyde Park Mothers' Club.

Members and guests will tour the Frances Juvenile home Tuesday afternoon. A program will be given by the girls of the home under the leadership of Miss Celia Ferguson, superintendent of the home. Mrs. D. M. Timberlake, president, will present each girl with a box of candy, fruit, and handkerchiefs from club members.

Park Manor Woman's Club.

Tuesday will be federation day. Miss Ruth Hardshaw will talk on "Book Menus" and the radio and music chairmen will present Irma Glenn at the organ and Lawrence Salerno, baritone. Mrs. J. B. Simson, president of the 2d district, will be special guest.

South Shore Woman's Club.

"Romance of the Book" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. J. S. McLaughlin at the meeting Wednesday. Mrs. Corinne Runyan will conduct Christmas carols, which will be followed by a party for members and their families. Mrs. William Brady, Miss Orma Hay, Miss Elizabeth Miller, and Mrs. Charles Schaeffer, are in charge of arrangements.

Wooldawn Woman's Club.

Mrs. Charles C. Whittier, president of the club, will entertain officers and board members with a Christmas party at her home, 6025 University avenue, Tuesday.

South Bryn Mawr.

The Wednesday club's Christmas party will be held at the Calvary Baptist church on Wednesday afternoon. The program, to be presented by the past president's club, will include the reading of excerpts from Poe's "Gold Bug" and an exhibition of the Cole and Annal marionettes. Mrs. R. F. Lavette will be the hostess at the 1 o'clock luncheon. Special guests at the party will be members of the South Bryn Mawr Junior auxiliary.

Woodlawn Mothers.

Children and grandchildren of Round Table members will be guests at the annual party at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, 6400 Kimbark avenue. The children will supply the entertainment and receive candy and ice cream. They also will donate staples and canned goods to a pantry shower for the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children. Mrs. William Thompson, 819 East 50th street, has charge of the shower.

Woodlawn Study Club.

Mrs. Deanna Sheridan will entertain members with an illustrated lecture, "Views of the Madonna," at the holiday meeting at the Plaisance hotel tomorrow. A Christmas story will be told by Mrs. Margaret Jory and club members will contribute to a gift shower for the Sarah Hackett Stevenson home.

Woodshore Woman'sClub.

Christmas foliage and gleaming candles will form a back ground for past presidents of the club when they extend holiday greetings to members of the organization after the meeting Tuesday evening in the Plaisance hotel. Mrs. Miles Lamphier, president, will head the receiving line which will include Mrs. William Holton, Mrs. Robert Keith, Mrs. Gordon Holland, Mrs. Albert Brown, Mrs. Hugo Cordick, and Miss Ethelyn Ahern.

THORNTON HIGH INSTILLS PRIDE IN ACHIEVEMENT

Students Will Be Heard on W-G-N Tuesday.

first; he was followed by L. W. Smith, and Mr. Mcey came in 1919.

Veteran School Trustees.

A report from the state high school inspectors, after their visit last spring, rates Thornton as "one of the outstanding high schools in the United States." Mr. McVey believes much of the credit for this rating is attributable to a continuity of policy resulting from the continuity of the school board.

Three members have been serving for approximately 30 years each. They are A. H. McDougall, president of the board and vice president of the Whiting corporation; G. H. Gibson, vice president of the board and president of the Chicago Steel Car company before his retirement from business, and Charles E. Waterman, president of the Bank of South Holland. Other board members are W. H. Brandt, Harvey business man, and Walter Haines, township collector.

1,000 Boys in Shop Courses.

Thornton's plant and facilities are valued at $1,000,000. At least $25,000 of this amount is represented in the array of machines in the shops. Shop courses are popular, since there are 35 industries in the area, including the Buda Motor company, makers of Diesel engines for planes and tanks; the Wyman-Gordon plant, makers of crankshafts; the Whiting corporation, American Stove company, and Bliss & Laughlin company. The shops include instruction in machine work, pattern work, pattern making, automobile mechanics, electric welding, and drafting. Boys are given an orientation course in their first year and then choose what interests them most.

Boys from the Thornton machine shop went into jobs in local industries thruout the depression. The electric welding course was added five years ago in answer to demand of the industries. Boys may take a four year shop course at the school. Approximately 1,000 boys are working in the Thornton vocational courses.

The commercial department is also popular and offers an extensive course. There are from 900 to 1,000 students enrolled in business subjects.

35 Per Cent to College.

Approximately 35 per cent of T. T. H. S. graduates go on to college, and their success in schools thruout the country demonstrates the thoroness of Thornton preparatory courses.

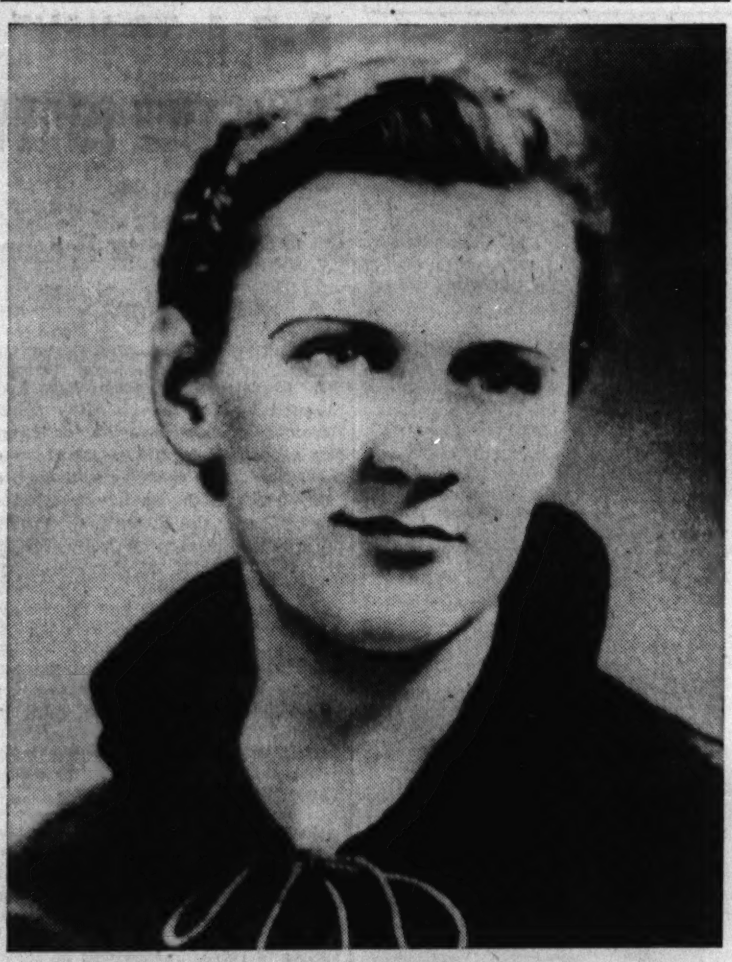
Big news at any time is Thornton's employment bureau. Its big job is finding graduates to fill the requests.

Naturally, such a large school is active in athletics. The trophy case is filled with emblems of victories in district, suburban, sectional, and state contests. Among Thornton's alumni athletic stars are Betty Robinson, Olympic sprinter; Marion Mansfield, diving champion; Joseph Beinor,, Notre Dame football player and All American captain, and Louis Boudreau, a member of the Cleveland Indians. Coach Jack Lipe is director of Thornton's physical education.

At Thornton all students are included in the school's two clubs, called simply the Boys' club and the Girls' club.

There are 100 teachers on the staff. D. C. Allen, who joined the faculty in 1911, is the senior member. He directed the school band and headed the chemistry department until he became seriously ill two months ago. James L. Beck is dean of the junior college.

Will Be February Bride



Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy M. Mann, 8222 Kimbark avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Margaret, to Gilbert F. Madsen, son of Mrs. Astrie Madsen, 7312 Dante avenue. The wedding is scheduled for Feb. 8.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 16.

It is poinsettia time and home gardeners will attempt to carry the plants over winter, but it is much better to discard the old plants. They must be allowed to rest during winter, after flowering, and started into growth in the spring. They require a condition that is free from sudden changes or the foliage will drop. The plants can be cut back, potted, and plunged to the rim after late May, kept watered, fed, and shifted until fall. They are removed early to the house and given all the light possible.

Tuesday, Dec. 17.

On mild days when the ground can be worked, fall trenching can be undertaken. Instead of spading the ground in the usual way throw out a furrow one spading across the plot. Then go over the same spading again, thoroly breaking the lower soil, but leaving it where it was. Throw the next strip of top soil on this and pulverize the strip of soil beneath it. A layer of manure spread over the surface before starting operations will add additional food to the soil.

Wednesday, Dec. 18.

Garden friends will appreciate gifts they can use in gardening operations; tools of all kinds, bulbous plants, wearing apparel, books, etc.

Not all bulbs are available at this date, but the amaryllis, yellow and white callas, and some narcissi may be obtained. Flowering pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, begonias, and plants of special value for their foliage may be obtained.

Thursday, Dec. 19.

Cover pansies and English daisies with straw or leaves and keep the cover in place with a few branches or boards. The long popular geranium is said to be losing popularity but there is no more pleasing plant that can be grown in the window.

Keep in comparatively small pots and in a window that has full sun.

Friday, Dec. 20.

It is not too late to mulch the strawberry bed. Cover with straw or draw strawy manure up to and around the plants, if they are planted in hills; if in densely matted rows, use straw. It will not pack too heavily and injure the plants.

Saturday, Dec. 21.

Keep pans of water on the radiator or attach a humidifier to it to increase humidity in the room. Beneficial to both plants and human beings. On cold nights, place newspapers against the window where plants are standing to keep out cold drafts. Apply a bit of plant food to plants in bud or while flowering.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

CHURCH SENIOR CHOIR PLANS TO SING CANTATA

The senior choir of Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran church, 103d street and Bensley avenue, will sing the Christmas cantata, "Immanuel," next Sunday evening in the church. The choir will be directed by Albert H. Falke, with Victor Mattfeld at the organ and Mrs. Otto Herbener at the piano.

The Lutheran Welfare society again will arrange a special Christmas service at the Cook county infirmary in Oak Forest for Thursday afternoon, Dec. 26. Children of the Zion Lutheran school in Roseland will give the "Christmas Story," while the Christmas anthems will be sung by the choir of Hope church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue.

A feature of Loop Lutheran vespers during the holidays will be the singing of carols with organ accompaniment. The vespers are held every Sunday afternoon at 82 West Washington street.

Three South Side Schools to Receive Lawn Awards

Twenty-one public and parochial schools will receive awards Tuesday for scoring in the sixth annual "Save the Lawn" campaign conducted by the park district. The ceremony will take place at Schurz High school. South side schools which will receive honorable mention are the Oakenwald, Dixon, and Curtis branch elementary schools.

School Choir Concert.

The Parker High school a cappella choir of 90 voices will sing at the Englewood Methodist church, Stewart avenue at West 64th street, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Clyde Matson is the director.

Alumnae to Meet.

Outing Club Hike.

The Park District Outing club will hike thru the original Indian reservation territory near the Des Plaines river, formerly known as the Chechu-pin-qua woods, today.

SOUTH SIDERS PLAN VACATIONS BASKING IN SUN

Planes, Trains, Autos to Transport Them.

spend the holidays skiing in the vicinity of Ironwood, Mich. They will be accompanied by Dr. Julius I. Steinfeld, psychiatrist in charge of the Forest sanitarium in Des Plaines. The three will make the trip via the North Western railroad, leaving about Dec. 21 and returning early next month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Blatt, 2915 East 78th street, will have a winter's vacation in both the north and the south. They will go by automobile to Detroit and from there will fly to Florida.

Plan to Drive.

Gerald E. Cole of Hyde Park will leave for Miami Sunday with his wife, who has never been there before. He has. They will stay a few weeks, chiefly passing the time in resting. It will be a combination business and pleasure trip. They'll drive.

Mrs. Vera Jessison, 7746 Phillips avenue, will spend two days visiting her sister and mother in Des Moines, Ia. She will fly out for two days to spend the holidays with them.

Miss Louise Umphrey, 6210 Kimbark avenue, will fly by T. W. A. for a visit with her family in Kansas City on Christmas day. Miss Umphrey is an accountant and controller with the A. B. Dick company.

Will Note Change.

Miss Marie Van Hoek, 7519 Coles avenue, made a short trip 13 years ago in an open plane. In a few days she hopes to witness first hand the change in air travel when she flies via United Air Lines to Moline, where she will spend the Christmas holidays with her parents. She is planning to return to Chicago on Christmas night.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan J. Cohen, 5134 Ingleside avenue, are leaving Tuesday morning on the Dixie Flagler for Miami Beach, Fla. It will be their first winter in Florida, having previously gone to Los Angeles to escape the cold weather. They expect to stay until May.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Schenker and daughter Shirley, 5000 Cornell avenue, are leaving Tuesday morning for a stay over the holidays in Miami Beach, Fla. It will be Miss Shirley's first visit in Florida. The Cohens and the Schenkers will be riding on the Flagler on its inaugural run.

Going to Hawaii.

Surfboarding and basking in the sun will keep Miss Leona Biller, 7630 Coles avenue, busy during her month vacation from work with the telephone company, which begins next week. She will go to Waikiki beach, in the Hawaiian Islands, and will also call on the volcanoes on the separate island of Hawaii. This is the first time she will have been to these islands, but for the last few years she has taken cruises this time of year to Panama, Central America, Bermuda, and the West Indies.

The racetrack at Agua Caliente, Mexico, will see a good deal of Miss Patricia Uniek, 3037 West 40th place, during her vacation from the telephone company, she says. She went to Los Angeles last spring by train, and liked it so much that this year she is taking her mother, Mrs. Hedwig Uniek, and her brother, John, out by automobile. They will leave next week.

Catholic University Club Will Have Mexican Fiesta

A Mexican fiesta will be the highlight of the meeting of the Chicago Catholic University club this afternoon at the Midland hotel. A lecture by an authority on Mexico and dances and songs by Mexicans will be offered. Assisting in the arrangements are James Brand and Thomas Poynton, 10211 Prospect avenue.

Helping with College Dance

[Feala Photo.]

Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Jay H. Brown, 6144 Ingleside avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Beryl Louise, to H. Warren Wehlau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehlau, 7015 Chappel avenue. Miss Brown is a graduate of the Starrett School for Girls and Mr. Wehlau is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Loretto Academy Alumnae Plan Christmas Carnival

Loretto [Woodlawn] academy alumnae will give their annual Christmas carnival Wednesday and Thursday evening in the academy hall at 1447 East 65th street. Miss Irene Stockman, 7828 Oglesby avenue, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

NAVAL RESERVE FIRST CLASS IS COMMISSIONED

The first class of the new Naval Reserve Midshipmen school on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university, numbering 332 men, was graduated recently, and in their ranks were 12 men from the Chicago area.

The graduates receive commissions as ensigns in the naval reserve, and the majority of them will report for active duty after a short Christmas leave.

Retired Pastor to Address Club of University Church

Dr. Herbert L. Willett, recently retired pastor of the Hinsdale Disciples church and first minister of the University Church of the Disciples of Christ, will deliver the principal address at the annual Christmas program of the Woman's Club of the University Church Tuesday afternoon. The session will take place in the church's Chapel of the Holy Grail.

AID CAMPAIGN OF B'NAI B'RITH FOR NEW NAMES

South Siders in Drive to Gain 7,500.

Three south siders are helping to direct the membership drive launched by the Chicago B'nai B'rith council to fill its part of the quota of 7,500 new names before the organization's international triennial convention schedule for Chicago in March. They are Samuel Reader, 4746½ Woodlawn avenue, Chicago lodge; David Borowitz, 6858 South Chappel avenue, Jackson Park lodge, and Sidney Hess, 1300 East Hyde Park boulevard, South Side lodge. The council is composed of 15 lodges, headed by Herbert J. Nickelson, 4755 Drexel boulevard.

Herbert Nickelson.

This will be the first time in 40 years that the international meeting is held in Chicago, Mr. Nickelson said. The organization, which is almost 100 years old, is the largest and oldest Jewish service and fraternal group in the world.

Tho the B'nai B'rith is still operating in Germany and Italy in welfare work, according to Mr. Nickelson, delegates from these countries are not expected to attend the convention. Representatives will come from 32 other countries, however.

The South Side Hebrew congregation will celebrate the climax of its successful membership drive with a free dance this evening in the social hall at 74th street and Chappel avenue. The social committee which is in charge includes Victor Reifman, 7720 Oglesby avenue, chairman; Marion Bressner, 7017 Clyde avenue; Louis Wolfe, 8452 Buffalo avenue; Herman Seckbach, 1450 East 67th street, and Marjorie Abramson, 7221 Jefferson avenue.

The south unit of the Chicago Mothers of Young Judæa will hold its next meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Louis Silberman, 8141 South Evans avenue.

The Brotherhood of Temple Isaiah Israel will hold its annual fathers, sons, and daughters banquet Wednesday evening at Hotel Windermere West. The program will consist of a movie travelogue by the United Air-lines, community singing led by Robert Spiro, talks by Barney Ross, and other sports figures, and the finals of a stunt contest in which sons and daughters will participate.

The women's division of the Jewish community center of Hyde Park will hold its monthly meeting at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the East End Park hotel.

Rabbi Benjamin A. Daskal will deliver a talk entitled "Believe It or Not" at the meeting of the Rodfei Zedek sisterhood tomorrow noon. A dessert luncheon will be served.

YALE DEAN EMERITUS TO GIVE 28TH TALK AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

For his 28th appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean emeritus of Yale university divinity school, has chosen the topic "The Deeper Insight." He will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes, who will preside at the meeting, and William E. Goodman, vice president of the club, will read the scripture.

Dr. Charles R. Brown.

For 17 years Dr. Brown was pastor of First Congregational church in Oakland, Cal., and for 40 years has been delivering sermons to students of theology. But he is a preacher who talks like a layman, consequently he enjoys a large following among business men who appreciate his forthright utterances on current affairs.

At the preliminary service the audience will join in singing Christmas carols and familiar gospel songs. The guest soloist will be Vincent Ahnquist, boy soprano. Hudson H. Pittman will continue his informal Bible talk on the didactic aspects of the Sermon on the Mount.

Bel-Fun Club of Phone Workers to Have Dance

Members of the Bel-Fun club, an organization of employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company will hold a dance at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street, on Friday evening. There are 95 members. Each month the club gives a party according to what the weather indicates, from a sleigh ride in February to a moonlight cruise in June. Officers are Don Daniels, president; Eileen Mathieu, recording secretary; Douglas Orwig, treasurer; Lois Miller, corresponding secretary, and Harry Carlson, sergeant at arms.

Y. W. C. A. UNITS OFFER PARTIES IN YULE SPIRIT

Plans for parties which will be spiced with an ancient Yuletide flavor were made recently by three south side Y. W. C. A. centers. Two of the parties will be held this week.

Eighty girls who live at the Carrie McGill Memorial "Y," 4938 Drexel boulevard, will join in a candle-lighting ceremony and Christmas tree trimming Wednesday evening. A great log fire will be lighted in the reception room of the old mansion.

The house council in charge of arrangements includes Margaret Ives, Virginia Jones, Nell Schellinger, Anne Perhac, Barbara Skrad, and Helen Lundborg. Music will be under the supervision of Mrs. Salome Cherry, Ruth Oltman, and Laura Moorebach.

Another Wednesday Party.

The annual party sponsored by the South Side "Y" center, 1230 East 63d street, also will take place Wednesday evening.

Miss Ethel Koehler, staff director, and the health education council, are in charge of arrangements. Members are Mrs. Ethel Cross, 6210 Kimbark avenue; Miss Juanita Dillner, 6228 University avenue, and Mrs. Bruno Movrich, 5755 Trumbull avenue. Mrs. Samuel Moore, 1533 East 66th street, will be in charge of music.

The eighth annual all-association luncheon and tea of the South Park way branch, 4559 South Park way, will take place Friday, Dec. 27, it has been announced by Mrs. Ruth Moore Smith, general secretary. All volunteer leaders in the city will be guests.

Will Be Special Guest.

Special guest will be Mrs. Ulysses S. Keys, the center's new chairman, and the chairman of the arrangements committee will be Mrs. Louis B. Anderson.

South side high school girls who will take an active part in the loop center festivities on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 21, include Ruth Fey, president of the interclub council of the Girl Reserves, junior "Y" members; Shirley Barnes, 1142 East 65th street; Erika Gosser, 5466 University avenue; Ann Kirksey, 4822 St. Lawrence avenue; Norma Day, 5715 Calumet avenue; Patricia Parker, 6339 Champlain avenue, and Roberta Braxton, 4551 Forrestville avenue. Council members will appear in a four-act skit, "Life Begins At Interclub."

Business girls from the south side who are helping to plan the Christmas party of the El Dienon club at the loop center are Betty Amster, Sylvia Buchinski, and Mary Lou Giuffee.

U. OF C. TO GIVE DEGREES TO 220 AT CONVOCATION

South Side Students on Favored List.

Two hundred twenty candidates will receive degrees at the 202d convocation of the University of Chicago Tuesday afternoon in Rockefeller Memorial chapel. The degrees will be conferred by President Robert M. Hutchins.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, physicist at the California Institute of Technology, will deliver the principal address. He will take his subject from the motto of the university—"Let Knowledge Grow, Let Life Be Enriched." Dr. Millikan was a member of the University of Chicago faculty from 1895 to 1921.

Under the quarterly system the winter convocation is the first in the academic year and thus the first convocation of the 50th anniversary year.

Fifty Bachelors.

Fifty candidates will receive the bachelor's degree, 103 the master's degree, and seven the degree of doctor of medicine. Forty-six will become doctors of philosophy, 11 will become masters of business administration, and three will receive the degree of doctor of jurisprudence.

The following south siders will receive degrees:

Doctors of philosophy—Merle Boyer, Lincoln Clark, Bertha Davison, Frederick Dunn, Esther Heelzel, Winthrop Hudson, William Karraker, Norman Maclean, Leonard Lievermann, Sidney Mead, Leonard Miller, Theodore Puck, Jerome Sachs, and Alexander Spoehr.

Doctors of Medicine—Nelson Bolyard, Clarence Hedges.

Doctors of law—Hope Hooe, Herta Prager.

Degrees for Others.

Masters of business administration—Joseph Pracht, Albert Siegel, and John Worcester.

Bachelors of art, science, or philosophy—Annette Axelrad, Bettina Backall, Emma Chalfant, Leon Cook Jr., Charlotte Cooper, Barbara Crane, Joffre Heineck, Elizabeth Kessler, Ethel King, Thaddeus Kukula, Richard Longini, Johncie Lucas, Walter Nagler, Edgar Oehler, Robert Perry, Mildred Reeby, Emily Scherer, Josephine Schneider, Paula Sorg, Fred Vaalsw, and Elise Young.

NEEDY OF SOUTH SIDE TO RECEIVE YULE BASKETS

A number of south side groups are coöperating in playing Santa Claus to needy neighborhood residents, five south side offices of the United Charities report. Gifts and money are being brought to the offices at 50 West 111th street, 6431 Dante avenue, 734 West 47th street, 9145 Houston avenue, and 2959 South Michigan avenue.

Baskets for needy families have been prepared by P.-T. A. organizations from the Scott, Bennett and Wadsworth schools and by Hi-Y groups in Roseland and Beverly Hills. The Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. is giving toys and the infant class of St. Paul's Episcopal church is conducting a "little shoes for little feet" drive.

Other organizations helping with contributions are the Bryn Mawr Community church, the Christ Episcopal church, the United Presbyterian church, Theta Beta Delta sorority, Lindblom High school students, and Girl Scouts and Brownie groups in the stock yards area.

Arranging Party

Miss Edwina Kappes, 7839 Saginaw avenue, program chairman of the Windsor Park Junior Woman's club, is helping to make arrangements for the annual formal dinner-dance to be given by the club in the Bismarck hotel on Dec. 27.

HOLIDAY PARTIES WILL BE GIVEN IN MADDEN PARK

Children and Adults to Take Part.

Beginning Thursday the children and adults of Madden park, 3800 Rhodes avenue, will stage a series of Christmas parties under the sponsorship of the park district. They will continue until Dec. 30.

The children of the toy-lending center will start the schedule Thursday with the presentation of a play entitled "The Wondrous Story." Taking part will be Juanita Rhone, Louis Dyer, Rosa Lee Van Horn, Juanita White, LeMarr Barnett, Helen Evans, May Soney, Almeta White, and Dorothy Hubbard. Mrs. Beatrice Sims is director, assisted by Miss Cornelia James.

Will Distribute Gifts.

On Friday the social sewing club will give a party that will include dramatic readings, solos and the singing of carols.

The artcraft club, under the direction of Miss June Gannaway, will present parents and staff members with gifts and cards they have made in the shop, at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. That evening the girls of the intermediate and senior gym classes will give a Christmas opereta.

Dances and Songs.

Another feature of the evening will be community singing of Christmas songs and a presentation of dances and drills by the junior girls.

On Tuesday morning the play school children and their mothers will have a party under the direction of Miss Frankie Fleming and in the afternoon the annual party for all the children in the community will take place.

The Juvenile Court Foster Mothers' club will give a children's party on Thursday, Dec. 26, and the management of the Park theater will give a matinée party for children on Friday, Dec. 27. There will be a party for mothers and children on Monday afternoon, Dec. 30, given by the Madden Park Better Housewives club.

NEW ENGINEER DEFENSE STUDY TO START JAN. 6

Registration is now being taken for the engineering defense training program to open at the Illinois Institute of Technology on Jan. 6. Official registration days will be Jan. 2 to 4, inclusive. Present plans include 16 subjects which will be given by the institute for the Chicago and northern Indiana industrial areas. The courses, given in evening classes, are tuition-free and on college level.

Among subjects to be offered are: tools and testing equipment, tool and fixture design, drafting and elementary design, strength of materials and steel design, machine design, design of bombproof shelters, Diesel engines, and metallurgy.

Not Trade Courses.

The courses will last 15 weeks and will include two three-hour class periods each week. Any one with basic engineering training or who holds an engineering degree is eligible to enter the courses. A basic technical training may be considered adequate in some cases. An individual's ability to handle the work taught will be the principal requirement for registration.

H. T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology [the merged Armour institute and Lewis institute], announced the part the school would take in the national defense program in publicizing the registration days.

For Specific Jobs.

Prof. J. B. Finnegan, the institute's engineering defense training director, says, "the objective of these defense courses is to provide educational training upon a college level to meet the shortage of engineers with specialized training in fields essential to the national defense industrial program. Completion of a specific course will qualify the trainee for immediate entrance to industry for a specific defense job. The institute does not guarantee employment, however.

Plan to have your next party here—private rooms available

"Don't tell daddy!

Mama had to have the car towed home again!"

Can you trust your car to carry your family in safety thru another winter? If there is the slightest doubt in your mind it will pay you to consider trading your car in on a late model. For a large selection of late models, consult the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section. You can have your choice of all popular makes and models at a wide range of prices and terms. Your old car may be the only down payment required to make you the owner of a safe, dependable car.

"FUNNY, ISN'T IT? How much more important you feel when you own your own home."

When you buy a home, you get more than just a place to live. You win the respect and admiration of other up-and-coming families in your community.

To find a home which offers the things you want in point of construction, number of rooms, location, price and terms, follow the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section. With the Tribune as your guide you make sure of overlooking no worthwhile value because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined.

"I'm making money now!

Being my own boss has given me new ambition!"

Have you been thinking of buying a business of your own? It needn't be a big one. It is often better to be the boss of a small business than a cog in the machinery of a big one. To make the best selection of the opportunities available, follow the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section—Chicago's largest market for worthwhile offers of businesses for sale.

"NO MORE BUSINESS FROM US, FRED!

You haven't the facilities for handling these orders."

Are your salesmen handicapped by conditions in your shop or factory? If lack of equipment is costing you orders and bigger profits, watch the Machinery and Equipment column in the Tribune want ad section. Look over your plant today for places where more machinery would help speed production and profits. Then follow the Machinery and Equipment column for money-saving offers.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

WHY NOT A YULE GIFT THIS YEAR FOR BATHROOM?

Fixtures and Accessories Improve Living.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

However one feels on problems national and international, on politics and philosophy, ethics, and religion, there's unanimity of agreement on the fact that when we say "Merry Christmas" to some room in our house and give it an enduring present or two, we've succeeded at the same time in giving our own spirits quite a lift.

We're not breathing a word against holiday wreaths and candles all beribboned, and the dash and go of blown glass balls at the window and real jingling bells at the door. They are all jolly ways of shouting Merry Christmas to those who pass our homes, and to those who come inside. But if on the spur of some inspired moment we add something else besides, an enduring gift for the house from the whole household, perhaps, we've seen to it that our Christmas will remain with us long after the calendar date has passed.

Bathrooms sparkle the holiday spirit and there are gifts galore to give them.

Bathroom Now Up to Date.

Last January Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clark, 412 Greenwood, Evanston, modernized their bathroom. It was in no need of drastic change, since the fixtures were sound, the decorations good, the fittings and accessories in fit shape to continue functioning for family comfort for some time to come. But in the light of what's new in bathroom planning and finishing the existing room seemed dated and in need of modernization.

This was done; beautifully done, with careful attention paid to the hundred and one details which go to make up a properly renovated bath. Now it's fresh and festive and sparkling for the holidays, tho the work was done some time ago.

Problems encountered in each bathroom differ, but certain fundamental improvements are usually in order.

Brown and Yellow Floor.

In this instance new fixtures for old were installed. A built-in tub with overhead shower, new closet, a new lavatory with mirrored medicine cabinet over it, and an intriguing recess in the wall for toilet accessories. The radiator disappeared from under the window and a fine rubber flooring, in rich brown tones with yellow stripes was laid. The wainscot is a marbleized pattern, an attractive lemon yellow, with the upper walls papered. This paper has a silver background and white morning glories flecked with yellow are a part of its pattern. The bathroom fixtures are chrome.

One may not be ready to celebrate the holidays with plans or a check for an entire new bath or kitchen, but there are smaller ways of giving these rooms a merry yuletide remembrance.

Tank Shelf Cover.

Bathroom scales were never so good looking, with magnifying lens, perhaps, if some family member is short sighted; or a chrome finished closet tank shelf cover with nice safeguard rail, for extra shelf space and protection against bottles that sometimes tumble off the back of a closet tank; or new lavatory faucets in case the old ones are losing their finish and acquiring the dripping habit. For the kitchen a modern single swinging faucet would be a pleasant gift.

Of course a new sink would be a grand present, but so would a shower in the basement for the children. It need not cost much. Rough nickel plated showers will take a lot of tough usage from youthful basement athletes.

Plan Card Party.

Siena Mothers' club will give a luncheon and card party at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Better Homemaking institute, 111 West Jackson boulevard. Mrs. John Koutnick and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons are chairmen.

MUNDELEIN GLEE CLUB WILL SING BUCK'S CANTATA

Dudley Buck's cantata, "The Coming of the King," will be a feature of the annual Christmas program, "Under the Stars," to be presented by Mundelein college students at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the college theater.

The Glee club, directed by Prof. Otto Singenberger, will sing the cantata. Soloists will include Maude Shufiltowski, Betty Lou Deppen, Mildred Martinez, Geraldine Koppa, Patricia Herbert, Marion Jacobs, Shirley Hopper, and Rita Callaghan. Before the cantata the Glee club will offer carols, closing with a "Gate of Heaven" tableau in which Alice Guest will be the Madonna and Mary Jane Bresnehan, Frances Kane, and Bette Winte will be angels.

Rosalie Wiora and Angela Voller will play organ selections and the college orchestra, under the baton of Joseph J. Grill, will present the Gloria from the "Twelfth Mass," by Mozart, and "A Yuletide Fantasy," by Erne Rapee.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL TO OFFER FOUR LECTURES

Plans for four Sunday afternoon lectures in January as part of an annual study of trends and events were announced last week by the Evanston School of Foreign Affairs. The series will begin Sunday afternoon Jan. 5 and will be held in the First Methodist church of Evanston. Mrs. Eugene S. Lawler, 627 Library place in the suburb, is general chairman of the 1941 session. Members of the program committee include Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, Dr. Kenneth Colegrove, Miss Valborg Sinkler, Dr. T. W. Merriam, and B. G. Mattson Jr.

NEW SYMPHONY OF 55 MEMBERS TO MEET TUESDAY

Rogers Park's embryo symphony orchestra, which is to be organized officially Tuesday evening, has jumped from 35 to 55 players as a result of a story in last Sunday's Metropolitan section.

The orchestra now being formed by four Rogers Park music devotees had a nucleus of 35 musicians. After the story appeared H. Arnold Cohen, 6810 Sheridan road, received calls from 20 musical residents who volunteered to play in the orchestra.

Members will hold their first meeting Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the Rogers Park Baptist church, 1900 Greenleaf avenue, which they have rented as a rehearsal hall.

Plans are to be made for weekly rehearsals and officers will be elected. The orchestra is to be conducted by Sam Raphling, 1336 Estes avenue, young composer and concert pianist. In addition to Mr. Cohen, other founders include Curt Dreifuss, 2419 Fargo avenue; A. J. Strohm, 2124 Chase avenue, and Edward Zeisler, 4335 Kenmore avenue.

Parents May Attend Party If with Their Children

The usual sign, "Children admitted if accompanied by adults," is to be rewritten Saturday morning at the 49th ward's annual Christmas party at the Granada theater. The new version will read: "Adults admitted only if accompanied by children." The party is the sixth annual one sponsored by Ald. Frank Keenan.

WHEN you read the dispatches of Chicago Tribune correspondents located in Washington and thruout the world you get the facts, gathered first hand and written from the American viewpoint by trained reporters whose steadfast purpose is to get the truth.

CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Familiar Music to Feature W-G-N Program.

Songs by Marion Claire and a violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski will be the musical highlights of the opening broadcast of the Chicagoland concert hour to be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Light classical and familiar music will be presented on this new program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the concert hour. In so doing Col. McCormick will be renewing a custom he established last summer on the Sunday Symphonic hour. Henry Weber, who concluded his season's work yesterday as general director of the Chicago Opera company, will conduct the W-G-N orchestra.

The Chicagoland Concert hour replaces the Monday evening opera broadcasts which have been a musical highlight of the W-G-N schedule for the last five weeks.

Miss Claire's Songs.

Miss Claire, who sings the leading parts in W-G-N's Saturday night Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, will sing Musette's Waltz from "La Boheme," by Giacomo Puccini, for the first of her solos.

Wilkomirski will play "Romance," by Johann Svendsen, famed Scandinavian composer. Wilkomirski is concertmeister for the orchestra.

Orchestra's Selections.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra will open the program with a presentation of the "Gypsy Baron" overture by Johann Strauss, and also will play Manuel DeFalla's Dance Espagnole No. 1, and "Dances from Coppelia," by Delibes.

Chicagoland Concert programs will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary will be written by Cecil Smith of the Tribune music and drama department.

FROZEN TERROR IS CONQUERED BY PETER QUILL

A fantastic tale of a town in which the temperature inexplicably drops to 80 degrees below zero, disrupting communications, finally cutting the limited area off from the world will be told on the "Peter Quill" drama for today. This episode titled "The Frozen Terror" will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Informed of the town's plight, Peter Quill, wizard of the scientific laboratories, flies over the area with Gail Carson and Capt. Roger Dorn to investigate. As a preliminary measure Quill scatters coal dust on the frozen ground which absorbs warmth from the sun, relieving the intense cold.

Each Newscast Is 16 Hours of Hard Work for Carter

Each minute that Boake Carter is on the air in his thrice-weekly newscast is the result of more than an hour's off-the-air work by the commentator. Carter discoverd this recently when he checked on his preparation time and found he was putting in 16 hours for each of his 15 minute news broadcasts. Carter is heard on W-G-N and Mutual at 7:30 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays.

Christmas Spirit at W-G-N

W-G-N WISHING WELL FULFILLS DREAMS OF FANS

2,000 Tell Their Wishes Every Week.

Thruout the ages people have been making wishes, relying on such props as wishbones, new moons, white horses, and even the stars to make their dreams come true. Of late some 2,000 persons each week have been making known their special desires to the W-G-N Wishing Well program conducted by Mary Paxton.

Many have had their wishes come true and have now abandoned the other vehicles that are believed to help. The loop store sponsoring Miss Paxton's program each week receives an astonishing array of personal heart's desires.

Miss Paxton satisfies only those wishes which can be granted by dipping into the stocks of the store. Mink coats, sewing machines, draperies, mirrors, pajamas, and an evening dress "suitable for the Hawaiian Islands" are typical of the gifts sought by Chicagolanders every week.

"Some one wrote in the other morning," said Miss Paxton, "and asked for a week's profits of the store." She passed that one up. She had to turn down a request, too, for a chicken farm.

Wishes are asked to tell about their desires in a letter to Miss Paxton. They are also invited to describe these items adequately. Miss Paxton reads all the letters and decides which wish shall be granted.

The Wishing Well is aired at 8:45 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9 a. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

NEW F-M CALL LETTERS TO GIVE POSITION ON DIAL

Locations of Stations Also to Be Indicated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Letters and figures are to be combined in the call letters for the new frequency modulation [F-M] stations under a system announced last week by the federal communications commission. These call letters will be so united to tell listeners the position of the F-M station on the tuning dial; whether it is east or west of the Mississippi river, and in many instances the city, or general area where it is located.

F-M broadcasting is the new system which reduces static to a minimum and results in high fidelity reception. W-G-N, Inc. was granted a permit to begin construction of an F-M station last week. The new station was tentatively assigned to operate with a frequency [wave length] of 45.9 megacycles [45,900 kilocycles].

Not Ready for 4 Months.

Construction of the new station, which will supplement the services of W-G-N, will be started at once on the 29th floor of Tribune Tower. It will not be ready for use for at least four months, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer has announced. Antennae will be mounted on the flagpole atop Tribune Tower. The topmost antenna arms will be placed 15 feet beneath the American flag.

In accordance with international agreements the prefixes "W" and "K" will be used to start F-M call letters, just as they have for years on standard broadcasting stations. "K" will indicate stations west of the Mississippi; "W", stations east.

Numerals in Call Letters.

The second and third characters of each F-M call will be numerals, the FCC has announced. These numerals will be the last two numbers of the assigned frequency [in megacycles]. These two numerals will indicate the position on the dial. After these two numerals will appear another letter, or letters, which will indicate in some abbreviated form the city or area in which a station is located, or which may be arbitrarily assigned.

The calls of Chicago F-M stations, are to end in "C." No other city will have "C" alone as an ending. Others will have an additional letter or letters after "C" to identify them.

Similarly, Boston calls will end in "B," New York calls in "NY" and District of Columbia calls in "DC."

Consider Special Requests.

All F-M allocations are being made between 42 and 50 megacycles. Assigned frequencies are not on even megacycles but on the odd tenths. For example, a station might be assigned to 46.3 meg; all the F-M frequencies are in the forties, thus "4" is valueless in locating a station. A station assigned to 46.3 meg. would have the last two numerals "63" appearing in its call.

Thus if the new W-G-N, Inc., F-M station were finally to be assigned the frequency of 45.9 megacycles, the figures "59," which would determine its dial position, would appear in its call letters. And its call, under the plan as announced last week, would become W59C.

The FCC has announced to broadcasters, however, that it will consider requests for special letter terminations for the new F-M calls.

Good Fellows

The low down on what Good Fellow children would like to receive is given by Santa to Griff Williams, Don Pedro (rear), and Art Kassell who are out to do their share in the annual Tribune drive. Don Pedro is regularly heard at 10:15 a. m. and the orchestras of Williams and Kassell each evening from the Stevens and Bismarck hotels, all over W-G-N.

ROSE BAMPTON TO BE SOLOIST TODAY WITH ANDRE KOSTELANETZ

Rose Bampton the American soprano will be guest artist with Andre Kostelanetz and his 45 piece orchestra in the third presentation of his new weekly series over WBBM-CBS at 3:30 p. m. Miss Bampton, whose introductory selection is to be "The Old Refrain," also will sing "Annie Laurie," with a violin obbligato accompaniment played by Albert Spaulding. Mr. Spaulding also is the commentator for this program.

Rose Bampton.

CLAUDE RAINS TO PLAY SCROOGE ON W-G-N THURSDAY

Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actors, will play the rôle of Scrooge in the special adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," to be heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program.

Claude Rains.

Rains will make a special trip from his farm in Cheyney, in the Brandywine district of Pennsylvania, to appear on the program. A star cast of Chicago radio actors, under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, will support Rains.

Such character rôles as the crafty King John in "Robin Hood," the cruel Louis Napoleon in "Juarez," the wistful father in "Four Daughters," and the high handed Spanish ambassador in "Sea Hawk" have won Rains great acclaim with moviegoers. His latest film, not yet released, is Warner Brothers production, "Four Mothers."

THORNTON YOUTHS AWAIT W-G-N RALLY

How Thornton High School Students Prepare for Life Ahead

A half dozen Thornton Township High school leaders, left, assemble at the main entrance of their building in Harvey by way of introducing the school that will be aired on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast over W-G-N at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday. They are (left to right) Doris Davis, president of the state and local Home Economics club; George Griffith, president of the junior class; Mary Dewey, Girls' Athletic association president; Jim Van Etten, president of Hi-Y; Martha Collier, president of Purple X, and Don Kipley, commander in chief of the Hall Guards. Paul Phillips and Russell Koenig are the lads at the drums. And at the right, Miss Irene Olson (left), chorus director and an alumna of Thornton, discusses the broadcast with two of her singers, Beth Newman and David Simpson.

Tea time in the Thornton home economics department means that teachers are guests and students practice serving. Miss Dorothy Salzman, left, and Miss Esther Boyer, both of the home economics staff, take sugar, cream, and cakes from Carmelita Jacobson and Joan Morrissey, right. Thornton has a school-wide communication system, and Doris Alverson and Jane Edith Herthel take a turn at the control board. Pottery projects are popular in the art department, which boasts a kiln. Janet Ingwersen is completing a fat pot in time for Christmas. The sunny library is a popular meeting spot, where Ruby Cashion and Gloria Rogers, left and center, are serving as librarians, and Jim McPherrin is a happy patron. Thornton's book shelves have 10,000 volumes.

Industry's throbbing song is part of the rhythm of Thornton, where many of the boys enrolled in shop courses spend half of their school time over lathes, drawing boards, and forges. Joseph Sanek is the young workman operating the electric welding apparatus which was installed five years ago in compliance with the needs of local plants. A midget car is being built in Thornton machine shops, and among those working on it are: Edward Mazies, left, Robert Black, reading blueprint, Robert Grabow, and Tony Dileo adjusting front end. Thornton has well equipped laboratories for its science students. Students working over the test tubes are Frank Gabriel, Gerald Reeder, and Raymond Harder, left to right in the front row, and John Pegman, Eugene DeBoer, and Roy Van Antwerp, left to right in the row facing camera.

SOUTH SIDERS PLAN VACATIONS BASKING IN SUN

Planes, Trains, Autos Will Take Them.

Winter vacations are the newest luxury for America's workingmen. This week, when the annual holiday migration south, west, and north begins in earnest, the ranks of train riders, airplane passengers, and automobile drivers will be swelled by hundreds of small business men, clerks, policemen, salesmen, mechanics, and others.

On the south side and in the suburbs, some report that they are heading for the bright southland or the glamorous west coast to swim, fish, or merely loaf, while others are looking forward to the stimulation afforded by the ski slides and the pine forests of the northland. They are counting on a short vacation, but a memorable one.

Headed for Florida.

A group of Flossmoor residents are planning their Christmas vacation season in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Peasley and their children, Nancy, John, and Susan, left yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Baty and their family also started south yesterday. The Baty children are Jack, David, and Mary. The Charles P. Thompsons and their daughter, Miss Mary Lee, will leave for Fort Lauderdale on Saturday. All of the families are making the trip by automobile.

Miss Geneve Crabbe of Beverly Hills is planning to fly to Omaha, Neb., for her college roommate's wedding. She will spend the holidays there as the guest of sorority sisters.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Talbot of Joliet and their sons, Douglas and Richard, have gone to Fort Lauderdale, where they have taken a house.

The Henry J. Swayers and the Arthur Montzheimers, also of Joliet, have chosen the southwest for their Christmas. Both families will be in Tucson, Ariz., for the holidays, and both plan to go on to Los Angeles for the winter.

Two Families Going.

The families of two real estate men, Victor S. Peters, 6927 Constance avenue, and his brother, Charles Peters, 6810 Euclid acenue, are spending their Christmas vacations on a long tour thru the south, with stops in Tennessee, Florida, and in Havana, Cuba. Elaine, Joyce, and Victor Jr., children of Victor Peters, departed by Illinois Central train on Friday, and are to be joined in Miami by the older couples, who plan to leave by automobile tomorrow. All the vacationers will return Jan. 6.

W. H. Carpenter, 7427 South Shore drive, will fly to Washington on Christmas eve to visit his parents for four days. He will go by American Airlines. Mr. Carpenter is employed with the United States Civil service.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Cole, 5100 Cornell avenue, leave today by automobile for Miami. Mr. Cole, who is in the advertising business, will make a business stop on his way to Florida. They expect to be back the first week in January.

Will Attend Wedding.

John Patton, 12323 Princeton avenue, will go to Detroit by American Airlines over the holiday week to attend the wedding of his cousin, Miss Carol Motherwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Honeck and son, Edward, 79th street and Wolf road, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry, who reside on Joliet road near the Lyonsville church, are in Farr, Tex. During their stay in the Rio Grande valley they will visit Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cook, who formerly owned and farmed the land now the site of the Indian Head golf course.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Pincus, 7829 Wood street, are leaving at the end of this month for a trip thru the southwest and south. They will visit Hot Springs, Mexico City, Corpus Christi, and New Orleans, among other points of interest.

Will Visit Family.

Miss Esther Dubbert of 6510 Kimbark avenue will leave the day before Christmas by American Airlines for her home in St. Louis to spend several days with her family.

George Thurman, 11115 Edbrooke avenue, will leave Christmas morning by American Airlines for Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Thurman plans to spend several weeks on a ranch, and will return to Chicago about Jan. 15.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Portis of the south side will leave Thursday with their son, Richard, for Tucson, Ariz., to visit another son, Ralph, who is a freshman at the University of Arizona. The Portises plan to go on to the cost before returning to Chicago. They will travel by train.

M. P. Friedman, who will be married today to Miss Marie Johnson, will take his bride to Miami Beach, Fla. They will be there during the holidays, and will return about Jan. 15. They will live in the Hyde Park district.

Vacation in Florida.

Mrs. Colette Dister will leave Saturday with her small son, Joseph, for Jacksonville, Fla., and on to Miami. Plans for their return are indefinite. But they expect to be away during the holidays. Mrs. Dister lives at 8123 Elizabeth avenue.

Dr. Valentine Sobotka, 6745 Chappel avenue, and his son, Stephen, plan to

SUBURBAN HIGH INSTILLS PRIDE IN ACHIEVEMENT

Students to Join in Rally Tuesday.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

A school where learning is regarded as pleasant business, where students work hard and like it—that is Thornton Township High school out in Harvey. The spirit of Thornton, as it has developed under William E. McVey's 21 years as superintendent is one of seeking the joy and satisfaction of doing a thing well, whether the project is building an automobile or reading a book. There is an atmosphere of ease and application at Thornton. Students acquire a way of life along with lessons in rhetoric.

This will be exemplified at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when the cheers of 600 Thornton students will go out on the airways from W-G-N, audience studio, where Thornton is the guest school on the weekly Citizens of Tomorrow program. Miss Irene Olson, choral director and a school alumna, will lead the chorus in several numbers.

Principal to Talk.

Mr. McVey will give a short talk and there will be news of Chicagoland schools discussed by Jerry and Jimmie, youthful members of the cast. Philip Maxwell, who portrays every school's principal, will conduct the weekly Tribune news quiz and name three news high school students to the program's roll of honor.

Thornton High school has grown with the community it serves, not only in attendance but in the courses it offers. Its 1940 school population, drawn from nine towns within its own district and five others beyond these limits, comprises 3,200 students. Of these, 200 are enrolled in junior college classes. Regular students come from Harvey, Phoenix, Dolton, Homewood, Hazelcrest, Thornton, South Holland, Berger, and part of Lansing. The tuition students are from Flossmoor, Oak Forest, Tinley Park, Markham, and Midlothian.

Activity without turmoil, 3,200 high school and junior college students passing from class to class without crowding—this is Thornton. A visitor to the classes is impressed by the quiet teacher-student coöperation. There is respect without awe. Its shops train boys to enter the industries of the area. Its secretarial and stenographic courses send girls each year into the business world via office work. Behind this connection between training and jobs in the smoothly operating guidance program, instituted in 1925.

Remedial Reading Course.

In 1927 it answered the community need for an institution to continue study beyond high school grades with the junior college. While remedial reading courses are gaining favor now in many high schools, Thornton's records show five years of this procedure. Reading rate records have been kept for 10 years.

Perhaps much of the assurance and faith Thornton students manifest is traceable to the guidance plan. This begins in the eighth grade when Mr. McVey visits the township classes, housed in 21 buildings in the township's 10 school districts that will make up the next high school freshman class. Next comes the guidance director who administers tests for purposes of classification, diagnosis, and curriculum advice. Then the principal of the incoming freshman class visits the schools and, finally, the students themselves come to the high school the week before classes start. They are initiated into the plant, so they aren't strangers when they arrive for work. When classes start, they meet their homeroom teachers. Their class principal and their homeroom teachers stay with them thruout their four years.

Help Youths to Learn.

Class principals, homeroom teachers, and the director of guidance coöperate to untangle adjustment problems. Specialists who assist with the work include the school physician, school nurse, remedial gymnasium instructor, club advisers, placement adviser, and school librarian. The adolescent is safer in school than loafing on the street, Thornton teachers believe, and do all they can to help him to stay.

The township high school was organized Sept. 6, 1898, with an enrollment of 96. It supplanted the Harvey High school which was set up in 1892, two years after the city was founded by Turlington W. Harvey. The Harvey High school classes were in the basement of the Methodist church. An interesting item in the city history is that for many years no deeds to property were issued without a clause divesting purchaser of his rights if the premises were used for saloon purposes. This the high school has a puritanical ancestry in its locale.

The township high school has had but three superintendents in its 42 years' history. J. E. Cable was the

YALE DEAN EMERITUS TO GIVE 28TH TALK AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

For his 28th appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean emeritus of Yale university divinity school, has chosen the topic "The Deeper Insight." He will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes, who will preside at the meeting, and William E. Goodman, vice president of the club, will read the scripture.

Dr. Charles R. Brown.

For 17 years Dr. Brown was pastor of First Congregational church in Oakland, Cal., and for 40 years has been delivering sermons to students of theology. But he is a preacher who talks like a layman, consequently he enjoys a large following among business men who appreciate his forthright utterances on current affairs.

At the preliminary service the audience will join in singing Christmas carols and familiar gospel songs. The guest soloist will be Vincent Ahnquist, boy soprano. Hudson H. Pittman will continue his informal Bible talk on the didactic aspects of the Sermon on the Mount.

Hamfesters Club.

Hamfesters Radio club members will have their Christmas party Friday evening in Viking temple, 69th street and Emerald avenue.

DISTRICTS UNITE EFFORTS TOWARD A CHARITY CHEST

7 Communities Are to Join in Drive.

Residents of the Archer avenue area in the Argo-Summit neighborhood are familiar with industrial activities. They've learned about the profit accruing from economy of effort and time. And now they're transferring their training into terms of charity.

Seven communities, Argo-Summit, Bedford Park, Justice, Willow Springs, Bridgeview, Gertrude Highlands, and Rosalie Heights, are centralizing all charity and welfare projects.

Plan Community Chest.

Beginning this month, the agency unifying welfare endeavor will be the Community Chest. Officers of the new organization are William T. Brady, president; Charles E. Wingo, vice president; Miss Carolyn E. Wilson, secretary; the Rev. Durbin C. Scheibe, treasurer, and Henry C. Wahl, 1940 campaign manager.

All are community leaders. Mr. Brady is manager of the Corn Products Refining company at Argo; Mr. Wingo is superintendent of the Argo Community High school; Miss Wilson is an elementary school teacher, and the Rev. Mr. Scheibe is pastor of the Argo Congregational church. Mr. Wahl is mayor of Bedford Park.

To Visit All Homes.

The Community Chest fund will be raised by popular subscription from every home in the communities represented, according to Mr. Brady. He states in a letter to residents of the districts that it is hoped the chest fund "can be made a permanent proposition for this community and that it will serve to take the place of various drives for funds of many other organizations, so that there will be one solicitation for charity contributions in the community each year."

In line with this policy the annual charity ball, given to obtain funds for the Argo-Summit Health and Welfare association, will be discontinued in favor of the Community Chest drive.

OUR TOWN

JOHN PAYTON JR., son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Payton, 7835 East End avenue, has been chosen editor in chief of the year book at Loras college in Dubuque, Ia. Last year he was editor in chief of the student newspaper. An honor student, young Payton was vice president of his class in his junior year and a member of the student senate. He is a member of the Monogram club, a letter winner in varsity basketball, and defending free throw basketball champion of the college. A graduate of Leo High school, he will receive his bachelor of arts degree next June. His father is a Chicago police detective.

John J. Payton Jr.

"King of Kings," a Christmas cantata by Daniel Protheroe, will be sung by the senior choir of Grace English Lutheran church, 70th street and Union avenue, at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

THE Hyde Park High school magazine has selected "Nothing but the Truth," by Byron Rice, as the winning story of its annual contest. Byron, a 4-B student, recently was presented with the first place award of $10. Stories by Shirley Levin and Phryne Sevdalis placed second and third, respectively. Second, third, fourth, and fifth places were awarded with free subscriptions to the magazine.

Children of the Protestant Orphans home, 6323 South Yale avenue, will be entertained this afternoon by a musical revue entitled "Children of Toyland" thru the courtesy of the Krossner School of Theater Arts. Among the 20 children who will sing and dance for the orphans are the following south siders: Maxine Mindes, Matilda Mosney, Nancy Lash, Sheldon Sinborg, Lois Levy, Betty Templeman, Wilma Shein, Esta Mae Horka, and Romaine Palicki.

AT THE end of this month Miss Pearl Goldsby, librarian of the Bessemer Park library, will retire after 32 years of active service. She came to Bessemer for the first time 25 years ago. Since that time she has been changed to other libraries a few times but says that her first love is Bessemer. Her retirement comes just as the new South Chicago library, for which she campaigned for many years, is nearing completion.

A plate honoring the memory of Samuel A. Oliver, well known blacksmith, will be dedicated at the service at 8 o'clock this evening in Drexel Park Presbyterian church. The Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor, has chosen Longfellow's poem, "The Village Blacksmith," for the sermon topic.

EDWARD MILLER, 8321 South Calumet avenue, vice president of Pi Alpha Lambda fraternity at Loyola university, is chairman of arrangements for the fraternity's annual formal dance Friday evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. George Scully, 7749 South Emerald avenue, and Robert Blake, 4642 South Ellis avenue, also are on the committee of arrangements.

Edward Miller.

Four Our Towners at Rosary college, River Forest, have been elected to membership in Torch, activity honor society, this semester. They are Marie Higgins, 5644 South Artesian avenue; Rosemary Stewart, 8150 South Throop street; Jane Waldron, 10531 Longwood drive, and Lucille Maloney, 6217 Ellis avenue.

Mary Jane Kyle, senior drama student of Rosary, is chairman of the entertainment committee for the annual Christmas party which will be held at the college on Thursday evening on the eve of holiday vacation. The party is one of the oldest traditions on the campus. Miss Kyle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kyle of Whiting, Ind.

The Plato players of Bridgeport will give "A Tale of Broadway" at 8:30 o'clock this evening and tomorrow evening at Hobart center, 2969 Archer avenue. The six act play was written especially for the group by Charles Zemon.

BACK 'O YARDS COUNCIL WILL BE CHILDREN'S HOST

Yule Parties Listed for Ten Schools.

Boys and girls of 10 public and parochial schools back of the yards will have Christmas parties as gifts from the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council in coöperation with Davis Square park workers.

In other years children have been entertained at the park. This year, however, so many will share in the Christmas entertainment that the park cannot accommodate the number at a single party. Therefore, one will be held at each school.

Two Parties a Day.

There will be two parties a day for every school day this week. Beginning tomorrow, the 500 at Ss. Cyril and Methodius school will be entertained at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. St. Augustine school's 915 boys and girls will have their party at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

St. Joseph's school party is scheduled for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and St. Michael's for 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Hamline's will be at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, and Sacred Heart's at 1 o'clock that afternoon.

Other School Parties.

Seward school will be entertained at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, and Hedges at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The Friday plans include Holy Cross school at 10 o'clock in the morning and St. Rose of Lima at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Total school enrollments are nearly 7,500 children, and the council has announced sufficient supplies will be provided for 1,000 more than that number.

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

SUBURBANITE COMES TO TOWN.

From time to time I have noted letters suggesting that suburbanites who make their living in Chicago should move into the city and try to build it up. They should try to give to it rather than to criticize it and then take from it. Well, I used to be a suburbanite, and now I've come to town. And what do I get for it?

First, I exchange a seat and plenty of leg room on a suburban train for the privilege of standing, crowding, pushing, shoving, swinging, and swaying on your buses, "L's," and street cars. It takes me just as long to get to work as it did when I lived 20 miles farther away.

I used to rent a garage for $3 a month. Now the family car stands out in the street. I've a nice apartment but it costs more than its counterpart in the country. I thought I'd like to enjoy city opportunities I'd heard about. A trip to the theater in the evening now, however, means standing all the way home on the "L" or driving and paying parking fees. No more after-show express service. Well, I'm here in town and I'm willing to do my share, but when I read letters suggesting that suburbanites support the city I feel like suggesting that here's one who supports this town by the busload. Some mornings I get to work thinking that I've been leaned on by the entire city of Chicago. JOSEPHINA.

VOICE FROM THE CRUSH.

How many long years will the Chicago transit wrangle go on? Must we wait until our shoulders are rubbed raw and then calloused from leaning and being leaned upon as we jostle and jiggle on our crowded street cars, L's, and buses? Some of the recent newspaper stories point out that some of our transportation facilities are operating at annual losses. Whose? Granted that it takes a lot of money to operate an elevated system, for instance, it must also bring in plenty of money when passengers ride trains packed from platform to platform with squeezed in humanity. I live in a section of the southwest side that might as well be a desert island so far as transportation is concerned. Yet I'm supposed to be a Chicago booster. How can I be a very proud and loyal Chicagoan when my view of the town is a series of peeks out from my standing place from conveyances to and from work? B. K.

LIKES FAMILIAR FACES.

When I patronize a library I like to get to know the folks I meet there. After a while we get chummy, and pretty soon the young ladies know all of my reading habits, and I can shift the responsibility of my cultural life right onto them. They see that I find out the things I should know—or, at least, they make a great effort. I'm in the Chicago Lawn district, and it seems to me that every time I go to the branch library there I see a new face. Of course, it would be antisocial to say I objected to meeting new people, but I certainly would like to have those new faces stick around long enough to get acquainted. Why all the transfers? Don't the girls like us? We like them, and we wish they'd stay. R. E. M.

PHI KAPPA PSI JOINS RANKS OF GOOD FELLOWS

Alumni Plan to Buy Fifty Baskets of Food.

Among the Good Fellows who are flocking to the call for coöperation in the Tribune Good Fellow campaign are the Chicago alumni of Phi Kappa Psi. On Thursday noon they will sponsor the Fraternity Good Fellow luncheon in the Red room of the La Salle hotel. A fund is being raised by the group that will purchase approximately 50 baskets of food for distribution to unfortunate families.

Chairman is Harold A. Mott, who will head a committee including Chester Taylor Sr., John C. Christie, Edward A. Twerdahl Jr., and Ellsworth Enoch. Distribution of the baskets will take place on Christmas eve from the two chapters located on the campuses of the University of Chicago and Northwestern university.

Campaign headquarters of the Good Fellow drive have been receiving letters and contributions from many persons who have subscribed to Plan No. 2. This is the plan whereby only money is sent.

UNITED CHARITIES TO GIVE PARTY FOR CHILDREN

The United Charities southwest district office at 2118 West Cermak road will become a Christmas party center Thursday afternoon. More than 100 children living in the southwest side factory district will be guests. Neighborhood business firms are contributing gifts, refreshments, and decorations, and a neighborhood movie house is donating free tickets. Ordinarily United Charities does not give Christmas parties, according to Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the agency, but leaves that province to churches and clubs.

Lieut. Col. Edwards Is Regimental Chief.

A newly compiled roster of the Tilden Technical High school R. O. T. C. unit lists the names of 463 cadets. Chosen to lead the regiment this year was Lieut. Col. Robert W. Edwards. 4 POINT SAFETY PLAN FOR CICERO AVENUE IS O. K.'D

Motor Council Favors Other Projects, Also.

A four point safety program for Cicero avenue between Archer avenue and 63d street was one of the extensive improvements indorsed at a recent meeting of the South Area council of the Chicago Motor club.

Other approved major projects included development of a thru traffic route around the 63d-Halsted business district; recommendation of a parking ban on the east side of Halsted street over an area 200 feet south and 100 feet north of 81st street, and a request for immediate action to correct the hazard created by the center strip excavation on 95th street between Claremont and Western avenues.

Cicero Avenue Plan.

1. Elimination of street car tracks.
2. Widening of each side of the road to three lanes instead of the present two lanes.
3. Beautification with a landscaped 10 foot middle strip.
4. Construction of a grade separation with the railroads now using the right of way immediately north of 54th street. The railroads are the Indiana Harbor Belt and the Chicago and Western Indiana.

This program was set up by the state highway department, and final plans are being completed. If possible, work will begin in the spring.

Recommend Improvements.

The 63d and Halsted street business district is the largest outside the loop. Motor club engineers have recommended the following improvements for alleviating the traffic congestion resulting from the business development:

1. The opening of Union avenue between 61st and 63d streets.
2. Eventual combination of Union and Emerald avenues to make a continuous thorofare from 26th street to 87th street.
3. A system of channelization by which Union-Emerald avenue would accommodate northbound traffic and Peoria street, southbound traffic.

Want Dirt Removed.

Dirt excavated from a center strip along 95th street between Claremont and Western avenues has been left at the sides of the road. The council has received reports that the dirt heaps have been responsible for several accidents. Therefore the council is requesting immediate action.

Further reports from the council's recent session include the announcement that it has indorsed the recommendation of Ald. Paul Douglas [5th] for the installation of more pedestrian bridges over the Outer drive.

It was reported that appropriations for new lights on Pulaski road have been approved by the city council. The lights will be installed along Pulaski from Archer avenue to 55th street.

SOUTH SIDERS PLAN VACATIONS BASKING IN SUN

Planes, Trains, Autos to Transport Them.

spend the holidays skiing in the vicinity of Ironwood, Mich. They will be accompanied by Dr. Julius I. Steinfeld, psychiatrist in charge of the Forest sanitarium in Des Plaines. The three will make the trip via the North Western railroad, leaving about Dec. 21 and returning early next month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Blatt, 2915 East 78th street, will have a winter's vacation in both the north and the south. They will go by automobile to Detroit and from there will fly to Florida.

Surfboarding and basking in the sun will keep Miss Leona Biller, 7630 Coles avenue, busy during her month vacation from work with the telephone company, which begins next week. She will go to Waikiki beach, in the Hawaiian Islands, and will also call on the volcanoes on the separate island of Hawaii. This is the first time she will have been to these islands, but for the last few years she has taken cruises this time of year to Panama, Central America, Bermuda, and the West Indies.

The racetrack at Agua Caliente, Mexico, will see a good deal of Miss Patricia Uniek, 3037 West 40th place, during her vacation from the telephone company, she says. She went to Los Angeles last spring by train, and liked it so much that this year she is taking her mother, Mrs. Hedwig Uniek, and her brother, John, out by automobile. They will leave next week.

Physician of Chicago Lawn to Exhibit Early Photos

An exhibit of Dr. Ira Eberhart's photographs is hanging in the Chicago Lawn Branch library, 6234 South Kedzie avenue. Dr. Eberhart was the first physician in Chicago Lawn. He has been interested in photography since his college days, and his pictures are scenes of earlier times as well as the present.

CLUB TO AWARD PRIZES IN ITS PRESS CONTEST

Neighborhood Women to Meet Wednesday.

Mrs. Clair Magee of 8549 Peoria street, press and program chairman of the Neighborhood Woman's club, 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, is in charge of arrangements for her club's press and publicity contest at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Ogden park fieldhouse. Club scrapbooks will be on display, and prizes will be awarded. The Drexel Mothers' chorus, led by Lillian Traub, will sing. R. E. Pfeifer, 3d district press and publicity chairman, will be a special guest.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

World affairs will be the morning topic, and a Christmas pageant is scheduled for the afternoon for the club meeting on Wednesday at Ridge park fieldhouse.

"The United States in World Affairs" is the subject of the address Mrs. Walter H. C. Laves, former chairman of the Hyde Park League of Women Voters, will discuss in the morning. Mrs. William J. Rathje will preside.

The Hull house players will present their "Pageant of Christmas" in the afternoon. This pageant is traditional at Hull house, and it combines the talents of the Hull house music, art, and drama departments. This is the 42d season of the spectacle. The pictures portrayed are inspired by the Italian Renaissance artists. The rôle of the virgin will be taken by Miss Bertina Corimby. Miss Margaret Fraghia will be the madonna, and Miss Stella Mangano, the angel of annunciation. Mrs. Hazel Koos is the leader of the chorus taking part in the tableau and concert.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

The Chicago Lawn members will have a program of current news and Christmas carols and stories for their meeting at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in Marquette park fieldhouse. The international relations committee, with Mrs. E. W. Brinson as chairman, will present "Highlights of the News." The club chorus will sing French and Slovak Christmas carols. Mrs. Leo Kranz will sing a group of Lithuanian carols.

The afternoon session, beginning at 1:45 o'clock, will feature another Christmas song group with Mrs. Helen Protheroe Baker directing the chorus and Mrs. A. R. Osmun as accompanist. Mrs. Peter Mikesh is music chairman. Christmas stories will be told by Mrs. Glenn Thompson.

Clearing Woman's Club.

A Christmas party is on the calendar for 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the American Legion hall, 5649 West 63d street. Members of the Clearing Junior Woman's club will be guests. The senior club's first vice president, Mrs. J. R. Hill, will be in charge of the party.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

A business meeting will take place at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in Ridge park fieldhouse. Later, Maurice L. Reddy, disaster relief chairman of the American Red Cross, will discuss "Rehabilitating Victims of War." The luncheon hostess will be Mrs. Edward M. Tocatlian.

Mrs. Frank Case, music chairman, will present the afternoon program beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The club chorus will sing.

"Christmas in Song and Story" will make up the chorus program and will include Noble Cain's cantata, "The King and the Star." Mrs. William Doll will sing the solo parts. Mrs. Gertrude Ford, the chorus director, will sing a solo group, also. The club past presidents will serve tea in the library after the program.

Englewood Woman's Club.

A symposium on the topic, "Shall We Help the Refugees, and Is There a Remedy for This Chaotic World?" will be conducted at 10:45 o'clock tomorrow morning by the Rev. Donald Harrington and his wife, the Rev. Vilma Harrington. The Rev. Mr. Harrington is pastor of the Peoples Liberal church. The Englewood club meets in the Masonic temple at 6730 Wentworth avenue.

A Christmas program is planned for the afternoon. "The Song the Silent Shepherds Heard" will be presented by the club ensemble directed by Mrs. Herman L. Ellsworth. Mrs. Ellsworth, who lives at 1945 East 72d street, wrote and arranged the musical selections. She collaborated with Mrs. Warren T. Willis in writing the narrative, which will be given by Mrs. R. Cecil Kelly.

Foster Park Woman's Club.

A Christmas party will take place Tuesday at the South Side Swedish club, 7330 South Ridgeland avenue. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and a card party will follow. The newly organized glee club will furnish part of the entertainment.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

A crowded schedule is planned for tomorrow's meeting which starts at 11 o'clock in the morning at the Morgan Park Methodist church.

Mrs. George D. Robinson Jr., chairman, and the public welfare committee, will present Mrs. Raymond S. Knapp in a discussion of "The Effect of Public Assistance on Our Youth." Mrs. Knapp, a club member, is an advocate of constructive preparation for the responsibilities of citizenship. The public welfare committee has arranged a display of rugs, aprons, fancy work, and toys made at the Oak Forest infirmary.

Mrs. Ralph Olsen, music chairman, and her committee have planned a Christmas program. Mrs. James B. Todd will be accompanist for the music department's part of the day's plans.

Mark Hallett has been coaching the chorus for the last three months. Two sisters from Ireland, Mary Foster and Kathleen Foster Campbell, will furnish part of the Christmas program. Miss Foster will sing, and her sister will give the background of the various songs. Kathleen Foster Campbell will read a Christmas play and several Christmas legends.

The board of directors will meet in regular session at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the club president, Mrs. Clyde Stow, 2256 West 116th place. Mrs. Harold F. Wood was recently elected to succeed herself as 1st vice president and program chairman for 1941-'42.

West Lawn Woman's Club.

The West Lawn Woman's club members will hold the annual Christmas party for their families at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Norman Findlay, 4048 West 63d street.

Kelly Senior Players

LILLIAN PENDRYS.

MURIEL SAVAGE.

Lillian Pendrys and Muriel Savage, both in the 4B class at Kelly High school, will have important parts in the senior drama class play, "The Goose Hangs High," by Lewis Beach, on Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday's performance will be a matinée, and the Wednesday show will be in the evening at the school auditorium, California avenue and 42d street.

THORNTON HIGH INSTILLS PRIDE IN ACHIEVEMENT

Students Will Be Heard on W-G-N Tuesday.

first; he was followed by L. W. Smith, and Mr. Mcey came in 1919.

Veteran School Trustees.

A report from the state high school inspectors, after their visit last spring, rates Thornton as "one of the outstanding high schools in the United States." Mr. McVey believes much of the credit for this rating is attributable to a continuity of policy resulting from the continuity of the school board.

Three members have been serving for approximately 30 years each. They are A. H. McDougall, president of the board and vice president of the Whiting corporation; G. H. Gibson, vice president of the board and president of the Chicago Steel Car company before his retirement from business, and Charles E. Waterman, president of the Bank of South Holland. Other board members are W. H. Brandt, Harvey business man, and Walter Haines, township collector.

Thornton's plant and facilities are valued at $1,000,000. At least $25,000 of this amount is represented in the array of machines in the shops. Shop courses are popular, since there are 35 industries in the area, including the Buda Motor company, makers of Diesel engines for planes and tanks; the Wyman-Gordon plant, makers of crankshafts; the Whiting corporation, American Stove company, and Bliss & Laughlin company. The shops include instruction in machine work, pattern work, pattern making, automobile mechanics, electric welding, and drafting. Boys are given an orientation course in their first year and then choose what interests them most.

1,000 Boys in Shop Courses.

Boys from the Thornton machine shop went into jobs in local industries thruout the depression. The electric welding course was added five years ago in answer to demand of the industries. Boys may take a four year shop course at the school. Approximately 1,000 boys are working in the Thornton vocational courses.

Thornton is included in the CAA pilot training schedule. The first class, nine boys and one girl, Alice Rudolph, will finish in January, and applications for the new class are being filed.

The commercial department is also popular and offers an extensive course. There are from 900 to 1,000 students enrolled in business subjects. Boys fill the places along the benches and lathes, but girls are in the majority at the typewriters and office machines. And girls, of course, take the home economics subjects in which they learn how to be hostesses by actually being hostesses in the dining room and living room furnished in the school.

Thornton's sun lighted library has 10,000 volumes on the shelves. Its music department is equipped with five soundproof practice rooms. The band room and chorus room are soundproof, too, and equipped for broadcasting to other parts of the school.

35 Per Cent to College.

Approximately 35 per cent of T. T. H. S. graduates go on to college, and their success in schools thruout the country demonstrates the thoroness of Thornton preparatory courses.

Big news at any time is Thornton's employment bureau. Its big job is finding graduates to fill the requests.

Naturally, such a large school is active in athletics. The trophy case is filled with emblems of victories in district, suburban, sectional, and state contests. Among Thornton's alumni athletic stars are Betty Robinson, Olympic sprinter; Marion Mansfield, diving champion; Joseph Beinor,, Notre Dame football player and All American captain, and Louis Boudreau, a member of the Cleveland Indians. Coach Jack Lipe is director of Thornton's physical education. A present student at Thornton who is busy making a name for himself is Van Tiers, a participant in the Quiz Kids radio program. Ruth DeYoung Kohler, writer of The Tribune column, "Women World Wide," is a Thornton alumna. Miss Maude Bennot, director of the Chicago Planetarium, is a Thornton graduate, and another is Peggy Wall, known to radio audiences. Vaughan Flannery is a Thorntonite attaining distinction as a painter.

At Thornton all students are included in the school's two clubs, called simply the Boys' club and the Girls' club. These organizations coöperate in money raising programs such as giving plays or selling Christmas cards, a current Girls' club project.

Funds raised are used to bring speakers to school, assemblies and for other school projects. Miss Helene Wilson, dean of girls, sponsors the Girls' club, and O. F. Umbaugh, dean of boys, is the Boys' club sponsor. Club work results in charity, too, and often a needy student is supplied with shoes, glasses, or a new coat. And the Girls' club members regularly visit the Chicago Home for Incurables. There the students write letters, push wheel chairs, and, best of all, simply add a bit of youth to the home.

There are 100 teachers on the staff. D. C. Allen, who joined the faculty in 1911, is the senior member. He directed the school band and headed the chemistry department until he became seriously ill two months ago. James L. Beck is dean of the junior college.

Concerts and Tag Day.

The broadcast Tuesday is just the beginning of the Thornton extra-activity week. The calendar includes a music department concert at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the school. The department will give a concert at 8 o'clock Thursday evening for the P. T. A. The Girls' club will hold the Christmas tag day on Friday, and members will operate a Christmas seal booth in the Harvey postoffice on Saturday.

Thornton High school is a closely knit organization and a happy one. The boys in the drafting class draw blue prints for the lads in the machine shop, and they draw to the machine shop specifications. There is a sharing of responsibility thruout the school. The school leaders believe in responsibility. And this responsibility doesn't necessarily stop when the student leaves school. Mr. McVey expresses this idea in the following excerpt from his article, "Guidance in Secondary Schools," published in the North Central Association Quarterly:

". . . No school should attempt to sidestep the problem as to the proper placement of its output, whether it be in further study, in employment, or in a combination of the two. An important feature of the work [guidance and placement] is a follow-up and adjustment service that should be a part of any placement program. Certainly, no business establishment would long keep its machinery running if it did not give attention to the distribution of its output, and show vital interest in the quality of service and the amount of satisfaction that output is rendering. . . ."

[Feala Photo.]

Two busy girls are Kathryn Dealy (left), 6634 Bosworth avenue, and Margery Lennihan, 2215 West 118th street, who are members of the committee arranging for the Christmas dance of Mundelein college. The dance is to be held Dec. 27 at the Drake and is to be for the students and alumnae. Both girls are members of the student activities council.

St. Rita Altar and Rosary Society to Sponsor Party

St. Rita Altar and Rosary society will sponsor a card party at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school hall, 62d street and Washtenaw avenue.

Legion Notes

Santa Claus with a group of entertainers will be on hand next Sunday when the annual children's Christmas party is held by Oakland-Kenwood post and auxiliary at 3865 Cottage Grove avenue. The party will start at 4:30 p. m. A. K. Roseff and Mrs. Florence Cheadle are general chairmen.

"Is Prohibition Returning?" will be the topic of the Rev. R. E. William tomorrow night at an open meeting of Square post. The program will include an address by Lieut. Col. F. U. McCoskrie, adjutant general of the 6th corps area, and numbers by "The Hoosier Philosopher" and "The Harmonica Sixteen."

With the approval of the parent post and the state department of the American Legion, Beverly Hills squadron, Sons of the American Legion, is sponsoring a community musical organization to be known as the Emergency Patrol band. Boys 12 years of age or older are invited to join the band, and may contact Paul G. Carlson, 8949 South Elizabeth street.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 16.

It is poinsettia time and home gardeners will attempt to carry the plants over winter, but it is much better to discard the old plants. They must be allowed to rest during winter, after flowering, and started into growth in the spring. They require a condition that is free from sudden changes or the foliage will drop. The plants can be cut back, potted, and plunged to the rim after late May, kept watered, fed, and shifted until fall. They are removed early to the house and given all the light possible.

Other Christmas flowers are narcissi, especially the paper white variety. Give these lots of water and throw the bulbs away after flowering. Some begonias are excellent for the greater part of the year, but at Christmas some of the red flowered type are among the best.

Tuesday, Dec. 17.

On mild days when the ground can be worked, fall trenching can be undertaken. Instead of spading the ground in the usual way throw out a furrow one spading across the plot. Then go over the same spading again, thoroly breaking the lower soil, but leaving it where it was. Throw the next strip of top soil on this and pulverize the strip of soil beneath it. A layer of manure spread over the surface before starting operations will add additional food to the soil.

Wednesday, Dec. 18.

Garden friends will appreciate gifts they can use in gardening operations; tools of all kinds, bulbous plants, wearing apparel, books, etc.

Not all bulbs are available at this date, but the amaryllis, yellow and white callas, and some narcissi may be obtained. Flowering pot plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, begonias, and plants of special value for their foliage may be obtained.

Thursday, Dec. 19.

Cover pansies and English daisies with straw or leaves and keep the cover in place with a few branches or boards. The long popular geranium is said to be losing popularity but there is no more pleasing plant that can be grown in the window.

Keep in comparatively small pots and in a window that has full sun. The room temperature should be from 70 to 75 degrees. Do not keep the soil saturated with water. Water in the early morning for the foliage should not be wet at night. Examine the pots of bulbs and water if the soil needs water. These plants must make a good root growth before bringing to the light for flowering.

Friday, Dec. 20.

It is not too late to mulch the strawberry bed. Cover with straw or draw strawy manure up to and around the plants, if they are planted in hills; if in densely matted rows, use straw. It will not pack too heavily and injure the plants.

Saturday, Dec. 21.

Keep pans of water on the radiator or attach a humidifier to it to increase humidity in the room. Beneficial to both plants and human beings. On cold nights, place newspapers against the window where plants are standing to keep out cold drafts. Apply a bit of plant food to plants in bud or while flowering.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

WHY NOT A YULE GIFT THIS YEAR FOR BATHROOM?

Fixtures and Accessories Improve Living.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

However one feels on problems national and international, on politics and philosophy, ethics, and religion, there's unanimity of agreement on the fact that when we say "Merry Christmas" to some room in our house and give it an enduring present or two, we've succeeded at the same time in giving our own spirits quite a lift.

We're not breathing a word against holiday wreaths and candles all beribboned, and the dash and go of blown glass balls at the window and real jingling bells at the door. They are all jolly ways of shouting Merry Christmas to those who pass our homes, and to those who come inside. But if on the spur of some inspired moment we add something else besides, an enduring gift for the house from the whole household, perhaps, we've seen to it that our Christmas will remain with us long after the calendar date has passed.

Bathrooms sparkle the holiday spirit and there are gifts galore to give them.

Bathroom Now Up to Date.

Last January Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clark, 412 Greenwood, Evanston, modernized their bathroom. It was in no need of drastic change, since the fixtures were sound, the decorations good, the fittings and accessories in fit shape to continue functioning for family comfort for some time to come. But in the light of what's new in bathroom planning and finishing the existing room seemed dated and in need of modernization.

This was done; beautifully done, with careful attention paid to the hundred and one details which go to make up a properly renovated bath.

Now it's fresh and festive and sparkling for the holidays, tho the work was done some time ago.

Problems encountered in each bathroom differ, but certain fundamental improvements are usually in order.

Brown and Yellow Floor.

In this instance new fixtures for old were installed. A built-in tub with overhead shower, new closet, a new lavatory with mirrored medicine cabinet over it, and an intriguing recess in the wall for toilet accessories. The radiator disappeared from under the window and a fine rubber flooring, in rich brown tones with yellow stripes was laid. The wainscot is a marbleized pattern, an attractive lemon yellow, with the upper walls papered. This paper has a silver background and white morning glories flecked with yellow are a part of its pattern. The bathroom fixtures are chrome.

At the same time that this work was done the kitchen and a second bath was also modernized.

One may not be ready to celebrate the holidays with plans or a check for an entire new bath or kitchen, but there are smaller ways of giving these rooms a merry yuletide remembrance.

Tank Shelf Cover.

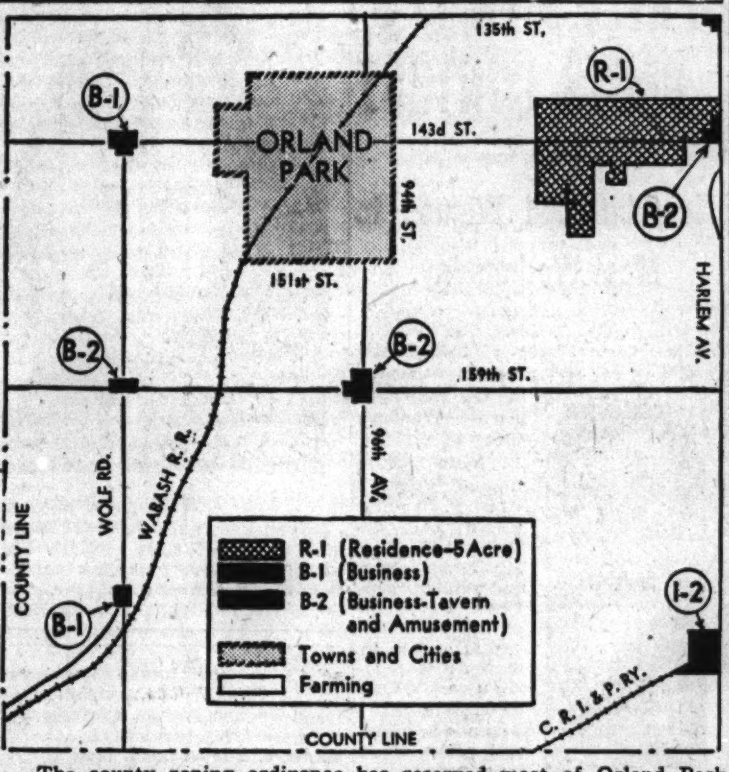
Bathroom scales were never so good looking, with magnifying lens, perhaps, if some family member is short sighted; or a chrome finished closet tank shelf cover with nice safeguard rail, for extra shelf space and protection against bottles that sometimes tumble off the back of a closet tank; or new lavatory faucets in case the old ones are losing their finish and acquiring the dripping habit. For the kitchen a modern single swinging faucet would be a pleasant gift. So would colorful grease resistant mats for the sink, to save on wear and tear of its surfaces.

Of course a new sink would be a grand present, but so would a shower in the basement for the children. It need not cost much. Rough nickel plated showers will take a lot of tough usage from youthful basement athletes.

Car Company Service Club to Give Party for 1,000

The Twenty Year service club of the Pullman-Standard Car company will give its annual Christmas party for 1,000 friends and their families Friday evening at Fenger High school. Included on the two hour program will be music and singing, both solemn and humorous; carols by the audience, and a visit from Santa Claus, who will have a bag containing gifts for all the children.

Zone Orland Park Township for Farms



The county zoning ordinance has reserved most of Orland Park township for farming. The one residence area in the township outside of the village of Orland Park requires five acres of ground for each residence.

JUNIOR GROUPS OUTLINE THEIR YULE PROGRAMS

Charity to Mark Blue Island Meeting.

Junior clubs of the 3d district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs are planning Christmas program for this week's meetings. The Christmas theme at the meeting of the Blue Island Junior Woman's club Tuesday evening will be represented in the name of philanthropy. Orders for gift wrappings, greeting cards, playing cards, and hot pan holders will be taken. The proceeds go to club charity projects. Miss Mildred Knabe, 9950 Winston avenue, Chicago, is in charge.

Miss Mildred Knabe.
[Marshall Photo.]

Miss Knabe is club ways and means chairman, and her committee is sponsoring the evening, which will begin at 6:30 o'clock at the Blue Island Elks club. A food lecture will be followed by a buffet supper.

Beverly Hills Juniors.

Mothers and senior club members will be special guests for the Beverly Juniors' annual Mothers' night tomorrow at Ridge park fieldhouse. The Beverly seniors will present the program, "Christmas in Jerusalem," by Sumayeh Attiyeh. Miss Shirley Dickinson, soprano, and Richard Gordon, tenor, will sing.

Brainerd Junior Women.

Mrs. Walter D. Ahner will entertain members at a Christmas party at her home, 8806 South Morgan street, on Tuesday evening.

Englewood Junior Women.

Santa Claus will be on hand for the Christmas party Tuesday evening in Hamilton park fieldhouse. Guests will be 30 children from the Child Haven Home for Orphans, 63d street and Yale avenue.

Hamilton Park Juniors.

Hamilton Park juniors will be entertained at the the home of Mrs. David Campbell, 7659 Eggleston avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow.

Marquette Manor Juniors.

A Christmas party will take place of the regular Tuesday evening meeting at Marquette park fieldhouse.

WEST WOODLAWN COMMUNITY UNIT TO HOLD BENEFIT

West Woodlawn Community council will present its third annual Christmas benefit in the auditorium of the McCosh school, 66th street and Champlain avenue, tomorrow evening. The benefit will be in the form of a musical extravaganza featuring well known local singers and musicians.

John W. Banks is chairman of the committee, assisted by Mrs. Carrie Stanton, Mrs. Eloise Crowe, Mrs. Anna Handley, Mrs. Rebecca Young, Mrs. Ruth Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Webster, Mrs. Lovania Brown, Mrs. Mattie Martin, Mrs. Melvina Peterson, Mrs. Louise Carrington, Mrs. Ola Mae Hitt, Mrs. Estelle McCoy, Miss Doris Simpson, Dr. I. M. Henderson, Joseph Hughes, A. M. Bright, Charley Leonard, A. J. Taper, Fred Smith, Mrs. Mary Daniels, Mrs. A. W. Williams, and Mrs. Willie Floyd.

Last year the benefit provided Christmas baskets for 63 families with a combined total of 243 children.

Are you selling all the people right in your own neighborhood who might trade with you?
For more than 12 years, large and small businesses located in many neighborhoods and suburbs of Chicago have proved conclusively that there is no better way to build sales and profits than by running a consistent schedule of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.
During 1939, a total of 745 neighborhood enterprises used this advertising plan to get a greater share of the patronage of the families who can best trade with them.
One or more of these five sections — North, Northwest, West, Southwest, and South — are edited for and read exclusively by the families in your trading area.

CROWDED WEEK SCHEDULED BY HOMEWOOD CLUB

Yule Party Tomorrow Opens Program.

This is a crowded week for members of the Homewood Woman's club, 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. A Christmas party is planned for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the village hall. This will take the place of the regular meeting usually held at that time. Mrs. E. L. Downey is one of the chairmen assisting with the social hour following the formal part of the program. Besides this party, the club will sponsor a Christmas pageant Wednesday evening in the village auditorium.

Mrs. Leo Pray and Mrs. F. H. Volland will decorate the village hall with Christmas greens in preparation for tomorrow. The program will include a group of songs by the club chorus directed by Mrs. George Gallati.

Will Sing Carols.

Mrs. H. B. Hobbs will be the chorus accompanist. The entire membership will join in singing carols. Mrs. James H. Buell, Flossmoor, will read a Christmas play. Tomorrow's program will be, in part, a gift shower for girls at the Park Ridge school. Department chairmen will be hostesses.

The pageant "Victorious Christmas," will begin at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. As the pageant progresses, all the holidays of the year will pass in review for the queen and her court. Fifteen organizations will take part. Among them will be the Chicago Concert choir, Homewood Community band, and the Girls' chorus. Mrs. George Gallati will be accompanist for the entire pageant. Among those in the cast are Mrs. Gardner Watkins, Nancy Cordt, Nancy Apel, Mrs. Paul Cook, Mrs. S. E. Adair, Dr. Herbert Jenson, and Mrs. H. D. Shaw.

Chicago Heights Woman's Club.

Another Christmas program planned for Wednesday evening is the musical sponsored by the Chicago Heights club at 8 o'clock in the Methodist church. Mrs. Walter D. Pahnke is the chairman. The junior choir of the Presbyterian church, directed by C. H. Kickert, will sing, and the Bloom Township High school string ensemble, directed by Erick Shee, will play. The Methodist adult choir, led by Arthur Lambrecht, will sing.

Columbus Manor Women.

Members will observe American home day at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at their meeting at 9516 South Melvina avenue. Speakers will be Mrs. J. E. Trieschman, 3d district American home chairman, and Miss Gertrude Wilson.

Forest Ridge Woman's Club.

A Christmas program is planned for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at th ehome of Mrs. R. H. Hodgman, Waverly and Kilpatrick avenues. Mrs. Hodgman, chairman of the music department, and her committee will present "The Story of Christmas Carols." Mrs. Charles Linklater will be the reader, and Miss Joy Kruger will be the soloist. The Forest Ridge Mothers' club will sing the carols.

Palos Heights Womans Club.

An event of the club meeting at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the community house will be the initiation of 14 new members. A food shower will take place, and baskets will be filled for several local needy families. A Christmas party with a tree and a grab bag will be held.

Palos Park Woman's Club.

A Christmas party is planned for 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Harry Pot'ier, a British soldier who served four years in the last world war, will be the speaker.

Chapter of Purple Heart to Meet Tuesday Evening

The Ray Workman chapter of the Military Order of the Purple Heart will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. This will be the first meeting under the guidance of the new commander, Harry Richards.

THORNTON HIGH MUSIC STUDENTS TO GIVE CONCERT

The annual Christmas concert presented by the music department of Thornton Township High school and sponsored by the high school and junior college parent-teacher association will be held in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

Barton P.-T. A.—Mrs. George Paulson, homemaking chairman, will be in charge of the program at the meeting at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the school. Miss Martha Crane and Miss Helen Joyce will present a homemakers' program which will include recipes and household hints as well as an informal talk on "Behind the Scenes in Radio."

Ashburn Eberhart P.-T. A.—Christmas carols will be sung by the entire school at the meeting at 2:30 o'clock Thursday as a special Christmas feature.

Brenan P.-T. A.—Miss Ellen M. Oleson of the Chicago Teachers' college will talk on "Christmas and You" at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Kellogg P.-T. A.—A Christmas program has been planned for the meeting tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Elva Gamble will sing a group of songs. Her accompanist, Miss Genevieve Davison, also will play several piano solos.

Gresham P.-T. A.—A play, "The Christmas Story," will be presented by pupils at the meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. John Calvin Leonard, pastor of the Seventh Presbyterian church, will be the guest speaker.

Bennett P.-T. A.—A Christmas pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang," will be presented by pupils at the meeting at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Bennett Mother singers will sing.

Marquette P.-T. A.—A Christmas program will be given at the meeting at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the school. A tableau will be presented by the Mothers' chorus under the direction of Mrs. Laurence C. Mitchell. Tea will be served at the close of the program.

Mount Vernon P.-T. A.—Fathers' night will be observed at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the school. Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be presented by eighth grade pupils.

Raster P.-T. A.—The Raster Glee club will sing Christmas songs at the meeting at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school assembly hall.

Oglesby P.-T. A.—Grandparent's day will be celebrated at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A Christmas program and Christmas music will be given by pupils.

Kelly P.-T. A.—The meeting at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon will have a homemaking exhibit as a special feature.

NEW F-M CALL LETTERS TO GIVE POSITION ON DIAL

Locations of Stations Also to Be Indicated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Letters and figures are to be combined in the call letters for the new frequency modulation [F-M] stations under a system announced last week by the federal communications commission. These call letters will be so united to tell listeners the position of the F-M station on the tuning dial; whether it is east or west of the Mississippi river, and in many instances the city, or general area where it is located.

F-M broadcasting is the new system which reduces static to a minimum and results in high fidelity reception. W-G-N, Inc. was granted a permit to begin construction of an F-M station last week. The new station was tentatively assigned to operate with a frequency [wave length] of 45.9 megacycles [45,900 kilocycles].

Not Ready for 4 Months.

Construction of the new station, which will supplement the services of W-G-N, will be started at once on the 29th floor of Tribune Tower. It will not be ready for use for at least four months, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer has announced. Antennae will be mounted on the flagpole atop Tribune Tower. The topmost antenna arms will be placed 15 feet beneath the American flag.

In accordance with international agreements the prefixes "W" and "K" will be used to start F-M call letters, just as they have for years on standard broadcasting stations. "K" will indicate stations west of the Mississippi; "W", stations east.

Numerals in Call Letters.

The second and third characters of each F-M call will be numerals, the FCC has announced. These numerals will be the last two numbers of the assigned frequency [in megacycles]. These two numerals will indicate the position on the dial. After these two numerals will appear another letter, or letters, which will indicate in some abbreviated form the city or area in which a station is located, or which may be arbitrarily assigned.

The calls of Chicago F-M stations, are to end in "C." No other city will have "C" alone as an ending. Others will have an additional letter or letters after "C" to identify them.

Similarly, Boston calls will end in "B," New York calls in "NY" and District of Columbia calls in "DC."

Consider Special Requests.

All F-M allocations are being made between 42 and 50 megacycles. Assigned frequencies are not on even megacycles but on the odd tenths. For example, a station might be assigned to 46.3 meg; all the F-M frequencies are in the forties, thus "4" is valueless in locating a station. A station assigned to 46.3 meg. would have the last two numerals "63" appearing in its call.

Thus if the new W-G-N, Inc., F-M station were finally to be assigned the frequency of 45.9 megacycles, the figures "59," which would determine its dial position, would appear in its call letters. And its call, under the plan as announced last week, would become W59C.

The FCC has announced to broadcasters, however, that it will consider requests for special letter terminations for the new F-M calls.

GEORGE FISHER'S MOVIE WHISPERS COMING TO W-G-N

George Fisher and his Hollywood news, gossip and reviews of motion pictures will be heard on W-G-N Mutual from 11:30 to 11:45 a. m. beginning Tuesday, Dec. 17. The program will be on the air each Tuesday and Thursday thereafter. Beginning Jan. 2, it will be sponsored on W-G-N and 35 other stations of the Mutual network. Fisher's program, titled "Hollywood Whispers" will originate in the studios of KHJ, Los Angeles. Because he knows personally most of the Hollywood personalities, Fisher frequently arranges guest appearances of the stars.

Good Fellows

The low down on what Good Fellow children would like to receive is given by Santa to Griff Williams, Don Pedro (rear), and Art Kassell who are out to do their share in the annual Tribune drive. Don Pedro is regularly heard at 10:15 a. m. and the orchestras of Williams and Kassell each evening from the Stevens and Bismarck hotels, all over W-G-N.

Pageant of Art.

"The Age of Pericles," the third of a series of programs surveying art in the days of the Hellenic civilization, will be the Pageant of Art presentation at 3:30 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC.

CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Familiar Music to Feature W-G-N Program.

Songs by Marion Claire and a violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski will be the musical highlights of the opening broadcast of the Chicagoland concert hour to be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Light classical and familiar music will be presented on this new program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the concert hour. In so doing Col. McCormick will be renewing a custom he established last summer on the Sunday Symphonic hour. Henry Weber, who concluded his season's work yesterday as general director of the Chicago Opera company, will conduct the W-G-N orchestra.

The Chicagoland Concert hour replaces the Monday evening opera broadcasts which have been a musical highlight of the W-G-N schedule for the last five weeks.

Miss Claire's Songs.

Miss Claire, who sings the leading parts in W-G-N's Saturday night Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, will sing Musette's Waltz from "La Boheme," by Giacomo Puccini, for the first of her solos.

Wilkomirski will play "Romance," by Johann Svendsen, famed Scandinavian composer. Wilkomirski is concertmeister for the orchestra.

Orchestra's Selections.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra will open the program with a presentation of the "Gypsy Baron" overture by Johann Strauss, and also will play Manuel DeFalla's Dance Espagnole No. 1, and "Dances from Coppelia," by Delibes.

Chicagoland Concert programs will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary will be written by Cecil Smith of the Tribune music and drama department.

FROZEN TERROR IS CONQUERED BY PETER QUILL

A fantastic tale of a town in which the temperature inexplicably drops to 80 degrees below zero, disrupting communications, finally cutting the limited area off from the world will be told on the "Peter Quill" drama for today. This episode titled "The Frozen Terror" will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Informed of the town's plight, Peter Quill, wizard of the scientific laboratories, flies over the area with Gail Carson and Capt. Roger Dorn to investigate. As a preliminary measure Quill scatters coal dust on the frozen ground which absorbs warmth from the sun, relieving the intense cold.

What is apparently a meteorological phenomenon turns out to be an "isothermic devitalizer," a mysterious freezing device, which has run amuck.

Christmas Spirit at W-G-N

W-G-N WISHING WELL FULFILLS DREAMS OF FANS

2,000 Tell Their Wishes Every Week.

Thruout the ages people have been making wishes, relying on such props as wishbones, new moons, white horses, and even the stars to make their dreams come true. Of late some 2,000 persons each week have been making known their special desires to the W-G-N Wishing Well program conducted by Mary Paxton.

Many have had their wishes come true and have now abandoned the other vehicles that are believed to help. The loop store sponsoring Miss Paxton's program each week receives an astonishing array of personal heart's desires.

Seeks Week's Profits.

Miss Paxton satisfies only those wishes which can be granted by dipping into the stocks of the store. Mink coats, sewing machines, draperies, mirrors, pajamas, and an evening dress "suitable for the Hawaiian Islands" are typical of the gifts sought by Chicagolanders every week.

"Some one wrote in the other morning," said Miss Paxton, "and asked for a week's profits of the store." She passed that one up. She had to turn down a request, too, for a chicken farm.

One woman in her letter stated that it had been so long since she received a personal gift that she was beginning to wonder whether she was a person of a house. She wished for an "amusing" hat. She received an astonishing chapeau in black, adorned with red poppies.

Tell Wishes in Letters.

Wishes are asked to tell about their desires in a letter to Miss Paxton. They are also invited to describe these items adequately. Miss Paxton reads all the letters and decides which wish shall be granted.

The Wishing Well is aired at 8:45 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9 a. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

NEW ENGINEER DEFENSE STUDY TO START JAN. 6

Illinois Tech Will Train Classes Free.

Registration is now being taken for the engineering defense training program to open at the Illinois Institute of Technology on Jan. 6. Official registration days will be Jan. 2 to 4, inclusive. Present plans include 16 subjects which will be given by the institute for the Chicago and northern Indiana industrial areas. The courses, given in evening classes, are tuition-free and on college level.

Among subjects to be offered are: tools and testing equipment, tool and fixture design, drafting and elementary design, strength of materials and steel design, machine design, design of bombproof shelters, Diesel engines, and metallurgy.

Not Trade Courses.

The courses will last 15 weeks and will include two three-hour class periods each week. Any one with basic engineering training or who holds an engineering degree is eligible to enter the courses. A basic technical training may be considered adequate in some cases. An individual's ability to handle the work taught will be the principal requirement for registration.

H. T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology [the merged Armour institute and Lewis institute], announced the part the school would take in the national defense program in publicizing the registration days.

For Specific Jobs.

Prof. J. B. Finnegan, the institute's engineering defense training director, says, "the objective of these defense courses is to provide educational training upon a college level to meet the shortage of engineers with specialized training in fields essential to the national defense industrial program. Completion of a specific course will qualify the trainee for immediate entrance to industry for a specific defense job. The institute does not guarantee employment, however.

ROSE BAMPTON TO BE SOLOIST TODAY WITH ANDRE KOSTELANETZ

Rose Bampton the American soprano will be guest artist with Andre Kostelanetz and his 45 piece orchestra in the third presentation of his new weekly series over WBBM-CBS at 3:30 p. m. Miss Bampton, whose introductory selection is to be "The Old Refrain," also will sing "Annie Laurie," with a violin obbligato accompaniment played by Albert Spaulding. Mr. Spaulding also is the commentator for this program.

Rose Bampton.

'ROSE MARIE' ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT SATURDAY

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Rudolf Friml's operetta, "Rose Marie" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N-Mutual. Marion Claire and Robert Weede, outstanding personalities of radio and opera, will take the leading singing rôles. Miss Claire is featured in the leading feminine rôle in all these operettas.

Mr. Weede made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1937 and has been featured with the Chicago Opera. "Rose Marie," a romantic story of the Canadian Rockies, was first presented in 1924. It has been a perennial favorite since then.

It includes several songs of haunting loveliness, "Rose Marie, I Love You" and the "Indian Love Call" among them. William A. Bacher will produce "Rose Marie" and Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

Fur Fashion Show.

The Oir-Chodosh sisterhood will hold a fur fashion show at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the community center at 702-704 Englewood avenue.

CLAUDE RAINS TO PLAY SCROOGE ON W-G-N THURSDAY

Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actors, will play the rôle of Scrooge in the special adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," to be heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program.

Claude Rains.

Rains will make a special trip from his farm in Cheyney, in the Brandywine district of Pennsylvania, to appear on the program. A star cast of Chicago radio actors, under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, will support Rains.

Such character rôles as the crafty King John in "Robin Hood," the cruel Louis Napoleon in "Juarez," the wistful father in "Four Daughters," and the high handed Spanish ambassador in "Sea Hawk" have won Rains great acclaim with moviegoers. His latest film, not yet released, is Warner Brothers production, "Four Mothers."

Rains was born in England just a half-century ago. He made his debut on the London stage in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the age of 11.

After a session of world travel, Rains came to the New York stage, where he came to the attention of Hollywood. His first film feature rôle was in "The Invisible Man." Between pictures, he hurries back to his rolling and peaceful farmland, where he enjoys his simple designation as Farmer Rains.

Another English stage notable will be starred on In Chicago Tonight on the program following Rains' appearance. On Dec. 26, Anna Neagle, titian-haired Briton, will be heard in an adaptation of her latest movie, "No, No Nanette."

Tender Made Ham
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
THE HAM YOU CUT WITH A FORK

For delicious mellow ham flavor and a tenderness that makes it literally melt in the mouth, no ham of modern times compares with Wilson's Tender Made HAM. It is preferred by thousands whenever some occasion demands the finest of the fine.

Yet Wilson's genuine Tender Made HAM is not extravagant. That's because it does not melt away in the oven. Due to Wilson's Secret Process this costly waste is ended. Therefore, a smaller Tender Made HAM will serve just as many people, at practically the same cost, as an ordinary ham.

See the dealer listed here who features Tender Made HAM in your vicinity. Ask for it by name and enjoy America's finest.

Choose a Gift With PERMANENT VALUE!
Think of values, both sentimental and practical, in terms of years . . . of lifetimes. Think of the delight in giving and receiving a fine new home. Then, consider the extra value of a residence at Inverness.
In this protected community, this 1484-acre tract of rolling countryside just south of Barrington, you may buy a home including these features—
- More than 1 acre of ground on your 18-hole golf course . . . just like a 100-acre lawn which someone else maintains.
- Beautiful Monterey architecture plus best of construction.
- 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 fireplaces, large screened porch off both living and dining rooms.
- 2 car attached garage, all utilities . . . $104 monthly payments include int., princ., taxes, insurance.
- A saving of $1500 as against building today because contract was awarded before recent price increase.

Think of this opportunity, which is a real one. Inspect the home this weekend; drive out N. W. highway [Rt. 12] to Inverness' 4-silo office about a mile south of Dundee Rd.

MONEY TO LOAN

We are in the market for Loans on Chicago and suburban real estate. Completed buildings or to be constructed. Also FHA loans.

HEITMAN TRUST CO.

3d Floor Otis Bldg.
10 S. La Salle-street, Chicago.
FRANKLIN 2400.

WE JUST COMPLETED A $12,000 LOAN after a 2 years court fight by the lawyers. Thus we paid off a $40,000 bond issue and 9 years back taxes. Our client is quite happy now—we, too.
We have the men, means and money to solve tough mortgage problems and are anxious to help you, too.
We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartments, store and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property and to close estates.
If even our top loans won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Low rates.
PEOPLE'S MORTGAGE CORPORATION, 1976 MILWAUKEE-AV. BRUNSWICK 6200. Tuesday and Thursday open until 8 p. m.

ERNEST OWERS Deceased

PURSUANT to an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice dated the 30th day of May 1940 and made in an Action "In the Matter of the Estate of Ernest Owers deceased late of The Metropole Hotel Brighton in the County of Sussex] The Public Trustee and another against Death and another 1940, O. 189" whereby the following inquiry was directed viz:

"[1] An Inquiry whether Frank Stewart [or Stuart] Lavarack [the nephew of the Testator Ernest Owers] who died on 16th March 1922 died without leaving any issue who survived the Testator."

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all persons claiming to be entitled under the said inquiry are to send by post prepaid to Mr. Frederick William Lewsey [a member of the firm of Merton Jones, Lewsey & Jefferies] of 9-12 Basinghall Street, London, E. C. 2. England so as to reach that address in the ordinary course of post on or before the 15th January 1941 their full Christian and Surnames addresses and descriptions and full particulars of their claims or in default thereof they will be excluded from the benefit of the said Order unless the Court or Judge on application otherwise orders. Wednesday the 29th day of January, 1941 at 12 o'clock noon is the time appointed for adjudicating upon the claims before Master H. W. Jelf at the Chambers of the Judge Room No. 157 Royal Courts of Justice Strand London England.

A claimant not residing in England or Wales must send with particulars of his claim the name and address of a person in England or Wales to whom notices to the claimant can be sent.

DATED this 7th day of November, 1940.
HERBERT W. JELF
Master

Note:
The said Frank Stewart [or Stuart] Lavarack is believed to have married one named Grace Benedict at Boston [Massachusetts or Texas] in the United States of America and to have resided there from the year 1908 to the year 1912.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

See End of Bad Grade Crossing

The national defense program has aroused hop es for an early construction of a grade separation to eliminate this busy railroad crossing in front of the Great Lakes Naval Training station in North Chicago.

NORTH CHICAGO'S GRADE CROSSING STILL A MENACE

BY HAL FOUST.

North Chicago, in Lake county, hopes that the new emphasis on so-called national defense highway construction will give this lake shore town a long sought grade separation. The structure would eliminate the Sheridan road crossing of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks in front of the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Civic groups of the north shore have sought for two decades to eliminate this grade crossing. It is a dangerous bottleneck for suburban and north shore recreational travel. Sheridan road, with a traffic of 4,000 vehicles a day, makes two right angle turns to cross eight tracks with a traffic of 100 trains a day. Two watchmen are on duty to prevent accidents but they can't prevent the blockades of motor cars, especially bad during summer week-ends.

"We now believe," Ald. Guy O. Lunn of North Chicago said last week "that the value of this grade separation to the naval training station will end the long delay in bringing about the construction. Government authorities are insisting that road building shall concentrate upon access facilities for military and naval institutions."

The plan involves a relocation of Sheridan road [Ill. 42] pavement and of trackage of the North Shore interurban and the Short Line street cars. Ald. Lunn said that much of the delay has been due to a dispute over the location of a single side track.

The alderman said that a substitution of buses for the street cars is awaiting an outcome of this track relocation. And in Waukegan the paving of Genesee street, he said, is being held up pending the switch from street cars to buses.

Splashy Season Is Here; Let's Be Considerate, Auto Drivers

BY HAL FOUST.

This is the season of splashes and splatters. For the next three months pavements will be wet much of the time with slush, snow, and melted ice. It's a nuisance unavoidable in this climate. However, there are some ordinary courtesies that will relieve the annoyances.

The most exasperating traffic incident typical of this season is the experience of a pedestrian showered with dirty water by a passing car while he is waiting on the curb to cross the street. Even cultured women have been heard to mutter ugly words on such occasions.

The driver may deserve these bad words. All good motorists try to avoid splattering pedestrians, but there is also a chance that he is blameless; that the unclean shower was a pure accident. In heavy traffic a driver can't swerve or brake suddenly without a risk of a more serious accident. He may not have seen the puddle in time to do anything about it except to be sorry.

Do Unto Others.

I've been on both ends of such splash accidents. The receiving end arouses anger. The driver end is cleaner, but the mishap is regretted nonetheless. Without having to learn from a wet experience, accept this advice not to stand on the curb near a puddle in the street. And, while driving, use foresight and forethought, as well as ordinary consideration.

Drivers can avoid splashing each other. It's a pleasure to see two cars approaching a pool from opposite directions, each slackening its speed so as not to splatter the other. The drivers exchange a wave of thanks.

Sometimes, however, one driver slackens his speed and the other does not. The courteous motorist is showered with dirty water. The discourteous motorist's car remains clean, but it's hoped that his conscience is muddied.

Some More Annoyances.

Ranking with the careless splasher of pedestrians is the motorist who overtakes and passes a car that is slowing down for a puddle. We hope the water kills the engine of such a rascal.

Another annoyance common at this season is the dirty windshield. Sometimes the glass is sprayed enough to impair visibility every few miles of traffic driving. It's dangerous to continue with this obstruction to the view. We keep tissue in the glove compartment for wiping the glass.

On the highways some of the large trucks lack spray shields for their rear tires. This lack of consideration for other users of the road creates ill will against the lumbering vans.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

COPPER ASPIRANT.

Maywood, Ill., Dec. 8.—I hope you will print this letter in answer to the recent article by Hal Foust in the Tribune's Sunday Auto section. There is absolutely no reason for the motorists of this state to become alarmed over the prospect of a change in the personnel of the state police. Please don't speak of the coming of the administration of Dwight Green in the same breath with the passing of the rotten mess of Horner and Stelle. One doesn't speak of roses and garbage when telling about his new home.

When you tell of the change in the state police of eight years ago you speak the truth. Men who had no education, could not speak English, read or write, men in bad physical and mental condition, and last but most important of all, an ex-convict. This last statement I make is from an article in THE TRIBUNE of about one year ago. There is a picture of the New Deal in this state and that is why the people of Illinois elected an honest American, Dwight H. Green. You say the shake down racket has been done away with. Either you are blind to the truth or an unmitigated liar. About five months ago some friends of mine were traveling along the Skokie Valley highway near the state line, they were stoped and in the conversation that followed the driver was told that it could be fixed up for a "saw buck," using the officers own words. When the driver insisted on being taken to the station the officer rode away and was not seen again. If any one wishes to question this statement, I can get the driver and passengers of the car to back me up.

I have a personal reason also for taking offense to your article for I hope to become a state police officer in the near future and I hope that I have the qualifications for the job. I have had two years of college, that alone should enable one to speak, read, and write well enough to write out a summons or have some knowledge of the law. Twenty-eight years of age isn't too old, either, six feet one inch isn't too short and 200 pounds isn't too heavy. Two years of military training gives one the ability to handle all types of firearms, know something about first aid, and get used to wearing a uniform so the feeling of authority wouldn't unbalance even a newspaper writers feeble brain who writes articles such as the one by a Mr. Hal Foust. G. B.

OUTER DRIVE POLICE.

Marshall, Mich., Dec. 10.—On Monday morning about 2:40 a. m., Chicago park police squad car No. 382 pulled into the Outer drive from a side drive south of Foster avenue without slowing down. They evidently miscalculated the speed of the car just ahead as they followed him for about four blocks riding on the left side of the street so as to stay out of line of his rear view mirror. The squad car had only one fender light burning and no tail light.

Since when have the police been practicing a black out of their neon signs?

While driving into the south park area you can always find a squad car in the neighborhood of 31st street. They sit on top of the overhead bridge, parked on the wrong side of the street with their lights out, waiting for some poor sucker.

In Jackson park about 3:13 a. m., a squad car came racing around that sharp bend at 69th street and the lake without any lights burning. After I flashed them eight or nine times, they finally responded to the signal.

These men are placed on the streets to protect the people of this city but fail to obey the rules and regulations that they are supposed to enforce.

NEWS AND VIEWS

James Sherburne, Evanston Township High school junior, was the winner in an essay competition sponsored by the Hudson automobile dealer organization in the Chicago area. Sherburne, who resides at 535 Hinman avenue, was given $200 for his essay discussing the safety qualities of the Hudson. Further, his winning first prize resulted in the payment of an additional $100 to the school's athletic fund. Sherburne is saving the money for college.

Details of the competition were announced over station W-G-N by Billy Repaid, Hudson news commentator, who broadcasts at 9 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Several thousand high school students in the Chicago area submitted entries for the prizes which totaled $500. W. E. Butler, president Butler Motors, Inc., Chicago area Hudson distributor, and O. H. Baehler, manager, handled the details.

Al Wenzel has been elected president of the De Soto Dealers association, composed of De Soto and Plymouth dealers in the Chicago district. Bernard Burke was made vice president and Art Rowe secretary treasurer.

Studebaker's dealer organization is promoting its annual "Keys to Happiness" campaign in connection with the Christmas holiday. The object is to help persons planning to give Studebakers for Christmas to make their gifts a surprise. Each buyer is given a jewel case containing the keys to a new car. The case is hung on the Christmas tree. Delivery of the car is made at the specified hour on Christmas.

Guy Nonenmacher, who was associated for 28 years with the late Walter P. Chrysler, has been appointed special assistant to the president of the Chrysler corporation, K. T. Keller announces. Nonenmacher will have his office in the company's executive office building at Detroit where he will assist Keller in the corporation's activities.

D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager for Pontiac, reports that this is by far the best used car year Pontiac dealers have ever had. For every 100 used cars they sold in 1939, he said, they have sold 137 this year.

Evanston High Student Wins Prize

James Sherburne, 535 Hinman avenue, receives the $200 award for winning essay in competition sponsored by Hudson automobile dealers in the Chicago area. He is a student at the Evanston Township High school. Left to right: W. E. Butler, president, Butler Motors, Inc.; Francis L. Bacon, superintendent, Evanston High; Sherburne; O. H. Baehler, manager, Butler Motors, and Charles L. Mitchell, Harrington Motors, Evanston Hudson distributor. Details of the contest were announced by Billy Rapid over station W-G-N.

Christmas shopping is so much easier when you begin it in your easy chair...

Well begun is half done

(ANCIENT PROVERB)

Your easy chair . . . a few minutes of your time . . . and a copy of the Chicago Tribune. This is the combination which can save you hours when you go Christmas shopping. It can help you get the utmost value from every dollar you spend. It can help you get just the right gift for every one on your list. It can give you assurance that you will overlook no worthwhile value available in the stores. Here are the reasons why:

Because the Tribune has so much more circulation than other Chicago newspapers, Chicago stores place more advertising in the Tribune than in any other medium.

As a result, in the Tribune you will find the most comprehensive display of gift collections—complete with pictures, descriptions and prices. It is the newspaper to follow for original gift ideas in all price ranges. No matter how little you may have to spend—regardless of how many gifts your budget must include—you will find the Tribune a helpful guide.

To make the most of your shopping time and money, take advantage of the buying assistance which Chicago stores extend to you in the Tribune every day of the week.

FOR LEISURELY SHOPPING, START EARLY!

To make your shopping pleasant and satisfactory this season, Chicago stores have made more extensive preparations than ever before.

Their well chosen gift collections provide an array of values which makes it easy to choose for men, women and children of all ages and tastes.

In order to help you select just the gifts you want at the prices you want to pay, the stores have added extra sales people and extra facilities.

To enjoy the full benefit of these special preparations in your behalf, start shopping early in the morning. Then store traffic is lightest and sales people can give you the prompt, courteous and helpful attention which the stores want you to have.

Take your Tribune along with you on your way to the stores. The suggestions you will find in it will help you save both shopping time and money.

Gift Suggestions from the Stars

Discovered! A movie actress who likes to cook! At least such is the impression one receives from a glance at Rita Hayworth's list of items she wants for Christmas. They're bulky articles, not to be casually tucked into a stocking: A refrigerator and an electric range.

Rosemary Lane, capable young actress and vocalist, is also an equestrienne, and her Christmas gift hopes are concerned with a silver-studded saddle for her recently acquired riding horse. It's certain one of the dark-haired actress' sisters or an admirer will whisper this suggestion into Santa's ear.

That masterful man of the films, Errol Flynn, might be expected to request a dagger or spear for Christmas, and the star of "The Sea Hawk" doesn't disappoint us, for he has asked Santa Claus for a spear and goggles for goggle fishing, of all things, because he's a sportsman as well as movie hero. Another of his enthusiasms is sailboating.

Mickey Rooney, who leads as exciting a life as any young fellow possibly could, shows in his Christmas list that his leisure time pursuits are varied. An illustration of this versatility is the leading item on Mickey's order to Santa Claus, a new putter for his set of golf clubs. In second place is a trombone, to express his musical nature.

Ginny Simms, songstress and movie player, makes an unusual request of Santa: A tank of tropical fish and instructions on caring for them.

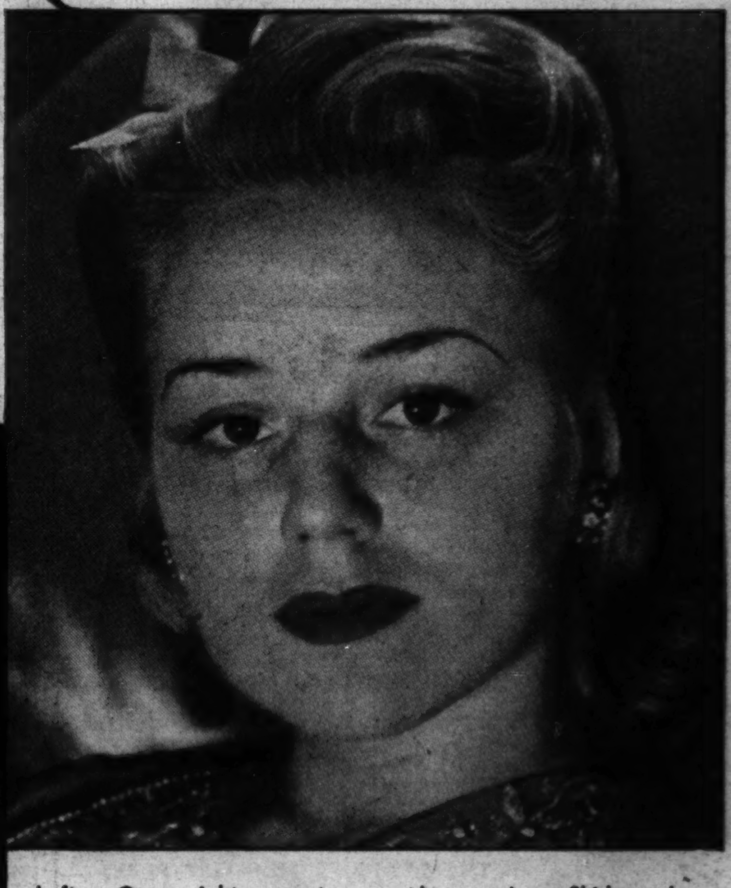
Jimmy Stewart, male lead in "No Time for Comedy," and a very dashing fellow in real life as well as on the screen, has a long list of Christmas wishes. First of all, will Santa please oblige with an aviator's wrist watch? For the stay-at-home Jimmy his friends might provide a roomy lounge chair and some truly comfortable house slippers. Other suggestions are a reading lamp and a portable radio-phonograph combination. Jimmy's gift ideas are modest enough, altho plentiful enough, aren't they? But such a popular fellow must be a pal of Santa's!



Left: One might expect blonde and fragile looking Anita Louise to base her holiday gift hopes on something dainty and inconsequential, altho expensive, but this lovely movie star proves herself to be an art connoisseur in asking for hunting prints for the den of her new home. Miss Louise's gift order should be simple for Santa Claus to fill.

Above: Anne Shirley, who looks as dainty and womanly as she is, makes a typically feminine suggestion to St. Nicholas. What she wishes to find under her Christmas tree on the morning of Dec. 25 is a complete dresser set in block crystal, including tray, powder box, cream jars, and all the other gadgets which help to achieve perfect grooming.

'New Pins and Needles' Revue Opens Tuesday Evening

Popular Prices to Prevail for Union Musical

By Cecil Smith.

It would be natural to suppose that a revue staged by members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union would, at best, scarcely attain more than creditable amateur status. But when "Pins and Needles," staged by the union under the producing auspices of a new organization called Labor Stage, Inc., visited Chicago in the spring of 1938, seasoned playgoers were surprised to be confronted by a witty, well produced entertainment which, tho lacking in stellar talent, successfully maintained a professional level of interest.

It would be equally natural to infer from the mere fact of union sponsorship that a revue produced by Labor Stage, Inc., would sag heavily under the weight of political and economic partisanship, and that its ideas would be enjoyable only to those educated in the inner workings of unionism. In contrast to this false presupposition, the material of the 1938 "Pins and Needles" was marked by a poised and adult social attitude. While it did not lean over backwards, certainly, to slap any economic royalists on the back, neither was it wanting in willingness to make sport of the point of view of labor. With only one or two exceptions, the songs and skits were motivated by a desire to create intelligent and amusing entertainment, and not to do any high powered axe grinding in the realm of "social consciousness."

• • •

All this, as you have guessed long ago, serves as a foreword to the forthcoming première of "New Pins and Needles" at the Studebaker theater on Tuesday evening. Not having seen the second edition of the revue, I can offer no dependable preview. But it is quite safe to assume that the balanced and attractive attitude of the original edition has been preserved. Labor Stage, Inc., is wise enough to know that nobody alive in 1940 can possibly lack some degree of personal "social consciousness." There is no need to belabor a point of view, the inevitability of which has been established by circumstances and, in principle, accepted to a large degree by the entire American nation.

Even to those who missed the first "Pins and Needles," the revue's preoccupation with the interests of the average man in a democracy will be quite familiar, for this is also essentially the preoccupation of "Meet the People," which, whether it admits the fact or not, is constructed along lines suggested by "Pins and Needles."

With the exception of the popular "Sunday in the Park" number, no material from the first "Pins and Needles" has been retained in the second edition. The skits direct pointed topical satire in various directions—at Clifford Odets' plays in "Paradise Mislaid" [one of Mr. Odets' least successful plays is entitled "Paradise Lost"]; at communism in "The Red Mikado"; at fifth columnism in "The Harmony Boys," and, with exemplary openmindedness, at unionism in "Bertha the Sewing Machine Girl, Or, It's Better with a Union Man."

• • •

The music of "New Pins and Needles" was composed by that gifted popular musician, Harold J. Rome, whose scores for the original "Pins and Needles" and "Sing Out the News" possessed altogether uncommon distinction. The lyrics are also Mr. Rome's, while Joseph Schrank wrote the sketches.

"New Pins and Needles" played for 10 months in New York, and fared forth onto the road after closing at the Windsor theater in June. The names of the players will not necessarily strike a responsive chord in the memory even of those who saw the first Labor Stage revue in 1938, for it has never been "Pins and Needles" policy to exploit individual players at the expense of the group as a whole. It may be, however, that the forthcoming engagement will establish more firmly in mind the names of Harry Clark, Berni Gould, Millie Weitz, Dorothy Harrison, and Ella Gerber, who are listed as the principal players.

Not the least remarkable feature of "New Pins and Needles" is its determination to keep prices at a popular level. A top scale of $1 will prevail at all times except on Saturday, Sunday and holiday evenings, when the top will be advanced to $1.50. Even on New Year's eve the price will not be allowed to go higher than this.

BARITONE IN 'DU BARRY'

Introducing some of Cole Porter's best tunes in "Du Barry Was a Lady" is Ronald Graham, an English baritone. The musical comedy arrives at the Erlanger theater next Sunday night.
[Lucas and Monroe Photo.]

Drama Notes

Next Sunday's drama section will provide a full dossier of data upon the inviting subject of "Du Barry Was a Lady," the glittering and sophisticated musical comedy opening at the Erlanger theater a week from tonight. Bert Lahr, the incomparable comedian, will be seen as a night club washroom attendant who is transported in dreams to the time and place of Louis XV., thru the effects of a Mickey Finn. The court of Louis XV., of course, would not be itself without that notorious and beautiful courtesan, the countess Du Barry, and it is Frances Williams who impersonates this lady of reputation. Other important players, vocal and comic, are Benny Baker, Oscar Ragland, Ronald Graham, and Walter Armin. B. G. De Sylva, the producer, has dressed up "Du Barry Was a Lady" handsomely and expensively, and Cole Porter has supplied the tunes. The book, both dirty and funny, was written by Mr. De Sylva and Herbert Fields. The designs are the work of the gifted Raoul Pène Du Bois.

Since the first day of their tour, Nov. 4, in Ottawa, Canada, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have greeted audiences of absolute capacity at every performance in every theater in which they have played. For last week's performances in Detroit, at the Cass theater, every seat was sold within a little more than 24 hours after tickets were placed on sale. Consequently, it is a safe guess that we do not need to make any special attempt to arouse Chicago's interest in Robert E. Sherwood's timely play. Rather let this paragraph be a warning: The drama will remain at the Grand Opera house from Dec. 26 to Jan. 18 only. Therefore this department breaks an honored precedent proscribing mention of such mundane things as ticket sales, and urges its readers to purchase locations early. Subscribers to the Theater guild and the American Theater society will be taken care of in the two weeks from Thursday, Dec. 26, to Wednesday, Jan. 8. At the close of the Chicago engagement on Jan. 18, "There Shall Be No Night," will work westward, opening at the Curran theater in San Francisco on Feb. 11.

James Hargis Connelly and his players will present Lulu Vollmer's "Sun-Up" in a single performance at Kimball hall Tuesday evening. The production is directed by Mr. Connelly, who is also well known for his work as a photographer, and will feature Eva Fitz-Gerald as Ma Cagle.

This is the last week for "Meet the People" at the Grand Opera house. Out in Hollywood its producers, the Hollywood Theater alliance, are inaugurating the activity of their new Music council with a program of ancient and modern chamber music, presented under the special scrutiny of Henry Blankfort, executive director of the alliance. The program includes the world première of a suite for string quartet by Sol Kaplan, a musical gas station attendant discovered by Jerome Kern.

Ruth Gordon, the scintillant star of "Here Today," at the Selwyn theater, is the only American actress ever invited to play at the historic Old Vic in London. British playgoers lifted an eyebrow when it was announced that Miss Gordon would play there in a revival of Wycherly's Restoration comedy, "The Country Wife." But London's wonderment quickly changed to tremendous admiration for her superb gifts, and "The Country Wife" proceeded to break all the Old Vic's records for long runs and attendance. The demand for tickets was so great that advertisments, offering a bonus, were inserted in the "personal" columns of the London newspapers. Next Saturday evening, by the way, Miss Gordon celebrates her 25th anniversary on the stage.

From a reliable source, we gather that "Hellzapoppin'," with Olsen and Johnson, will leave New York in early February, and come to Chicago around the middle of March. This is said to be a definite schedule this time.

Ruth Chatterton's admirable performance in "Pygmalion" will be seen for one week more at the Erlanger theater, before moving on to Milwaukee for a Christmas night opening there. Other midwestern cities will follow and then a cross-country trip to the Pacific coast. During the final week at the Erlanger theater the management of "Pygmalion" will continue its unusual hospitality to school groups. Any such groups interested in the backstage workings of a professional dramatic production may arrange to be shown the stage mechanisms of "Pygmalion," including the fog machine which is used in the opening scene. Any group wishing to make a backstage tour should communicate with Jus Addiss, director of the production, at the Erlanger theater.

Molnar's Play Is Too Delicate for Broadway

By Burns Mantle.

New York [Special].—If there were not so many more serious things to worry about, we might grieve a little over the plight of our more distinguished refugees—personages of great account in the old world who find themselves detached and unhappy in this new world.

Among them is Ferenc Molnar, playwright, late of Budapest, Hungary, and now of a New York hotel and of such tucked away cafés as he has been able to find and to accept because of their foreign atmosphere. Herr Molnar has been with us the better part of a year. At 62 he has not found readjustment easy. Nor can he settle down to work. Since he has been in America he has moodily looked in upon rehearsals of his "Liliom," the time Vinton Freedley revived it with Burgess Meredith in the name part, and he has tried to rewrite one of his own one-act comedies, called "The Pastry Baker's Wife," into a two-act comedy which now bears the title of "Delicate Story." He is also doing a rewriting job for Michael Todd on "The Man from Cairo."

• • •

The "Delicate Story" item, having been translated into English by Gilbert Miller, was produced last week by Mr. Miller with Edna Best in the chief part and with Vinton Freedley as an associate producer. Again the result cannot have been particularly cheering to Herr Molnar, because, for all its fine production and excellent performance, "Delicate Story" proved a little too delicate to enthuse our playgoers and play reviewers.

It has, however, provided a good chance for Miss Best to exude some portion of the charm that has made her an attractive actress these many years—too many of them recently spent in Hollywood. Being rather desperately shy on charm in the theater at the moment, the return of Miss Best is welcome.

The important news about a biographical drama called "Romantic Mr Dickens" is that Diana Barrymore, 19 year old daughter of John Barrymore and Michael Strange, makes her New York debut in it. And rather successfully, altho the play fails her.

Diana has been doing quite a bit of practicing here and there. She played several weeks at Walter Hartwig's theater in Ogunquit last summer, and Mr. Hartwig has advised me privately that he thinks one day she may prove the best actress of all the Barrymore ladies.

Now, of course, she is little more than a pleasing ingenue, with beauty of face and figure and a confident poise to help her. But there is also a suggestion of power back of what she does that may be developed, and personality appeal that would help.

• • •

"Romantic Mr. Dickens" stems from certain love letters recently released for publication, so to speak, by Charles Dickens' near of kin. H. H. and Marguerite Harper have undertaken to build love life for the young author before he grew a beard and acquired fame and an international public. Dickens, in the play, was greatly in love with Dora Spenlow in his garret days and only gave her up when her father threatened his arrest and she insisted on protecting his career.

Not much other news along the rialto. "Tobacco Road" began its eighth year the other night with a special performance in which a different actor played Jeeter Lester each act — Charles Timblin of the road troupe, the first act, Will Geer, the current incumbent, the second act, and James Barton, the record Jeeter, the third act. Happily, I was engaged elsewhere and could not go, but a full house and much applause were reported. The play has been stringing along to a small profit at dollar-top prices and may run forever. Now that New York has Sunday night dramatic shows its business may even improve.

Guild Adds 2 Plays.

The Theater Guild, currently rehearsing Tennessee Williams' "Battle of Angels," starring Miriam Hopkins, will follow that production with Leslie Reade's "Love in Time" and Philip Barry's "Liberty Jones." Raymond Massey will head the cast of the Reade play.

Chicago Cafes Importing New Talent for Their Holiday Shows

By Will Davidson.

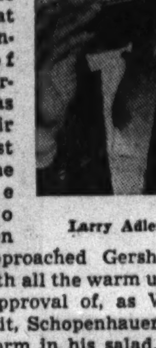
There's a lull in our night life, but not for long. Somebody from the bistro belt got up early one day, by mistake, discovered the Christmas shopping crowds, and passed the word around that a bit of window dressing would not be amiss. Now look:

Chez Paree will import Jane Froman, dark and beautiful and a very talented singer, for its Christmas eve show. With her comes Lou Breese and his familiar band, due for a fond welcome. Joe E. Lewis, who, incidentally, hits a new high in the ridiculous with his hilarious song, "The H. V. Kaltenborn Blues," will hitch up the pants that Sam made too long and stick around for another seven week trick.

Hotel Sherman's revivals continue with the return on New Year's eve of Gene Krupa; the King's Jesters and Queen Mary Ruth Milam return to the Blue Fountain room of Hotel La Salle tomorrow night; Mike Todd will introduce to Chicago the unique comedy of A. Robins on Christmas night when he opens his Theater Restaurant; Richard Himber comes into the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday night, and Dick Jurgens returns to Aragon ballroom, and Lawrence Welk to Trianon on Christmas. And probably a lot more.

• • •

Three merry men of music, each something of a virtuoso and each blessed with a whimsical soul, are giving Chicago a type of entertainment it all too seldom gets. It is quite possible that serious critics of serious music night shudder at some of their interpretations of what are generally accepted as classics. Fair enough. The rest of us did some major league shuddering two weeks ago when symphonists approached Gershwin's masterpieces with all the warm understanding and approval of, as Wodehouse once put it, Schopenhauer contemplating a worm in his salad.



Larry Adler.

The gents in question are Matty Malneck, Larry Adler, and Raymond Scott. Malneck is current king of the Pump room, and his Sunday afternoon concerts are gems of imaginative treatment. It sounds slightly grotesque to say that his Anvil Chorus includes blithe passages from "Yah, Yah, Said the Little Fox," yet such is the case, and it is stupendous.

Working with Matty at the Pump room and with Fats Waller and Bob Zurke in the Panther room of Hotel Sherman, Adler has much the same approach to serious music. His humor is more brittle, and, like his own serious moods, more scintillating. To get what he gets out of a harmonica is a rare art.

Ray Scott is a warmhearted, friendly sort of table companion over at the Blackhawk, and he's that sort of musician. There's a fragile humor about "Do You Pamper Your Husband at Night?" but when it is correctly presented there's a diabolical bit of degeneracy about it, too. Scott's arrangements are as imaginative as his song titles, and usually tied closely to topics of interest. For example, he's just breaking in "When Cootie Left the Duke," a mournful bit of grand arranging celebrating the departure of Cootie Williams and his famous trumpet from Duke Ellington's band.

Vaudeville

The Chicago theater's stage show for the week headlines Kitty Carlisle, attractive songstress of the films, stage, and night clubs. Supporting players are Johnny Burke, veteran comedian who recites his famous experiences as a fictitious rookie in the 1917 draft; Hubert Castle, tight-wire star; the comedy dancing trio of De Val, Merle and Lee; the novelty adagio act of Harold and Lola, and the theater's ballet.

At the Oriental theater an unseasonal "Night in Hawaii" revue holds the stage, offering songs and dances of the Pacific islands.

Will Osborne, crooner and band leader, is at the State-Lake theater with his orchestra. With him are Dick [Stinky] Rogers, Dale Jones, Peggy Lee, Kirk and Clayton. Chaz Chase, fire eating comedian, is an added stage attraction.

Marion Morgan, Russell Trent, Buster Lorenzo, Rita de Vere, Dorothy Lawrence, and Bobby Vail are only a few of the host of stage performers at the Rialto theater.

Combined Concert.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, will join forces with a part of the Chicago Symphony, celebrating its Golden Jubilee, for a concert on Feb. 1, 1941. Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony, will direct the program, which will feature his own composition, Symphonic Waltzes.

Christmas Programs Highlight City's Music Calendar

Symphony Will Present Three Yule Concerts

By Edward Barry.

The gentle influence of the Christmas season is plainly to be seen in Chicago's music calendar for the next two weeks. There are to be three special Christmas concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra with assisting chorus and soloists, three downtown performances of Handel's "Messiah," and a presentation of Humperdinck's traditional holiday opera, "Hansel and Gretel." This is in addition to many miscellaneous observances of the season which have been and will be noted in this and other sections.

Next Tuesday afternoon, and again Thursday night and Friday afternoon, Frederick Stock will conduct performances of Gabriel Pierné's "The Children at Bethlehem," a mystery [here meaning an oratorio or sacred cantata with some narrative elements] in two parts. Four hundred school children will make up the chorus. They have been recruited thru the instrumentality of Helen Howe, director of music of the Chicago board of education, and have been trained by district supervisors of the school system and by Dr. Stock himself. Besides the 400 on the stage, there will be an additional group of 50 voices to be known as the celestial choir and to sing, presumably, from the backstage recesses of Orchestra hall or from its gallery.

The soloists, and the rôles they will take in the performance of the mystery, are as follows: Lydia Summers, the Virgin; Dorothy Kirsten, the Star; Agatha Lewis, Jeannette; Ella Steele, Nicholas; Henrietta Chase, Lubin; Bruce Foote, the Ox; LeRoy Hamp, the Ass; Mark Love, the Narrator. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will support these vocal forces.

Lydia Summers.

"The Children at Bethlehem" is not a long work, and other pieces, some of them with a holiday connotation, will find place upon the program.

The first of the downtown performances of Handel's "Messiah" [and "downtown" is here arbitrarily made to start at Chicago avenue] is due Tuesday evening in Thorne hall. The chorus is the Lutheran Oratorio Society of Chicago. Robert Reuter, its conductor, organized the Pittsburgh Bach chorus and directed it for eight years. Soloists Tuesday night will be Ethel Reid Lundberg, soprano; Gertrude Gressens, contralto; Melvin T. Widman, tenor, and J. Edward Martin, bass. Ejnar Kranz will be at the organ.

The Swedish Choral club's annual Orchestra hall "Messiah" is always one of the high points of the musical year. The club's incredibly beautiful tone quality seems more in evidence in this familiar, idiomatically written music even than it does in the modern and more difficult works which appear on its programs at other times of the year. The "Messiah" performance this year comes next Sunday afternoon. As always, Harry T. Carlson will direct. Soloists are to be Hilda Ohlin, soprano; Sonia Sharnova, contralto; Joseph Laderoute, tenor, and Herbert Gould, bass. Fifty members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Stanley Martin, organist, will provide the instrumental parts.

• • •

The Apollo Musical club, Edgar Nelson, director, schedules its 1940 "Messiah" for Friday, Dec. 27, in Orchestra hall. A portion of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will assist and a remarkable quartet of soloists has been engaged. They are Kathryn Witwer, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; Robert Topping, tenor, and Bruce Foote, baritone. These last three, by the way, have all won honors recently in Chicago Opera auditions.

Humperdinck's famous children's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," is to be presented by the Chicago Opera company at the Civic Opera house on Dec. 29, the Sunday between Christmas and New Year's. Virginia Haskins is to sing Gretel and Suzanne Sten Hansel. Douglas Beattie and Helen Bartush will take the parts of the father and the mother, respectively. Sonia Sharnova, as always, will play the witch. Her daughter, Henrietta Chase, is to be the Sandman. Kurt Herbert Adler will conduct. The performance is to be in English, of course, and at popular prices.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC SOLOIST

Bruce Foote, Chicago bass, will sing in the Chicago Symphony orchestra's three presentations of Pierne's "Children at Bethlehem" in Orchestra hall this week. On Dec. 27 he will be soloist with the Apollo Musical club in its annual performance of the "Messiah."

Notes of Music and Musicians

This afternoon marks the final appearance of the Ballet Theater in its season at the Civic Opera house. Because of its duties in supplying operatic performances with dancing, the company has not been seen in as many ballet programs as its répertoire and abilities warranted. However, in the scattered programs it has presented, it has provided much pleasure.

Today's performance, described as a "gala farewell," is truly that. Three long and two short items make up the generous program, displaying contemporary works by three of the Ballet Theater's resident choreographers and two of the splendid classical revivals in the répertoire.

The numbers, in the order of appearance, are as follows: "Swan Lake," Anton Dolin's restoration of Petipa's original version, music by Tschalkowsky, with Nina Stroganova and Mr. Dolin; "Billy the Kid," Eugene Loring's ballet about the westerner, music by Aaron Copland, with Mr. Loring in the title rôle; "The Bluebird" pas de deux, with Karen Conrad and Mr. Dolin; "Judgment of Paris," Antony Tudor's brief and bawdy episode about Paris, music by Kurt Weill, with Lucia Chase, Maria Karnilloff and Katherine Sergava; and "Quintet," Mr. Dolin's combination of ballet and jitterbug dancing, music by Raymond Scott.

Eugene Loring.

The Russian Trio will give another of its series of Tuesday morning recitals at the Arts club this week. The program is devoted to Beethoven's Trio No. 4 op. 11, and Marco Enrico Bossi's Trio in D minor, op. 107. In between these two works the ensemble will play the Andante con moto movement from the opus 10 trio of Heniot Levy, resident composer.

Dudley Buck's oratorio, "The Coming of the King," will be sung and staged in five tableaux by the united choirs of the New First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards, tonight at 8 o'clock. George L. Tenney is the director.

José Echániz, Cuban pianist, will make his Chicago debut as a conductor on the Illinois Symphony orchestra's weekly concert tomorrow night in the Great Northern theater. In turning to orchestral conducting after establishing himself as a pianist, Echániz has followed the precedent set by his good friend José Iturbi. The Cuban has already appeared here in recital and with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

José Echániz.

The conductor has scheduled two Chicago novelties on his program. One, "Tres Pequeños Poemas" ["Three Little Poems"], is the work of the late Cuban conductor and composer, Amadeo Roldán. The other is Darius Milhaud's piano concerto, finished in 1934. This will introduce as soloist Paul Des Marais, a young Michigan pianist now studying in Chicago.

The complete program for Monday night:

"Leonore" Overture No. 3 .... Beethoven
Symphony No. 1, C Major .... Beethoven
Concerto for piano and orchestra .... Milhaud
Paul Des Marais
[First performance in Chicago.]
"Tres Pequeños Poemas" .... Roldan
[First performance in Chicago.]
Rhumba, from Second Symphony .... Harl McDonald

Manuel Baroumis, a Greek-American tenor who sang with the Chicago City Opera company last season and who was heard in the special performance of "Peruze" at the Civic Opera house, will give a recital in the Civic theater tonight. His varied program includes a group of five Greek songs. The assisting artist will be Constantine Callinicos, Greek-American pianist, who will play numbers by Liszt and Chopin and two Greek dances of his own composition.

Tonight in Kimball hall the Modern Troubadours, a Negro male chorus, will be heard in a concert sponsored by the Friends of American Musicians.

A recital will be offered by Adelina Trentadue, soprano, in Curtiss hall this evening. She will be accompanied by Ernesto Barbini. Goodwin Sammel will contribute some piano solos as the assisting artist.

Two artists who function primarily in night clubs and musical shows will give a formal recital in the Civic theater next Sunday night. They are Paul Draper, tap dancer, and Larry Adler, harmonica player.

The first performance of a seasonal oratorio, "Seven Voices at Christmas," will take place at the St. James Methodist church, Ellis avenue at 46th street, this afternoon at 4:30. Anna M. Scott wrote the prolog, Thomas Curtis Clark the libretto, and Bethuel Gross the music.

Christmas carols will be sung by the Civic Music choruses on Friday afternoon at 4:15 in the Cordon club; on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the Stevens hotel lounge, in the Chicago Woman's club at 1:45, and in the Piccadilly tearoom at 12:30.

Performances of Handel's oratorio, "Messiah," are numerous in outlying churches. The choirs giving them include that of the Grace Evangelical church, Wrightwood and Kimball avenues, today at 4 o'clock, Milton C. Wilkening, conductor; the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, 4301 Sheridan road, tonight at 7:30 o'clock, Hermanus Baer, conductor; the New First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards, George L. Tenney, conductor, next Sunday at 8.

Critic Awards Tributes for Opera Season

By Cecil Smith.

The magic fire music and the slumber music of "The Valkyrie" brought down the last curtain of the regular 1940 Chicago Opera company season last night. Before the opera organization finally locks its doors to the public, however, two postseason performances will be presented in the Civic Opera house—"Hansel and Gretel" [in English], on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29; and a gala New Year's eve production of "Manon," with Grace Moore, Tito Schipa and George Czaplicki, will be given on Dec. 31.

At the end of each opera season I have followed the annual habit of bestowing special tributes upon those artists who, in my particular opinion, gave the outstanding performances of the season. In previous years I have divided these awards into three groups, patterned after the conventional graduated academic honor awards of "summa cum laude," "magna cum laude," and "cum laude."

This year, however, an embarrassing thing has happened. The artistic caliber of the company has been so greatly improved that I am forced, for reasons of space, to eliminate mention of the 22 artists who seemed to me to deserve a "cum laude" listing. Today's tabulation, therefore, is confined to the two top brackets.

I have drawn my list entirely from performances which I personally attended. Because of conflicting play openings I missed three Monday performances [the first "Valkyrie," "Rigoletto" with Lily Pons and Charles Kullman, and "Aida" with Rose Bampton and Carlo Morelli]. Also, these paragraphs are written too early to include impressions drawn from the second "Der Rosenkavalier" [with Rise Stevens] or the second "Valkyrie" [with Flagstad, Sharnova, Hussa, and Melchior].

With these exceptions, however, the season is completely represented in the following list, which, however personal it may seem in its inclusions and omissions, represents the most considered judgment of which I am capable at this moment.

• • •

Summa cum laude [with highest honor]:

To Fritz Reiner, for the musical sensitivity and supreme technical craft of his conducting, which presented "Der Rosenkavalier" in its full stature as an important masterpiece of 20th century opera.

To Artur Rodzinski, for conducting "Salome" with tremendous dramatic impact, with profound musical understanding, and with impressive craftsmanship.

To Rose Bampton, for the noble line, the great breadth and the tonal beauty of her singing in "Il Trovatore," and for her accomplished and intelligent performance of the rôle of Donna Anna in "Don Giovanni."

To Virgilio Lazzari, for his Archibaldo in "The Love of Three Kings," one of the most masterful impersonations of a tragic character this generation of opera goers has witnessed, and for his Leporello in "Don Giovanni," a comic characterization of equally perfect conception.

To Giovanni Martinelli, for projecting the tenor rôles in "Aida," "Il Trovatore" and "Pagliacci" with unrivaled emotional intensity and authority of style, in a manner that completely deflects attention from growing vocal handicaps.

To Tito Schipa, for preserving to the fullest extent the tradition of patrician lyric singing in "La Traviata," "Don Giovanni," and "Manon."

To the new chorus, and to Chorus Masters Kurt Herbert Adler and Leo Kopp, for learning thoroly the music and action of 18 operas, and for bringing exciting new life into the choral parts of every performance.

• • •

Magna cum laude [with high honor]:

To William Wymetal, for bringing to the Chicago Opera company competent and imaginative stage direction which, tho at times incompletely realized, restored local operatic production to a high level of dignity and appropriateness.

To Henry Weber, for conducting the carefully rehearsed and restudied performances of "Aida" and "Il Trovatore" with the finesse and expressiveness all the standard repertory deserves if it is worth presenting at all.

To Karin Branzell, for a memorably heroic and magnificently voiced performance of the rôle of Azucena in "Il Trovatore," and for forceful singing and acting in "Aida" and "Salome."

To George Czaplicki, for the resonant sonority of his singing as Jokanaan in "Salome," for his striking Escamillo in "Carmen," and for the keen understanding and unusual versatility which marked his approach to a wide variety of rôles.

To Dusolina Giannini, for her great insight into the part of Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and for her deft singing of the music of Mistress Ford in "Falstaff."

To Frederick Jagel, for his musicianly singing and capable acting as Gennaro in "The Jewels of the Madonna," which made the part one of the most fully realized of any in the entire season.

To Helen Jepson, for her last performance in "La Traviata," in which the ravishing perfection of her singing and the increased sympathy of her acting made this the finest Violetta in many years, and for the exceptional grace and tonal beauty with which she sang the rôle of Nedda in "Pagliacci."

To Majorie Lawrence, for a performance of the title rôle of "Salome" which was vocalized with spectacular ease and beauty, and which was acted with intelligent and meaningful design.

To Zinka Milanov, for singing the name part of "Aida" with pathos and power, with dramatic accent and great expressive nuance, and with the most exquisite pianissimo to be heard today.

To Grace Moore, for a performance in "The Love of Three Kings" which, while not yet wholly coördinated in visual movement, attained to extraordinarily passionate vocal beauty in the love music of the second act.

To Rose Pauly, for a vehement, sinister, and intense performance in "Salome," which erases from memory her less happy experiment with the title rôle of "Tosca."

To Lily Pons, for the incomparable grace, delicacy and tastefulness of her demented heroine of "Lucia di Lammermoor" [and also, according to reliable second hand report, of her Gilda in "Rigoletto."]

To John Charles Thomas, for establishing beyond argument, in "Falstaff," the vitality of opera in the English language, when the language is suavely and understandably sung.

Book Upholds Critic.

Stewart Deas has written a book, "In Defense of Hanslick," recently published in England by Williams and Norgate. It attempts to disengage the notorious Austrian music critic, Eduard Hanslick, from the villifications later critics heaped upon him for being so outspokenly anti-Wagner.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.
[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Bids the sole object of which is to convey or obtain information are exceptional. Such bids or artificial conventions are used mainly in slam bidding [for example, the 4-5 no trump convention] when it is necessary to get information about specific losers. Most partnership inferences have their source and meaning in the strategy of a bidding situation. The first object of a bid is to defeat the enemy, and these partnership inferences arise from the fact that the player is able to read the strategical meaning of a bid made. To understand the object, the reason for and the strategy of a bid or of a bidding situation is, therefore, to understand the partnership language.

The most natural distinction between the various bidding situations depends upon whether the player has opened the bidding, responded to partner's opening bid or is defending against opponents' opening bid.

The opening bid announces a hand which is above "average" either in strength or in length and usually in both. It announces the type of hand that is equally ready for attack [at the partnership's own bids] or for defense against the opponents' bids. The opening bid contains about three honor tricks, and often more, and offers support for partner's bids.

The responding hand can lean rather heavily upon the better than average strength shown by his partner. With as little as one honor trick or some semblance of shape in the hand he can venture into the open. Two and one-half honor tricks look quite promising; and three honor tricks [provided the hands fit] ought to bring home game, with a slam not far off.

The defending hand has already heard the bad news. His strategy is dominated by the fact that the opponents have initiated the attack, presumably showing a fairly strong suit. The demon of penalty is at the heels of every bid he may make. But, altho hopes for slams and games in minor suits are at the wrong end of the binoculars, the chances of major suit and no trump games, especially the former, are by no means shut out. Not to count the tremendous advantage of cautiously bold interference bidding, a sort of judicious guerilla warfare.

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win all the tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the ace of clubs, North discarding the ace of spades. South leads the seven of spades. If West covers, North trumps with the ace of hearts and leads the deuce, and South makes two spade tricks, forcing East to unguard the diamonds or give up the king of clubs.

If West passes the spade seven, South leads another spade and ruffs, with the same result.

The main point about these three bidding divisions is that in some cases the same strategical object will require a different kind of technique to interpret it.

If you hold:
♠— ♥AQJ10 ♦KQJ108 ♣AKQ7
you make a forcing two bid if you are the opening hand; you achieve the same purpose if you are the responding hand after your partner opened the bidding by jumping to three diamonds; if you are the defending hand against the opponents' spade bid you will bid over the opponents' one spade, two spades, which is also forcing. The object in all three cases is the same—to show a very powerful hand. The technique and the bidding level, however, are entirely different.

There are many kinds of bids in a bridge system to bewilder and perplex the bridge player. They become very simple, however, if it is realized that this great variety of bids and methods [many of them new] are, as I have shown, derived from a few principal strategic situations.

All the strategic methods are divided into two broad families. The object of the first group is to enable the partners to select scientifically the best bid, by means of specially designed methods which are rooted in the logic of the bidding situations. Among such strategical methods we have the approach, forcing, minimum and various slam bids, as well as the no trump bids.

The second family of strategic bids has for its goal the defeat of the enemy by penalizing them, bluffing them or taking a paying sacrifice. Among such strategic bids we have the penalty double, shutouts, the psychic and semipsychic, and the sacrifice bids. Dominating all strategic situations with partner or against opponents is the pass, the most philosophical and the most eloquent of all bids. Many know how to bid, but few have learned the subtle and most difficult strategy of passing. The main function of a pass is to indicate a hand which is below the average biddable expectancy. But there are many ramifications to the pass, such as a trap pass, the waiting pass, the forcing pass and even the pass [not peace] of contentment.

It is indispensable that the player be able, after hearing from partner, to indicate his desire as to whether the bidding should be dropped or continued to game or slam. In the chaotic traffic of the thousands of hands dealt it will be necessary to flash the red stop light [minimum bids], or green go light [game forcing bids], or orange attention light [intermediate bids], while the blinkers [pass] siren a warning. Accordingly, the bidding territory consists of four inferential zones of bidding, and each zone is serviced by its own system of strategical bids.

All bids [and hands] belong to one of the four following zones of bidding: The game, the slam, the minimum, and the intermediate zones. In this manner either player can signal at once to his partner that his strength is such that a no game [part score], game [strong hand], or a slam [very strong hand] should be expected.

[This subject will be continued next Sunday.]

Author Reveals India's Great Industrial Era

By the Rev. John Evans.

"English Education and the Origins of Indian Nationalism," recently published by the Columbia university press, reveals that at one time India was the greatest manufacturing and commercial country in the world, and the economists of that country are a bit huffy at the occidental ignorance of India's former industrial eminence.

According to the author, Dr. Bruce T. McCully of William and Mary college, the notion that India is an agricultural country whose legitimate function in world economy is to produce raw materials and supply them to the factories of Europe, is regarded by the Indian economic nationalists as an "outrageous slur upon the civilization of the Indian nation."

• • •

These nationalists argue that history demonstrates that India was at one time the leading manufacturing nation of the world, because the Indians wove and worked, and manufactured for others, while none wove, worked, or manufactured for them.

"No other people had depended so little upon foreign countries for necessities or luxuries," the book sets forth. "The blessings of their favorable climate and fertile soil, augmented by the ingenuity of the Indian population, had always afforded them whatever was desirable to enhance the convorts of life. Nations hance the conforts of life. Nations genuity are but of yesterday, whereas India had a manufacturing reputation from the dawn of civilization."

• • •

Dr. McCully states that the belief that Indians were never a maritime nation is erroneous. Actually, Indian records show that they traded within the limits of ocean world extending from Egypt to China and from the Mozambique river to the Indian archipelago. They were the first to develop the spice trade, and carried cargoes to the Egyptians containing ingredients for embalming mummies. They founded colonies in Java and China, civilized the Burmese and Malays, and were the sole carriers of ocean traffic from the decline of the Roman empire to the rise of Islam.

Dr. McCully's work concludes by showing that the radical changes in the course and condition of India's trading life was brought about by the Portuguese discovery of the route to India around the Cape of Good Hope.

'Tin Pan Alley' a Picture That Has Everything

"TIN PAN ALLEY."
Produced by 20th Century-Fox.
Directed by Walter Lang.
Based on a story by Pamela Harris.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

Good Morning!

My next seat neighbor said:

"WELL—I see you liked the picture!"

I said—wiping my wet eyes:

"I certainly did — and I DON'T know why I'm crying. . . . Happy ending and everything—but——"

Just—BUT! . . .

This "Tin Pan Alley" is a tremendously moving affair. It, to use the hackneyed phrase, "has everything." Sparkle and softness. Speed and — largo, Mr. Barry! And music and youth and dancing. Romance, laughter—and tears! All this—and excellent acting, direction, photography, and staging, too! What more, in heaven's name, should one ask for in the way of screen entertainment?

• • •

The story starts back in the days before the world war and ends right after the armistice. . . . But—a war picture? Dear No! Only in the last couple of reels does the war figure and then but as a bringer togetherer of two young folks who had loved—and lost one another for a time. . . .

John Payne and Jack Oakie play a pair of song publishers, vurr', vurr', low as to money and business, until—they secure the aid of the Blane Sisters, a vaudeville singing and dancing team who agree to become "pluggers." . . .

Katie is gentle and self-sacrificing, and knows how to put over a song. . . . She's the one man type of girl and falls for "Skeets." . . . Lily is hard and sparkly, and sweet as rock candy. She can take 'em and leave 'em by the dozen—with nobody hurt and herself always the richer by a few judiciously acquired luxuries. . . . SHE steps from plugdom to stardom in a hurry, and is bitter about "Skeets," who she thinks—and rightly—keeps Katie from having a like career. . . . For Katie insists on sticking with Calhoun and Harrigan until—well, her big boy certainly DOES let her down—and lives to regret it. . . .

[I guess I'd better not tell you any more of the story.]

Alice and Betty team marvelously together. . . . They look enough alike to really be sisters.

Mr. Payne turns in his best performance up to date as the smart member of the song firm, and Jack Oakie is fine as the lovable dunderhead and clown. . . . Allen Jenkins puts lots of spiff into his rôle of a bossed porter who becomes a sergeant boss. . . .

Many songs made famous by Tin Pan Alley are featured. They include "K-K-K-Katie," "America, I Love You," "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France," and "The Sheik of Araby."

And so—to other activities for this reporter. If you don't figure "Tin Pan Alley's" worth while after reading this far, I can't see as how there's any chance of my influencing you.

See you tomorrow.

'Yokel Boy'

"Yokel Boy," a musical comedy which Broadway saw a season or two ago, will be revived for a road tour, beginning Christmas week. The book has been brought up to date and a couple of new tunes have been added. Joe Penner, long absent from the stage, will return to take over the rôle created by Buddy Ebsen. Dixie Dunbar will resume her original part, but Judy Canova will be replaced by Cass Dailey. Bobby Crawford, Lew Brown, and Ray Henderson are the producers.

others from hearing the broadcast. She had not been able to bring herself to attend the trial today; she had not stirred from the house and she scarcely had left her room.

After Emory had gone to the city, she had put in a call for Ned's number in New York. No answer. An hour later and an hour later again, still no answer. So at noon she had telephoned to Norman Felladay.

"No word," old Norm had told her, as soon as he recognized her voice and before she had opportunity to ask him anything. "I've heard nothing; nothing, nothing," he repeated emphatically; and she understood that, by his avoidance of Ned's name, he was warning her not to speak it.

She wondered, now, if old Norm was listening to this broadcast and what he might be thinking.

". . . the widest interest continues to center," the radio voice continued, "on the youngest juror—June Stranton, the daughter of Emory Stranton. She is a girl of 21 and has just returned from Europe with her mother; she had come home to be married to Edward K. Melbourke III. . . ."

Elaine jumped. There they were mentioning his name! The broadcaster was speaking it to all the world! It was a moment before Elaine was able to realize that this was in a harmless reference . . . "when she was called to service on this jury. June continues to pay the closest attention to every item of evidence; she is most conscientious; but the trial is putting a strain upon her which has become apparent. Today, after the signal for the noon recess was given, June remained seated and motionless in her chair when everybody else had arisen and started out. She seemed to be in a daze, from which she had to be aroused by Miss Cora Helmer, the juror who sits beside her and who also is her roommate at the hotel. . . ."

Elaine arose in an impulse to go at once to June; then she remembered that, if she went to Paignton, she would be kept away even from the floor on which the jury was quartered and she would be allowed not even a word with her daughter.

"Your name, please?"

"Neil Ledyard."

"You live in Paignton?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your occupation, please?"

"I do optical work—specializing on microscope lenses, mostly; but I do some work for oculists; and I make a few special lenses for cameras. My office, for that work, is in Newark."

"Have you work of another nature?"

"Yes, sir; several years ago, I took up as a hobby the study of fingerprints and identification of fingerprints; and about six years ago, I took it up professionally. That is, the Paignton police department has employed me to recover fingerprints from marked surfaces in the investigation of suspected crimes. I am enrolled as a police detective—but on duty only when a crime occurs."

"You are called on duty when a murder occurs, I take it."

"Yes, sir."

"Then you join the homicide squad, do you?"

"Paignton does not have a murder case often enough, sir, to justifying detailing a squad only for the investigation of homicides; but when a homicide does occur within our jurisdiction a squad of trained men is assigned to it; and I am one of that squad. I have investigated every murder case in the township during the last six years; and I have been called in, as a technician, to investigate some cases in neighboring townships."

"You were assigned to investigate the murder of Lily Leam?"

"I was, sir."

"And you investigated it?"

"I did, sir."

"Please give us your investigation, in detail," Mr. Netley directed the witness and he stood back, waiting with obvious confidence.

June, in her chair in the jury box, found a little courage for herself in the prosecutor's display of assurance. It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon and, during the recess, Mr. Netley completely had recovered from his discomfiture of the morning. The trial was proceeding as usual. The prisoner had been led in, manacled to his guard, and then his wrist was freed so that he could sit at his table beside his tall attorney; the judge presided as sternly as ever; there was no sign that any one considered the prisoner less guilty than when the trial began.

Neil Ledyard, the lensmaker, and fingerprint expert, was a calm, competent and unprejudiced looking person. He was about 40, short in stature, careful in his dress and definite in speech and manner; he had sandy hair and his studious, blue eyes were pleasant in their expression. He would accuse no man without cause.

Manifestly, since he was called as a witness for the prosecution, he was here to assist the accusation against Geoffrey Wardlan; therefore this careful, kindly man must have satisfied himself that the prisoner was guilty; and, if that were so, that cleared of guilt everybody else—anybody else—Ned.

June began to feel very much better.

"I was at home in bed asleep when the telephone rang," Neil Ledyard related in his agreeable voice. "Chief Bartwell of the Paignton police, was on the wire; he told me that there was a homicide reported at the old Fennister place—at the manor house where Lily Leam was living. He told me that his report was that Miss Leam had been killed. I got up and drove there at once."

"Alone?" Mr. Netley inquired.

"Yes; the others had started ahead. I found them on the ground when I got there. They called me to the bed of the brook where the body was lying. They had not moved it, but were photographing it. I waited until the police photographer was finished; then I carefully examined the body and particularly the clothing and ornaments for surfaces which might have received and preserved fingerprints."

"Did you find any?"

"Nothing that was very satisfactory. Miss Leam, when she was killed, had been wearing an old gold ornament pinned to the bosom of her dress. There was a very small smooth area—about half an inch long and a quarter inch wide—which had received and retained a few lines evidently from a forefinger; but it was an unsatisfactory mark. I examined, very carefully, the rocks and clay in the area immediately surrounding the body. This search was unsatisfactory. I believe it has been mentioned that first Flora List and then the Danielli family had been walking about before the police had arrived. I then went up to the house and, particularly, to the lower terrace where it was apparent that two persons had spent some time together during the evening."

"And did you find fingerprints there?"

"Yes, sir, in profusion."

"Satisfactory prints, Mr. Ledyard?"

"Some of them, sir, very satisfactory."

"The delineation of the finger marks was good, was it?"

"In the case of some of the prints—particularly some upon the smooth top of the table—the delineation was perfect and the detail was complete."

"There could be no doubt of their sufficiency to establish identification?"

"None whatever, sir."

"And you did, on that same night, establish the identity of the persons who made those marks?"

"Yes, sir, I did," the pleasant, scholarly little man replied positively.

"Now, from your study of these very satisfactory marks, how many persons sat at the table on the terrace during the evening?"

"Two persons, sir."

"Only two?"

"I should say so, sir."

"A man and a woman, were they?"

"Yes, sir."

"And they were—definitely and beyond dispute—what man and what woman?"

Witness Reluctant to Give Testimony

Neil Ledyard's eyes became very serious; he gazed at the prisoner and delayed, plainly reluctant to say what he had to say; but he returned to Mr. Netley and replied, without equivocation: "The fingerprints were those of the deceased—Miss Leam's—and of Mr. Geoffrey Wardlan."

June almost jumped with relief; she did shift and sit straighter in her chair. The likeable little lensmaker was so decisive and definite; he left no doubt it was Geoffrey Wardlan had been there with Lily Leam; and had not been Ned. So Ned had not been there; not that night, at least.

June felt her pulses hurrying with something almost like happiness.

"I object, your honor!"

The tall attorney was standing and June, startled by his voice, saw that he was sure of himself, too, as he impressed his protest on the courtroom.

"Am I to understand," Mr. Netley turned to him and taunted, "that counsel for the defense objects to the introduction of fingerprint evidence or questions its competency?"

"Quite the contrary," the tall man replied calmly. "I expect to depend upon fingerprint testimony—and in fact upon some of the findings of the witness for the state who is now on the stand—to clear my client——"

"I object!" Mr. Netley hastily cried. "I object to counsel making a speech at this point."

"You may give your objection to the testimony," the judge curtly directed the counsel for the defense.

"The state, your honor, has put on this witness as a technical expert—which we do not question," Mr. Torpen said. "We agree that he is qualified; we ask, however, that we be offered the evidence upon which he reached the conclusions he has expressed."

The judge nodded and looked at Mr. Netley, who immediately turned to his table and took up a heavy white sheet of paper. "I was about to offer in evidence photographic copies of the fingerprints found. I offer it now!" he announced a tone too loudly. Too much of his confidence was gone; and June slumped down a little.

The tall attorney had seated himself again beside his friend, the prisoner; and June did not want to look at him or at Geoffrey Wardlan while the witness was describing how he had taken fingerprint impressions from the lifeless hands of Lily Leam. Next he described how he had inked the fingers and thumbs of Wardlan and "rolled" them on paper. In reply to Mr. Netley's question, he related that he had difficulty getting good prints because Wardlan's hands trembled so, but, finally, he obtained perfect impressions.

The lensmaker obviously had convinced himself of Geoffrey Wardlan's guilt that night when he checked on the fingermarks on the terrace. He had charted them and now, before the jury, he pointed out on a diagram where he had found prints which matched Lily Leam's and where he had found those identical with the impressions from Wardlan's thumbs and fingers. But June ceased to follow him; he had lost significance, in her feelings, compared to Mr. Torpen who remained seated beside the prisoner and who showed no sign of disturbance at this testimony. Plainly, he was waiting with something of his own; June had learned—and Mr. Netley also had been taught—how quickly and surprisingly he could strike for the defense.

At last the prosecutor finished his direct examination of his expert and had to turn him over to Mr. Torpen.

"Your witness," Mr. Netley said, none too comfortably; and the tall man slowly got to his feet.

"I understand—if I have followed you rightly, Mr. Ledyard," he said quietly, "that when you fingerprinted Mr. Wardlan, you had considerable difficulty in obtaining useful impressions because his hands were shaking. Is that correct?"

"Yes, sir," the witness nodded.

"Then the fact is that very considerable care is necessary to make a clear impression?"

"Yes, sir—except, of course, excellent impressions are made accidentally."

"You mean, whenever a person happens to put down a fingertip or a thumb on a smooth surface and happens to hold it there steadily and then happens to remove his finger or thumb cleanly so as not to rub out the marks?"

"Yes, sir; that is the way it happens."

"Then I should say it would happen—and please correct me, Ledyard, if I am wrong—that one person might have the habit of so touching or taking up things so as to leave clear fingerprints and another person might touch the same surface in such a way as never to leave a recognizable impression at all. That does happen—doesn't it?"

"Yes, sir; it does."

"In fact it frequently happens, doesn't it, Mr. Ledyard? Frequently, when investigating articles such as a table or other furniture, which you know several persons must have touched, you are able to obtain recognizable impressions of but one person—or perhaps of none of the people who touched it?"

"Yes, sir; that has occurred."

"So the fact of your failure to recover clear impressions of fingers other than those of Mr. Wardlan and of Miss Leam—and of the servants—from the table and some other objects on the lower terrace, does not rule out the possibility that still another person was present during the evening and perhaps touched those same objects?"

"No, sir; it does not positively rule that out."

"Now, in addition to the clearly and sharply defined fingerprints which you have shown us—and which matched the impressions you took from Mr. Wardlan and from Miss Leam's fingers and from the servants—you did discover on the table on the terrace and upon other objects several blurred marks evidently left by fingers?"

"Yes, sir; I did."

"But it was impossible to use these for identification purposes?"

"Yes, sir; that's right."

"That means, it was impossible for you to say, from examination of these, who made these smudges?"

"Yes, sir."

"So they might have been made by some unknown person?"

"Yes, sir; they might; but they might also have been made by some of the persons who left clear prints. You see, at one moment the same individual might so touch a surface so as to leave a clear print and the same person might, at the next moment, touch the same surface again so as to leave only a blurred mark—a smudge, as you call it."

"And did you find fingerprints there?" "Yes, sir; in profusion."

The tall man nodded.

"Of course I see that; but the fact remains that these smudges might be the marks of some unknown person; and I take it that an impetuous, unstable person would be more likely to leave smudges, when he nervously touched anything, than would a person of a more poised and steady disposition."

"Yes, sir; an individual of that disposition would seldom leave clear impressions," the witness agreed.

"At the start of your testimony," the tall man promptly proceeded, "you mentioned an ornament pinned at the bosom of Miss Leam's dress. You said that it had a small area of smooth surface which showed a fingerprint."

The witness shook his head. "I said it showed a few lines—ridges, we call them—evidently from a finger tip; but it was an unsatisfactory mark."

"However, there was a part of a fingerprint upon it; and you studied it?"

"Yes, sir; I examined it briefly at the time, and in more detail, later."

"What did you make of it?"

"I was able to count clearly only six lines—or ridges."

"But these were clearly delineated?"

"Yes, sir; they were very good ridges."

"And they made a clear pattern?"

"Yes, sir; in as far as they went."

"In fact, they were a part of a core—as I believe you call the central point in the different patterns of the skin found on fingertips?"

"Yes, sir; they appeared to be part of a core."

"Now I am not setting myself up as a fingerprint expert, but of course I have done some reading on the subject, and I understand that the lines or ridges in the skin on fingertips follow three general patterns; about 60 per cent form loops and about 35 per cent form whorls and variation of whorls which are called composites, and the remaining 5 per cent are arches. Is that correct?"

"Yes, sir; that is approximately correct."

"And was there enough of the fingerprint on the ornament, which was on Miss Leam's dress, to show to which general class the skin pattern belonged?"

"Yes, sir. It was an arch."

"Now you know the classification of Mr. Wardlan's fingerprints?"

"Yes, sir."

"What are they?"

"They are all loops and whorls."

"No arches among them?"

"No, sir."

"And Miss Leam's own fingers?"

"They were whorls and composites."

"No arches?"

"No, sir."

"Now you carefully checked the fingers and thumbs of all the servants and also of the police who preceded you on the spot?"

"Yes, sir; I did."

"Did you find any such arch among them?"

"I found one case of an arch; but it was unlike the lines on the ornament."

"So you never were able to match that arch, from the ornament on Lily Leam's dress, with the print of any person you examined?"

"I was unable to; that is correct, sir."

"In other words, so far as your fingerprint evidence tells you anything, it has made plain to you that Mr. Wardlan spent some part of the evening with Miss Leam on the lower terrace, but that the last person to touch Lily Leam, prior to her death, was not Mr. Wardlan, but some person not examined by you, not arrested, and not yet identified?"

June Scarcely Hears What Attorney Says

Mr. Netley pushed furiously forward. He had arisen moments before and had been poised to pounce in at the first opportunity. "I object! I object, your honor, to this outrageous maneuver on the part of opposing counsel. He is attempting to lead the witness to a conclusion—and a conclusion in no way justified by the evidence. I object——"

The tall man showed no discomposure. "I will relinquish the witness to the state for redirect examination on this point," Mr. Torpen addressed the judge. "If the state has another explanation of the fingerprint on the ornament on Miss Leam's dress, I will give them the opportunity to bring that out, thru their witness, immediately." And he returned to his seat by the prisoner.

June's eyes rested on Mr. Netley as he began to redirect examination, but she scarcely heard what he or what Neil Ledyard said. It had to do with the impossibility of fixing the exact time when those arched ridges, from some one's finger, were impressed upon the ornament on the bosom of Miss Leam's dress. The mark might have been made hours earlier or even a week before, if the ornament happened to have been put away carefully and kept free from dust and if Lily Leam, in pinning it on her dress, happened to touch only the rough surfaces.

"No questions," she heard Mr. Torpen say; for Mr. Netley had finished and therefore had to turn his witness over to the defense again for recross-examination. But the tall man was satisfied; and Mr. Netley was not. His witness stepped down from the stand and there was a delay before the call for the next witness and finally, after some consultation at his table, Mr. Netley stepped forward with letters in his hand.

"At this point, I would like to introduce in evidence three letters which previously have been mentioned in testimony, your honor," he said to the judge. "They are admittedly written by the defendant—is not that correct?" he turned to Mr. Torpen.

"We acknowledge that Mr. Wardlan wrote those letters to Miss Leam," the tall man said, shortly.

"With your permission, your honor, I will read them to the jury. Two of them, you see," he continued to the jury, taking the enclosures from the envelopes one after the other, "are intact; but the third had been torn. It had been torn, in fact, into very small scraps, but very carefully reassembled and pasted together by some one. It is in the condition it was when found among Miss Leam's effects. I will now read these unusual communications to you."

HER GIFT FROM JOHN HENRY

By Elizabeth Jordan

(Copyright: 1940: By Elizabeth Jordan.)

"O, Mrs. Driscoll," she breathed. "I thought you'd never come."

MRS. DRISCOLL handed back to Lucy Conroy the dress skirt she had been inspecting and turned on the little seamstress her warm and friendly smile.

"It's exactly the right length now, Lucy," she said, "and beautifully done, like all your work. I don't know what would become of me or how I'd look if you didn't come one day a week and keep my clothes in order."

Lucy's plain little face flushed with pleasure and her brown eyes shone. The tribute was an accustomed one, but she never tired of it.

To Lucy Conroy, who loved and honored her as the finest woman she had ever known, Mrs. Driscoll had all the human virtues and none of the human faults. Lucy loved her devotedly and let her see that she did; and the older woman, who was human enough to appreciate admiration and devotion, admired the little woman's loyalty and skill.

The skill, she knew, was largely due to her own instruction. Mrs Driscoll could do almost anything and could do it well She was a childless widow living alone. Her apartment was perfect. Her home life ran smoothly, for she had taught her one maid to be as efficient a homeworker as she was herself. Lucy was no help at housework. Mrs. Driscoll was glad Lucy had never married. She was sure Lucy was no cook; and notwithstanding Lucy's sweetness and gentleness she was convinced that Lucy would be a bad homemaker and a weak mother. She would let her husband and her children rule her. She would ruin them both.

That reflection, often in Mrs. Driscoll's mind, was in it today as she smiled down at Lucy. The seamstress was largely Mrs. Driscoll's creation; but not even Katherine Driscoll could make her into a housewife. It was at this precise moment that Lucy administered to Mrs. Driscoll the first severe shock she had even given her.

"Have you a minute to spare, ma'am?" she asked primly. "I know it's a busy season, with Christmas coming and all, but I'd like your advice on an important matter."

It was Lucy's usual preface to their frequent interviews, but it was offered with an unusual assurance. Instinct told Mrs. Driscoll something different was coming.

"I'm thinking of gettting married, ma'am," Lucy said simply. "But of course I want your advice."

Mrs. Driscoll stared at her, speechless for once. Even if this had happened 20 years ago she would have been surprised. Lucy had always seemed so—well, so remote from love affairs. So far as that lady knew she had never even had what Mrs. Driscoll called "a follower." But being a wise student of human nature Mrs. Driscoll realized that many women who had seemed indifferent to marriage at 20 "made fools of themselves," as she mentally expressed it, at 40.

"Who is the man, Lucy, and how long have you known him? Tell me something about him."

Lucy drew a deep breath and her brown eyes shown. Her reply poured forth like a young freshet.

"He's an Englishman, ma'am," she said, "and he's an artist. His name is John Henry Howard. He came to America three years ago. I'm sure," Lucy added, with a sudden catch of breath, "I don't know what he sees in me."

"Is he here in New York?" she asked. "And is he making a living?"

"O, yes, 'm. He's with the Wallace company, the architects who are putting up the new Modern Museum. John Henry is doing the murals. He gets $100 a week, and sometimes more. He says all I'll have to do after I marry him is to run our flat and be happy."

Mrs. Driscoll brought out a somewhat belated inquiry. From force of habit practical details had been uppermost in her mind. Now she realized that she must not let Lucy make a mistake.

"Are you sure you will be happy?" she asked with sudden seriousness. "Do you love this man?"

"I don't know, ma'am," Lucy said. "It's all a bit confusing and—and queer. I'm terribly sorry for him." She added quickly, "He's so much alone. He doesn't like the men around him at the museum and he doesn't seem to know any woman except me. He's very quiet and doesn't talk much except when he gets started on his art. That's not so good," Lucy added simply, "because then I don't understand what he's saying."

Mrs. Driscoll came to an abrupt decision.

"I don't believe you love the man," she said positively. "I think you're merely sorry for him because he is a stranger here and lonely. But you simply must not marry him for that reason. It isn't enough to base marriage on."

"I don't think it's just sympathy," Lucy brought out more firmly. "Sometimes when he's very busy he doesn't come to see me for days. Then I think about him all the time. I worry for fear he isn't well."

Warns Protege Not to Rush Into Marriage

Mrs. Driscoll frowned, but rallied patiently. She was now really disturbed.

"That may be sympathy, too, Lucy," she reminded the other and added in a different tone, "You have a very kind nature, you know. Don't let it run away with you. You can't afford to make a mistake. Has he any education?"

"Not much," Lucy admitted. "But Mr. Wallace told him one day he had a fine mind, naturally. Mr. Wallace is very much interested in him."

"He'll need more than a fine mind to make a good husband, tho I'm not saying that won't help," Mrs. Driscoll added dryly.

"You must not rush into this marriage, Lucy," she told her protégé. "You've got to take plenty of time to think it over. You've got to be sure you're right before you plunge. Marriage isn't a casual affair. Bring the man here and let me talk to him. I'll soon know what sort he is."

"O, but I'm not sure he'll come!" Lucy's tone was alarmed. "He wants me to marry him just before Christmas, so I'll be his Christmas present. That's only 10 days off."

Mrs. Driscoll stood up.

"If he doesn't love you enough to grant a simple request to come and see your friend and employer," she reminded Lucy, "he doesn't love you enough to be your husband."

Mrs. Driscoll's first moments with John Henry Howard were not reassuring. Her initial impression was that she did not like either his looks or his manner. He was the sort who faded into backgrounds. He was small, and reasonably neat, tho his blue bow tie showed a tendency to creep toward an ear and his stout black shoes were not carefully polished.

She asked the conventional questions as to his preference for cream or sugar and his replies were so low that she had to ask him to repeat them. Lucy, who seemed to be sharing her fiancé's constraint, rushed into nervous speech.

"He doesn't care what he eats or drinks," she said nervously. "I never saw such a man."

It became increasingly clear that he was no conversationalist. Mrs. Driscoll chatted suavely, building up, she hoped, a nice little entente on which they could meet for the real and intimate talk that must follow. Lucy, who was watching her John Henry and realizing that he was not making a favorable impression, helped as much as she could. Mrs. Driscoll finally went straight to the point of the visit.

"Lucy has told me the news," she began smilingly. "Of course I'm very much interested. You see, I'm very fond of Lucy."

John Henry nodded and spilt some of the tea on his trousers.

"She likes you, too," he muttered, and added, as he wiped some tea from one trouser leg with his hand, "She talks about you a lot."

Mrs. Driscoll felt rather desperate. Lucy had ceased even the effort to help. She merely sat still, looking anxiously at him. To her disgust Mrs. Driscoll heard her own voice taking on a suggestion of its platform quality when she presided at club meetings.

"Marriage is a tremendous experiment," she began. "I'm wondering if you both realize that."

"We're old enough to," John Henry muttered.

"That adds to the uncertainty of the experiment," the hostess told him briskly. "Young things in their twenties are adaptable. They can change their habits and their ideas without much effort. We who are older get fixed in our little ways. It is not so easy to consider others."

"I guess Lucy will consider me, all right," John Henry said unexpectedly. "She knows we won't get on unless she does."

Mrs. Driscoll's pounce was so sudden that he blinked.

"Aren't you prepared to consider her?" his hostess was asking. "Lucy has a very good disposition, as I can testify," she went on. "But she won't be happy unless you consider her. You mean to do that, don't you? Or are you only thinking of yourself?" she couldn't resist adding.

John Henry blinked again. She caught a flash of something in his eyes she had not seen before. Was it humor? Certainly not. The one thing she was already sure of was that John Henry had no humor in his makeup. Was it anger? It might be.

"I'm not thinking of myself alone," he said more clearly than he had spoken, "tho what I just said might have sounded that way. I'm expectin' to give Lucy a good home for the rest of her life. She won't have to go out in heat or cold any more and work for a few dollars a day. She'll run the flat to suit herself and that will be all right with me. I'll turn my pay over to her every week, except what I need for expenses, and she can save it or spend it. That's up to her. I won't interfere with her flat and she can't interfere with me or my work."

He stood up abruptly, and Lucy, with a startled expression, rose also.

Mrs. Driscoll sat still and looked at them thoughtfully.

"I've got something more to say," she said gently. "I think Lucy would like to hear it. In fact, she has asked for my advice. Aren't you willing to listen, too?"

John Henry Howard looked at her friendly smile, but this time he did not return it.

"Perhaps I'm wrong," he said, slowly, "but as I see it, this marriage of ours is a matter that don't concern any one alive but me and Lucy. I came here because she asked me to. I've said my say and I'm ready to go."

Lucy sat down.

"I want to hear what Mrs. Driscoll thinks," she said unexpectedly. "I want you to sit down again, John Henry, and listen, too."

"All right." John Henry sat down. Mrs. Driscoll looked at them both with added seriousness.

"I've only one thing more to put before you," she said slowly.

"Do you love Lucy, Mr. Howard, or are you marrying her to be looked after and made comfortable?"

"Lady," said John Henry Howard just as quietly, "if you'll excuse my saying so I don't think that's any of your business."

"John Henry Howard!" Lucy was on her feet, her eyes wide with horror, her small face crimson. John Henry stared at her, his face as red as hers. Suddenly Mrs. Driscoll understood. She smiled again.

"I see you do, in your way," she said comfortably. "That makes me feel better. For it is the business of any one who is fond of Lucy, Mr. Howard. Lucy is the salt of the earth. I want her to be happy. She will decide this matter. You will admit that it is her privilege to decide. I won't keep you any longer, since you want to go."

Wedding a Quiet Affair on Christmas Eve

She rose, gave her hand first to Lucy, and then to John Henry, and shepherded them both to the door. On the threshhold John Henry stopped, hesitated, and finally spoke again.

"I'm fond of Lucy, Mrs. Driscoll," he gulped. "She's the only thing in my life that means anything, except my work. But of course my work comes first. It always will."

The wedding on Christmas eve was so quiet that Mrs. Driscoll could hardly believe it was taking place. There was only one other guest—Joseph Wallace, head of the noted firm of architects. Mrs. Driscoll was surprised by his presence and even more surprised by a confidence he made to her.

"This is going to be a good thing for Howard," he told her in the church parsonage while the newly married couple signed the register.

NEXT SUNDAY—"CHRISTMAS DATE," A SHORT STORY BY IDA M. EVANS

"But I'm not sure it's going to be a good thing for that nice little creature he's married."

"Why not?" Mrs. Driscoll, who had been schooling herself to optimistic thought on this subject, did not realize that her voice was sharp with anxiety.

"O, for a good many reasons—too many to go into here," the architect said; "especially as both Howards are bearing down on us right now," he added as the bride and groom came toward them. He had brought them to the wedding in his handsome limousine, and after the ceremony Mrs. Driscoll drove to the station with the three. As they drove away from the station and back to Mrs. Driscoll's apartment building Wallace filled in a bit of the gap he had left in his earlier explanation.

"How well do you know Howard?" he asked her when they had turned into Park avenue.

"Not at all, really," Mrs. Driscoll admitted. "I've met him only once, when Lucy brought him to my apartment."

"It's a miracle he went," the great architect told her. "But I suppose a man has to make some concessions to his betrothed, especially just before the wedding."

Mrs. Driscoll did not smile.

"You frighten me," she said briefly, and added before she could check the words, "What's the matter with the man?"

This time Wallace was ready to be explicit.

"A whole lot," he told her. "The principal thing is that he can't get on with other human beings. He's got every man in my studio down on him, and half a dozen of them have threatened to leave if I don't fire him. I have fired him a dozen times—and invariably and humbly taken him back. The apologies and overtures have always been made by me. But I'll have to fire him for good some day. That will be hard on me and on the little bride, for there isn't another firm in town that would give him a job.

"He can't get on with any one. He's arrogant, dominating, utterly unreasonable, and ignorant of everything except his work."

Mrs. Driscoll returned to her apartment very unhappy, and her apprehensions lifted only slightly as time passed. It had been agreed that Lucy would continue her one-day-a-week schedule in the Driscoll apartment. John Henry departed from their home at 8 in the morning and was gone all day every day but Sunday.

There was little if any outward change in Lucy as the months passed. Lucy had her standards and loyalty was one of them. She mentioned her husband in passing, as it were, but seemed much more interested in Mrs. Driscoll and that lady's work. Her employer, whose interest was thoroly aroused, nevertheless asked no questions.

Insensibly the two had slipped back into their former relations. There was only one difference, and as time passed Mrs. Driscoll ceased to worry about that. Lucy prattled about her new flat, her new furniture, the cooking lessons she was taking. She continued to mention John Henry in passing, but she offered no confidences and for the first time in their association asked no advice.

Lucy's Calm Reserve Finally Breaks

She looked much better dressed and better fed than she had ever looked before. She was taking on a slight and becoming plumpness. She seemed neither happy nor unhappy. Some days she was more thoughtful than others. At times her eyes held a new look—confused but still steady. She made it clear that John Henry was still at the museum. It was 18 months before her reserve broke. Then her confidence came with a rush.

"I think I'll have to leave my husband, Mrs. Driscoll," she abruptly announced one day. Mrs. Driscoll did not reply at once. She merely drew up the familiar chair, sat down beside Lucy's machine, and waited.

"No, ma'am, it isn't that he's unkind," Lucy summed up at the end. "He's just—well, just queer. All he thinks about really is his work. He's lost his job three times since I married him, but Mr. Wallace always takes him back again. It seemed John Henry has had a lot of trouble with the other men. The last two times he was fired I had to go to Mr. Wallace myself.

"John Henry would never forgive me if he knew that, but I had to do it. I'm paying for our furniture in installments. It's most paid for now, but I haven't been able to save much and of course I didn't want to lose the furniture. So I persuaded Mr. Wallace to send for John Henry as he always has after these disagreements, and John Henry overlooks his faults and goes back. John Henry would rather starve than ask for his job again."

That was the first confidence. The next one, two years later, was better financially, but not optimistic in other respects.

"I've paid off the furniture bill long ago," Lucy said in her fourth year of marriage. "It took a long time. John Henry went with me when I bought our things and he insisted on buying lovely furniture—antiques, you know, and antique rugs—and nice glass and china. Our flat is lovely. We don't owe a cent to any one now and we have $3,000 in the bank; but I've never dared to ask you to come to see me because John Henry might come home while you were there."

"Would that be serious? Does he dislike me so much?" Mrs. Driscoll was surprised.

"He dislikes everybody but Mr. Wallace and the curator of the Modern Museum. There isn't another tenant in our building that will speak to him."

"Is he unkind to you, Lucy?" It was the first time Mrs. Driscoll had dared to risk the question.

"O, no. He never gives me even a rough word. Sometimes he doesn't speak to me for days or hear what I say. He doesn't seem to know I'm there. But that doesn't mean he's angry with me. It just means he has a big piece of work on and can't think of anything else"

"I have no patience with him," Mrs. Driscoll broke out.

"I have. I've got to have. Any one," Lucy added bleakly, "has got to have patience if he has anything to do with John Henry."

The next year brought still another confidence.

"John Henry does a lot of his work at home now. He hasn't a regular job now, and Mr. Wallace can't use him any more. But he copies pictures in famous galleries and sells them right off. He works two or three days a week. I manage to save about $150 a month. But John Henry hardly ever speaks to me now. He just lives and works in a kind of a dream."

The dreary Odyssey developed with the passing years. Even Joseph Wallace would not speak to John Henry now.

In the ninth year of Lucy's marriage Mrs. Driscoll's new task began. From then on periodically she had to persuade Lucy to continue to live with her husband.

"You've taken on the obligation and you've got to see it thru," she usually ended. Lucy always shook her small head.

"He hardly seems to know whether I'm with him or not," she said dully. "He doesn't care, really. He simply wants some one to wait on him. Any one who was quiet around the place and let him alone would do. He does a lot of his work in his studio now, but he won't let me get in it to clean it unless he's there himself. He locks it and carries the key in his pocket. When I'm in there cleaning it he turns all his pictures to the wall so I never know what he's doing. But that doesn't matter," poor Lucy added gloomily. "I wouldn't know what he was doing even if I saw it."

It was in their 10th year of married life that John Henry ceased to have any regular work except in his own studio.

"None of the dealers will have any more to do with him," Lucy reported. "Neither will any one else, so he doesn't sell any of his pictures any more. I don't know whether he won't or whether he can't. But we've got almost $9,000 in the savings bank, and we can live on the interest and on what I earn. I'm working pretty steadily now. He doesn't know it, but I work most every day. Most of my old customers have taken me back."

Lucy was thin again and for the first time in her life was looking overwrought. Mrs. Driscoll reversed her decision, which was wholly new in her experience and rather shattering because of that.

"Leave him, anyway, Lucy," she suddenly advised. "He's wearing you down. It isn't just that a fine woman should sacrifice her life to a worthless man—the God knows that many a fine woman does just that," the patroness added with sudden bitterness. But again Lucy was shaking her small head on which the brown hair had turned to silver since her marriage.

"I left him once, two years ago," she confessed in a low voice. "I thought I couldn't stand it any longer. It's like living with a busy ghost. But I couldn't stay away. I don't love him any more. I never did, really. But I've got a sense of duty. If I left him he'd starve in some attic and not know he was starving till starving killed him."

Mrs. Driscoll made a gesture of futility.

"You will have to work that out yourself," she admitted.

But after all it was John Henry who solved Lucy's problem. He did it by dying, with a suddenness that was heart-shaking to his wife. He admitted one morning that it was impossible for him to get up. But he did get up, threw on an old wrapper, and sat moodily on an easy chair beside his bed, staring into space. Finally he even accepted the cup of coffee Lucy urged him to drink.

"Lucy," he said abruptly, "you've been a good wife."

As she stared, speechless, he went on, "Christmas is only a week away. Have I ever given you a present?"

"No, dear."

"Well, I'm going to this year. Mr. Rankin, the custodian of the New Modern Gallery, knows about it. He'll tell you—He——"

The empty cup fell from John Henry's hand. His head dropped forward. Lucy caught his body as it sagged in the chair. There was nothing more she or any one else could do for John Henry after that, except to try to remember him without rancor.

Visitors Arrange Studio Where John Henry Worked

Lucy told Mrs. Driscoll what had happened, over the wire and in a tone whose flat monotone testified to shrieking nerves. There were three subsequent days of action and duty in which Mrs. Driscoll assisted in carrying out the inevitable routine, while Lucy moved beside her like an automaton, doing her share but obviously in a daze.

To Mrs. Driscoll the surprising feature of the experience was the number of men who came to the Howard apartment when the death of John Henry Howard was announced. They did not seem to be mourners. Lucy apparently gave them little thought, but she allowed them to follow the impulse that had brought them there—a desire to see John Henry's studio and his work. Small groups of them entered the studio, arranged the pictures on easels, walls, and chairs, and stood around commenting on them to one another in very low voices.

"All John Henry wants is to be left alone to paint."

Mr. Rankin and Mr. Wallace, who had been the first to arrive, were usually there. They took these visitors off Lucy's hands.

The only thing Mrs. Driscoll vividly remembered of those three days was the unexpected charm of the flat, that odd impression of light and brilliance when John Henry's paintings lined the studio, and a conversation she had with Joseph Wallace. It was he and Rankin, she discovered, who had set up and arranged the pictures.

The New York newspapers gave Katherine Driscoll her second big surprise. They chronicled the death of John Henry Howard as the passing of a great artist most of whose work had been deliberately buried by the artist himself. His plan, it seems, had been to leave the bulk of it to the New Modern Museum whose murals he had painted; but it was impossible to say as yet whether this purpose had been carried out. The artist had been erratic and strangely secretive, and for a number of years had refused to sell any of his really important work. The art world was thrilled by the announcement, made by Rankin, that there would be an exhibition of Howard's pictures in the New Modern Gallery as soon as it could be arranged after the holidays.

Lucy took this news, when Mrs. Driscoll read it aloud to her, without realizing what it meant. Mrs. Driscoll's emotions were many, but surprise was now the least of them. Only the night after Howard's funeral Joseph Wallace had prepared her for it.

"You know, of course, that this man was a genius. He was one of the greatest painters, and one of the worst cranks of these modern times. He didn't know how to live, but by Jove he did know how to paint! Those pictures of his will live as long as there are art lovers in the world."

Some of this Mrs. Driscoll repeated that night to John Henry's widow. Lucy did not take it in. Mrs. Driscoll had not expected that she would.

"It's an awful thing to have him die just at Christmas time," Lucy moaned. "For some reason he was interested in Christmas this year. He even told me he was going to give me a Christmas present. It was just talk, of course, but it wasn't like him. He had never noticed Christmas before. I didn't know what he meant by promising me a present this year. Come to think of it, tho, he gave it to me a minute before he died. He looked at me when he had drunk that cup of coffee, and he said, 'Lucy, you have been a good wife.' That's present enough for me. It's all the present I want the rest of my life."

But Lucy got the present John Henry had promised her, and got it within six weeks. It came at the beginning of the exhibition of John Henry's work in the New Modern Gallery, where the guest of honor at the exhibition was John Henry Howard's widow. Mrs. Driscoll, who had been forced to concentrate on her own activities immediately after John Henry's funeral, had not seen Lucy for several weeks. But she had made a rendezvous with her for the private view of the exhibition, and the two were to meet in what was already referred to as the Howard gallery.

Mrs. Driscoll was a little late—half an hour or so; but the Howard gallery was crowded when she got there. There was a special congestion at one end of it and for a few moments she stood near the entrance waiting for Lucy. She decided that Lucy had not yet arrived. She waited patiently, watching the milling crowd. It was impossible to see much of the pictures, but Mrs. Driscoll received the same odd impression of light and brilliance she had experienced in those odd moments in John Henry's studio. Strange that Lucy didn't come. She was usually so prompt; but this was a great day for Lucy. The prospect of it probably unsettled her—that and what the newspapers were printing daily about John Henry's genius.

Mrs. Driscoll, who was not naturally a patient woman, soon grew tired of waiting and decided to join the general gathering. Lucy could find her when she came. Characteristically Mrs. Driscoll joined the throng at its most congested point, a growing assemblage in the far corner of the gallery. It had not been easy to get there, but whatever was there was plainly the feature of the occasion.

Courteously but firmly she made her way thru the throng, like a powerful ship thru a heavy sea. But at the outer ring of the assemblage she found herself checked by the large and apparently almost motionless group she had been trying to reach. Evidently its members, having reached the cynosure, were unwilling to move away from it. Mrs. Driscoll, who was philosophic if not patient, awaited her opportunity to penetrate it. As she waited, and on a sudden impulse, she opened the catalogue she had bought when she entered the gallery, and rather casually turned its pages. It would be interesting to know what special canvas was attracting so much attention. It was eight or ten minutes before she reached an entry that held her attention.

[PORTRAIT OF MY WIFE.]

She stared at the words in surprise. Then the sharp young voice of a girl standing next to her spoke to a girl companion.

"I shan't leave till I see it. Everybody in the gallery is talking about it. I should think that little widow would burst with pride. Perhaps she is bursting. They say there is certainly nothing shy about her. Presenting the original and the portrait side by side is in questionable taste, but it's certainly dramatic."

It was at this instant that the crowd parted. Some one near the canvases was leaving at last. Thru the cleavage the exit was making on the human mass, Mrs. Driscoll saw a seated figure in black. It was in the corner, its back to the wall. As she stared at it with widening eyes, she thought she recognized it. It couldn't be Lucy, but it was Lucy! A seated Lucy, facing the crowd, cool, calm, imperturbable; a Lucy beautifully dressed in widow's weeds; a Lucy—the eyes of Mrs. Driscoll almost popped as she made this discovery—who was the original and the exact duplicate in costume and pose of the figure in the superb portrait that hung beside her.

Mrs. Driscoll drew a quick, deep breath. Then, disregarding the annoyance of those she disturbed, she resolutely pushed her way into the closing line of the other spectators' exit and forced herself into Lucy's foreground. At sight of her, Lucy's little face flushed with sudden animation.

"Oh, Mrs. Driscoll," she breathed, "I thought you'd never come!"

Their hands met and for a long moment both women forgot the throng around them. Then Mrs. Driscoll recalled herself to the occasion. She looked at the transformed Lucy—a Lucy whose face had almost lost its animation and was again taking on the look Mrs. Driscoll was to know henceforth as its habitual expression—a look of rapt and almost beatific concentration, the look of a child suddenly finding itself in a new and wonderful world. Once or twice in the past years she had seen the dawn of it on Lucy's face, when something had made the girl happy; but she had never seen the sweetness and almost the beauty it held now.

Picture Catches Lucy's Look of Quiet Happiness

Mrs. Driscoll turned and looked at the portrait. There was Lucy again, in every detail of line and somber black. There, too, was the widow's bonnet with its soft white ruching framing Lucy's look of almost childish wonder and quiet happiness. Tears came to Mrs. Driscoll's eyes—strange visitors there, indeed.

"It's wonderful, Lucy," she said huskily. "But I hadn't known you were sitting for it."

"I didn't sit for it. It's the portrait John Henry made for my Christmas gift, as a surprise. He wrote me a letter about it. Mr. Wallace gave it to me two weeks ago. John Henry said it was his only gift to me except my wedding ring. He said he had done it from memory of our honeymoon, and that his heart was left to me with it. He said in it"—Lucy's voice broke—"what he had said when he was dying—that I had been a good wife.

"He told me in the letter to buy a dress and a widow's bonnet just like those he had put in the portrait and to dress that way the rest of my life. He said he had left me enough pictures to sell to keep me comfortable, with what I had. He said" [Lucy's voice broke again] "that he had been a very bad husband but that the portrait would make up to me for all he had made me suffer, and it does. It proves that he loved me, and that's all I wanted. But now I want to get out of here, Mrs. Driscoll. I can't stand any more staring eyes. Mr. Wallace left me here for a few minutes' rest, and then they all came. They pretended they were only looking at the picture, but they looked at me, too. Please take me home, where I won't have anything to do but think of John Henry!"

Mrs. Driscoll took Lucy back to her charming flat. On the way the patroness did not talk. She could not. From the corner of an eye she watched the transformed little face beside her—and marveled.

THE TORN LETTER

By EDWIN BALMER

(Copyright: 1940: By Edwin Balmer)

She shut her eyes so as not to see Cora's accusing face . . . accusing her of concealment and Ned of murder.

INSTALMENT XI.

CORA HELMER had a lifelong habit of self-control or she never could have contained her excitement. She no longer had the least doubt that June had a special, personal interest in the trial.

If that were so—or rather since that was so [for Cora was sure of it]—June had no business remaining on the jury. It was June's duty to declare her personal connection with the case and to ask to be dismissed; but since June had not done this, a much more difficult duty devolved upon Cora.

It frightened her to think of what she might have to do; but the excitement of it stimulated her, too. She got June to her feet and together they went from the court house and, walking side by side in the little procession of 12, again they crossed the town square. In their hotel room, at last they were alone together—June Stranton and Cora Helmer.

"What—what made it so hard for you this morning?" Cora asked and tried to stop the trembling which assailed her.

"Hard?" June repeated.

"It was hard for you—hard—hard!" Cora charged, shaking uncontrolably yet she kept her voice down to a whisper. They were alone for the moment; but beyond the door to the bathroom, which was closed, were Mrs. Wescott and Mrs. Enderberry and the constable, Mrs. Lennon. "Why was it so hard for you?" Cora pressed her challenge. "I told you last night I knew you knew something; and you certainly do. I think you know who the other man is who called on Lily Leam—and killed her."

"You think—you think the other man," June gasped, "killed her?"

"Of course he killed her," Cora whispered positively.

June felt as if she could not stand. She turned to her bed and sat upon it, seizing an iron headpost to support herself; and, as Cora followed her, she shut her eyes so as not to see Cora's accusing face—accusing her of concealment and Ned of murder. Cora could not know it was Ned; or could she? Did she? June swayed, keeping her eyes still shut. "I don't know," she denied. "I don't know. I don't!" she repeated.

"Hush!" Cora suddenly warned her in a whisper and, at the next moment said aloud: "Aspirin? I've got some. I'll get it for you." And June realized that the door to the bathroom was open, Mrs. Wescott and Mrs. Lennon were coming in—and June realized, too, that Cora had no intention of betraying her to the constable but, for the time at least, Cora meant to keep matters between June and herself.

What Has Gone Before After thinking it over for three months in Europe, June Stranton has made up her mind to marry Ned Melbourke, wealthy young man about town. One of his love letters touched her so deeply all previous doubts of her love for him vanished. But instead of driving her home from the docks Ned tries to force June to elope with him and demands she return his letter she treasured. They quarrel and her doubts rise again. Arriving home, she finds that she has been called for jury duty on a murder trial. Lily Leam, the murdered woman, was an actress who had rented a place near the Stranton estate in New Jersey. Geoffrey Wardlan, a research chemist, who lived in a cottage on her place, is being tried as her murderer. Ned makes a scene in the courtroom trying to reach June, and afterward sends her a note in her suitcase, but the note is discovered by the police matron while searching the luggage and is kept for June until after the trial. June finds that Paul Rogell, a childhood friend, is also on the jury. In court June listens to Flora List, Lily Leam's maid, testify about her mistress' love affair with Wardlan. She admits that she found a cigaret lighter in Miss Leam's room that did not belong to Wardlan. June notices that the lighter is identical with one she sent Ned from Paris. Flora also testifies that she found four love letters in her mistress' room written to Miss Leam by Wardlan. One of the letters, she says, was torn to bits and pasted back together. Mr. Felladay, formerly one of Ned Melbourke's guardians, calls on Mrs. Stranton and tells her Ned has been selling a great deal of his his property for some time and has now disappeared with a large amount of cash. Bianca, Lily Leam's housemaid, testifies that she found evidence of another visitor besides Wardlan. Wardlan was always neat, but on several occasions some visitor came who left the room disarranged. June remembers that Ned always left a room untidy.

In his room at the end of the hall, Paul Rogell sat at the table, penciling symbols of music on the ruled sheet of paper before him. He had several sheets already filled, but—as Tom Knapp, his roommate, observed—not to his satisfaction.

After writing a few bars on a new sheet, Paul had taken up one of the completed passages and set to altering it, in almost feverish excitement.

Mr. Knapp took off his coat and washed, making ready for lunch; patiently he parted his hair; then he stood considerately silent and watched Paul. A pause had come in the composer's activity, but there was not the least sign that Paul was aware that his roommate was waiting.

"Lunch?" Tom reminded, and had to repeat it twice.

Paul arose reluctantly. Paul wanted nothing so much as to be left alone, at least a little longer; a new theme throbbed in him and he had not yet adequately put it on paper.

In fact, he had not yet adequately developed it in his own mind and emotions; and the expression of it tantalized and eluded him.

Paul thought of no words with any of the themes of his symphony but each passage did represent an emotional development.

There was the love theme at the start—the infatuation motif, reflecting the quick, reckless love making between Geoffrey Wardlan and Lily Leam, as Flora List had told it at the trial; then followed the tremendous, tragic theme of death—sudden and violent as one lover was flung down from the terrace; next the theme of awful accusation of the other lover, his arraignment in court on trial for his own life; and then as Paul had mentioned to June—the sardonic moment of merriment among the jurors assembled to judge the prisoner.

Now another note had intruded to offset that merriment. Consternation, was the way Paul designated it to himself—consternation on the part of a juror; June.

Paul was unable to comprehend as correctly as Cora the cause of June's panic. In the jury box he sat as close to her, on her left, as Cora sat on June's right; but of course he lacked the advantage of almost continuous observation of June when away from the courtroom. So he imagined that she had been upset by suddenly believing that she would be obliged to vote a death sentence for Wardlan.

Emotions of Jurors Take Musical Form

Merriment among the jurors—and then dismay, on the part of one of them. The emotions took musical form within him; but the dismay motif did not please him; he worked on the passage again.

"When are you coming?" he heard Tom Knapp's voice repeat. "I tell you, you're holding everybody up. They're hungry and——"

Paul looked about and slowly he arose. "All right, Tom; I'm sorry," he said. "I didn't——"

"O, I know you didn't." Tom patted him on the back; and together they went into the lodgeroom.

The long dining table was set as usual, and the other 10 jurors were at their places.

When he saw June, Paul would have liked to go to her and tell her that she must have mistaken the tenor of the testimony of the morning, but he could not, before all these people and, moreover, discussion of the evidence was the matter most forbidden between any two jurors even if they had a moment alone.

Accordingly the 12 were seated together again, never exchanging a syllable on the one subject which joined them.

Most of the jurors ordered as generously as usual and, when they were served, promptly began eating, but June Stranton—Paul noticed—merely had ordered; she gazed at the plate put before her but touched nothing upon it.

Cora Helmer was watching her, and Paul studied Cora. He realized, after a few moments, that Cora was extraordinarily excited, tho she was attempting to conceal it. She succeeded —almost.

. . . .

At 1 o'clock, Elaine Stranton was alone in her room and she carefully turned her radio to the station which, at that hour, summarized the testimony at the trial.

"At Paignton this morning," the clear voice said, "something of a surprise was sprung in the trial of Geoffrey Wardlan, who is accused of the murder of Lily Leam. It was a surprise — and it had every mark of being an unwelcome one—to the prosecution.

"Bianca Danielli, the pretty young Italian girl who was housemaid and waitress for Lily Leam, spent most of the session on the witness stand; and she supplied the sensation.

"She was called as a witness for the prosecution. You must remember that so far only the witnesses for the state have been heard; the time has not yet come when the defense may present its witnesses. So Bianca was put on the stand as one of the principal persons thru whom Mr. Netley expects to prove his charge that Geoffrey Wardlan killed Lily Leam, by premeditation and in cold blood.

"Bianca started off very well for the state. She made a most favorable impression; she conveyed no feeling of personal hostility toward the prisoner while, under Mr. Netley's questions, she described in most careful and frank detail the almost constant association of Lily Leam and Geoffrey Wardlan; she gave an obviously honest account of the extraordinary infatuation of the two people whom she served and she was building up the state's case in a most effective way when, suddenly, she made a comment which toppled—or severely shook—the whole edifice of evidence against the prisoner.

"The contention of the state is that the close association of Geoffrey Wardlan and Miss Leam was not only constant, after she took up her residence at the manor, but that it was practically exclusive; the state set out to establish that during the weeks of Geoffrey Wardlan's fervid love making—and up to the time his love making changed, as the state charges, to murder—Lily Leam was visited at the manor by no other suitor.

"But this morning, the state's own witness—Bianca Danielli—gave evidence which, if it did not prove, at least strongly suggested that Lily Leam had been having another caller, a secret visitor who also was a privileged person in the house. This came out when Bianca was under direct examination, when she was being questioned by the prosecution.

"Following this damaging revelation, Mr. Netley quickly stopped his questioning. It was plain that he would have liked to dismiss Bianca if he could; but of course he was obliged to give her over to the defense for cross-examination.

"Mr. Torpen then elicited from Bianca that she had seen plain signs that a man, other than Geoffrey Wardlan, had visited Miss Leam late in the evening on several occasions; and, what was most important, Bianca described the signs of this other man's presence at the house on the evening when the murder occurred.

"Bianca could not name him; she never saw him; but she did find proof of his presence, after he had gone. His first furtive visit is connected with the loss by him, and the finding by Bianca, of the platinum lighter. Consequently, the newspaper people working on the case refer to this mysterious and otherwise unnamed person as "the man of the platinum lighter." Needless to say, there is greater and greater speculation in regard to him as the trial proceeds. . . ."

Elaine turned down her radio, as if, by so doing, she could prevent

Robes, Hostess and Tea Coats Are Dramatic

By Rea Seeger.

No mortal woman resists the holiday collections of house coats, the newest tea gowns, padded and quilted robes, and lounging robes with any convincing negatives. It, or they, are the tops in gifts. Whether they are the luxury finds or the swanky tailored models ready for house duty from dawn until dusk, or are made of clinging crêpes and fragile feathers, such a robe or negligee is prized above all other gifts. And it's only during the days preceding Christmas that the most original, the most unusual and beautiful models will be found.

New this year are the lovely, flattering tea or hostess gowns. Most of them are of soft velvet or thick, clinging crêpe. Some are trimmed with shimmering rows of gold braid or embroidery, or sequins combined with embroidery. Others are especially decorative, trimmed with gathered, deep, bister-tinted lace at the cuffs and around the neckline. Long, sweeping, angel wing draperies make the newest crêpe gowns not only picturesque, but superslenderizing. The yoke at the back is heavily embroidered with gold beads, giving the gown a medieval splendor in red, black, or white. Other crêpe tea gowns come in exquisite colors, a mistletoe green with long, full sleeves of marabou tinted exactly to match the crêpe.

• • •

All white negligees are tremendously popular and high fashion. Some are of fine, soft wool with marabou collars. Others are tailored like topcoats, with gold buttons, notched lapels and cavalier collars and slanted pockets.

Padded and quilted robes are legion. Gleaming beauties in white satin are lined with pastel or vivid shades, with frogs in the same color for fastening devices. Soft velvet padded robes are lined with floral printed satins, and the newest featherweight robes are made of two sheers with light padding quilted into formation. Quilted and padded jersey robes and jackets also are this year's vintage of good gift selections in pastels and bright, clear colors.

• • •

Crisp, swishy, taffeta house coats of huge plaid patterns boast outsize circular cut skirts that sharply define a small, neat waistline. Fabulously beautiful marabou house coats that swing around the anklelines come in snow white, shell pink, and baby blue. The same colors and soft feathers come in short coats that serve as evening jackets as well as flattering bedjackets.

• • •

Velvet in all colors is particularly effective in the many decorative robes and house coats featured in the holiday showings. Crimson as the holly berries, burgundy red, madonna blue, bright blues, lots of dramatic black affairs are trimmed with embroidery rhinestones, fur, lace, and nailheads, as well as dazzling gold and silver braid. These velvets come in swanky coat models, or in the more feminine house gowns or tea gown creations. Everything expressly designed for the Christmas shoppers has been fashioned to achieve everything for color and figure flattery.

Out of dozens of breath-takingly beautiful Christmas finds, we've sketched only seven. Others equally lavish in trim, eye-catching and luxurious in color and contrast will be found in the same collection. For specific information, telephone Superior 0200.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

If your extra pounds present wardrobe problems, here's our own Christmas present to you: Two designs that will enable you to make frocks with distinctly smart lines that flatter your silhouette. Both styles are easy to make, and they represent budget savings as well as fashion appeal.

Left and center, two versions of the first pattern. Notice the V neckline, untrimmed for the sake of neckline flattery. Sleeves are softly puffed at the shoulders, and not too tight in the forearms. Sunburst tucking "does things" for the waistline, and paneling accomplishes miracles in the skirt. The jacket, which buttons down the front snugly, has the same shoulders as the dress.

Right, another simple frock, this time with softly shirred shoulder yoke and interesting bow detail. The bodice has softness in contrast to the precise plaiting of the skirt. The flattering sleeves are bracelet length.

Both models will make up equally well in crêpe or sheer woolen. Satin, too, is a fashionable possibility.

Style No. 2746 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material for dress; 2¼ yards for jacket.

Style No. 2645 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

The Lady of the House

A lady in a nearby town, who had taken an English refugee child into her home, was quite insistent on the matter of a daily bath. Feeling that the whole business of washing was greatly overdone, the little Cockney lad was heard to grumble and mutter in his bath. By and by the lady caught the words: "They should have got themselves a bloody duck."

We had wild strawberry jam with our toast this morning, bringing a whiff of June into December. I made it of those round, rosy little berries that grow along the "little roads" and down in grassy meadows, with a very few of the rarer crimson ones of the woodlands. With Henry Van Dyke we "tasted the odor of a hundred blossoms and the green shimmering of innumerable leaves and the sparkle of sifted sunbeams and the breath of highland breezes and the song of many birds and the murmur of flowing streams." And we said amen to the sage remark of William Butler: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did."

Recollections.

Father lowered his newspaper and looked over to where Betty was cutting out paper dolls. "Here it is almost Christmas and we haven't been shopping for mother's gifts," he said. "Better find out what she would like."

A little later Betty, talking with mother, approached the subject of Christmas giving. "If you wanted to buy a present for a dear friend," she asked yawning indifferently, "what would you select?"

Mother pondered for a moment, looking down at her sewing. "Well," she replied, "since shoulder shawls are in such good style and so comfortable on a cold morning, I think I'd look for one, perhaps at Smith and Brown's Emporium."

Next day at the Emporium a middle-aged clerk lifted a big box from a high shelf and displayed a pile of shawls on the counter before Betty and father—beautiful shawls—one a soft blue with bright Roman stripes, one of red and cream checks, and then a gay plaid. "Lovely, aren't they?" But Betty sighed and looked away.

"Too bright," she said, "it's for an elderly lady. I'll take that dark brown one."

"For grandma, I suppose," smiled the clerk. "She can't be very old."

Betty shook her head. "No, it's for mother, and she is THIRTY-THREE years old."

—A. I. B.

Shopping thru the display ads for little Christmas gifts, I find we are actually harking back to the much vaunted "gay nineties'" in a number of items. Lace-trimmed hankies, for instance, so like those we used to spend long hours in the making; sewing insertion, beading, edging, footing, to tiny squares of fine linen with infinitesimal stitches. I usually got the corners wrong and had to rip and start over.

Slips with camisole tops and lace or embroidery flounces. Do you remember those later camisoles made of wide flowered ribbons and laces, to be worn under georgette blouses? So very "feminine." I wonder if they will be next on the scene.

Always I have wanted to spend at least one Christmas in a log cabin in a pine wood. So far I haven't managed it and my friends tell me I wouldn't like it anyway. I still want to—with everything nice and warm and snug, of course.

We do bring bits of the woods indoors. This year, for the table center, we shall have a ball of sphagnum moss, firmly wound with string, set into a brown and green pottery bowl so it can be kept wet. All over the top we "plant" little clusters of evergreens—white pine, hemlock, juniper, cedar, balsam, spruce—wired to the toothpicks florists use. Bits of color, too, rose haws, wintergreen berries, tiny hemlock cones, beechnut burrs, holly berries. Perhaps a slender red candle in the center.

Sometimes we cover the balls all over with the green sprigs and hang them from the old lighting fixtures, or in windows and doorways. After the moss is firmly wound we push a piece of wire thru, turn a hook and pull it back; then a hook or loop at the top to hang it. We keep all our greens damp and cold as long as possible.

I like the tree with only silver and crystal ornaments and white candles. [Yes, we have real candles]. The young people want more color; reminding of childhood when they could pick red apples, big popcorn balls, animal cookies, candy canes, and such goodies from the tree.

Christmas eve supper by candle light; tiny wreaths of green hanging from the candle sticks. The rest of the house in soft, warm darkness, and wrapped about by the blue and gold and white of the peaceful, starry night.

Universal Day—Not exactly restful. Take care when driving as there is a tendency to speed and take chances.

Birthdays—If this is your birthday, you might think you ought to have time to catch your breath after the excitement of this five year. If you didn't have any excitment and no changes, then you were asleep and not coöperating with your opportunities. It is too late now to start trying to catch the bus. The coming year brings full recognition of responsibilities and a restriction on your personal freedom. You will need to do more for others, to stay closer to home, and sacrifice your interests to those of your family or community.

This Home-Mixed Cough Remedy is Most Effective

Easily Mixed. Needs No Cooking.

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granualted sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Make Child's Party Success; Here Is How

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If the holidays are synonymous for you with a gay social whirl, that enthusiasm may extend itself to a party for the younger children as well as for the gay high school and college crowd. If it does, and you're not experienced in this kind of party giving, perhaps you'll be glad of a few words from a perhaps older and perhaps wiser head, or at least be willing to listen!

To begin with, party giving for young children is not like party giving for grownups. It's more difficult, in some ways, and easier in others, as you'll see when we get into the subject. But first, and in this way it's like adult affairs, ask yourself whether you're giving the party for your own pleasure or to cross off social obligations, or whether you're entertaining with the primary object of giving the children a good time. If this last is the reason for your festivity and you'll read the following suggestions, then some of the sad results of a children's party will be prevented, such as broken little hearts, upset stomachs, disturbed sleep and digestions, loss of self-confidence and social poise.

• • •

First, the most successful party for the 3 and 4 and 5 year olds is one in which there are not too many children. Young children tire with too many personalities and consequent confusion and excitement.

Next, parties are most enjoyed if the children know each other, or if most of them do and those who are a little strange are helped to fit in. Choose your young guests with that in mind or, rather, let your little boy or girl choose the guests. This party is for his pleasure and should be made up of the children he likes to be with, his young cousins, his class at school [if small enough] or neighborhood playmates.

Another point is: plan ahead of time what the children are to do. Familiar games that they play by themselves, songs and marches, perhaps, drawing pictures of animals, pinning the tail on the donkey [or some other equivalent of this stunt] or other activities you know the children enjoy may be mapped out in advance. The toy and game departments will help you out if you want to fuss that much. Or if you want really to splurge, engage a magician to take rabbits out of hats and perform other simple sleight-of-hand.

• • •

Whatever you do, don't have prizes. Tho my own childhood memories would make me advise that, my general feeling about competition and my observation of children reinforce it. Prizes are not at all necessary from any standpoint, and always cause some heartache, either of disappointment or a feeling of inadequacy or inferiority. Why inject this into a party, when the one object is to see that every little boy and girl has a lovely time? But what you can do, if you feel so inclined, is to provide a simple "favor" for each. This may be in the nature of a little present, perhaps hung on the tree with the child's name on, or placed at each child's place if they are to sit down to eat.

Which brings us to refreshments. Naturally, a young child's party is an afternoon affair. This means that the food will be served somewhere near the normal supper hour. If the party is not too large, some parents make the little function serve as a simple substitute for the evening meal, that is, they serve one hot dish and then the inevitable ice cream and cake or cookies.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Glamor in a gift set keyed to an exquisite perfume. There's a headdress, chic and scarlet, on the sculptured head which will serve later as a hat stand. In the box itself are a sachet case, perfume, cologne, even makeup aids, all nestling in satin.

Package isn't everything, of course, but come Christmas and it takes on an importance that's very real. Gift givers want their offerings to look lovely; those on the receiving end feel that the outward beauty of the gift reflects the loving care in selection that tells a sentimental story of its own.

This year the Christmas offerings in glamor gifts are surprisingly beautiful, but even among this embarrassment of riches there are standouts. Notable among these are the gift sets, all assembled around an exquisite, provocative perfume, that are in especially designed boxes, some of them signed, like fine paintings. The colors are feminine, pink; the designs delicate, chic, and sophisticated.

• • •

There are little gifts and big ones, each as perfectly executed as care and artistry could insure. Starting with the little ones, there is the small, very French hat box, complete with ribbons across its transparent top. This is one of the most beautiful settings ever dreamed up for face powder, rouge, and lipstick. The price: $2.95.

Then, in a makeup box that will prove one of the handsomest of dressing table ornaments there is a more extensive ensemble. Perfume [and it's SUCH lovely stuff], face powder in the same scent, and cologne with an atomizer. The bottles are in stunning designs. For all this, and box luxury, too, $5.50.

Another, larger box contains rouge, lipstick, talcum, perfume, cologne, and face powder. This box is oval in shape, one of the most interesting of the whole impressive family. A half-hidden, Mona-Lisaish face is an integral part of its design, and set in where the hair would be is a jeweled ornament that will look divine in the recipient's hair. This set is $10.95.

• • •

But one of our special pets is the large hat box. It makes one think of the good old days when chic women could step off the steamers flaunting French hat boxes. You'll want it for the closet shelf that shows, after you've exhausted the supply of bath powder, face powder, cologne, and perfume. It's $8.75.

Still another ensemble is a huge family of the scented glamor aids. In this set the large box is adorned on its outer corner with a cerise chiffon handkerchief, a dress clip, and earrings. This, in addition to the makeup items and perfume, has three sachet pillows. The price: $17.50.

• • •

For a climax to this impressive, eye-catching parade there is a whooper-dooper. A huge oblong box, this is topped with a model of a beautifully sculptured head. Later on, it will make the most impressive hatstand "she" ever had. When she receives it, the sculptured head is serving as a stand for an evening headdress designed by two of the brightest pixies of the millinery world. It's a scarlet frou-frou, piquant and fluttery.

This box is designed like a deep drawer, with a luxurious satinlined compartment that pulls out. There's lots of glamor in that drawer, starting with the bottle of perfume, working on down the line thru lipstick and talcum and such, and ending with a big, flat, sachet lingerie case. It's all exciting and impressive, and it costs $35.

More Women's Groups Join Illinois Concord

The Zonta Club of Chicago and the Chicago Restaurant Women's association have joined the ranks of organizations endorsing the Illinois Women's Concord amendment. This amendment to the Illinois eight hour law for women workers, to be proposed at the coming session of the legislature, would exempt women executives, secretaries, and professional women from the law's provisions.

Names of nine district chairmen to head the Concord's current membership drive in Cook county will be announced at a luncheon Thursday at the Chicago Bar association. The Concord has a goal of 10,000 members. Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, former president of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago, heads the Concord.

Crocheted French Poodle

879

By Ellen Bruce.

If the cost of a live, pedigreed French poodle is out of reach as a playmate for the youngest one, crochet a pet from a hank of Germantown or knitting worsted. This aristocratic looking pup has all the charm and appeal of a live animal, and can withstand any and all treatment without a word of complaint. It is not a difficult crochet job and is an ideal choice for a gift suggestion.

For instructions in crocheting the French poodle, No. 879, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Range of Scents Is Wide This Season

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We doubt if any previous holiday season ever knew so wide a distribution of scents, or so varied a presentation, as the 1940 one, or, for that matter, such ingenuity and sheer artistry of packaging.

We have been asked time and again certain questions about perfumes, toilet waters and eau de colognes that we take this occasion to pass on to you such information as we have gathered from those in a position to know all about the subject of scents, natural and by-products thereof.

• • •

The commonest query pertains to the difference between colognes and toilet waters and their relation to perfumes proper. While we may have explained his before, we repeat that there is a great difference, both in character and usage, between perfumes, colognes, and toilet waters.

Let us explain that perfume is a compound containing a high percentage of essential oils and very little alcohol, and while some cologne and toilet water manufacturers claim a lasting scent for their products, the lasting scent, really, is the perfume proper.

Toilet water is, in reality, perfume to which a high percentage of alcohol has been added, and its use is intended for occasions when the mere suggestion of a scent is desired.

Cologne differs from toilet water in that it is, in itself, a combination of herbs and citrus oils blended with a generous quantity of alcohol. The rise in cologne sales of the last couple of years is explained as due to manufacturers overcoming former difficulties blending the ingredients of a cologne base with perfume oils.

• • •

Toilet waters have a wider available range of scents than colognes because, even today, there remain a few perfumes which cannot be blended with a true cologne. But colognes are enormously popular, nevertheless, because of the light scenting they emit when sprayed on garments, skin, and hair, and because cologne may be used at any hour of the day.

We often are asked what effect the intensification of war abroad has and will have on America's perfume supply. We are told that the supply will be affected, but to no serious degree. The continued supply of certain basic ingredients has been endangered by the fall of France, from the south of which came the attars of rose and of jasmine. These scents, we are informed, cannot be duplicated exactly either in the laboratory or by growing the same flowers elsewhere in the world.

American science and industry have well considered the situation, and have developed products which, we are assured, may be used to produce rose and jasmine perfumes so nearly resembling the prewar product that the difference scarcely is noticeable, even to a scent expert. America, unknowingly, was pretty well prepared for this emergency, for whether or not you realized it, in recent years perfumes have been becoming the products of laboratories. The recent emergency is just another step in that trend.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

Here Are Some Dinner Ideas for Christmas

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Christmas dinners are so like Thanksgiving dinners that sometimes we just duplicate the earlier meal at Christmas time. It's more fun for the cook and for family and guests, however, if we make the Christmas dinner different.

If turkey was served for Thanksgiving let's make it goose, duck, or a roast of ham for Christmas. Let's change our appetizer course and salad, and serve another kind of potatoes and vegetable.

CHRISTMAS DINNER MENUS

I.

Papaya and Orange Juice
Roast Turkey, Oyster Stuffing, Giblet Gravy
Au Gratin Potatoes Buttered Peas
Red Skinned Apple and Avocado Salad, French Dressing
Radishes, Celery, Green Onions
Parsley Biscuits
Cranberry Sherbet with Christmas Cookies
Coffee Salted Nuts

II.

(Dinner with Wine)
Crisp Green Salad, Wine Vinegar Dressing
Roast Goose, Apple and Celery Stuffing
Mashed Potatoes Giblet Gravy
Creamed Rutabagas
Celery Olives
Bow Knot Rolls, Wild Bramble Jelly
(Burgundy Served with Dinner Course)
Old Fashioned Boiled Pudding Served Flaming, with Brandy Sauce
Coffee
Bowl of Fruit and Nuts

III.

Vegetable Juice Cocktail with Christmas Canapes
Roast Duck with Prune and Orange Stuffing, Orange Sauce
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Asparagus
Tomato-Watercress Salad
Butterhorn Rolls
Dark Fruit Cake with Lemon Sauce
Coffee Mints

IV.

Melon Ball Cocktail
Baked Ham Basted with Cranberry Juice
Baked Sliced Sweet Potatoes and Apples
Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce
Chopped Green Salad, Roquefort Stuffed Celery
Orange Rolls
Pumpkin Chiffon Pie
Coffee
Mints and Nuts

V.

Shrimp Cocktail, Celery Curls
Roast Capon with Sage-Onion Stuffing
Mashed Sweet Potatoes on Pineapple Rings, Cherry Garnish
Creamed Brussels Sprouts with Chestnuts
Salad of Artichoke Hearts with Pimiento
Hot Biscuits Crabapple Jelly
Broiled Grapefruit with Sherry
Coffee
Bowl of Nuts Christmas Candies

In households where there isn't a maid to wait on tables I'd recommend serving the first course in the living room. It's much easier and more graceful for a hostess to pass fruit juice to her guests before they have come to the table than for her to be darting about so much to remove one course from the table and replace it with the next. It is important for her to sit at the table with her guests, leaving them for as little time as possible, once they are all arranged around the festive board. Even a large dinner should be served with apparent ease if guests are to be made comfortable.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Dual natures in people aren't always to be envied, but when some material for the house use possesses this quality it's a different story entirely. For example, there's an asphalt impregnated material which comes in dark green, rich maroon, and black, and which you can use as a traffic top for your roof deck, or for your basement floor. In the latter instance you can varnish and wax it and you have a fine floor for amusements and games, dancing included.

* *

There's a luxurious "feel" to suede, and now we find that a structural glass, for several years available in a satiny finish, now comes with a "suede finish" for your bathroom or kitchen walls, or for that new powder room you may be planning for after Christmas. It is available in a number of lovely colors, and its velvety looking surfaces are easy to clean with simple home mixed cleaning formulas. A different and rich looking structural glass well worth looking into.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-adressed envelope for reply.

The third value of the inventors group is a 3 cent stamp honoring Cyrus H. McCormick, who is credited with the invention of the reaping machine. This stamp, which was the 33d example of the Famous Americans series, was placed on sale at Lexington, Va., on Oct. 14 and at that time 137,415 first day covers were postmarked and 1,030,246 stamps were sold.

The design of this value follows the standard pattern for the inventors' group and measures 85-100 x 98-100 inch. The vignette covers the design and upon it are superimposed the inscriptions and value tablet. The caption reads Cyrus Hall McCormick and the value is expressed with a numeral "3" and the character "c" for cents. These stamps were printed on rotary presses equipped with curved plates, and they were perforated 11 x 10½. Plates bearing numbers 22625, 22626, and 22627 were prepared in June, 1940, and the printing of 50 million copies of this stamp was started on Aug. 28 on a press equipped with plates 22625 and 22626.

Cyrus H. McCormick.

The portrait of McCormick which was used for this stamp was copied from a photograph of pastel by Lawton S. G. Parker, made from a painting by G. P. A. Healy between 1880 and 1883. William A. Roach was the designer, John Eissler engraved the portrait; Charles A. Brooks and James T. Vail, the frame, and James T. Vail the lettering.

Cyrus Hall McCormick was born near Walnut Grove, Va., in what is now Roane county, West Virginia, on Feb. 15, 1809. His father was a farmer who had invented many labor saving devices for farm work and who had devoted a great part of his life to an effort to construct a successful grain cutting machine. Cyrus took up the task in 1831 and carrying on in the same course attempted by his father built a machine which was successfully used in the harvest of 1831 and patented in 1834. After further improvements the McCormick reaper proved to be a complete success and in 1847 the inventor moved to Chicago where he established a factory and began to manufacture the reaper and other agricultural machines.

Cyrus H. McCormick was elected a member of the French Academy of Sciences on the ground of "having done more for the cause of agriculture than any other living man." He contributed largely to the foundation of Northwestern university and endowed a chair at Washington and Lee university in his native state. He died in Chicago on May 13, 1884.

The annual use of the Cuban tuberculosis stamp started on Dec. 1, according to a notice from Havana. The use of this 1 cent stamp is compulsory thruout Cuba on all correspondence, telegrams, radiograms, and telephone toll bills, from Dec. 1 of this year up to and including Jan. 31, 1941.

The tenth annual issue of Christmas seals by the Student Loan Fund committee of the American Osteopathic association is now under way. The design in red, white, and blue shows a cerise background with a brightly burning candle, with suitable inscriptions at top and bottom. These seals are distributed thru osteopathic physicians, hospitals, and colleges of the world.

Leonard Utecht, 1143 North Keeler avenue, in a desire to stimulate collecting, is arranging a philatelic contest. There are no obligations whatever on the part of contestants and all that is required of the contestant is that he or she submit an essay of 150 words or less on the subject: "Why I Collect Postage Stamps." All essays sent in will become the property of Mr. Utecht and none will be returned. The first prize will be a Univex candid camera, the next three prizes will consist of stamps to be selected by the winner from selections submitted by Mr. Utecht, and the remaining six prizes will be packets of various sizes. The closing date is Tuesday, Dec. 31.

Mrs. M. Johnson, 3926 S. W. 23d street, South Omaha, Neb., has a quantity of poster stamps showing Eli Whitney and Cyrus H. McCormick. Readers who desire a set of these should send a stamped and addressed envelope to Mrs. Johnson.

M. G. Folger, R. 7, Green Bay, Wis., has added an interesting envelope stamp to his collection. This is a 2 cent Washington Bicentennial envelope stamp in which the upper fourth of the stamp is albino, i. e., embossed but without any color. In addition the reverse of the stamp has received an inking in the regular color. This of course shows the design in reverse. Those acquainted with such freaks understand that they are due to an interruption of the normal operation of the automatic envelope machines. In this case the machine has been allowed to operate without a sheet of paper in it. Instead of the normal printing of an envelope the closing of the press has deposited ink on the counterpart die which embosses the paper. In the next closing of the press the stamp being printed has received ink on both back and front, and in addition to that the stamp design has been partially covered with a second sheet of paper which accounts for the partial albino. Albinos are usually accounted for by two sheets of paper passing thru the machine at one time. Partial albinos are much scarcer and may be accounted for by torn sheets remaining in the press.

The Polonus, a monthly magazine devoted to the stamps of Poland, and published by the Polonus Philatelic society, has made its appearance with the November issue. The subscription price is $1 per year and a sample copy may be had without charge by addressing Polonus, 4867 Ogden avenue, Cicero, Ill.

Harold Goldman, 1551 South St. Louis avenue, is arranging to obtain postmarks from 50 destroyers of the United States navy. Send covers or postal cards with 1c each additional for forwarding. The closing date is Feb. 18, 1941.

The Original Order of Zunks will sponsor cachets for Christmas and New Year's. Send covers stamped and addressed but unsealed and unstuffed with 1c additional for each cover for forwarding, to G. H. A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

While clothing of all sizes is needed by the persons who come to this department for assistance, and our readers have been generous in supplying apparel of many kinds and sizes, we have one group which seems to be sadly neglected. Those are the women, and occasionally the men, who wear large sizes.

We have many appeals for coats and dresses in sizes from 44 to 54, and unless we can reach women who wear those sizes and have clothing to give, these requests will go unanswered. Such apparel is generally more expensive than that of average size, and unless it is well made, probably wears out rapidly, but we do hope that we can find at least a few warm coats in the extra large sizes.

Brief summaries of a few of the appeals now listed in our files will serve to show the need which exists.

Mrs. J. is short and stout and needs a warm coat and dresses, in fact, any apparel, size 52. She is elderly and ill and attending a clinic. For these weekly trips it is imperative that she be warmly clad and the agency which is assisting her cannot supply clothing. She lives alone in a room on the north side of the city.

Mrs. G. is losing her eyesight and must attend a clinic for treatment. She is 62 years old and, with her elderly husband, lives on a small pension. Her income is not large enough to provide suitable clothing, in size 44 or 46, which she needs if she is to continue to attend the clinic.

Mrs. B.'s husband is in a hospital on the outskirts of the city, and is not expected to live. She is ill and on relief, and the long trip to the hospital will be impossible for her unless she can obtain some warm clothing, size 58. Altho she makes a great effort to keep up a presentable appearance, she cannot possibly afford to replace her shabby clothing. Her address is north and west of the loop.

Transfer Fruit Pattern

By Nancy Cabot.

Fruit motifs for tea towels are ideal to look at when some favorite fruits are out of season. Summer is the time preserve them, and winter is the time to view their luscious beauty in the form of embroidery. These motifs vary in size, depending upon the fruit. They range from 2 by 4 to 6 by 6 inches, and may be used for lunch sets, apron decor or for color spots on pillows. The hot iron transfer pattern includes five motifs and detailed instructions, together with a color chart.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the fruit motifs for towels, No. X-622, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

DECEMBER 15, 1940.

Above: Debutante Harriet Sturgis must have been indicating her dinner partner, Arthur Van Kirk, to some one when this picture was snapped at the dinner-dance Mrs. William K. Kenly gave for her debutante granddaughter, Miss Mary Ann Wyman, at Camellia House.

Right: "Bob" Jones is no exception, for every man who sits next to stunning Meredith Manning looks at her with interest. She is the middle one of the Lucius B. Mannings' three daughters.

Miniatures by Mrs. Thorne Thrill Reception Guests

By Cousin Eve.

The Antiquarian reception at the Art institute for Mrs. James Ward Thorne was far and away the most distinguished event of the season.

It was a happening full of electricity, where guests crowded in early to see the American miniature rooms and stayed late. The party was set in those remote east rooms of the institute which, circling round formal courts and walled gardens, are reached via galleries galore, embracing treasures of the past. One had only to bat an eyelash to see en route the most perfect examples of tapestry, mirrors, porcelain, and period furniture in existence.

Receiving at the far end was Mrs. Philip Miller, handsome young president of the Antiquarians and granddaughter of Mrs. George Pullman, early day head of the same society. Beside her, looking a vision in white hat, white furs, white bouquet on a black frock, stood Mrs. Thorne, creator of the lovely American rooms we were streaming in to see.

Miss Charlotte O'Brien was lucky enough to have not one orchid, but three or four of them, when she attended the recent Bachelors and Benedicts ball at the Palmer House. Miss O'Brien is greatly in demand as an amateur mannequin, for she is tall and willowy.

Above: Mrs. Thomas S. Tyler adjusting her hair as she dined before a recent ball. Sitting next to her is Benjamin Kirkland.

Left: Miss Sally Perry's expression would seem to ask anxiously, "will it work?" as she tries to light her lighter to assist Miss Jane Swift. Miss Perry is the younger of the J. Newton Perrys' daughters and Miss Swift is the youngest of the Gustavus F. Swifts' three daughters.

Count Potocki and Mrs. Arnold S. Kirkeby were holding an animated conversation when the photographer caught them during an intermission at the opera. The six week season closed last night, altho there will be a performance today by the Ballet Theater, which has been the resident ballet during the opera season.

Miss Marie Louise Hulburd was one of the few last year's debutantes who were invited to the Bachelors and Benedicts and Assembly balls this winter. She is the daughter of the DeForest Hulburds.

Reception for Mrs. Thorne Is Event of Year

historic rooms is housed in a long special gallery. Each room is a little peep show by itself set in a wall at the level of the eye, and each is a miracle of perfection. There are 37 rooms divided into three groups. The first illustrates the early New England houses of the forefathers up to the New York "brownstone front" of President Theodore Roosevelt's day. The second group shows the south and beautiful historic interiors from Baltimore, some from along the York, James, and Potomac rivers, and others from New Orleans. The third takes in the middle west, deep south, southwest, and California's Spanish trend, and a modern penthouse of San Francisco.

This seems to be the artist's pet and is the most remarkable of the series—the miniature works of art on the walls are all originals, fancy the swank of it! A crayon by Marie Laurencin, two bronzes by John Storrs, a painting by Ozenfant, a typical work of Leger, and another tiny original by Leopold Sauvage.

The furniture is plastic glass, and thru the windows one envisions the sparkling lights of the new bridge and World's Fair at night.

There is an enchanting room from Salem—Salem where they burned witches in the good old days. It has a secret stair, and the wee blue Cantonware was made for it in China. On the floor is a copy of an old Chinese rug like those brought to Salem in the East India trade.

In these New England cupboards are "cottage" types of Staffordshire and Rockingham, absolutely charming. The stately Lee drawing room at Marblehead is perfect even to a clock that winds and a magnificent secretary with secret drawers. Portsmouth yielded up its beautiful doors and entrance halls to Mrs. Thorne's art, and the tiny silver services in these historic houses are themselves museum pieces.

• • •

In the chase after beauty Mrs. Thorne went to Gunston hall on the Potomac and immortalized it. She took the 18th century Chinese dining room of the house built 190 years ago by George Mason, author of the bill of rights. In fact, on a visit there last May I was able to see a rough draft of that document set into the wall over the library fireplace. Thomas Jefferson and Mason are supposed to have drafted the Declaration of Independence at Gunston hall. Be that as it may, Woodrow Wilson, Arthur Balfour and others had many a confab among the box hedges in the old garden.

Mrs. Thorne gives us the southeast drawing room at Carter's grove, and also the celebrated entrance hall. This house was a center of fashion in a romantic period, and the elaborately carved stairway of this hall was famed in the annals of Virginia. The house and plantation were ravaged by the British during the revolution, and Tarleton's dragoons slashed the handrail with their sabers while riding their horses for a diversion up the grand staircase. The scars are visible today. Oddly enough, it was the entrance hall of the Hermitage, house of Gen. Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, that struck me as being almost the top of the collection with its scenic wall paper and outdoor views.

It seemed to me that everybody in the world was at the tea that followed. Potter Palmer, president of the Art institute, and Mrs. Palmer were there, Mrs. Philo Otis, Mrs. George Ranney, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. Giovanni Cardelli, bringing Mrs. John Lester of London, who calls herself a refugee—mink-coatless and all that. Then there was Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who poured tea, smartly crowned with roses and laurel leaves; Mrs. Frank Hibbard, who likewise worked hard at the tea cups; Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. Jefferson Caffery with Miss Harriet Stuart, and a hundred more.

• • •

The American Friends of China were also in session that day at the Arts club. "The friends" were sardined so tight in the dining room that there was barely space for all comers. The guest of honor was Dr. H. W. Baerenspring, staff adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who was to speak on "China's Political and Military Situation After Three Years of War." Mrs. Harley MacNair, president, had the traveler at a table for tea, where also were Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. W. B. Hale, and Russell Tyson. Pouring tea at the long table near by were Mrs. R. T. Crane and Mrs. Dallas Phemister.

It was a fine, thoughtful audience that listened attentively to the utterances, slightly German in accent, of the tall well set up speaker. Dr. Baerenspring referred to himself as a policeman, and launched into a talk largely designed to make the American people favor an alliance with China and England. His talk, however, was not especially convincing. The most interesting part of his address was a sketch of Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese leader's conversion to Christianity which came two years after his marriage to the fascinating youngest Toong sister, Mai-Ling. This college bred young lady accepted the self-made Chinese general on the promise that he would read the Bible every day. His wife was a Methodist, so the Chinese leader joined the Methodist church.

All this was highly acceptable to Dr. Baerenspring's American audience, which also was delighted to learn how well the Chinese armies are standing up under the strain of war. Their morale is excellent, they can thrive on a bowl of rice and a brew of tea, and are at their best in guerrilla warfare, he said. Everything the speaker said was on the optimistic side.

As he spoke, it struck me that the history of this man would be even more interesting than his discourse on China. And it is. Dr. Baerenspring was chief of the Magdeburg police and in 1933 when Hitler came into power was interned with other political prisoners in East Prussia. After a while he escaped into Poland and later appeared in the United States as interpreter for a convention of international police in Chicago in 1934. It seems a long jump from here to a place on Chiang Kai-Shek's staff as police adviser, but the doctor made it. The handsome German is also a lawyer, and in the year between has remained in the counsels of the Chinese generalissimo.

It's extraordinary how these emissaries from China hold their audiences! I sat there practically enslaved, with the rest of the membership dreaming vaguely of happy days in Peking.

How very different was the tea among the camellias on Monday, for the vocational shut-ins. This was a crowded fashion show in the Camellia House at the Drake, the latest boite de nuit in Chicago. Under its pink and crimson velvet draperies tea tables were crowded, until the mannequins could scarcely squeeze thru in their "southern wear."

The Vocational Shut-ins, whose president is the lovely Beatrice Burnet Hart, have had a series of these Camellia House teas that have had almost too much success. Last Monday several hundred well-wishers were turned away, and all the nearby rooms and corridor were overflowing with tables and gay young patrons. There was music, too, a fashion parade, and much chi-chi.

To most of us who haven't their winter wardrobes well in hand these spring fashions and bathing beach styles are depressing. One was particularly low in one's mind at the Palm Beach dinner frock, a spangled blouse and short pants to wear on informal occasions at night that cost two hundred dollars.

To add to the general excitement, opera stars have appeared at these teas and been riotously received. Helen Jepson and John Charles Thomas are the two I chanced to see present, shining in the bright melee. Miss Jepson was wearing a superb fur cape of some kind of furry creatures—I didn't recognize the beasties—one doesn't any more.

The Vocational Shut-ins do a remarkable work in Chicago among invalids. An offshoot of the Woman's exchange, they employ invalid women who cannot go out, as the name implies, and who earn a good living at home.

In all, it was a gay, amusing party. There will be another next week, also in the Camellia House.

The American ambassador to Brazil, Jefferson Caffery, and his charming wife, the former Gertrude McCarthy, are having a holiday whirl in our town. They are visiting Mrs. Daniel McCarthy at the Lake Shore Drive, and life for them here, as at their home in Rio, is a daily round of luncheons, teas, dinners, and late suppers.

Last Saturday after the opera Mr. and Mrs. Carter Harrison entertained at the Casino in honor of the Cafferys, a lively party that was staged in the Fountain room. Mrs. Caffery has fallen into the European way of wearing black — but white orchids and an irresistible chapeau of white somethings were far from serious. Wish I could remember who were at this ambassadorial rout — that began early and lasted late. Every one was quite formal. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cummings were there, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, the Sterling Mortons, Pat Hamills, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Miss Elsie McCormick, Mrs. Edith Manierre, Ira Morris, and maybe half a hundred more.

• • •

A Sunday tea that had much movement was Mrs. P. A. Valentine's at home for her sister, Mrs. W. Vernon Booth of New York, who had been spending a gay week in Chicago. Both ladies wore hats, as is, and was ever, vogue at such informal receptions. Mrs. Valentine has three sons, all married now, and some of these juniors were there with their wives, notably Lester Armour and his beautiful wife, and a grandson, Young P. D. Armour IV. and his charming helpmeet. She was a Philadelphia girl and has the most engaging manners. Actually one feels she likes to meet people and doesn't find it boring.

As for the salon that staged this tea—it is delightful—warm reds, beautiful jades, atmosphere! As for the company, it was charming, and very movemente as our poor, dear French friends used to say in the good old days. Among the hundred or more were Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. A. H. Pattersbn, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. W. H. Hubbard, Mrs. R. T. Crane, Mrs. John Crerar, Mrs. John Pirie, to mention a few.

Mrs. Valentine expects to pass the season in Chicago and keep the home fires burning.

Mirage Becomes a Reality at Phoenix, Ariz.

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The mirage illusion of cool water and green palms always has been the lure as well as the despair of desert travelers. This year the Arizona Biltmore on the desert outside Phoenix has made the mirage a reality.

Phillip K. Wrigley, who knows the desert well, might have had the beauty of the mirage in mind when he designed the new approach to the Biltmore pool. Thru a sand beach, which stretches almost from the hotel to the pool, winds a canal which is like a lazy river of heavenly blue. Crossing the canal at odd angles are four bridges, and on either side of the beach are cabanas with gayly colored awnings. There is even a tiny waterfall to give the sound of rushing water. And the cocos plumosos plums, imported for shade and beauty, seem very much at home in this man-made oasis.

• • •

The wall which frames this inviting picture is built of solid concrete blocks, but so lacy is their hand wrought design that the effect is one of fine filigree done in silver. Around the pool unit is a wide walk which leads past the golf course newly dotted with the deep green of arbor vitae to the tennis courts.

Miss Nora Carney of Lake Forest, who returned on Nov. 1 for her 12th season at the Biltmore, has a gift for wearing colors which are not only vastly becoming but which blend perfectly with the pale desert tints. The other day she was wearing a knitted sports suit of a soft rose shade with a tip tilted hat to match.

The Richard O'Haras of Chicago are at the Biltmore after a trip to the coast to see the Notre Dame-Southern California football game. They are visiting with their friends, the James McDonoughs of Chestnut Hill, Mass. Miss Mary Louise Anderson of Chicago opened her home on the Biltmore estates in November.

• • •

A visitor who does not boast a football jersey or a numeral gets scant attention in Phoenix these days. Notre Dame warriors, returning triumphantly from California, were met in Phoenix by Yellowstone Chip and driven by stagecoach to the Wigwam ranch at Litchfield Park. There they were given an opportunity to display their prowess in calf "tackling." The only difficulty was that a western calf, particularly one of the rodeo variety, does not know enough to stay down when he is tackled and a little matter of "offside" does not bother him in the least. Apparently one Wigwam cow pony was not too impressed by gridiron fame, for he very neatly tossed a Notre Dame half back over his head.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers will arrive in Phoenix on Dec. 21 on their way to the Rose bowl and will spend Christmas at the Camelback inn. They will scrimmage with opponents who know all the rules, the border conference champions of Arizona State Teachers college at Tempe.

• • •

It always has been a delight to turn into the grounds of the Jokake inn outside Phoenix and to see just ahead its pink tinted towers. They always have reminded us vaguely of the Gothic towers of the University of Chicago, but we did not know until yesterday that they are replicas of mission towers built by the Indians under the tutelage of Spanish padres who were determined to transplant a bit of Gothic beauty to this strange wild land. The Indians did the best they could with limited understanding and the tools at hand, and even if their towers did have a bit of the wickiup about them they still were symbols of aspiration.

The towers of Jokake, unlike the towers of Oxford, look down on a dreamy tranquility which must seem strange to Capt. and Mrs. Pelham Cochrane of London. They have just come to Arizona after experiencing 19[illegible] air raids.

• • •

Dr. and Mrs. Henry D. Lloyd of Little Compton, Rhode Island, and Chicago are spending the winter at Jokake. The Edmund J. Doerings of Chicago have been there for the last few days. They will return after the first of the year for the season. The Bertrand Walkers of Lake Forest and Santa Barbara are visiting at Jokake now.

Mallory Browne, London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, also has escaped temporarily from war clouds to Arizona sunshine. While awaiting orders to return to London, he is vacationing with Mrs. Browne at Camelback inn.

Miss Margaret Valentine, formerly of Chicago, now of Old Greenwich, Conn., and her nephew, Patrick Valentine III., have returned to Camelback for their third winter. The junior Patrick Valentines and their other son, Gordon, will join Miss Valentine and Pat at Christmas time.

• • •

Muriel McCormick Dyer and her cousin, Mrs. Vera Parsons, spent the summer at the Westward Ho in Phoenix. Mrs. McCormick's children, Dyer and Edith, stayed at the Cross Triangle, a cattle ranch outside of Prescott. Mrs. Parsons is expected to return from the east to Arizona this winter.

Miss Loretta Roche of Chicago, who is spending the winter at the Westward Ho with her mother, Mrs. Edward J. Roche, is one of the most ardent of the younger admirers of Arizona. She says that she came to Arizona expecting to find a strange country inhabited by cowboys and Indians, and that she was totally unprepared for modern cities and luxurious hotels. Perhaps we write about the wrong things, but cowboys and Indians are so much fun.

The Edwin Shermans of Evanston, who spent their last two winters in Africa and South America, are spending this winter in Arizona at the Westward Ho.

• • •

Dr. Brown Pusey of Chicago, a guest for many years of the San Marcos, was here for the opening of the Chandler resort on Dec. 1. Other first guests are Dr. and Mrs. Casey Wood, formerly of Chicago, and Mrs. Wood's niece, Miss Marjorie Fyfe. Dr. and Mrs. Wood lived for some time in Italy and Germany before the outbreak of the war.

Until this week we had allowed glowing stories of Arizona sunrises to go unchallenged. However, when the porter on the Chief told us that we could watch the sunrise above the mountains around Wickenburg and at the same time eat breakfast, we left a 6 o'clock call. The sunrise we saw may have been unusual, certainly it made understatements of the stories we had heard and the pictures we had seen: But no sane artist would try to paint an Arizona sunrise. No one would believe him.

The John C. Dinsmores of Chicago left the Chief at Lamy, New Mexico, for Santa Fe. They expect to spend a few days in Phoenix and then go to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to spend Christmas with their son, First Lieutenant John Dinsmore.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Dec. 14, 1892.

Dear Julia: Have you ever heard Will Carleton, the farm poet? He gave one of his readings last evening at Central Music hall, and, as usual, Will and I heard him. He was one of the first in America to give such entertainments, inspired, perhaps, by Dickens' much earlier success. It is said he has a large income from his readings, as well as from royalties on his books.

Looking over his poems recently, I found them less thrilling than when I first read them, almost 20 years ago. Yet I shall never cease to feel that he has a singular knack of interpreting the common man in his rhymes. As you read you seem to live the life of the farmer, sitting on the front "stoop," by the honeysuckle; or driving to town in the single buggy.

His ballad, "Over the Hill to the Poor House," has had a powerful influence on American life, I believe, for supervisors of these county infirmaries testify that children come to take their parents home, shamed by that famous old poem into doing their filial duty. I still can't read it without a lump coming in my throat, for I remember the striking illustration that accompanied it, in Harper's Weekly—a spare old woman in bonnet and shawl, looking back at the town, as she trudges toward that dreadful abode, the poor house, musing as she goes. Her bitterness turns to tenderness as she thinks of the times she had nursed her little ones in illness:

Over the hill to the poor house . . .
my child'rn dear, good bye!
Many a night I've watched you,
when only God was nigh;
And God'll judge between us, but I will always pray
That you shall never suffer the half that I do today!

I like "Betsey and I Are Out," too, the human and moving story of the old farmer and his wife who were ready for divorce:

I have talked with Betsey and
Betsey has talked with me,
And we have agreed together that we can't never agree.

Even better is the sequel to this narrative rhyme, "Betsey and I Make Up," in which Betsey, touched by her husband's generosity, in the divorce agreement, kisses him for the first time in half a dozen years.

Will Carleton's imagination isn't great, nor his vocabulary extensive; he doesn't charm with his words, but he does know how to express the sorrows and joys of the humble. If he isn't a great poet, he has, at any rate, helped make this a better world, and I say: Long may he live to write his humorous and touching verse.

Another entertainment of the week was a unique tennis tournament, held in the Auditorium theater, Chicago players contending against men from the east. Our champions were John A. Ryerson, Victor M. Elting, Sam T. Chase, and his brother, Charles. Inspired by a fashionable and well dressed audience, the players did themselves proud. It seems rather a dull game to me, with much repetition of tossing the ball back and forth. I like croquet better, but that seems to be going out. The men's costumes were not very artistic but I presume they were comfortable—their trousers turned up.

Watching these excellent players were some of our foremost citizens. Gen. Miles and his staff made a brilliant display in their box. Mrs. Miles wore a pale-blue silk costume, with black lace overdress and a small blue velvet and jet bonnet. Florence Pullman, whom every one notices because she is so fine looking, looked lovely in a black cloth dress, with a vest of pink embroidered chiffon. Mrs. George R. Thorne wore a dark green cloth suit with fur trimmings.

We are having a gay winter, and as Will and I are feeling particularly well, we take in many of the entertainments. Much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Will Carleton [1845-1912], was born on a farm near Hudson, Mich. As a newspaper man in Detroit in 1871, reporting a divorce case, he was inspired to write "Betsey and I Are Out," which was copied thruout the country. In quick succession appeared "Out of the Old House," "Over the Hill to the Poor House," and other farm rhymes. Published in 1873 in book form by Harper's, these verses had an enormous sale.

Where Is My Wandering Boy?

Frank M. Keith, La Grange, Ill., writes: "In the year 1880 a barber named Tony Delight ran a shop on the east side of Clark street, south of Madison street, and conducted at his own expense a mission for the down-and-outs. At this time Mrs. C. D. Carrington was the sweet voiced soprano of the Second Baptist church and Tony used to pay her a dollar an evening to sing for these men. It was pathetic to hear them sob when she sang: 'Where Is My Wandering Boy?' I was proud to act as her escort to and from the meetings."

SAD BALLADS OF YESTERDAY.

Please, Papa, Don't Whip Little Ben.

Last night, as the stars were all shining,
Little Bennie knelt down by his bed,
And asked the dear Lord to forgive him
For all the bad words he had said.
He prayed the dear angels to tell Him
How sorry and sad he had been.
He's little and didn't know better,
Please, papa, don't whip little Ben.

Sisters Design Clothes with Individuality

By Bettina Bedwell.

Victims of our system of style mass production are to be found all over this land among women who are not in run-of-the-mill proportions, and among women who know themselves and have clear cut ideas of what they desire to wear. It is maddening to such women to meet up with mass-produced statements such as: "That color isn't being worn this season," when they are looking for a shade that is particularly becoming. Or, "This is just your type, Moddam," when they are offered a dress that is skimpy over the bosom, whereas they need some gracious fullness, or pinched in at the waistline when they run to girth at this point, or some other fault.

The reason for this deplorable business is, or course, that so many designers are in bondage to what they think of as current fashion. They try to cramp the vast assortment of tastes and figures in our nation into a set mould, assorted to rigidly conceived types, but the situation is in for improvement. I'm cheered to find an increasing number of expert designers who are kicking over the traces. They are trying to do a more understanding and intelligent job of dressing women more personally.

• • •

Two such women are Miss Pyllon Zeron and her sister, Miss Bydzar Zeron, who design for their uncle, Charles Kondazian. As Miss Pyllon puts it, they aim to "broaden fashion to take in more becoming and personal clothes." They have a long background in designing, being experts of many years' experience. Miss Pyllon has designed spectator sports clothes, but both prefer to create the kind of clothes they design now, which is dressy daytime and a few evening models. They like to, and do, choose soft, rich materials, because they say the fabric suggests to them what the dress will be.

There is oriental opulence to the effect of the clothes these sisters make, an influence rightly come by since they are of Armenian origin, but kept within the bounds of our American scene by their excellent taste and experience. They go in for what they call "soft, tapestry colors," and pottery tones, because such colors are so easy to live with, as any one knows who ever had a piece of tapestry or fine pottery in the house.

• • •

Characteristic of the dresses made by these sisters are embroideries, which they design as well as the dresses they adorn, and this winter they are using delicate, coppery traceries of thread as well as rich all-over braid designs and fine silk embroideries. I saw some of the most perfect dresses for the coming holidays in this collection, the kind you'd love to wear, with embroideries on simple sleeves, or around pockets, or as borders, on dresses cut to easy, flowing lines that any figure could carry.

What I like most about the dresses Miss Pyllon and Miss Bydzar design is the way they are cut to allow for figure deficiencies and excesses. Most of their models have some slight softening bosom treatment, nicely rounded shoulders that aren't at all aggressive, and ease at the waistline, which may or may not be belted, according to the patron's own ideas.

WEDS DEC. 29

Ornithological Society Taking Field Trip Today

The Chicago Ornithological society will sponsor a bird study field trip today at the Morton arboretum near Lisle, Ill. Emmet R. Blake, assistant curator of birds at the Field Museum of Natural History, will conduct the trip, which will start at 9 o'clock from the administration building. Dr. A. Trevenning Harris of Gary, Ind., will give an illustrated lecture at the society's meeting Tuesday evening at the Auditorium building. Colored movies will illustrate this talk on habits of the Caspian tern, the ring-billed gull, the redheaded woodpecker, and the bluebird. Both field trip and lecture are open to the public.

Distinguished Women Pay a Visit to City

By Betty Browning.

Three unusually stimulating women have been recent visitors in Chicago: Mrs. Concha Romero James, fiery little Mexican born director of the Pan-American union's division of intellectual coöperation; Mrs. Rosalind G. Bates, red headed and masterful director of conciliation for the Los Angeles Children's Court of Conciliation; quietly authoritative Mrs. Florence K. Thacker, Hoosier bred president of the National Association of Women Lawyers.

As official go-between in matters intellectual and cultural for the 21 American republics, Mrs. James has definite authority to reinforce her encouraging report on the changed attitude of South Americans toward their biggest North American neighbor. At a meeting sponsored jointly by the Pan-American council and the University college of Northwestern university, the petite and vivacious Mrs. James cited example after example of longtime Yankee haters who swung abruptly to friendship for this country after the blitzkrieg's swift progress in Europe last spring.

• • •

For five years Mrs. James has directed this division of intellectual coöperation, and has been interested in improved relations between Latin and North Americans for much longer than that. But when she was asked to confirm a report that her grandfather was an ambassador from Mexico to the United States, and her father, an early and distinguished pioneer in bettering American relations, the little director flatly refused.

"You American journalists!" she cried. "You want to write about what a woman wears, and who she is. Never what she thinks!"

Then she related that after graduating from Pomona college in California she had come as a young woman to New York to do postgraduate work at Columbia university. Because the Mexican revolution made further help from her family impossible, she had worked at anything and everything, "only not as an elevator operator," to support herself while she studied.

• • •

A specialist in Latin American history and culture, she received her appointment to the Pan-American union post in Washington, D. C., after years of activity in that field. Altho the union is supported by the 21 republics, Mrs. James prefers to work independently of official channels in furthering relations between the various countries.

Her prize story is of the Venezuelan schoolboys who wrote to her asking to have some strange insects identified. She put them in touch with world famous scientists in a number of countries. One of the insects turned out to be a new species, and was promptly named for its schoolboy discoverer. That discoverer now is studying entomology on a scholarship in the United States.

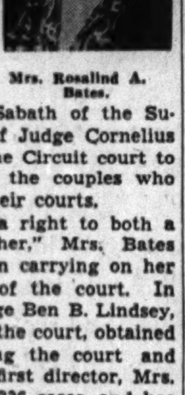
Mrs. Bates' visit had immediate consequences, for the Woman's Bar Association of Illinois forthwith decided to obtain for Illinois the sort of conciliation court that Mrs. Bates so eloquently described thru her own experiences in the Los Angeles Court of Conciliation.



Mrs. Rosalind A. Bates.

Actually, Mrs. Bates told the Illinois lawyers, Chicago unofficially has enjoyed many fruits of such a court thru the efforts of Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court and of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Circuit court to reconcile many of the couples who seek divorces in their courts.

"The child has a right to both a father and a mother," Mrs. Bates said is her creed in carrying on her work as director of the court. In the year since Judge Ben B. Lindsey, presiding judge of the court, obtained the law authorizing the court and appointed her its first director, Mrs. Bates has heard 1,336 cases, and has obtained reconciliation in 37.6 per cent of them.

In other cases, she has persuaded couples who could not be reconciled to forego nasty court fights for the sake of their children. No publicity is given the proceedings of her court.

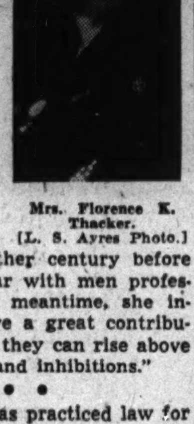
• • •

It is to the privacy of her court's proceedings, to the fact that she, as director, interviews both husband and wife separately and privately, without even a lawyer present, that Mrs. Bates attributes the majority of her reconciliations.

"Almost any one can do it," is Mrs. Bates' modest estimate of the qualifications needed for her job. Actually, her own are rather exceptional. The widow of Dr. Ernest Sutherland Bates, historian, philosopher, and author, and the mother of two grown sons, Mrs. Bates was a newspaper woman before she studied law. She practiced law in Los Angeles, and was active in the National Association of Women Lawyers and in local bar activities before her appointment to Judge Lindsey's court. She is a dynamic speaker.

• • •

A staunch feminist is Mrs. Thacker, but her enthusiasm is well tempered by Hoosier humor and balance.



Mrs. Florence K. Thacker. [L. S. Ayres Photo.]

This age, she believes, is a crucial one for women.

"The present crisis," she said, "is going to see women going forward, or it is going to put them right back where they were 100 years ago."

Under the best of circumstances, Mrs. Thacker contends, women will have to pioneer for at least another century before they are on a par with men professionally. In the meantime, she insists, women have a great contribution to make "if they can rise above their own fears and inhibitions."

• • •

Mrs. Thacker has practiced law for seven years in Indianapolis, and she sees no reason why women should not have lucrative law practices, for she has found they are peculiarly qualified by nature and experience to handle cases involving women and children. She would advise young women lawyers to specialize in this type of case as she has done, "and leave patent cases and corporation law to the men."

Farm born and bred, Mrs. Thacker studied at the University of Wisconsin and at Purdue university, and taught school until her marriage to a lawyer. Then she studied law and became her husband's partner, handling the court end of their practice. Her husband died last September, the day after her election as president of the National Association of Women Lawyers.

Mrs. Thacker has been active in civic organizations, as treasurer of Pilot International, a professional and business woman's service club, for eight years; as a director of the Lawyers' club of Indianapolis, as first president of the Indiana Women Lawyers, as secretary for five years of the Indianapolis Federation of Community Civic clubs, and as a member of the Woman's Rotary club. Her hobbies are her Brown county, Ind., log cabin, astronomy and astrology.

Chanukah Is Theme of Many Club Programs

Chanukah, the traditional Jewish Feast of Lights or of Dedication, which this year coincides with Christmas will occasion some of the most interesting events of the week. A large pageant and ball to be sponsored by the Zionist organization of Chicago next Wednesday evening at the Aragon ballroom will recall the rededication of the temple in ancient Jerusalem by the Maccabees after their victory over the Syrian king who had attempted to suppress the Jewish religion. It is this stirring chapter in Jewish history that Chanukah commemorates.

The pageant has been written by Ben Aronin, staged by Todros Geller, and will be presented by a cast of several hundred, headed by Jerome J. Greenberg. The Halevi Choral society of 60 voices will furnish the musical accompaniment under Hyman Reznick's direction. A ball will follow the performance.

• • •

Another event of special interest to Zionists will be the celebration marking the 81st birthday of Henrietta Szold, to be sponsored by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah Tuesday afternoon in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Two dramatic tributes to Miss Szold, founder of the women's Zionist organization of America, will be included on the program. A choral group, with Cantor Carl Urstein as soloist, will be featured. A number of religious, cultural, and civic organizations will be represented at the meeting.

Miss Szold, whose birthday occurs next Saturday, was cited at the recent Woman's Centennial Congress in New York as one of the century's outstanding women. Now a resident of Jerusalem, Miss Szold first went to Palestine in 1909, and three years later founded Hadassah. The organization now administers and supports a vast network of health projects in that country, and is the sole American agency for Youth Aliyah, the movement to rehabilitate refugee children in Palestine.

• • •

The annual Chanukah breakfast, to be sponsored by the Chicago Women's division of the American Jewish congress tomorrow at the Palmer House, is that organization's sole fund-raising venture of the year. Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, most famous of French women journalists, will speak on "How France Collapsed." Mrs. Max Nierman and Mrs. I. I. Katz are co-chairmen of the breakfast, and Mrs. Maurice Solovy, program chairman. Representative women of the city have been invited. Mrs. Robert J. Samuels, president, will introduce Mme. Tabouis.

Mrs. Robert J. Samuels.

The Jewish Big Sisters will hold their annual Chanukah breakfast for all groups of Little Sisters and their brothers today at the Chicago Beach hotel. Mrs. Philip Weinstein is in charge. The organization will sponsor a tea and program by LaVonne Field, singer and artist, Tuesday, at the Standard club.

The Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs will hear a discussion by Mrs. William G. Barry of "America's Rôle in the World Drama" tomorrow afternoon at the Auditorium hotel. In the morning there will be a meat cutting and serving demonstration.

• • •

Friday the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations will sponsor an all day meeting and luncheon, with a talk by Lieut. Noel Parrish on "Radio in the Air" and songs by Mrs. Neppie Melton among the features on the program.

"Refugee Children in the United States" will be the subject discussed at a luncheon meeting of Aaron Miner chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Wednesday at the Central Eleanor club.

• • •

Thomas Estrem, vice president of the Northern Trust company, will discuss "Present Trends in Banking" at a dinner meeting of the Women's Finance Forum of Chicago, Thursday, at the Congress hotel. William L. Ayres, newspaper editor, will speak on "If I Were an Investor" at a morning session intended especially for housewives. Dr. Myrtle S. Farnsworth heads the forum.

Dr. Myrtle S. Farnsworth. [Moffett Photo.]

Rabbi Charles E. Shulman will discuss "The Jewish Stake in Democracy" at a breakfast of the Chicago Woman's Aid Tuesday noon.

• • •

"A Battle of the Sexes" is the title given a joint party of the Adolph Kraus men's lodge and women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith Wednesday evening at the Covenant club.

Both B'nai B'rith and Hatikvah will benefit thru a program taking the audience behind the scenes in radio Tuesday evening at the Fine Arts building. A pageant showing the contribution of Jews to American life will follow.

Rabbi Judah Nadich will address Chicago Junior Hadassah at a meeting this afternoon at the Stevens hotel.

MARRIED NOVEMBER 29

American Pen Women to Hear Lecture Recital

Ida Carothers Merriam will give an original poetry lecture recital, "Artists' Alchemy," at a meeting of the Northern Illinois branch of American Pen Women this afternoon at the Fine Arts building. Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist, will play. Mrs. Merriam is a former president of the branch.

St. Ignatius Mothers' Club to Have Shower

The St. Ignatius High School Mothers' club will hold its annual pantry shower Tuesday at Damen hall, 1076 West Roosevelt road. Mrs. Alex Kienlen is chairman, with Mrs. Stanley Kasiek, Mrs. Frank Athern, and Mrs. John A. Ouska assisting. Mrs. William T. Curran is president of the club.

Announce Engagement of Miss Helene Salade

At a luncheon given Thursday at her home in Sheridan road, Mrs. Lillian Westerlund Salade announced the engagement of her daughter, Helene, of Medford, Ore., and Chicago, to William Donker, son of Mrs. Helen Donker of Oak Park.

Art Galleries Offer Wealth of Fine Shows

By Eleanor Jewett.

The galleries all seem to have put their best foot forward this holiday season to give us attractive and pleasing exhibitions. There is no better way to spend a day than in making the rounds from as far north as Division street to as far south as the Stevens hotel and altho what you look at on this voyage of discovery is pictures, you will never find two exhibits alike. This diverse flowering of talent is one of the features which seems to stamp contemporary painting as being definitely a vital force.

At 57 East Division street, a most attractive group of interiors and exteriors of houses, in water color, has been on view since Dec. 4. The water colors are by Elizabeth Hoopes and I do not know whether it is she or we who is to be congratulated the most warmly, for in her again is found another of those younger painters who have a real message and the ability plus knowledge to give it intelligibly. We are a little reminded of the exquisite painting of Walter Gay by the sheer beauty of Miss Hoopes' painting, but there resemblance ends. The fresh, loose, joyous approach that Elizabeth Hoopes uses in dealing with the fascinating subject of peoples' houses is something peculiarly her own. She has a splendid sense of color and design and superb draftsmanship; there is no weakness among these pictures for color to conceal, the fluent use of rich pigments merely accents the strength of the underlying construction.

While we are on the subject of houses and interiors it might be as well to make a long step and pass next to the exhibition of miniature rooms by Mrs. James Ward Thorne at the Art institute. This is by all odds a MUST show and it is good news at the start to know that the rooms will be on view for the next six months at least. They are perfectly fascinating. Mrs. Thorne has confined herself in this new group to American interiors and she leads us with exquisite taste from the early houses of the 17th century to a modern hallway in a San Francisco home of 1940.

The rooms have been installed in a special gallery at the far end of the new Allerton wing, Gallery HI6 to be exact. The walk to the rooms is an adventure in itself for we are led thru some of the choicest galleries of the museum. There is a flavor of oriental richness about them, of leisured beauty and jealously guarded peace, that makes each gallery you pass thru one to which you wish to return for a longer and longer visit.

But when you reach Gallery HI6, you forget the beauty you have already seen. The miniature rooms are excitingly staged. The gallery is dark and only the rooms are lighted. In front of each is a narrow lighted panel which describes the room above it. The exhibition is extensive; there are 37 interiors. When you have made the rounds you wish there were more; there is never a dull moment as you pass from room to room, from period to period, from century to century. You will recogniz many of the details and those which are unfamiliar will at once become your own. Everything, from the candles to the wallpapers, is superlatively perfect. The authenticity of the interiors increases their charm and Mrs. Thorne has never erred in her taste or judgment. She has brought one of the most superb Christmas presents to Chicago art lovers that any one could bring; her exhibit will have a wide appeal; do not fail to see it.

Back again on the north side you will find an interesting exhibit of landscapes by Josephine Schaefer at Gallery house, 17 East Elm street. The paintings are forceful and rather stubborn in quality. They have an abrupt, challenging atmosphere that is rather stimulating.

Carl Austen has an amusing exhibit at the Esquire theater, East Oak street. Mr. Austen will be remembered for his portraits, ballet groups and high school pictures; the present exhibit gives amusing glimpses into "café society" and attests the painter is increasing in his powers of perception and ability to interpret.

An intriguing exhibit of work by Paul Klee, who died last summer in Switzerland, is on view at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue. This is an excellent holiday show for the modern art lovers; Paul Klee was a leading modernist and the exhibit does him full justice. The eight beautiful and weird pieces of Oceanic wood carving are on view, too, in this gallery and if for nothing else, one should see the exhibit for the sake of seeing them. They are perfect of their kind.

The O'Brien galleries, 820 Tower court, are showing a group of portraits by Jay Datus, who paints a portrait boldly. He has a sculptor's touch with paint; it is amazing how one senses the bony structure under the flesh in nearly every one of these dramatic and powerful portraits. Mr. Datus' head of Christ is a beautiful piece of work, idealized a little and yet very human. You will find, too, at O'Brien's, a most charming still life, with flowers and a little Mexican pottery pig, by Joseph Allworthy; a brilliant study of the Tribune tower by Leon Pescheret and a gorgeous landscape by B. Bruestle, a young painter whom Mr. O'Brien discovered last summer. Bruestle is connected with Yale college in the winter and is at Old Lyme, Conn., in the summer. He also paints ducks magnificently.

The Chicago Society of Artists has a delightful and varied Christmas exhibit at the American Fore gallery, 830 Rush street. People who wander in there looking for Christmas cards and calendars are apt to walk out with prints, paintings or ceramics. The artists have entered gaily into the holiday spirit and their show is very likable.

"FIFTH AVENUE CRITIC, 1905"

John Sloan brings to life a lost era with his intriguing picture, one of the highlights in the 51st Annual American Paintings and Sculpture exhibition current in the east wing gallaries of the Art institute. The exhibition continues to Jan. 5 and is well worth seeing.

Gift for Your Home Pleases All the Family

By Edith Weigle.

Why not club together and get a gift for your home this Christmas?

If all the members of the family contribute it's possible to select something really fine, an item you would not have otherwise.

We have in mind several perfectly grand aids to entertaining and to cooking that we've seen in the stores this week. There are, for example, several types of electrically heated casseroles that take the place of the old hot water dishes and that are ideal for buffet suppers. The casseroles are set into good looking portable chromium heaters that you simply plug in to a light socket. Put them on the sideboard and let your guests serve themselves from casseroles of food kept piping hot.

You can get either two or three casseroles in this electric warmer.

• • •

Then, the new table broilers are luxurious gifts for the home. They are excellently made, come in several sizes and are reasonably priced. Finished in chromium, they have an automatically adjusted cover, a cast aluminum platter and both side and top handles. Try broiling your lamb chops at the table, or pork chops with cinnamon apple rings, or hamburger patties, and see how good they taste!

And here's a nice feature: In the summer, when you don't want to light the oven, use the electric broiler for baking potatoes. They cook so quickly this way. The average sized potato can be baked in 30 minutes.

Very good looking are the electric percolators that make your morning coffee in faster time than the old ones did. One we saw has a six cup capacity and brews coffee by the drip method in 10 minutes. It is all chromium and glass and is priced under $5.

Then, there is the efficient new electric waffle iron that makes two waffles at the same time—something to consider when you're serving guests, or when your family is fairly large. There are two styles of this gadget. Neither takes up much room at the table.

• • •

Among the new cooking utensils we nominate a set of pots and pans designed by Archibald Welden that are just about perfect. Each utensil is made in one piece without seams or rivets, making it easy to keep clean and absolutely sanitary. Handles and knobs are welded on for permanence.

All the pieces in this line have copper bottoms and stainless steel sides. The handles of the frying pans are a joy, fitting your hand most comfortably and being completely insulated from heat. Many of the pieces serve more than one purpose.

Benefit Will Raise Funds for Jewish Council

A gala luncheon, a musical program and a fashion show by a well known New York and Chicago concern will close the annual fund-raising campaign of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, Friday in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

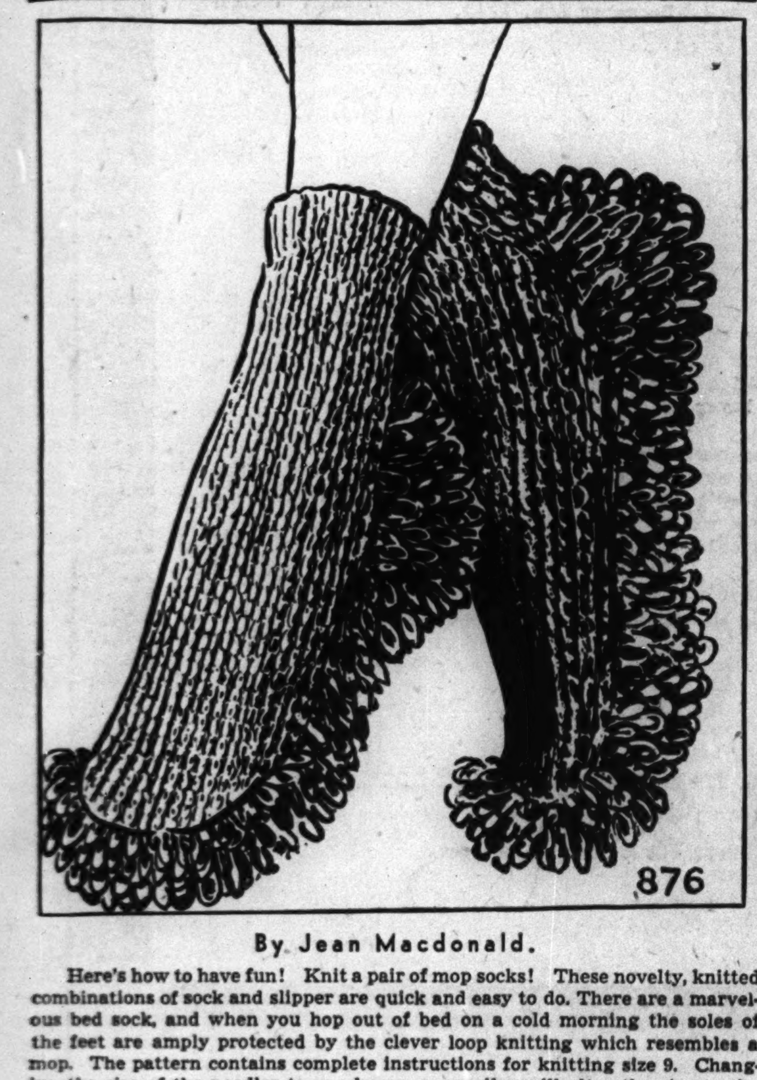
Mrs. Fred Bernstein.

All members who have completed their quota toward the fund will be guests at this benefit, the first of the kind to be sponsored by the council in many years. Robert Topping, dramatic tenor and Chicago Opera company contest winner, and a string ensemble from the Woman's Symphony orchestra will give a program. Izler Solomon, conductor of the orchestra, will speak on "Woman's Place in the Field of Music."

• • •

Mrs. Oscar Plotkin is chairman of the luncheon, and Mrs. Fred Bernstein, of the fund-raising campaign. For 46 years the council has made important civic, cultural and philanthropic contributions to Chicago. Its summer camp for underprivileged mothers and children and its department of service to the foreign born, assisting refugees, its adult education projects, and work in behalf of the blind and the hard of hearing will share the proceeds of this drive. Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris heads the Chicago section.

Mop Socks Are Whimsical



By Jean Macdonald.

Here's how to have fun! Knit a pair of mop socks! These novelty, knitted combinations of sock and slipper are quick and easy to do. There are a marvelous bed sock, and when you hop out of bed on a cold morning the soles of the feet are amply protected by the clever loop knitting which resembles a mop. The pattern contains complete instructions for knitting size 9. Changing the size of the needles to one larger or smaller will alter the size to the desired fit.

For instructions in knitting the mop socks, No. 876, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Christmas Sets Gala Pace for Club Parties

Christmas comes but once a year, and organizations are making the most of it. The holiday season reaches its peak a week before the great day itself, as far as they are concerned. Literally scores of parties and programs are to be given in the next few days.

Thirty circles of the Daughters of Isabella will join forces to give a giant party for the inmates of the Dunning state hospital Wednesday. Two thousand bags of cigarets, candies, fruits, and other delicacies are to be distributed. Mrs. Sue Wright and Mrs. Bernice Ziebell are cochairmen.

• • •

Next Sunday the circles again will combine to give a food shower at the Council of Catholic Women's home, 2501 West Monroe street. Miss Agnes Goodman will be chairman.

Individual circles also will fill baskets for the needy, give Christmas parties for underprivileged children, contribute to the C. Y. O. Christmas party, and help the Little Sisters of the Poor. Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson, state regent and diocesan chairman, supervises the Christmas giving.

Between now and next Sunday the Ladies of Isabella will give 18 Christmas cheer parties at as many institutions in and about Chicago. The organization's 30 councils are giving a total of 43 such parties this Christmas season.

• • •

One of the chief philanthropies of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is the work of the Indian welfare department, headed by Mrs. C. J. Albrecht. From 5 until 10 o'clock this evening at state headquarters, Mrs. Albrecht and her committee will give their annual party for Indian boys and girls in the Chicago area. A buffet supper, Indian songs, Christmas carols, and motion pictures will be in order, and Santa Claus will distribute gifts.

Mrs. C. J. Albrecht. [Monfort Photo.]

The department also is sending gifts of warm clothing to midwestern reservations, and is sponsoring sales of Indian made Christmas gifts. One of its chief year around projects is the education of two Indian girls at a time as nurses at the Cook County Hospital School of Nursing. Mrs. Albrecht now is broadening this scholarship work to include girls preparing for other professions.

"Joy and Peace I Give Unto You" is the theme of a Christmas program to be sponsored by the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, Thursday morning at the Art Institute. The Englewood Woman's club chorus, the Bliss string trio, Barbara Russell, contralto, and Robert Allen Geis, bass baritone, will present Christmas music. Ruth Fayman will dance, and Mary Conen and Margaret Cashman will discuss "Christmas Windows." Bob Lotz, magician, will present "Snow White and the Seven Drawers," and "Saints and Symbols" will be the title of a program by Anne George Millar.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the conference, will conduct the meeting.

Santa Claus, Smudge, a black spaniel, and Joseph Brye, marimba player, will entertain more than 30 young guests at the annual Christmas party of the Protestant Women's Service club, Wednesday noon at Marshall Field & Co. The club juniors have arranged the program. The child guests are the dependent children maintained by the club in individual homes. Mrs. E. Harry Anderson heads the organization.

• • •

The traditional "hanging of the greens" will take place this afternoon at the Chicago Young Women's Christian association, 59 East Monroe street, to the accompaniment of carol singing by the Music guild. The Little Theater guild will present a nativity tableau, and tea will be served.

Tomorrow evening the Monday Business and Professional Girls' club will have a Christmas party and will make plans to play Santa Claus at the Foundlings' home, its pet philanthropy. The El Dienon club will bring gifts for the Frances Juvenile home to a party Tuesday evening. The Girl Reserves Interclub council will have a party Saturday.

• • •

A Christmas musical will be given by Iota Alpha chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon honor music sorority, tomorrow evening at Mrs. Harry Winston's home, 2130 Lincoln Park West. Helen Schonlau, pianist; Sydnie Smith Cooley, contralto, and Lois Anderson, violinist, will appear on the program with several young music students from the music school at Gads Hill center. Proceeds of the program will go to this school.

Two parties also are on the Chicago Woman's club calendar this week. The A Capella choir of Northwestern university will sing on the club's Christmas program Wednesday afternoon. Robert Sandy, pianist, also will be presented. The junior auxiliary will have a children's party Saturday afternoon, with carol singing and a magician featured.

Donations for the Bethesda day nursery will be received at the Chicago Culture club's meeting tomorrow afternoon at the Republic building.

Tomorrow evening the Chicago unit of the Women's Overseas Service league will hold a Christmas party for all women who served overseas in the last war. Palm reading will be a feature of this party at the Woman's University club.

• • •

The recently formed Big Sister organization of the Off-the-Street club, 1534 West Van Buren street, will give a Christmas party for little girls of the neighborhood Thursday evening. Miss Helen Vance, chairman of the women's auxiliary, who has organized the Big Sisters among business and professional women, is arranging the party.

Two Christmas parties, a tea and musical, and a children's party, are traditional events on the Chicago Woman's Ideal club calendar. Heather Tweed, mezzo soprano; Kenneth G. Ward, tenor; Robert Basso, violinist, and Ella Munson, accompanist, will be presented at the musical Thursday afternoon at the Blackstone hotel.

Saturday afternoon, also at the Blackstone, the club will entertain 200 children from various Chicago institutions. Each child will receive a gift, and there will be a program and refreshments. Mrs. Edward Lafeber is chairman of the party, and Mrs. Arthur W. Nelson, of the musical.

• • •

The Women's University club will hold a party of its own Wednesday evening, with dinner, Christmas carols sung by Constance Eberhart, and a reading of the Christmas story by Mrs. Walter W. Seymour. Each member is to bring a gift for an underprivileged child.

The Matrix club will hold its annual Christmas dinner Friday evening at Normandie house. Miss Betty Browning of THE TRIBUNE will address this authors' club tomorrow evening.

Forty-eight children from the clinic of the Women and Children's hospital again will be guests of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Chicago at a Christmas party Thursday evening at the hospital.

Among other parties will be that of the Woman's City club on Friday, with Christmas carols sung by young girls, and Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy's traditional reading of "A Christmas Carol."

AN AUTUMN BRIDE

Clotilde Children's Patterns

Both patterns illustrated today will delight the young woman aged 4 to 10. The dress design fashions a jumper model which may be either strictly tailored or rather frilly. Sketched at the top of the lefthand panel is a practical dress with dark woolen or crêpe jumper and washable blouse with Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. Below it, a printed cotton or crêpe jumper with short sleeved blouse to contrast. Notice the frills at the shoulders.

The other pattern creates three stuffed animals: A horse, a Scottish terrier, and an elephant.

Style No. 3459 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 8 requires 1 yard of 39 inch material for short sleeved blouse; 1¾ yards for either pinafore; ⅝ yard for panties, 1¼ yards for long sleeved blouse.

Style No. 2526 all in one size. For yardage requirements, consult pattern envelope.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Informality Is Still the Rule at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Informality continues to reign in Palm Beach. Small parties are frequent, but for the most part colonists are using the early season to golf, fish, relax, and to "bam around" in general, as the natives of the Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings section of Florida would express it.

The duchess of Windsor's recent dental operation in Miami reminded oldsters here of the dental house boat that plied the inland waterway back in the 1900's.

Visits of this boat, the Dentos, were anticipated with mingled pleasure and pain by pioneers and social circles alike, for Dr. Houghton, its owner, took life and teeth as a matter of course, operating alike on the just and the unjust, the rich and the poor.

• • •

Naphtha launches were just becoming numerous in Florida. These were pleasure craft, but the good doctor saw no reason why he shouldn't build a dental houseboat. The completed craft was 53 feet long, 20 feet wide, equipped with "modern" machinery, plumbing, and the latest dental gadgets known in 1903. The boat, flat topped and painted white, floated three American flags which gave a patriotic flavor to the visits of the Dentos. In a written account left by Dr. Houghton, he declared "there has not been an hour when I could not operate in comfort at the chair even while the boat was in transit. It is truly like a dream. As you look from the window and view the stately palm trees and other tropical plants on either side of the beautiful lake, I can truly say that there is nothing monotonous or tame about life on the Dentos."

Naturally, the dentist was writing from his own viewpoint. Cynics are likely to wonder if there ever lived a soul with nerve so dead that he could see beauty in a landscape under such conditions. Even a panorama of stately palm trees would become a "painorama" when the drill was playing an obbligato.

When the dentist ran out of gold for fillings, he often would take a bill to the bank to have it exchanged for a gold piece, which he would melt and use.

The dental houseboat has joined the limbo of forgotten things, but for many years it played a poignant part in the drama of life in Palm Beach.

Daily arrivals augment the Chicago colony. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith are arriving Dec. 16 at Pino Torcido. Mrs. George Rasmussen Jr. is here and will be joined Dec. 21 by her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. George Van Dusen, Minneapolis, were hosts at a tea on Wednesday afternoon at the Flamingo restaurant on Worth avenue when handicraft made by the Riveria fisherfolk for Opportunities, Inc., was displayed. There was a style show and children's ornaments were modeled by cunning little Flamina Odescalchi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Balthasar Odescalchi. The Odescalchis, known formerly as prince and princess, recently renounced their title, becoming American citizens.

The annual fishing contest is under way at the Sailfish club. Henry H. Windsor Jr., Winnetka, Ill., is president of this club. Among the innovations this year is the awarding of trophies for the best motion pictures, or still life views, of fish.

Harrison Williams has arrived in Palm Beach. Mrs. Williams, who for years has borne up handsomely under the title of the "best dressed woman in America," will join him before Christmas.

Frederick Lonsdale, author of British drawing room comedies, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder of London. George Jessel is at the Sun and Surf club. Mrs. Wanamaker Munn has taken a house in Palm Beach. She was accompanied here by her debutante daughter, Miss Fernanda Munn, who, with her brother, Gurnee Munn Jr., will be the guests of their father.

Altrusa Club Is to Discuss Five Point Program

The five point national defense program, outlined by Altrusa International during Mrs. Dessalee Ryan Dudley's visit to international headquarters in Chicago last week-end, will be discussed at a dinner meeting of the Chicago Altrusa club at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Dudley, a member of the Battle Creek, Mich., club, is international president of this service organization for business and professional women.

Mrs. Dessalee Ryan Dudley.

Registration of the various skills of business and professional women to make them available for defense purposes is the first point on the program. Study and support of the national consumer protection program as directed by Harriet Elliott of the national defense advisory committee, is another point.

Study of the local defense program with a view to coöperating is the third point. In this connection it is suggested that Altrusans encourage community occupational surveys as a basis for planning defense training programs, and then foster training or "brush up" courses in fields where workers will be needed under the national defense program.

Points four and five call for emphasis of Altrusa's present policy of providing vocational guidance for young girls and older business women and of building public opinion and morale.

"This national defense program ties in perfectly with Altrusa's vocational guidance program," summarized Mrs. Dudley in commenting on the program.

League of Women Voters to Interview Congressmen

Newly elected Illinois congressmen are being interviewed by the Illinois League of Women Voters in order to inform them of the League's stand on measures in which that organization is interested. Further improvements in the administration of the federal civil service system, opposition to the so-called equal rights amendment; and support of suffrage for the District of Columbia will be among the league objectives discussed.

Mr. Karon is a graduate of the law school of the University of Wisconsin.

Like Visitors? Make Point of Inviting Them

How to overcome self-consciousness is told in the booklet, "Charm and Self-Consciousness," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

There are some homes and families that are so interesting, gay and casual that they act as a natural magnet to friends and neighbors. It is common for people just to gravitate to homes such as these without invitation because they are charmed and entertained by these personalities and are made to feel welcome and at home.

In our opinion, it is unfortunate that homes such as these are so uncommon. It is a rare gift that is bestowed only on a few.

Those of us who haven't that magnetic touch but still are of a gregarious nature have to exercise a little personal initiative by issuing invitations and making a few definite plans. Such a system doesn't quite approach it in casualness, naturalness and spontaneity, but it is a good substitute.

• • •

And it is in the matter of issuing the invitations that the voice of etiquet wishes to be heard. Any hostess who finds that friends and acquaintances do not congregate at her home unsummoned but who enjoys to have people around her has only to invite them. And when we say invite, we mean a mention of a definite time and a definite day. These offhand suggestions "to drop in some time" or "why don't you ever come in to see us?" are virtually worthless. People seldom take them up and make a social uninvited call.

• • •

There may be some women who make a habit of saying "come in at any time" who really wish not to be taken seriously and only employ this routine as a shallow gesture of hospitality. Persons of that type are not many and they usually are seen thru, but there are plenty of others who issue these same lukewarm invitations but who are sincere in their ineffectual way. They get the same results. People seldom, if ever, "just drop in."

Don't sit and wonder why you find yourselves alone. Interest yourselves in others and become interested enough to invite them over to spend the evening, or for dinner, or for golf, or for bridge, or just for an afternoon cup of tea. Note or telephone will do. But make it a definite date and stop waiting on chance.

Want a House in the Ocean? Miami Has 'Em!

By Alden Powell.

Here's lesson No. 1 on "how to get away from it all." Come to Miami, take a boat, sail 11 miles down Biscayne bay, rent an acre of ground under water for $1 a year, and build a house upon it.

MIAMI, FLA.

That's what's happening in the bay, where 500 acres of land five feet under water are being gobbled up by visitors. The newcomers are building tumble-down shacks with all the comforts of home except a telephone, visits from unexpected guests and the butcher, baker, candlestick maker—and bill collectors. It's the personification of a marine Utopia and is perhaps the only spot in the world where home owners insist their property be covered by "water at all times." There's not one inch of dry land for miles around.

• • •

Already nine homes have sprung up. Owners get a kick out of administering a Robinson Crusoe complex to themselves over week-ends, loafing on their docks, with a dime novel in one hand and a fishing pole in the other, and waiting for any one of 600 varieties of fish to come along.

Laziness is cultivated there. You can't walk more than 50 feet in any direction, and you don't want to.

Your only boundary is the horizon. You throw anything you don't want out the window.

You can catch fish with a white rag on your hook. Mackerel, grunt, yellowtail, bonefish, snapper, grouper beg for attention. Each home has a live fish well where surplus catches swim around until meal time. All hot water comes from the sun via a glass enclosed solar system. Electricity is supplied by miniature gasoline driven dynamos.

• • •

Four years ago a Miami auto dealer rented 100 acres in Biscayne bay at $1 an acre and built a tumble-down shack.

"Nothing fancy—just plain, wholesome place to relax," he said.

The water under his shack is 5 feet deep. [Any land that has more than 6 feet of water over it belongs to Uncle Sam.] No sooner did he get settled than a Florida banker decided to share in the relaxation, so he built a place in the water veldt. Others followed. More shacks are still going up.

You can't call it a Venice. You can't call it a city. Maybe it's just plain Oceanville. It sounds like a whacky idea for a $2,000 investment, but it gets you, hook, line, and sinker, once you get a taste of it. And it's tax free.

• • •

Early this year a retired business man got the bug and sank $250,000 into a clubhouse in the midst of the colony. It lacks about everything an orthodox country club boasts in the way of grass, golf course, trees, and soil. The only way you can reach it is by boat. And nobody—not even your wife—can reach you on the telephone. It's 12 miles from the mainland and 3 miles from the Gulf stream.

Life at the club is similar to that aboard a ship. A ship's bell tolls the time of day. You are "piped" aboard upon arrival and, like those on an ocean liner, all lighting units, refrigeration, and water are self-contained.

Among the members of the club is Thorne Donnelley of Chicago.

Getting to and from the colony is an art in itself. Due to shallow water it is necessary that one have an expert knowledge of the almost pretzel-like avenues of approach intertwining the entire area.

ST. PETERSBURG ALSO.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—To the Travel Editor: In the "Tips to Tourists" column the other day you replied to A. D. H., who asked about Miami as a place in which to retire.

Now, Miami may be very desirable for such a purpose, but may I take the liberty to suggest visiting St. Petersburg, on the Gulf coast, or getting information from the chamber of commerce there, before the reader makes a definite decision?

St. Petersburg is a beautiful city, and perhaps not as damp as are some places on Florida's east coast. Pensioners can live there at reasonable rates.

It's Difficult to Tell About Banana Land

By Frederic Babcock.

There is a story to the effect that when one of the early adventurers to Guatemala returned to his native land he was asked what the Central American country looked like. By way of reply he took a sheet of paper, crunched it up, and threw the result on the table. The jagged wad was an apt symbol of the mountains and valleys that make up that wonderland.

A writer could use up thousands of words and still not provide a better description. Instead of clarifying the situation, he might muddle it. Because, no matter how plainly he painted his word picture, his readers would still be confused.

• • •

This observer, recently returned from Guatemala, would not attempt such a description. Our mind is still a mêlée of impressions and memories. So many details crowd upon one another that it seems impossible to make head or tail out of anything. It is all too much of a jumble.

There was that unforgettable scene in the ancient church at Chichicastenango, with the Indians burning incense, scattering rose petals, lighting pink candles, and talking to their "little father" about their hopes and troubles. Nowhere else—in Europe or Asia or Africa or the Americas—have we ever witnessed such a picture.

• • •

We recall the dead volcano Atitlan, with its perfect cone, its silent lake, and, nearby, its unspoiled villages. There were the steaming morasses of the lowlands, and the sparkling hillsides of the highlands. There were Antigua, with its ruins, and Guatemala City, with its modern airs. There were the public markets, where the natives gossiped and bargained day in and day out, and the never-ending fiestas, and the jungles, and the cradles of the Maya civilization, regarded by the experts as the outstanding culture of old-time America.

We can still hear the rhythmic beat of the drums, the strains of the marimba, as the Indians went thru their weird dances and processions in honor of some god of the sun, or harvest, or rain, or war, or sacrifice. We're still wondering how much of what we saw was a Christian observance and how much was pagan.

• • •

The archæologists say they haven't, even yet, any idea of the number and extent of the Maya ruins. All they know is that the excavations so far made indicate a store of unlimited treasure.

Similarly, the surface has been merely scratched, as far as the country's tourist possibilities go. One steamship line and one air line account for nearly all the traffic. Four or five hotels are ample to handle most of the travelers.

Some day the people of America will discover Guatemala, and then the steamship and air lanes will be jammed with sightseers and it will be necessary to put up hotels and tourist homes all the way from Quirigua to Lake Atitlan.

• • •

Now the rains have ceased and once more the sun is shining on the dark gray stelae, the white temples, the multicolored costumes, the vast plantations of green bananas, the red roofs, the sepia mountains, and the indigo lakes. Sleepy little donkeys, loaded down with incredibly large packs, are being goaded over the mountain highways by barefooted drivers. The wheels of the ox carts are shrieking in unholy protest. The Indians have gathered their crops and are on their way to market.

This is the best time of the year in which to visit Guatemala. And, conditions being as they are in other parts of the world, the traveler seeking foreign atmosphere these days has his field more or less limited to Mexico, Guatemala, the West Indies, Canada, and South America. Of these, the banana republic to the south of Mexico is as entrancing as any. Some say it's even more so.

Trip Suggested as Solution to Christmas Gift Problem

"Make this Christmas one they will always remember." It's a slogan the merchants have used for many years. It is one which is likely to be kept in circulation for many more Christmases to come. Now the travel bureaus are beginning to employ it, too.

Here is the way one travel expert puts it:

"Do you know any one who would like a week under a tropic sun; some one who would enjoy a flight to a nearby city; some one who is longing for a week-end of skiing over snow blanketed hills?

"What a simple solution it is to your gift problem, especially for those to whom you want to give something really lasting! The joys and stimulus of travel are things that are never forgotten.

"Go over your list tonight and pick out one person to whom you want to give a truly lasting gift. Call your travel agent and see what suggestions he can make which will fit your budget. You will be surprised when you find what a store of ideas he has about trips of varying lengths.

"Suppose you and your wife have decided to give your son a trip. You know he is having a short vacation in February and that he has always wanted to travel. Ask your agent to make all the arrangements, and write a letter which you yourself may dictate and take home to place beneath the tree. If you prefer, take home the ticket, wrapped in tissue, and tied with ribbon.

"Great will be your pleasure when you see the expression on your son's face. It will be his best present, his most talked of present, and his most lasting one."

Streamliners to Go on Exhibition

Chicagoans this week will get their first views of the streamlined trains that are to be placed in service this winter between this city and Florida. Prevues are scheduled for tomorrow and Tuesday.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company's "South Wind" is to be on display all day Monday at the Union station, and the Chicago and Eastern railroad's "Dixie Flagler" will have its première the same day at the Dearborn station.

By Edward Steichen: From U. S. Camera 1941

An important point in grooming is the proper application of perfume and cologne, according to Rosemary Lane, star of Warner Bros.' hit "Four Mothers." You see her here using a fashionable atomizer to diffuse and distribute an even and delicate fragrance.

The charming atomizer design which Rosemary Lane is using will suit the fancy of your favorite at Christmas too. Ask to see DeVilbiss Model CS100-5, only $1.00—also see the many other lovely DeVilbiss perfume and cologne atomizer styles on sale everywhere. Priced from 50c to $15.00.

PHOTOS OF THE TWO $2,500 GRAND PRIZE WINNERS WILL BE USED AS MODELS FOR THE POPULAR ADVENTURE CHARACTERS, LEW LOYAL AND BETSY TRUE!

BOYS! GIRLS! If you haven't already done so, send your photograph at once. 20 prizes of $25.00 each are being paid each week to the boys and girls whose photos are published in the Tribune. (See this week's winners at the left.) Two Grand Prizes of $2,500.00 each will be paid at the end of the contest—one to a boy and one to a girl. Their photos will be used as models for Lew Loyal and Betsy True. Their faces will appear in this popular feature. And they will be tried out for broadcasting over W-G-N.

If you are under 15 years of age, paste the entry coupon below on the back of your photograph and send it in. Any snapshot will do. It costs you nothing. You will be made a member of the Lew Loyal Patriots and a beautiful badge will be sent to you.

THE PRIZES

BOY'S GRAND PRIZE $2,500:00
(To The Boy Whose Photograph Is Used As A Model For Lew Loyal.)

GIRL'S GRAND PRIZE $2,500.00
(To The Girl Whose Photograph Is Used As A Model For Betsy True.)

20 PRIZES EACH WEEK FOR 10 WEEKS, $25.00 each . . . $5,000.00
(Each week for 10 weeks the photographs of 10 boys and 10 girls will be selected and published in the Sunday Tribune. $25.00 will be paid for each photograph so published.)

TOTAL $10,000.00

1. Any boy or girl under 15 years of age at the date of entry may compete, except employees of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. It does not matter where you live. It costs you nothing.

2. Any kind of photograph that shows the facial features may be submitted. No special consideration will be given to expensive prints. Any snapshot will do.

3. Paste on the back of your photograph a coupon from the Chicago Tribune, or a facsimile, giving your name, address and parent's consent. Photographs should be addressed, "Lew Loyal", Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. If you wish your photograph returned enclose sufficient postage. However, the Tribune does not guarantee the safe return of any entry.

4. Each Sunday for 10 consecutive Sundays, starting Sunday, October 27th, the photographs of 10 boys and 10 girls will be published in the Chicago Sunday Tribune. To each boy and girl whose photograph is so published the Chicago Tribune will pay $25.00 in cash, ($500 each week or a total of $5,000 for the 10 weeks).

5. In addition to these Weekly Prizes TWO GRAND PRIZES will be paid, $2,500.00 to the boy whose facial features and personality appear to be the most suitable for the character of Lew Loyal, and $2,500.00 to the girl whose facial features and personality appear to be the most suitable for the character of Betsy True. Every entrant will be eligible for the Grand Prizes whether or not his or her photograph is published during the 10 weeks. No entries will be considered after Thursday, Jan. 2, 1941.

6. By consenting to the entry, the parent, or guardian, agrees that the Chicago Tribune shall have all rights to reproduce the photograph and facial features of the entrant in any, manner whatsoever without any other compensation than the cash prize paid; and the Tribune shall have the right to make, at its own expense, any additional photographs of the entrant without any other compensation.

7. Judges will be a Committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decisions in all matters will be final.

A GERMAN SUBMARINE SURFACES.

WHAT'S GOOD FOR GRANDMA, is good for grand-daughter, too. Both take Scott's Emulsion. Grandma, as a tonic and a precaution against common colds; grand-daughter, to help her system build a sturdy frame and sound teeth, and to guard against common colds. THERE IS NO TONIC QUITE LIKE SCOTT'S EMULSION.

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily Digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes to intestines.

3—Tonic-Food Supplement—Beneficial to grown-ups as well as children, especially helpful to those recuperating from illness.

4—Easy to take and retain by children and adults. Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Supplies normal daily requirements of important Vitamins A and D.

"My husband won't let me be a Washday Slave!"

...says Mrs. W. P. Stone, 4344 North Winchester Avenue, Chicago. She has used Chicago's modern laundry service ever since she was married...

COPYRIGHT NEEDHAM, LOUIS AND BRORBY, INC., 1940

"My husband promised me before our wedding I'd never have to slave over washtubs. And I never have. Every two weeks we send our clothes to the laundry. I know the laundry does things much better than I could.

"On visits to other cities, I've noticed Chicago's laundries are far superior in the work they do. My clothes are always wonderfully white and clean-smelling. This service costs us just a little more than a dollar a week!"

Have you tried the laundry lately? Wonderful improvements have been made in the service given by Chicago Laundries during the last few years.

To minimize wear on clothes, washing machines do not have rough agitator paddles. Water is completely changed from 10 to 12 times for a single batch of clothes. Milder soaps can be used by the laundry (milder than you can use effectively at home) because water is softened scientifically to the zero point.

You can select any type of service from damp wash or fluff dry to completely finished work.

THIS WEEK Enjoy A 10 MINUTE WASHDAY*

"Don't slave at home—it doesn't pay. Let your Laundry save the day!"

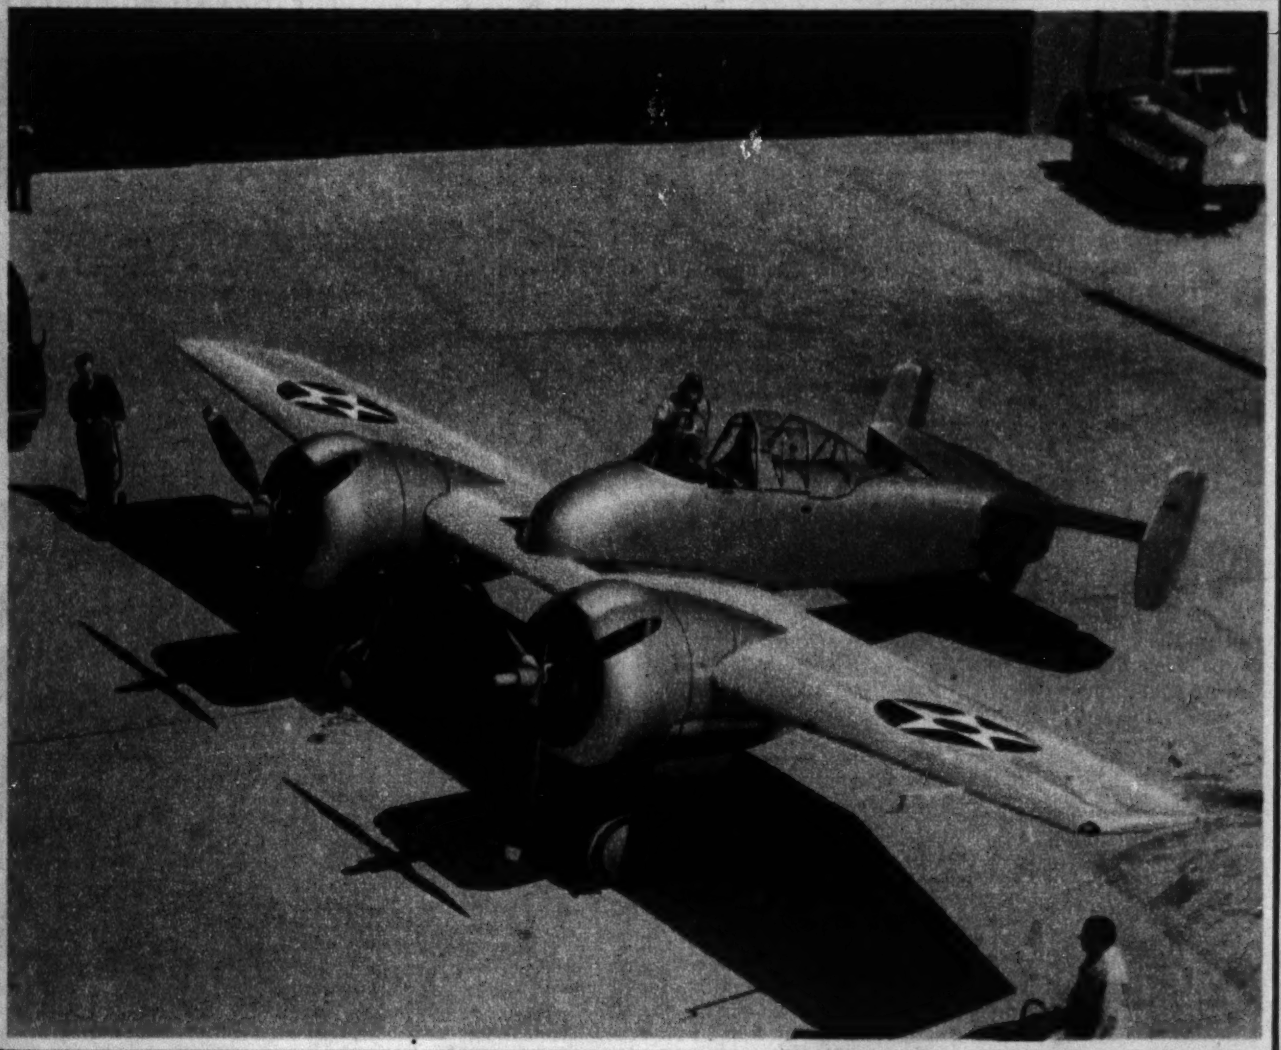
Camera News Review



The Skyrocket—a swift, heavily armed, multiengined fighting plane, said to be able to climb at a mile a minute, faster than any other airplane ever flown. It carries one pilot and cannon and machine guns.

MORE NEW FIGHTING PLANES FOR AMERICA'S AIR FORCES

AMONG THE LATEST types of military aircraft being built for America's rearmament program are those shown in the natural color photographs reproduced on this page. Some of these planes have achieved remarkable results in test flights.

Most remarkable of the group is the SM-1A, shown at the lower right—a twin-engined pusher bomber capable of 360-mile-an-hour speeds and a range of 3,500 miles with a ton of bombs. Originally designed as a heavily armed fighter (to carry two 37-mm. cannon and 50-caliber machine guns), it now is considered a bombardment plane. The engines are Allison V-12 liquid-cooled units developing 1,090 horsepower each at 16,000 feet. There is a tricycle landing gear, and the cabin is sealed so the crew can operate in "supercharged" atmosphere for high-altitude flying.

At left above are three navy OS2U light observation planes, built for catapult work with battleships or cruisers. These craft with their crews of two can cruise for seven hours at 140 miles an hour on a Wasp engine of 400 horsepower.

The Skyrocket at right above is said to have a climbing speed greater than any plane ever flown. It carries one pilot and a battery of cannon and machine guns all firing straight ahead. The two motors are 1,200-horsepower Cyclones. Top speed is said to be just over 300 miles an hour and the sea level rate of climb over 5,000 feet per minute.

At lower left is another view of the navy's F4F-3 shipboard fighter for carrier flying. With its single pilot, heavy machine guns, and light bombs it has a top speed of 350 miles an hour. The engine is a 1,250-horsepower twin Wasp. The ceiling for the plane is 37,000 feet and extreme range at minimum cruising speed 1,000 miles. England has ordered the F4F-3, the Skyrocket, and the SM-1A.

John the Bath and the First Ward Ball

● Each year near Christmas time, from 1896 to 1908, the two aldermen of Chicago's First Ward, "Bathhouse John" Coughlin and "Hinky Dink" Michael Kenna, staged their notorious First Ward ball to raise funds for the spring campaign. The evil reputation of the ball became international, and in 1908 reform leaders decided to end it. Appeals to the mayor and the courts failed; even a bomb attack did not deter the Bath and the Hink. They prepared for the most elaborate "Derby," as Coughlin called it, in history.

By LLOYD WENDT

John McCutcheon's cartoon that was published in The Tribune at the time of the 1908 Derby.

THE NIGHT of the final First Ward ball, Dec. 14, 1908, the Bath was hauled thither in an automobile kept waiting while he made a perfunctory appearance at a meeting of the city council. Outside the Coliseum thousands of people clamored for admission. Street car traffic was halted, horses reared and plunged at their carriages, and automobiles steamed and snorted as the police sought unsuccessfully to control the mob.

Once inside, the Bath joined Hinky Dink at the cash drawers and gave the signal for the doors to be thrown open. At the same time Ald. John flung off his greatcoat. Even Hinky Dink gasped with admiration. Here was a new Bathhouse — quiet, restrained, and genteel. His tail coat was black, and the lapels gleamed. His trousers were of the kind to be seen any Sunday morning at a north shore church. His cravat was a bright lavender, and a great red silken sash cut a swath across his breast.

KENNA

"Boy, you look like a prince, or something," the Hink exclaimed.

The squads of police from Harrison street station were instructed to fling open the main doors. Into the Coliseum poured such a bedlam of thieves, robbers, plug-uglies, dips, dope fiends, porch climbers, and chronic bums and drunks as had never been gathered together since the days when the rabble of Rome were fêted at the circuses. They pushed and jostled, howled and sang, ran over the ushers and ticket takers, and swarmed out onto the dance floor like a débris-laden flood breaking its gates. Bouncers were swept before them, ushers ran for their lives, the two-by-four railings of the first floor boxes cracked and crashed. Finally the mob had surrounded all the bars, poured into the annex, jammed the aisles and stairways, packed the bleacher seats and the balcony, and overflowed into the basement.

Outside throngs attempted to break in thru the exits, and the police were forced to lock them. Officers with clubs drawn charged the crowd attempting to get in, but the mob only increased.

Inside women fainted and were passed along toward exits over the heads of the crowd. The waiters, caught in the jam, were forced to stand where they were, robbed of their beer and champagne shrieking for help. The ushers, their pretty dress suits already dishevelled, bellowed and threatened and punched the guests nearest them, but they could make no appreciable headway.

The Bath and the Hink were frantic. No one could dance, drink, nor buy beer or champagne. The crowd inside suddenly wanted to get out, but those outside still wanted in. Fights resulted. Men and women tussled and shouted. A beer bar went over with a crash. The Bath wrung his hands and howled for the police.

Outside new troubles developed. Guards fought their way in and escorted the Bathhouse out. Two newspaper men with cameras were trying to take pictures, they informed him.

• • •

The newspaper men were Lyman Atwell, now chief of photographers for The Chicago Tribune, and Wyncie King, a cartoonist, both then with the Record-Herald. The Bath and his henchmen charged down upon Atwell and King. They, intent upon their camera work, went down under the blows.

"They've got a bomb!" the Bath shouted to the crowd. The effect was magical. The mob left in a hurry. Guests inside popped thru the doors until there was room for those who remained. One of the three bands employed for the dance began playing. The First Ward ball was really on.

It was nearly midnight before the madams and their "boarders" began to appear. Minna and Ada Everleigh, proprietors of the notorious Everleigh club, drove up behind a pair of handsome matched bays, the comeliest of their prostitutes in their own carriage with them, others trailing in hansoms and hacks behind.

Bawdy cries from the crowd greeted the girls as they descended, but the police provided an honor escort into the hall. Other carriages swept up and trollops began arriving on all sides by carriage, motor, or afoot. With them were their cadets and boy friends. All were dressed with dazzling elegance, the richness of their raiment theoretically measuring their popularity. They swept into the Coliseum like queens and earls. Indeed, they were the ladies and nobles of the First ward kingdom.

As the spangled, painted, gem-coruscated daughters of pleasure took their places in the reserved and repaired boxes, new life came into the party. Thousands of men rushed upon the new attraction, to ogle and stare. Waiters and ushers fought them off. The bouncers kept one exit open, where the unruly, tapped lightly but expertly on the head, could be dragged out for a breath of air.

A new crowd poured in from outside. The mob upset tables, smashed wine glasses, broke chairs and bottles, and climbed the iron girders or rode piggy-back to obtain better views. Finally the pressure became so great that an exit door broke open and a little sector of the crowd spurted out into an alley.

The Magdalens, on the whole, were the best behaved. They punched at men who clawed their evening gowns, or jabbed them with hatpins, but they executed those measures of self-defense with considerable composure. After all, they were on dress parade, and they had to be agreeable to the unruly and ruffian public by which they lived.

The élite of the district occupied the boxes. The Everleigh sisters, demure in modest gray, were, of course, the cynosures, but Big Jim Colosimo, Jim O'Leary, Madam Leo, Madam Meyers, Libby Martin, Vic Shaw, French Charley, and Jim Finley from Bedbug row got their share of attention. Picture hat, wasp waist, low-cut bodice, and a dazzling glitter of gems, many real, were the order of the evening.

Finally the crowd, quieted from sheer exhaustion and the floor was cleared. Bathhouse John, resplendent in his new dress suit, his hairbrush pompadour, and his crisp brown mustache, bowed his way to the Everleigh box. Those scarlet sisters were symbolic of the brothel era, just as Al Capone later became symbolic of organized crime, and the Bath desired to accord them just tribute.

Flanked by the sisters, one on each arm, a covey of houris, and a brace of bouncers, the Bathhouse repaired to the south end of the hall. The madams, procurers, strumpets, and ward heelers lined up behind him, the Hink sidled into position and the band loosed a flourish. The grand march had begun.

Slowly the procession moved down the floor to the joyous huzzas of the crowd. Behind, from seemingly inexhaustible sources, it continued to form, drawing up at last the very dregs of the vice area, including shocking women in bloomers and bathing suits, slit skirts and peek-a-boo waists. It was 1908.

When the procession ended the fun in the boxes began. As at Lame Jimmy's parties, the madams and saloonkeepers vied with one another in the extravagant purchase of champagne. The Everleighs were far in the lead, spending at the rate of $50 an hour. Ike Bloom, in charge of the wine sales, hastened over.

MINNA EVERLEIGH

"That a girl, Minnie!" he cried. "Keep it up. You're the only live ones here." Ike missed the respectable sports who in past years spent most freely. His end of the ball wasn't holding up, and there was no telling whether the Bath and the Hink would understand.

As the Hink said, things didn't really get going until after 3 a.m. Then drunken male guests began mauling the women, the characters from the lower dives stole away to the dark corners of the basement or annex, and the weaklings, or "pansies," as Ike Bloom called them, began passing out from too much beer and fetid air.

In one of the first boxes sat the dour and handsome Dean Walter T. Sumner of the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, courageous and unrelenting foe of vice. Detective Sergeants Peters and O'Connell stood guard over him. His lips were compressed as if in pain and his eyes looked out fiercely upon the dissolute scene before him.

"I intend to stay until it's all over," he told the sergeants grimly. "Until 6 a.m. if necessary."

A girl in velvet trousers whisked by, her bare shoulders gleaming. Another weaved past. She paused and surveyed Dean Sumner, then waved him an invitation. He looked upon her angrily, then pityingly.

Finally, toward 5 o'clock, the boxes began to empty. The Bath and the Hink, having bade farewell to the peerage, went to look into the matter of receipts.

"It was the best Derby we ever had," sighed the Bath happily.

The Hink grunted and counted the money. Only $20,000 gross. The reformers had won after all. The Bath's own unruly hoodlums had undone him. The damage and breakage, and the inability of the crowd to buy drinks because of the jam, meant a quiet campaign the coming spring.

• • •

The Tribune didn't find it necessary to print a list of "respectable" persons. The reporters had discovered only ten, and there was some debate as to whether these deserved the title, even with the quotation marks.

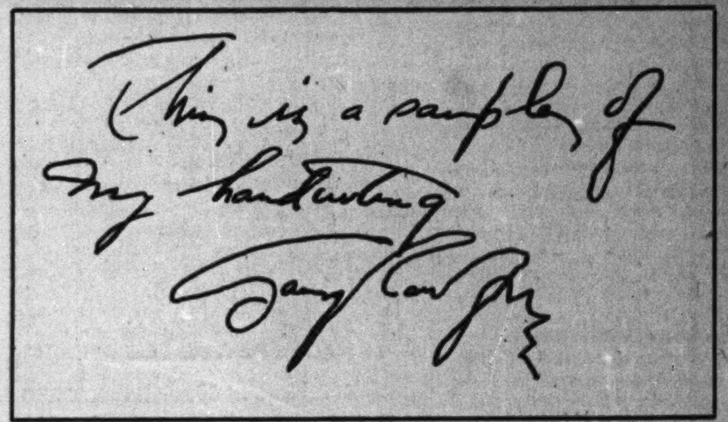
The 1908 ball was the last one. A few weeks later the Chicago vice commission presented its report on the affair. The United States postoffice department for some time refused to let the document travel thru the mails, so shocking were the details. But it eventually got about and roused public opinion.

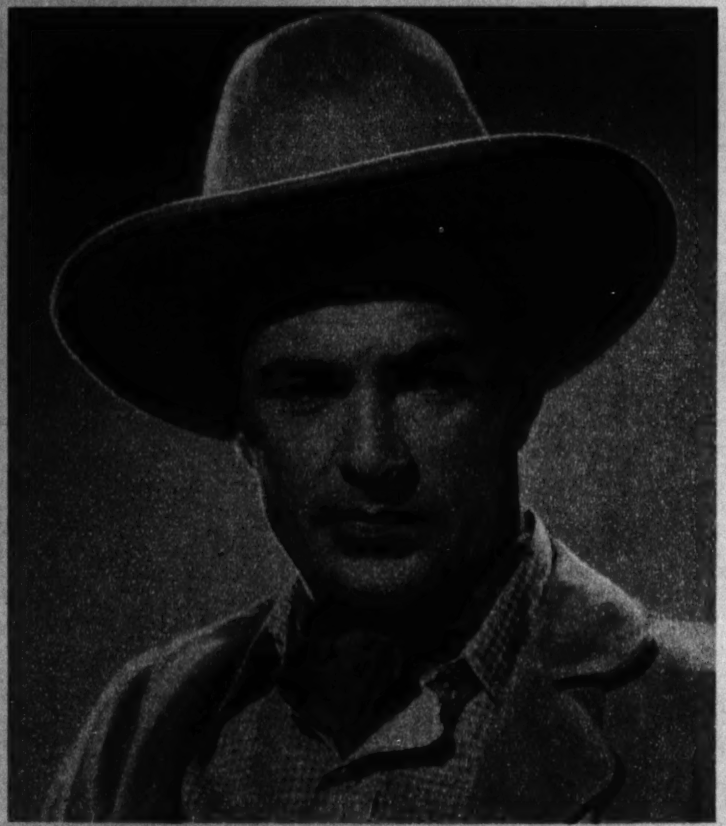
Dean Sumner pronounced the ball a public disgrace. "The scenes in the annex were terrible," he said. "It should be possible to prevent a public show of women of the underworld in a manner as purely commercial as a legitimate show and with as apparent a purpose."

The reform forces began a renewed campaign against the ball early in 1909. Bathhouse John and Hinky Dink gave up. They scheduled a concert instead, but fewer than 3,000 persons came.

The Bath and Hinky Dink found other means to keep elected, however. John Coughlin died an alderman two years ago, and Mike Kenna took his place as representative of the notorious First and is in the council yet.

Match Your Handwriting with the Movie Stars'





By SHIRLEY SPENCER

ALTHO Gary Cooper has done drawing room scenes successfully, it is as a long, lanky cowboy hero that he really gets into stride, and when we look at his handwriting it isn't surprising that he is most natural in these rôles. The very long lower loops which he writes are evidence of his need for physical action. If you write a large, quickly penned script with these long lower loops you aren't the type that likes to sit behind a desk, go thru the motions in a dress suit at formal banquets, or stay put in one place for long. This is the type that is much more interested in actual participation in sports and all forms of action than in being a sedentary spectator.

Mr. Cooper has a subtle humor, as perhaps you have noticed. His amusement with life and with situations in which he and others find themselves is reflected in the curving, graceful capitals, and especially in the humorous curlicues at the end of his name which are supposed to be "er." His sense of fun is well developed and delightful.

There is a very free, flowing movement to his writing, and those who write like this have to have freedom in following out their ideas. They hate restrictions of any kind and don't take kindly to supervision if their capitals are as high as are those of Mr. Cooper. He has original ideas and a lively imagination. He can be gracious, sympathetic, and spontaneous, but those heavy down strokes which appear every once in a while show he puts up a stubborn resistance against anything which threatens his freedom or when there is danger of a slight to his dignity, independence, or pride.

This freely penned, vigorous writing is more typical of the west than the east, where there is less space for the outdoor living which Mr. Cooper's type enjoys. It is a typical American script and expresses the vitality and love of freedom of Americans.

"RIO RITA"

HARRY TIERNEY has to his credit the scores of two memorable musical comedies, "Irene" and "Rio Rita." Station W-G-N presented the former in May, and last night it staged the latter on its Theater of the Air, broadcasting it thruout the Mutual network.

The composer was born in Perth Amboy, N. J., on May 21, 1894. The local high school taught him something of what he now knows about music, and the rest was supplied by the Virgil Conservatorium of Music in nearby New York City. For 10 years he found life profitable as a concert pianist in Europe and the United States.

Along about 1917 the creative urge asserted itself and Tierney produced the musical numbers for a piece called "What Next?" Two years later came his first big hit, "Irene." Among the subsequent shows for which he supplied songs the best known are "Up She Goes" and "Glory," 1922; "Kid Boots," 1923 (this was Eddie Cantor's first great hit); "Cross My Heart," 1928.

"Rio Rita" came along early in 1927. Florenz Ziegfeld used it to open on Feb. 2 a theater in New York bearing his name.

With most of the original cast intact, "Rio Rita" descended upon Chicago's Illinois theater on Oct. 15, 1928, where it prospered for four months. As in New York, the principal parts were taken by Ethelind Terry in the title rôle, J. Harold Murray as the captain of the Texas Rangers, Robert Woolsey as Ed Lovett, Bert Wheeler as Chick Bean, and Vincent Serrano as Gen. Enrique Joselito Esteban.

CONRAD THIBAULT

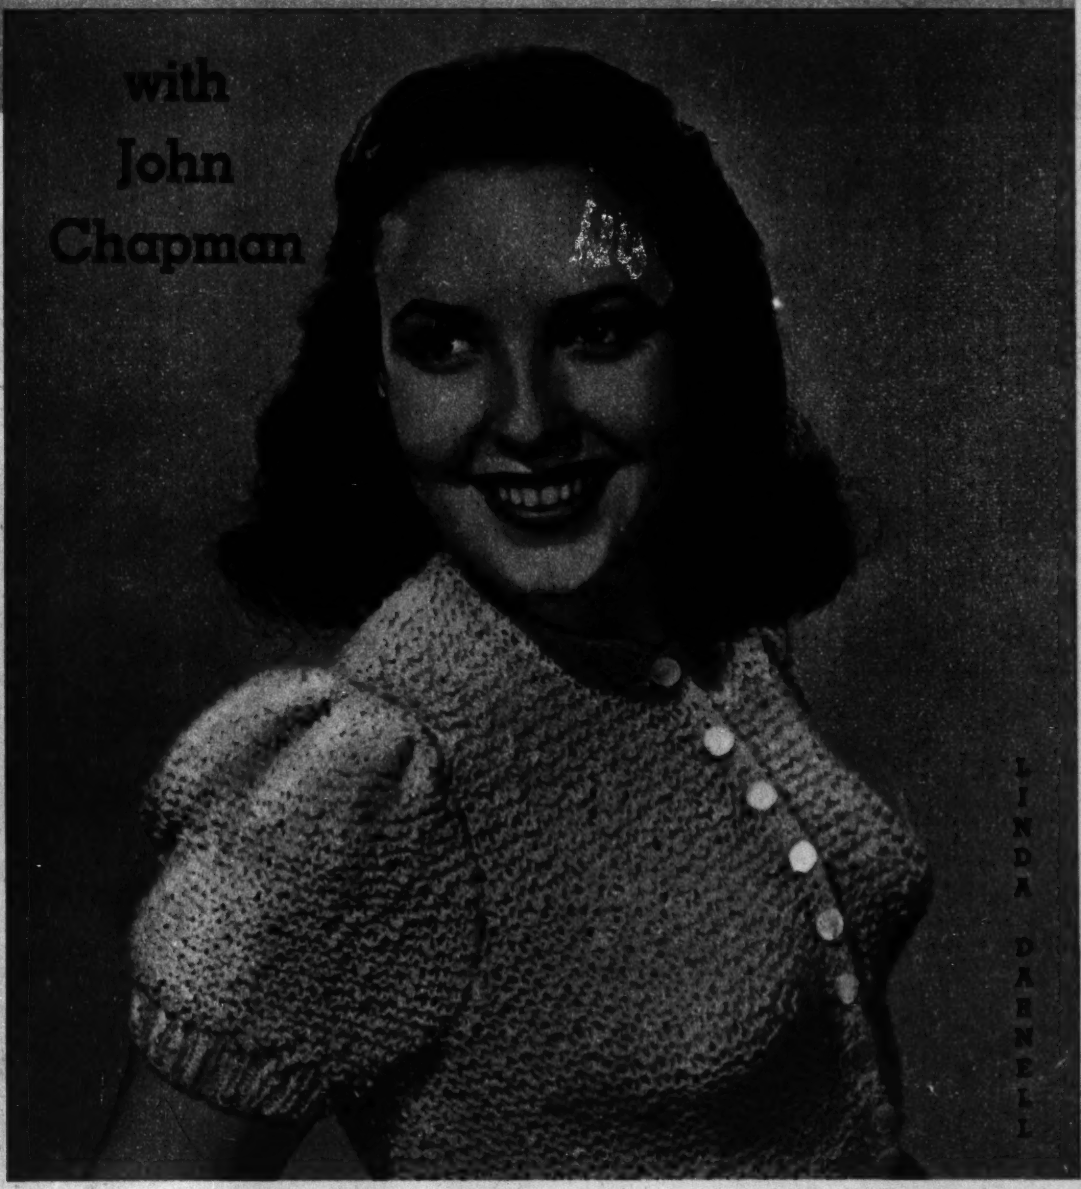
Last night's cast of "Rio Rita" boasted two guest stars in addition to the regular one, Marion Claire. The first was Conrad Thibault, the highly popular radio baritone. A native of Northbridge, Mass., he underwent his musical training at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music, studying there with Emilio De Gogorza, an eminent concert baritone of another era. Besides radio broadcasting, concerts, occasional operatic performances, and appearances with several major American orchestras have kept Mr. Thibault deservedly busy.

José Mojica, tenor of the Chicago Opera company, was the second guest artist. He comes from a little hill town in Jalisco, Mexico, known as San Gabriel. In his fourth year at college in Mexico City, where he was learning agricultural engineering, a revolution closed the schools. He turned to music, discovering opportunities to sing with opera companies visiting in the Mexican capital. In 1919 he was invited to join the Chicago Grand Opera company, and he made his local debut as Flavius in "Norma" on Dec. 16 of that year. He appeared regularly with the resident opera companies until 1932, then spent his time making Spanish musical films, becoming their leading star. This season he returned to the Chicago Opera company, appearing among other things as Fenton in "Falstaff."

Looking at Hollywood with John Chapman

GENE TIERNEY



LINDA DARNELL

THE YOUNG PEOPLE—LIKE LINDA DARNELL AND GENE TIERNEY—NEVER GET INTO TROUBLE, MOVIELAND DECIDES

Hollywood.

WE WERE talking about movie scandals the other day and somebody observed, "Did you ever stop to notice that the young people never get into trouble?"

None of the rest of us ever had, so we stopped to notice right then. And the fellow was right. The new girl, the starlet, the beautiful little thing who has come here for a big buildup and a big future (if her talent is half as good as her looks and luck)—the young lady manages to remain clear of scandal in a community that retains faint traces of a former reputation for incredible wickedness. It is only the older ones—the ones who know their way about—who contrive to get into smelly messes.

So maybe Hollywood is a safe enough place for these girls to be. Young girls like Linda Darnell and Gene Tierney, for example. Every studio has its quota of Y. G.'s—lasses with beauty and fire and personality and perhaps an ability to act, who are being coddled and coached so that they may be big-money makers. The Mesdemoiselles Tierney and Darnell belong to Twentieth Century-Fox, which is a very fatherly and eminently well behaved outfit that wants people around who can make it money.

• • •

Gene Tierney comes from the commuting zone in Connecticut. She made two or three vivid appearances on the New York stage as an ingénue—in a flop or two and in the comedy hit "The Male Animal." Since she could act, and since she was very young and very good looking, Hollywood wanted her. Among the various offers she chose Darryl F. Zanuck's and drove a very hard bargain. When she departed with her mother, her father—Howard S. Tierney, a New York insurance broker—gave final instructions to his wife.

"You stay with Gene every minute," he said to Mrs. Tierney.

The implication was clear that she should be around any time young Gene saw a director or made a camera test or had a love scene with some young fella like Tyrone Power.

It would be unfair to say that Mrs. Tierney obeyed. Better say that she followed her own mother's regard for a child and kept a close watch. Both mother and daughter confess that it has been a bore. In fact, young Gene has admitted to others that she has been slightly disappointed in Hollywood. Nobody has made a pass at her. The college boys used to make passes when she was back in Connecticut, and it was part of the game; out here everybody is terribly respectful and respectable.

You may have fathered the notion from one place or another that Hollywood's young girls are so well protected by mothers and studios that they have no fun whatever. If so, the notion is not correct. The Misses Darnell and Tierney and all the rest of Hollywood's young ladies have almost as many dates as pretty girls in any other town and think no less of them. The studios naturally have a proprietary business interest and exercise a degree of watchfulness. They like to have their girls have dates, because it makes copy in the movie columns, but they don't want the youngsters to get into messes. They have a way of informing a girl which are the wolves and which are the good boys, but beyond that they do not interfere in private lives.

Mickey Rooney has been dating Linda Darnell recently. Linda's mother says Mickey must bring Linda back by 11 p. m., and, by golly, he does.

Tierney and Darnell are a good contrast—the one fair and blue-eyed, the other dark and black-eyed. Gene's most recent appearance was in color—very flattering color—in "The Return of Frank James." Her next will be in "Chad Hanna," and she is now working as Ellie May, the harelipped girl in "Tobacco Road," only she will not have a harelip, as Ruth Hunter did in the Broadway stage version; she will be ragged and barefoot and stringy-haired and dirty, but a harelip is too much for Hollywood to go for. Hollywood is a nice place. And at the end of the picture there will be a moment when she washes her face and looks really beautiful.

Gene Tierney was born 20 years ago in Brooklyn and brought up in various private schools in Connecticut. There was no hereditary reason for her being interested in the theater; her parents are well-to-do, conservative. At school she went in for the glee club but no dramatics—but somehow she wanted to go on the stage. Her father tried to talk her out of it, and she agreed to try the social whirl for three months, on condition that if she didn't like it she could make the rounds of the Broadway producers' offices.

She didn't like the social whirl, so every Wednesday her father accompanied her on a tour of the managers' cubbyholes. One Wednesday she got the chance to read a part in competition with 60 other girls for a play George Abbott was producing—an incipient failure titled "Mrs. O'Brien Entertains." She won the rôle, but the play lasted only four weeks.

Gene, however, was vivid and pretty and stage-wise, and when Abbott did another show called "Ring Two" he gave her another job. This one lasted three performances on Broadway. The third and successful try came when Herman Shumlin engaged Miss Tierney as the ingénue in "The Male Animal." The Twentieth Century-Fox contract followed; followed so quickly, in fact, that Gene left the play long before the end of its Broadway run.

Hollywood business men say Miss Tierney got the best contract any youngster ever wangled out of the movies. She is clear-eyed as well as green-eyed. She held out for more money than most starters get—possibly $800 a week; she stipulated that they could not put caps on her teeth, could not dye her hair, could not change her name. And she stipulated that she must have six months of the year free to go back to the New York stage.

So far she has not gone back to the New York stage, and when I talked with her for this piece I teased her about it, saying that most movie beginners had the same notion but it never panned out, she earnestly averred that in her case it would.

Linda Darnell is dark and demure and has two middle names, Monette and Eloyse. She comes from Texas, which has more beautiful girls per capita than any other state. Still under 20, Linda has had the theater craze for six years. When she was 13 she was a member of the Cathedral Players of St. Mathew's church, Dallas, and of the Civic theater and New Theater league.

Three years ago she read in the papers that a Twentieth Century-Fox talent scout was in town, and half-fearfully she went to see him. She appeared nice, natural, and intelligent to the scout, so he recommended a test for her. Three months later Linda arrived in Hollywood with her mother and a brother, Calvin Roy Darnell Jr. Calvin Sr. is a Dallas postoffice clerk. Linda's test was no good. The studio bosses decided she was too young and told her to go back home to school. She might, the bosses said, send along some new photographs of herself from time to time.

Hopefully Linda kept on sending portraits from time to time. In April, 1939, Mr. Zanuck decided she had grown up enough and sent for her. The studio even paid for an extra railroad compartment so she could bring a pet rooster named Weedy. It put her in "Hotel for Women," then a couple of smallies, then made her the heroine of "Brigham Young." After that she was the heroine of "The Mark of Zorro," and next will appear in "Chad Hanna."

Gene Tierney lives with her mother and a German shepherd dog named Butch which George Nathan gave her. Linda Darnell lives with her mother, young Calvin Roy Jr., and a 12-year-old sister, Monte. Both girls have small, inexpensive homes. All of Linda's sizable wage, except money for clothes, goes into savings and trust funds. Her postoffice clerk father pays the bills on the Hollywood house. Both girls are more than just pretty; each has talent and a glowing ambition. One is dark and the other is fair, and it will be interesting to watch which has the greater success in ensuing years. And both are safe in Hollywood for the time being, because young people never get into trouble.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you kindly print the cast of "The Man Who Lived Again," and also the date when it was released?

Thanking you, I remain,

LEON THARDIN.

Editor's note: "The Man Who Lived Again" was released in December, 1936. The cast is as follows:

Dr. Laurience	Boris Karloff
Dr. Clare Wyatt	Anna Lee
Dick Haslewood	John Loder
Lord Haslewood	Frank Cellier
Clayton	Donald Calthrop
Dr. Grattan	Cecil Parker
Prof. Holloway	Lynn Harding

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to know if the film "Slightly Honorable," starring Pat O'Brien, was adapted from a play or book. Thank you. SILVER BROOKAS.

Editor's note: The above-mentioned film was based on a novel written by F. G. Presnell. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: Could you give the following information to a faithful reader? From what book or play was the movie "Waterloo Bridge" taken, and who was the author?

WILLIAM J. WEISS.

Editor's note: A faithful reader is an inspiration! Thanks for being one. The film "Waterloo Bridge" was adapted from the stage play of the same name by Robert E. Sherwood.

Dear Miss Tinée: I've been surprised no one has mentioned how positively wonderful Barbara O'Neill was in "All This and Heaven Too." She overshadowed Bette Davis and Charles Boyer. She should be nominated for an Academy award for supporting actresses this year. She's a truly great actress, and she lived the rôle of Duchesse de Praslin. Sincerely,

T. COLLINS.

Editor's note: This should give Miss O'Neill a thrill!

Peggy: "Oh, mother, look! There's that 'pink' on my tooth brush again!"

Mother: "Darling, I told you before to see the dentist! 'Pink Tooth Brush' may not be a sign of serious trouble—but let the dentist decide that. Now don't put it off any longer—go see him today!"

Dentist: "You see, Peggy, our gums as well as teeth need care. For today's soft foods don't provide the needed exercise . . . and so gums often become weak and tender. You better begin daily gum massage right away!"

Peggy: "I see, doctor. And I'll start using Ipana and massage today."

IF YOU want to give your gums, your teeth, your smile daily care with the dentifrice thousands of dentists use in their own homes . . .

Then change today to Ipana . . . the tooth paste specially designed, with massage, to aid gums to better health as well as clean teeth to natural brilliance.

That is the lesson of the 1940 National Survey conducted among dentists all over the nation. Here are the actual findings:

Twice as many dentists personally use Ipana as any other dental preparation—paste, powder or liquid. In fact, more than the next three dentifrices combined.

Remember this fact . . . and the next time you buy a dentifrice, ask for Ipana Tooth Paste. And start in right away the regular, daily practice of Ipana and massage. You'll discover, as thousands already have, how much this healthful dental habit helps you to have firmer, healthier gums, brighter, more sparkling teeth and a radiantly lovely smile!

SEE YOUR DENTIST at least twice a year for a thorough professional cleansing. And when you next visit him, ask his opinion of the value of Ipana and massage to healthier gums, brighter teeth, a more attractive smile.

HIS TREASURE CHEST

WHEN wondering what to give a man on his birthday, remember this: the lover of fine tobacco can never have too many good cigars. He knows how to treasure them so they will mellow and improve with time. He loves to share these riches with his cronies and in them he finds peace and satisfaction in his lonely hours. To such a man a box of Dutch Masters will bring rare delight.

Mostly About Dogs for Christmas

By BOB BECKER

DACHSHUND—This little underslung hound has poise, intelligence, courage, and the faculty of being amusing in the home. It makes an adaptable and entertaining little pet.

POMERANIAN—An alert breed. It's bright, cheerful, and energetic. An excellent house pet. Usually weighs around 7 pounds.

IT'S TIME to pick out that Christmas puppy, because Christmas is just 10 days away. It's not surprising to dog fanciers that the 15 most popular breeds in America are getting much attention from Christmas shoppers. The list includes the widely known cocker spaniel, which is away out in front according to 1940 registrations, as well as the Boston terrier, beagle, Scottish terrier, fox terrier, dachshund, Pekingese, springer spaniel, collie, bulldog, chow, Pomeranian, Irish setter, Doberman pinscher, and Great Dane. These 15 breeds have ranked high in registrations, show entries, and as companion dogs.

COCKER SPANIEL—Ranked as America's most popular breed. During the first eight months of this year more than 12,000 cockers were registered, leading the next most popular breed by more than 8,000. The cocker is extremely affectionate, has a gentle nature, and loves children. Weighs from 18 to 24 pounds.

PEKINGESE—America's most popular toy breed. Despite its small size the Peke has lots of courage. Always weighs less than 14 pounds

THE BREEDS that head the "most popular" group can be kept easily in a small home. For the home with plenty of room there are the handsome collie, bulldog, chow, Irish setter, Doberman pinscher, and Great Dane. The sporting dogs are represented by the cocker, springer, and setter. The hounds have the beagle and dachshund as their representatives. From the working dog group come the Doberman, collie, and Great Dane. Terriers are well represented by the Scotty and fox terrier. The Pekingese and the Pomeranian are toys. In the nonsporting group are the Boston and chow.

GREAT DANE—Most popular of all the dogs in the "giant" class. Can adapt itself to almost any home because of its reserved temperament and great depth of character. Likes children and is very intelligent. Weighs 100 to 130 pounds.

ENGLISH SPRINGER SPANIEL—A likable, affectionate breed that is known as the all-around hunting dog because it flushes and retrieves rabbits, pheasants, and other game. Similar to the common cocker spaniel but about twice as large. Possesses the same amiable disposition. Weighs about 45 pounds.

BEAGLE—A short-coated animal which has the disposition and intelligence to make it an A 1 house pet. Owes its popularity to its use by rabbit hunters.

BULLDOG—Aptly called "the gorgeous sourmug." He looks ferocious, but actually this 50-pound dog is one of the friendliest of all breeds. Easy-going, good-natured, and an affectionate animal.

FOX TERRIER—A hardy, rough-and-ready terrier with lots of personality. Both the smooth and wire-haired varieties have style, brains, and courage, and they like to play with children. Weight 16 to 18 pounds.

SCOTTISH TERRIER—Another small-sized breed which has been a favorite companion dog for years. In homes where there are children the Scotty makes a splendid playmate. Weighs around 20 pounds.

BOSTON TERRIER—A real American breed, having originated here. Lively, intelligent. Its short coat makes it easy to keep in the house. Quick to learn and is very playful. Weighs 15 to 25 pounds.

COLLIE—A favorite among Americans because of its intelligence, poise, and beauty. Likes freedom and the chance to exercise outdoors but can adapt itself to life in the city. Makes a loyal companion.

DOBERMAN PINSCHER—A brilliant, agile breed, but not one for the casual owner. An unusual companion and guard for children and a home if trained in obedience. Its weight is about 65 pounds.

IRISH SETTER—One of the handsomest of all breeds. An excellent hunting dog which has size, personality, brains, and beauty. Congenial in the home.

CHOW CHOW—Like the Pekingese, the chow is of Chinese origin. The chow and the Peke both choose their friends slowly and retain their friendships indefinitely. Has poise and distinctive personality. Weight varies from 40 to 65 pounds.

Building Beauty Into Autos

● This is the fifth article of a series on the subject of recent notable achievements in automobile engineering, design, and construction.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

IN THE development of the automobile to its present high standard of excellence improvement in performance has been matched by improvement in appearance. Except only in a general way, however, can the two be definitely separated. In other words, in many instances improvement in appearance has led to improvement in performance, while advancement in mechanical features that are responsible for better performance has led directly to better appearance.

In automotive circles appearance usually goes under the term of styling. People trade in their old cars and buy new ones not only because the newer models provide improved performance but because the newer models have more style. Among those most favorably impressed by styling features are women.

It should be made clear here, however, that manufacturers do not, for the mere purpose of promoting sales, change the appearance of their products each year to make those of previous years appear out of date. Quite to the contrary, most of each year's style changes have back of them sound reasons based upon scientific principles. For example, the inclosing of a car's running boards within the body proper improves the aerodynamic qualities of the vehicle, reducing to a large degree the air pockets that otherwise provide gaps in the car's streamlines, and it covers up two horizontal surfaces that always have been dirt catchers. Complete elimination of running boards, which has been found practical in certain particularly low-slung cars, attains the same result.

The introduction of the V style slanting windshield, as another example, does more than merely give the car a racier appearance. It eliminates to a large degree windshield glare caused by headlights of approaching cars.

Not many years ago the automobile was put together somewhat in the manner of a house of several rooms. There was a boxlike front to cover and protect the motor, a larger boxlike part that provided seats for the driver and passengers, and perhaps still another box hanging on the rear to take care of the baggage. The car of today definitely is not a series of boxes, but rather a single unit, designed in graceful lines to house the motor, give ample space for driver, passengers, and luggage, and conceal the chassis.

In arriving at the exterior styling of the modern automobile engineers had to devote considerable study to the science of aerodynamics, which is concerned with moving objects in relation to air resistance to that motion or to the power required to push them thru the air at given speeds. This science is of vital importance in aviation. An airplane capable of flying 417 miles an hour, it has been discovered thru experiments, can attain 500 miles an hour if the small protruding rivet heads are removed from its surface. In automobiles aerodynamic values have little importance at speeds of 30 miles an hour or less. Beyond that speed, however, the power required to push the air aside to let the car thru multiplies rapidly with the increase of speed. So true is this that at extremely high speeds air resistance takes most of the power.

A booklet published by one of the big automobile manufacturing companies tells as follows how air resistance multiplies with increase of speed:

". . . let us assume that a typical 60-horsepower coupé of 1932 would require 35 horsepower to attain a speed of 60 miles an hour. At this speed 23 horsepower would be entirely employed in pushing the air apart; 12 'horses' would be consumed by mechanical friction and in overcoming tire distortion which is caused by the rolling massage effect of the road upon the tires. This energy loss would appear as heat in the tires, which is also dissipated to the air. Now let us assume that we wish to put a higher horsepower engine in the same car with the intention of making it go 120 miles an hour on the Indianapolis track. The additional power required to overcome the combined mechanical friction and tire distortion will increase to 40 'horses.' But the additional power to push the air apart will be the cube of 2—which is 8—times 23, and that will be 184 'horses.' This makes a total of 224 horsepower. Therefore the initial resistance to motion thru air caused by the shape of the moving body is of prime engineering interest."

The present-day styles in automobiles, as previously suggested, are influenced to a great degree by what engineers have discovered concerning wind resistance. The modern car, altho far from being perfectly streamlined, is designed so as to present no flat surfaces to the wind. It slips thru the air with much less resistance than, for example, the car of 1932.

Automotive engineers in studying the results of wind resistance to speeding motor cars have experimented not only with the cars themselves but with small models of various shaped cars suspended in wind tunnels.

The introduction of the solid steel top a few years ago not only added greatly to the appearance of the automobile but lent itself to the idea of streamlining. It should be considered a number one contribution to the safety of motoring. It was this that made the body shell a unit of great strength and a protection in the event of an accident, particularly an accident that would cause the car to overturn. The solid steel top also completely eliminated the chance of leakage and did away with the frequent necessity of refinishing. It further involved modifications of roof structure and resulted in the development of materials to prevent noise and vibration. With the solid steel top, often referred to under the trade name of turret top, complete insulation of car bodies against heat has been attained.

In the all-steel body, as the term discloses, the last remaining wood members, such as sills and door parts, have been replaced by steel stampings.

The luggage space of the new model cars is within the cars themselves. This space not only provides ample room for bags and cases but also allows room for carrying a spare tire, out of the weather and safe from tire thieves. When the luggage space first was incorporated within the body itself some vehicles were built with extra large spaces that protruded out behind and in the trade were given the name "bustle." More expert designing in subsequent years, however, has done away with the bustle. Luggage space has been enlarged still further, and at the same time the rear of the car has been given a more streamlined contour.

By moving the running boards to the inside of the body of the car it has been made possible to lower the body itself and permit improvements in body structure. A boxed member running along each side of the body from the dash to the rear wheels adds strength which was lacking in many cars when running boards were mere appendages.

Fenders today are distinctly a part of the body and not, as in the case of earlier cars, mere mudguards hanging precariously above the wheels to shake and rattle at every bump. Fenders of the latest model automobiles have the appearance of actually flowing out of the body, so scientifically have they been designed as part of the body. They are stronger than formerly, assist in reducing wind resistance, and add to the style of the car.

The tendency of the last three or four years has been toward more glass in the car. This is perfectly safe now, since safety or shatterproof glass is used thruout. The marked increase in glass area in the newer cars provides better vision as a safety factor and in the main helps improve the appearance of the cars.

Color is playing an important part in the styling of 1941 cars. Manufacturers are placing much emphasis on two-tone effects in which harmonizing shades are employed in an artistic manner.

Improved styling has had its effect on the interior as well as on the exterior of the late model cars. In enlarging the front part of the car's passenger compartment to shift bulk forward, as streamlining principles demand, wider space has been provided for the front seat. No longer is the front seat a two-passenger seat. It now is offered in most motor cars in a width adequate to seat three. Thus most types of cars now are six-passenger vehicles, with plenty of room in front and in rear. Wider and deeper seats and improved back cushions are featured in various types of upholstery that give the cars of today a rich styling undreamed of a few years back.

The possibilities with instrument board and interior trim are unlimited. Art metals of all descriptions are being employed generously and as a rule harmoniously with the exterior styling of chromium-plated or other metal parts. Plastics have come into their own in interior styling. The early tendency to use plastics in imitation of wood, metal, and other materials now has virtually disappeared. Designers have reached the point of view that plastics possess surpassing beauty within themselves which is lost when they are used to imitate less attractive materials.

Edge lighting properties of a certain type of plastic are capitalized in clock dials on which the numerals glow with light that seems to come from nowhere. The light is applied at the edge and flows thru the plastic, emerging only where the numerals show.

The visible application of plastics on automobiles is substantially supplemented by hidden applications, one of the most important unseen plastics being that which forms the transparent interlayer of safety glass.

In an early issue automobile structure will be discussed.

Mashed sweet potatoes in orange shells accompany this holiday goose.

When the Goose Hangs High

MARY MEADE tells you how to prepare that special holiday dinner.

Spicy pumpkin chiffon pie is a Christmas treat. The recipe will be mailed upon request.

IF YOUR Christmas dinner hasn't already been planned from cocktails to nuts you may be interested in today's holiday recipes.

First let's talk a bit about roasting the goose. Stuff it with sage and onion stuffing or add chopped apples and prunes to your regular bread dressing. And roast it, covered for the first half of the baking period, uncovered for the last, on a rack to keep it well out of the drippings. The oven temperature should be 300-325 degrees. Allow 25-30 minutes to the pound.

Serve the goose with orange cups filled with mashed sweet potato flavored with salt, butter, a trace of cinnamon and nutmeg, and enough orange juice to make them fluffy. To make the shells, cut off tops of medium oranges and remove pulp and juice with a sharp knife or spoon. Prepare the shells the day before the feast and keep them fresh by covering with a damp cloth and storing them in the refrigerator. The tops of the orange cups may be notched or scalloped if desired. Don't discard the pulp and juice—serve it in sherbet glasses for Christmas morning breakfast.

Space won't allow me to give the recipe for the spicy, fluffy pumpkin chiffon pie in the picture, but I've had it mimeographed along with directions for such variations as honey pumpkin pie, pecan pumpkin pie, and pineapple pumpkin pie. Included also are recipes for graham cracker and gingersnap crusts. There's no charge for these recipes—just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your copy to me, in care of The Tribune.

TAWNY WINE SAUCE

Cream ¼ cup butter and work in 2 cups brown sugar. Add 2 beaten egg yolks and stir in gradually 1 cup of cream. Heat over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and add ½ cup tokay wine. Serve with mincemeat tarts or holiday pudding or fruit cake.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photograpay Magazine.)

Planning Will Improve Holiday Photography

IT'S TIME to make detailed and definite plans for your Christmas picture taking. If you merely wait for suitable subjects to pop up before your camera you will get few pictures, if any, and you may find out too late that you are out of film or that you forgot to buy new photoflood bulbs, without which it will be impossible to make the interior shots you would like to snap.

In the first place, you should not limit yourself to taking merely the traditional family snapshots around the Christmas tree. There are many other Christmas subjects you can photograph between now and Christmas, and they are packed with both human interest and real pictorial possibilities.

Take your camera downtown and snap the crowds of shoppers milling thru the streets. Shoot some of these pictures from a high elevation to get interesting angles. Don't let snow worry you. Falling snow will add atmosphere to your pictures. Merely shield your lens against snowflakes and shoot at a relatively slow speed so that you don't "stop" the snowflakes in midair. They look more effective if they appear as blurred white streaks.

• • •

Mingle with the shoppers, keeping an eye open for interesting type and amusing little incidents. Show windows situated on a street corner will enable you to take good "candid" shots of people staring at the goods exhibited. Many a window itself it worth photographing, and you are bound to come across such scenes as a child whispering its requests into the ear of a department store Santa Claus, or a dutiful husband burdened with parcels up to his eyes.

You don't have to limit your picture taking to daylight. Brightly illuminated streets and store windows will permit you to take snapshots at night, provided you use fast film.

These films will also permit you to make night shots of the Christmas decorations of your own house or the homes in your neighborhood. Pictures of this kind can be so charming in either black-and-white or color that several amateurs have built up whole collections of them over a period of many years.

(Koehne photo.)

If there are children in your family don't miss this traditional Christmas shot. It will be a treasured record, and as for the photography concerned, you can bring all your knowledge to play to get interesting lighting effects.

Getting back to the more obvious Christmas subjects, try this year to make a complete pictorial record of the holidays. Photograph every activity connected with them, but at the same time try to get away from the mere record snapshots for the family album. You can do this by posing and "framing" your pictures carefully and by having each and every one express a definite idea.

Start early and cover such subjects as the members of your family arriving home with packages, the wrapping of gifts, writing Christmas cards, trimming the tree, and hanging up stockings. Children will be your best subjects. Pose them for fireside shots, reading the "Night Before Christmas," looking for Santa Claus, peeking from the top of the stairs, falling asleep while waiting for Santa. Many of these subjects may sound trite, yet in years to come you will be glad to have the pictures, and it is entirely up to you just how good and unusual you make them.

But there is one class of Christmas pictures that is never trite. It shows the genuine excitement and joy of your family over the presents received. Here is your chance of capturing unposed pictures full of real life and expression.

Be prepared to take them when the time comes. Have your camera ready and, above all, your lights arranged. Replace some of the ordinary bulbs around the house with photoflood bulbs (not using more than four No. 1 or two No. 2 bulbs on any one circuit), or set up a photoflood or two in clamp-on reflectors. But before you do this look over the spot where most of the action will take place—in this instance the neighborhood of the Christmas tree—and arrange your lights in such a manner that you will be able to stop moderately fast action. You will have the best possible chance of doing this if you use photoflash in the place of photoflood illumination.

TRY THESE LUSCIOUS HOLIDAY COOKIES 4 KINDS FROM JUST ONE CRISCO BATTER!

Crisp kinds—chewy kinds . . . 4 kinds in all . . . from this "Sure-Mix" Crisco recipe!

100 OR MORE HOLIDAY COOKIES

1 cup Crisco
1 cup brown sugar and ½ cup white sugar
2 eggs and 1 yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Blend Crisco, sugars, eggs and vanilla until light. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Divide in two parts. To Part 2 add enough flour to roll—about one cup. Note: Bake all cookies on shallow "Criscoed" pans.

Part 1—Drop Dough

FRUIT DROPS—Chop ½ cup dates, ½ cup figs, ¼ cup nuts, ¼ cup candied cherries. Add to half the dough. Add 1 teaspoon almond extract. Drop by spoonfuls. Bake at 375° F. 15 minutes.

MERINGUE TOPS—Spread dough in pan ¼ inch thick. Cover with meringue made of 1 egg white, 1 cup brown sugar. Sprinkle top with ½ cup chopped nuts. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 25 minutes. Cut in diamonds while warm.

Part 2—Roll Dough

GUMDROP STARS—To half of the roll dough, add ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and 1 cup chopped gumdrops. Roll to a sheet ¼ inch thick. Bake at 375° F. 15 minutes. Cut while warm in sticks or stars. Roll in powdered sugar.

DATE PINWHEELS—Cook to a paste 1 cup chopped dates, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup water. Cool. Roll dough ⅛ inch thick. Spread with date filling. Roll up like jelly roll. Wrap in waxed paper. Chill. Slice crosswise. Bake at 375° F. 15 minutes.

Now Comes New Improved

OLD DUTCH CLEANSER

50% FASTER

...Cuts Work and Cleaning Time Almost in Half

New Miracle Ingredient Dissolves Stubborn Grease Like Magic

Here is the cleanser of tomorrow—brought to you today! A revolutionary development that will change all your previous ideas about faster, easier cleaning—about safety that's unsurpassed.

For new Improved Old Dutch contains an amazing new ingredient—and does these surprising things:

(1) It cleans 50% faster than even the famous Old Dutch cleanser that has been America's favorite for years! Thus it puts an end to needless drudgery and elbow-fag—and cuts cleaning time almost in half.

(2) The remarkable new ingredient in Improved Old Dutch dissolves grease almost like magic—gives you double-action cleaning! Just a few quick wipes and sinks, stoves, bathtubs come sparkling—immaculately clean!

(3) New Improved Old Dutch is safety itself for porcelain, metal and painted surfaces. It DOESN'T SCRATCH—because made with safe, flaky Seismotite! Is really kind to hands.

Once you try new Improved Old Dutch you'll never go back to less modern ways! So, no matter what your favorite cleanser has been in the past, ask your dealer for new 50% faster Old Dutch today. You'll save time, save work—and save money, too—because a little goes so far!

No change in the familiar Dutch girl package—the difference is all inside. Get a supply right now. You'll be glad you did.

CAMELS

● For those who prefer cigarettes, give Camels and you can be sure your gift will be appreciated. For more smokers prefer slower-burning Camels than any other cigarette. They are the cigarette of costlier tobaccos that gives more pleasure in every puff. Your dealer is featuring Camels for Christmas in your choice of the two handsome packages shown above. Easy to get—perfect to receive. Yes, there's nothing like Camels to say: "Happy holidays and happy smoking."

PRINCE ALBERT

● No problem about those pipe-smokers on your gift list! You just can't miss when you give them a big, long-lasting one-pound tin of the world's most popular smoking tobacco—Prince Albert! (Or a one-pound real glass humidor.) Pipe-smokers call Prince Albert the National Joy Smoke. They say: "There's no other tobacco like it!" Your local dealer has Prince Albert's Christmas-wrapped "specials" on display now! Get your Prince Albert gifts today!

Secret Agent Hy Score
...Hy finds himself a prisoner of a super-man of crime-
Yes, Mr. Score, you've caused me entirely too much inconvenience-
I see - you're just another ordinary criminal... in a trick disguise!
The word 'ordinary' pricks my vanity! I possess the title of 'Doctor' and justly so! I hold degrees in philosophy, medicine and law...
...and my appearance is no mere disguise - the intangible aspect of my face is the result of scientific research... you see I have reasons to conceal my identity.......
......Drop that phone!
That's funny - Agent Score started to say something then stopped abruptly - better trace the call and send over a few of the boys
As I was about to show you - this is a model of that much-talked-of bomb sight you've read about in the papers - it was the country's secret weapon... how'd I get it? Ha! Foreign powers would like to know that, too!
...To get to the point... I find local crime disgustingly amateurish - it's true that my organization dips in opium smuggling, kidnapping and the like, but my major interest lies in universal things
Mark my words, events are shaping which will shake the world - war, self-preservation and so on. I've chosen the side against the old-fashioned quest for liberty and freedom - my theory is - might makes right! Strange? Ha! We shall see!
You appear nervous, Mr. Score, can it be that you hope your appeal for help went thru ... knowing that you'll need it?
Don't be a child! Nothing can help you escape the destiny thru which you must pass! You fellows are too slow - and stupid ... I act - like this!

Texas Slim
You would cut th' rope which was holdin' us up you big - ouch!
Omp!
Swush!
Well, for gosh sakes! Stop flappin' around like a angel and git me outta this rain catcher, Texas.
Sure
You know, Dirty- I have a funny feeling about this place- you don't suppose that fall wuz our finish and this is heaven, do you?
-Ugh! 'Sno use, Texas, you'll have to go in th' cabin and borry a ax.
Heck no- what'd I be doin' here?
Maybe so, but look! I allus dreamed heaven was where I could get all th' chile con carne I could eat and here's a heap of it freshly fixed.

Fighting with Daniel Boone
by C. C. Cooper
Peter and Mollie who are hunting deer, lie concealed near a forest spring
Sh-h! Here's one- you take him, Mollie!
But suddenly the deer tenses and bounds back!
It either scented us or—look!!
Suddenly, from above, a tawny form launches itself at the fleeing deer!!
Instantly Peter and Mollie fire!!
We got him, Peter!
Crickets, Peter! This is the biggest 'painter' I've ever seen!
Quiet, Mollie, don't move an inch—we've been caught napping! It's mate is right behind you!!
Say your prayers Mollie 'cause she'll be on us before we kin load agin! She'll spring at the least movement!
Our only chance is for you to throw your tomahawk, Peter!
Right!! An' when I thro' it, you run faster than you ever hev'-
Shut up that talk, Peter Stuart I've got a knife too an' I stay!
I've still got my huntin' knife!
Suddenly with a blood-chilling snarl, the great cat springs!!—and Peter hurls his tomahawk!
Next week— "Bear-Dog' Balser"

Streamer Kelly
Jack Ryan
That takes care of him!
The meddling fool!—throw him below with the other swine!
Ha! Ha! Ha! Try to upset our plans, will you!?
It is midnight, sir! The hour has come!
Yes, the leader will be well pleased with our work!
Ignorant of the fact that the fire boat is in the hands of foreign agents, Streamer jumps aboard to warn the captain of the impending S.S. Albernia touch-off
At that moment, on board the S.S. Albernia!
Engine 24 arrives on the scene
C'mon, men! Not a second to lose!
Where's that fire boat? We can't lick this fire ourselves!
Marblehead!! Where did that fat head go?
Oh-h-h-h-h! My head! Where am I?
On the fire boat, buddy— we're all prisoners, I guess!
Correct! But only until the S.S. Albernia is burned to a crisp! Then you will go free!
Is that someone at that porthole, or is my head still spinning?
A closer view reveals the plump face of Marblehead—
Fire Fax
Light Truck
This unit responds to more serious fires at night when visibility is poor. It carries several powerful flood lights, a smoke piercing search-light, and portable lights that can be set up at convenient places near the fire.

FER PETE'S PICCOLO! TOSS YER EYES YONDER, DIRTY.
HOLY SMOKE! AND ME BOGGED DOWN BY THIS BARREL!
RUN, TEXAS- THAT TWO BARRELED THING THEY GOT AIN'T NO SLING SHOT!
I'LL SAVE YUH, DIRTY.
I GOT THE SKINNY ONE!
FISH FOR THE FAT ONE!
BAM
HONEST, MISS, WE ONLY BORRYED TH' CHILE 'CAUSE WE WUZ STARVED. LET US GO, AND WE'LL NEVER, NEVER COME BACK!
THAT'S JEST WHAT OUR SISTER- CALAMITY'S AFRAID OF-AREN'T YOU THE LUCKY ONE, MR. DALTON. I MADE MY SISTERS PROMISE I COULD ENTERTAIN YOU ALL BY MYSELF.
YEAH!
ISN'T HE CUTE!
MORE CHILE, MR. SLIM?
I WUZ RIGHT, DIRTY, THIS IS HEAVEN!
NOW BACK TO DOUBLE-CROSS RANCH:
OH, DADDY, I'M SO UNHAPPY SINCE TEXAS AND DIRTY LEFT US.
ME TOO, JESSIE- IT'S MIGHTY LONE-SOME AROUND HERE WITH NO ONE TO GET MAD AT AND RAISE TH' ROOF ABOUT- SNIFF-SNIFF.

WHITEBOY IN SKULL VALLEY
SAM SLAID, A CRIMINAL, AFTER ESCAPING FROM TWO OUTLAWS, HOLDS UP SHERIFF IRWIN AND THEN KIDNAPS TWO GIRL MOTORISTS TO GET THEIR AUTO. NOW TO GO ON WITH THE STORY:
START WALKING, YOU CITY HICKS—I NEED YOUR CAR WORSE THAN YOU DO!
THE BLACK MESA OUTLAWS WAIT IN AMBUSH TO ROB THE CAR WHEN IT APPEARS: GET READY—IT'S COMIN' ROUND THE BEND!
ABOVE, MIGUEL PLOTS REVENGE AGAINST THESE VILLAINS FOR DRIVING HIS SHEEP OVER THE CLIFF.
WHY IT'S SLAID! THE SKUNK GOT AWAY FROM THAT STEER WE HANDCUFFED HIM TO!
LOOK OUT, CHET!
CRASH
SLAID IS LITERALLY CAUGHT IN A STEEL TRAP!
$1000 HAS JUST BEEN OFFERED BY MR. PAUL WHITE FOR THE CAPTURE OF SAM SLAID
YOW!
RETURNING WITH A GUN FOR SHERIFF IRWIN, WHOSE OWN GUN WAS STOLEN BY SLAID WHEN HE FIRST ESCAPED, BOB AND DORIS MEET THE GIRL MOTORISTS, WHO TELL THEIR STORY.
YOU CAN'T CATCH HIM NOW, HE HAS TOO GOOD A START!
I'LL TRY
STRETCH YOURSELF, SOX!

19
HEY, CHET, GET OUT OF SIGHT QUICK—HERE COMES THAT NOSEY KID, BOB WHITE! NOW WE CAN GET HIM!
BOB, WHO HAS BEEN SENT FOR A GUN BY SHERIFF IRWIN, IS JERKED FROM THE SADDLE BY A LASSO
MEANWHILE DORIS HALE TAKES LEAVE OF THE GIRL MOTORISTS WHOSE CAR HAS BEEN STOLEN
WHAT ARE WE TO DO?
I'LL RIDE ON AHEAD AND LOOK FOR SOMEONE TO HELP YOU.
GRACIOUS, THERES A WRECKED CAR AHEAD!
HORRORS, IT'S SLAID! HE'S UNCONSCIOUS! I'LL TAKE THIS RIFLE BEFORE HE COMES TO!
HERE COMES A CAR! I'M GOING TO FLAG IT!
SO YOU'RE THE YOUNG LADY WHO OBJECTED TO GIVING ANYBODY A RIDE!
THAT MUST HAVE BEEN SLAID WHO STOLE YOUR CAR! I'M LOOKING FOR HIM TOO. I HAVE A THOUSAND DOLLARS IN MY POCKET TO GIVE TO THE ONE WHO CATCHES HIM
OUR POOR CAR!
WHAT IS ALL THIS?
I'VE FOUND SAM SLAID—HE'S IN THAT SMASHED CAR!
THAT IS YOUR REWARD FOR CAPTURING A DANGEROUS CRIMINAL.
THANKS, I'LL USE IT TO BUY THOSE GIRLS A NEW CAR
